WINCHESTER MASS., FRIDAY, JANUARY 1, 1926

PRICE SEVEN CENTS

A FINE CHRISTMAS

Winchester Children Entertained by Elks at Big Party

Winchester Lodge of Elks' Christmas for the children was the biggest affair the local lodge has yet staged, and it has several large parties to its credit already. It is estimated that fully 900 children were entertained by the Elks in the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon, and to say that the big party was a success is to put it very mildly.

There were Christmas decorations, a huge tree all glimmering with colored lights, a fine show, music, presents, ice cream and candy. Needless to say, every child who attended was thoroughly satisfied with the celebration. For over two hours Winchester's young folks lived in a riot of fun and enjoyment, and from the time they entered the hall until they were once more on their way home, there was not a dull minute.

P. E. R. Frederick D. Clement was Santa. This is a secret for the grown-ups, and Fred did the job up brown, having gained considerable experience, not only in his own home with his own kiddies, but also as a prominent member of the School Committee. He stamped and roared, and rolled onto the stage in the most approved Santa Claus fashion, being very true to life, even though he is a slim gentleman in private affairs. He was decidedly the hit of the afternoon.

Chairman Nathaniel M. Nichols of the Welfare Committee of the lodge was master of ceremonies, and while he took charge and saw to it that every child had a good time, he deserves a lot more credit for the things he did which were unobserved; such as working every night for a fortnight or more wrapping up the presents, distributing the tickets in the right places, seeing to it that those children who really should go, were at the party, buying the many necessary goodies and gifts, and in fact, looking after the hundred and one things which go with such a big celebration.

The entertainment included an acrobat with only one arm, who performed stunts that surely no other man could do; a magician who really knew his business—which was first and last to amuse; some fine moving pictures, singing, distribution of gifts, and last but not least a fine assortment of refreshments.

There were many Elks on hand to assist with the program, including a large group from the Emblem Club. The ladies were headed by Mrs. George T. Davidson, who was assisted by Mrs. George H. Lochman, Mrs. Thomas F. Fallon, Mrs. J. A. Lazzar, Mrs. Helen B. Emerson, Miss Mae Davidson and Miss Priscilla Laraway.

Under Mr. Nichols' direction were the following Elks, who assisted: E. R. Maurice Dinnene, Fred H. Scholl, George H. Lochman, Thomas F. Fallon, Benjamin Cullen, George T. Davidson, John P. Donaghey, James P. Donaghey, John Lynch, Harry Doten, William L. Cleary, Edmund C. Sanderson, John MacCarron, Frank Randall, Edward Callahan, Arthur Mullen, George Lynch, J. Albert Horn, William Rogers, Manlio Moffett, Arthur Day, Thomas Higgins, James J. Fitzgerald.

HOWDY, FOLKS!

Jest want tew say that I've been hired out to do a little up-country fiddlin' fer them "Follies uv '76." Head feller in the show sed thar wasn't no use throwin' good money away adverstis'n' someone everybody knows, but I'm jest spendin' a little coin out uv my own stockin' to bust into print and refresh yer minds that I'm the Dellie thet made Henry's Ford sit up all night ter listen. I'm the old boy that put the Lady in the Lake, and thar ain't nobody more familiar with the Virginia Reel—specially the gin part. My act is goin' ter make Winchester famous, just ez sure ez an Aroostick Farmer on a risin' potato market. I'm good, and what's more, I'm durn sure I'm good.

Yures trooly,
Dellie Nunham
(None sech, and none better)

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Feinberg of 44 Middlesex street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mollie Jeannette to Mr. Benjamin Kaplan of 624 Main street, formerly of Lowell. Mr. Kaplan is the proprietor of the Winchester Cleansing Company. The wedding date has not been set.

INTERESTING SIDELIGHTS

The Winton Club was organized in May 1911, with 14 charter members, all but four of whom are still members of the club. The name Winton has an interesting connection with Winchester, England, and our own town of Winchester as well. At about the time the club was formed, the Bishop of Winchester, England, was here for the laying of the cornerstone of the Church of the Epiphany, which is designed somewhat like the Cathedral of Winchester, England. The ecclesiastical signature of the Bishop of Winchester is Winton, and the name seemed to the group of girls just organizing, an interesting and appropriate name for their club. The active membership was limited to 50, in order that the group might not be too large to meeting in the members' homes. The object of the club was to help keep the Winchester Hospital, which was soon to be opened, equipped with linen, and consequently the meetings have been practically all devoted to sewing.

A great variety of articles have been made in the 14 years: baby layettes, doctors' operating gowns, surgical nightgowns, various kinds of bandages and nursing supplies, draw sheets, tray cloths, bureau covers, curtains, napkins hemmed, and for several years all the hospital mending done. For a few years the club paid for the hospital mending as well as making these new articles. Since 1922 a large number of surgical dressings have been made each year, to help the nurses who have been kept so busy with the crowded conditions at the hospital. In 1921 the club guaranteed to give the hospital $500 each year to buy new linen, in addition to its regular work of furnishing material and making supplies. When the new hospital was built the club furnished a room and gave the money necessary for its maintenance, and at the time of the "drive" for money to build additions to the hospital and nurses' home $500 was given.

Various things have been done to raise money to do all this work for the hospital, bridge parties, lectures, garden party, etc., and for the last five years the cabaret. In all its efforts the club has been most heartily supported by the people of Winchester, and because of their help the Winton Club has been able to increase its work for the hospital.

On the 29th of January, once more the club will give a cabaret, and once more it asks for your support to help it carry on this work for our hospital.

FORMER WINCHESTER GIRLS ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Eaton Bird, formerly of Winchester, have announced the engagement of their daughters, the Misses Betty and Constance Bird, Miss Betty to Henry Lee Higginson, and Miss Constance to Lawrence White Cochrane. The announcement was made at a tea given on last Saturday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Bird at their home, 126 Park street, Brookline. Mrs. George Warren Cochrane and Mrs. Rosamond Tudor Higginson, mothers of the two young men to whom the Bird sisters are engaged, poured together with Mrs. Arthur G. Williams and Mrs. W. P. Rousseau. Miss Marquita Patten, soprano, sang.

The Misses Bird are both widely known in Winchester where they graduated from high school and were prominent in the social life of the younger set. Both have studied at the New England Conservatory of Music and the Academy of Speech Arts. Miss Betty Bird, who is a coloratura soprano, has attended a local school of opera and is now studying under a noted vocal teacher. Miss Constance Bird attended the Boston University Art School.

Henry Lee Higginson is the son of Captain A. Henry Higginson, and his mother was before her marriage, Miss Rosamond Tudor. He is the grandson of Major Henry L. Higginson, founder of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Higginson studied at Lake Placid and at Harvard.

Lawrence White Cochrane is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Warren Cochrane of Winchester. He attended the Huntington School and Boston University. He is a direct descendant of Benjamin White, one of the 14 original settlers of Brookline. No time has been set for the marriage of the two sisters, but they will have a double wedding.

THREE AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS OVER CHRISTMAS

Only three motor mishaps were reported in Winchester over the holiday, a fine showing when one considers the press of traffic, and the slippery condition of the streets.

The most serious of the three took place at 3:55 on the afternoon of the day before Christmas and resulted in Henry Wallace, 9-year-old son of Mrs. Mary E. Wallace of 90 Middlesex street, being removed to the Winchester Hospital where he received treatment for injuries sustained when he was struck by a Ford coupe owned and operated by Eugene F. McSweeney of 4 Jones avenue, North Woburn. McSweeney, who was going north on Main street struck the boy at a point opposite the Fells Market. He picked up young Wallace and both were taken to the Winchester Hospital in the automobile of Edson Laraway of the Winchester Buick Co. It was found upon examination that the boy was not seriously injured and he was allowed to leave the hospital in time to spend his Christmas at home.

The holiday's only accident occurred at 10:30 in the morning when a Ford sedan, owned and operated by William Eben Ramsdell of 8 Summit avenue, upon coming out of Winthrop street onto Washington street, collided with a Chrysler brougham owned and driven by Paul J. D. Haley of 49 High street, Medford. Both cars were damaged but no one was injured.

Saturday at 11 a. m. as Norman V. Osborne, local builder, of 22 Brookside road, was driving his Flint touring car from Wedgemere avenue on to Church street his machine was in collision with a Ford one-ton truck, the property of the Ryhan Motor Service Company of 1316 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, and operated by Paul F. Carty of 15 Graham avenue, Boston. The Flint was damaged, but neither driver was hurt.

ARREST EIGHT IN CRAP GAME

Eight men, five from Winchester and three from Woburn whose ages ranged from 17 to 35 years, were arrested last Saturday afternoon while in the act of "shooting crap" in a shed at North Winchester by Sgt. Rogers and officer Edward O'Connell, in the local police.

It was about 3 o'clock when officer O'Connell first noticed several men apparently meeting at the shed which is the property of the Winchester Rock and Brick Co. and is situated off Holton street near the Woburn line. Thinking they might be engaged in bootlegging the patrolman kept an eye on the place until he had counted eight in the act of entering the building.

Summoning Sgt. Rogers from police headquarters, officer O'Connell acquainted him with the situation and the two policemen crept up to the shed where they watched the company at its game for some time. Finally at an opportune moment they rushed into the shed where they placed the eight gamblers under arrest. A sum of money and a set of dice were taken as evidence to the station house where the men were booked by Lieut. John Harold and later released in $100 bail.

The case came up in the Woburn Court Monday morning where all eight men were found not guilty and discharged by Judge Morton. Judge Morton based his finding upon the fact that in his opinion the men were not gaming in a "public place."

ROSA CRAWFORD COREY

Mrs. Rosa Crawford Corey, wife of James E. Corey, passed away at noon-time on Monday, Dec. 28, at her home on the Parkway after an illness of several months. She was 59 years of age.

Mrs. Corey was born at Northboro, the daughter of Charles J. and Rose N. (Crawford) Mack. Her early life and up to the time of her marriage was spent in Northboro, her education having been received in the schools of that town and at the New England Conservatory of Music. Following her marriage to Mr. Corey in 1887 Mrs. Corey came to Winchester and had since made her home here, having been actively identified with many of the religious and social organizations of the community.

She was a past president of the Ladies' Western Missionary Society of the First Congregational Church of which she was also a member as well as of the Mission Union of the same body. For many years she had been a member of the Fortnightly Women's Club and had been actively interested in the work of the local Mothers' Association and of the Winchester branch of the Florence Crittenton League.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two daughters: Miss Pauline G. Corey of New Brunswick, N. J., and Mrs. Robert Johnson of Woburn; a son, George Richards Corey of Winchester; and a sister, Mrs. Mary E. Mentzer of Northboro.

Funeral services were held at the late residence, 232 Mystic Valley Park way, on Wednesday afternoon, and were conducted by the Rev. Howard J. Chidley of the First Congregational Church. The bearers were Mr. James Smith, Mr. Herbert G. Brooks, Mr. Preston E. Corey, all of Winchester, and Mr. Edwin S. Corey of Northboro. Interment was in the family lot in the Northboro Cemetery.

Miss Jane Burnham of Everett avenue assisted by Donald Cameron of Leicester, England, took a prominent part in the Greater Lynn 20th Annual Charity Ball entertainment at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, Tuesday night. Miss Burnham and Mr. Cameron made a big hit with the exhibition of the Charleston. More than 1000 couples attended the event.

SANTA CLAUS VISITS POND STREET

Metropolitan Officer Keefe invited Santa Claus to visit the children of the neighborhood on Christmas night at his home 38 Pond street. Santa accepted the invitation and appeared about 7:30, entering by an upper window. He came down the stairway into the living room with a huge sack on his back, then after greeting all present, opened up his bag and passed out favors to all. He was so busy he couldn't stay long. Mr. Keefe had to leave just before Santa Claus came to attend a duty call at the station and was dreadfully disappointed that he didn't get back before the jolly old fellow left. However, Mr. Keefe had a very beautifully decorated Christmas tree and his house all trimmed up for Santa Claus' visit. The children each received a fancy cap and after refreshments were served Mr. Howard L. Tarte directed one of Henry Ford's old-fashioned square dances with Mr. Keefe fiddling to beat Mellic Dunham.

The party consisted of: George Morgan, Ruth Morgan, Richard Caldwell, George Pabst, Mary Pabst, Charlie Pabst, Margaret Swanson, Nils Swanson, Albert Little, Billie Sullivan, Catherine Sullivan, Mary Sullivan, Wilfred Lafayette, Gustin Lafayette, Harvey Lafayette, John Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Little, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pabst, Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Tarte, Mr. and Mrs. Burton C. Caldwell, Mrs. John C. Dodge, Mrs. Carl Dodge, Mr. Burton C. Caldwell, Sr., Mr. Louis E. Tuthin, Mr. Thomas McGovern, Mr. Joseph Sibby.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The annual meeting of the National Legislative Conference and Temperance Council was held in Washington during the week of Dec. 7. This is a body for conference only to which suggestions and recommendations are made and transmitted to the various temperance organizations whose officers are members of the Council.

The immediate program on legislation recommended to the constituent groups includes:

Civil Service for prohibition agents; Deportation of aliens convicted of violating the prohibition and narcotic laws; increased penalties for violation of the National Prohibition Act; and making it a felony to forge prohibition permits, or to issue forged permits; adequate appropriations for the enforcement of prohibition. This includes not only appropriation for the Prohibition Unit, but for the Coast Guards, the Department of Justice, and any other department having to do with prohibition enforcement.

One of the delightful affairs of the week was a banquet given at the Cosmos Club by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union and the Anti-Saloon League to members of Congress and their wives. The new National President, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, presided as toast-mistress over the first half of the delightful program. It was an opportunity for leaders and other members of the United States Congress to meet Mrs. Boole and on every side were heard remarks about her statesmanlike ability and the dignified and delightful manner in which she presided over the banquet.

Mr. Scott S. McBride, Superintendent of the anti-saloon league acted as toastmaster during the last half of the evening.

Many sincere and highly appreciated tributes were paid to the W. C. T. U. workers. General Andrews, Mayor Haynes, and everyone of the Senators and Representatives responded briefly and most convincingly in speeches that carried the theme of the evening, "The Encouraging Outlook."

ORGAN RECITAL

First Congregational Church Sunday at 4 P. M.

At the First Congregational Church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock Mr. G. Wallace Woodworth, the organist, assisted by the Chancel Choir and Mrs. Walter W. Winslip, soloist, will give a musical vesper.

Mr. Woodworth is a master at the organ and also a choir-leader. He plays as organist at Appleton Chapel, Harvard and is training the Harvard Glee Club this year. The program should be of interest to all music lovers. It is as follows:

(The Christmas Oratorio) ... Bach
O'er the Cradle of a King ... French Carol Chorus in A Minor ... Franck
Ora pro nobis ... Liszt
Gavotte ... Handel
Salute Angelica ... Karz-Eliot
Pastoral Symphony (The Messiah) ... Handel
Hallelujah Chorus (The Messiah) ... Handel
Marche Pontificale ... Lemmens

WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The regular meeting of the League will be held at the home of Mrs. Sewall E. Newman, 9 Cliff street on Wednesday, Jan. 6 at 3 o'clock. During January the subject for leagues throughout the state is the Public Schools. Mr. James J. Quinn will speak on this subject to the Winchester League. An opportunity will be given for questions and discussion. There will be a Board Meeting at 2:30.

MR. CARL PERSON

Mr. Carl Person, aged 73 years, died at his home, 83 Loring avenue, yesterday. He was a native of Sweden, and is survived by a large family of children.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Principal Wade L. Grindle of the Winchester High School has announced the tentative schedule for the Girls' Interscholastic Basketball League comprising teams from Arlington, Lexington, Melrose, Watertown, Wellesley and Winchester. Mr. Grindle was selected to draw up the schedule at a recent meeting held in the new Watertown High School which was attended by the principals, coaches and student captains and managers representing the various teams involved. From Winchester, in addition to Principal Grindle, were Manager Dorothy Newman and Captain Dorothy Bond. Before the business meeting the group was shown about the new school building which, in addition to a splendid auditorium with complete electrical appliances and the latest in school equipment, contains a gymnasium with floor space large enough to permit two basketball teams or gymn squads to practice at the same time. Most of those who viewed the plant characterized it as one of the finest which they had ever seen.

The tentative schedule follows:

Jan. 15-Arlington at Lexington
15-Melrose at Wellesley
15-Watertown at Winchester
15-Watertown at Arlington
20-Wellesley at Watertown
20-Winchester at Lexington
26-Arlington at Watertown
26-Lexington at Melrose
26-Wellesley at Winchester

Feb. 3-Wellesley at Arlington
3-Watertown at Lexington
3-Winchester at Melrose
3-Arlington at Winchester
10-Lexington at Wellesley
10-Melrose at Watertown
15-Lexington at Arlington
15-Wellesley at Melrose
17-Winchester at Watertown
19-Arlington at Melrose

Mar. 4-Lexington at Winchester
4-Watertown at Wellesley
10-Melrose at Lexington
10-Watertown at Arlington
10-Winchester at Wellesley 18-Arlington at Wellesley 18-Lexington at Watertown
18-Melrose at Winchester
24-Watertown at Melrose
24-Wellesley at Lexington
24-Winchester at Arlington

Prospects for a fairly successful season at the local high school are bright judging by the showing which the team made against the alumni recently. Only three of last year's team are available this season; Captain "Dot" Bond, "Kay" Carlisle and "Vin" Rollo. The new players who showed so well in the first game were "Kay" Valleley, Margaret Stevens and "Kay" Shultis. The loss of Florence Ferrina on the forward line will be particularly felt this year as she was one of the best around the circuit during the season past.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS AT THE HIGHLANDS

A real old fashioned Community Christmas was enjoyed by the residents of the Highlands district this year. Never before has there been a more pleasing display of neighborly spirit than that evinced by the crowd of merry-makers who gathered together in the Second Congregational Chapel on Cross street last week, Tuesday evening for the church Christmas tree and party. A real Santa Claus was in attendance to give out presents, candy and sweetmeats, for all while the carol singing of a group of little children who had previously visited the Winchester Home for the Aged was greatly enjoyed. The Rev. John E. Whitley, pastor of the church, presided at the meeting and gave a brief address.

On Christmas Eve, following the large meeting held in the Town Hall, the residents of the Highlands adjourned to their own Community tree on the new Second Congregational Church lot at the corner of Washington street and Kenwin road. There the company gathered around the gaily lighted tree and listened to the Christmas carols which were rendered by a group of singers recruited from the neighborhood. Following their singing at the tree the carolers visited the Winchester Hospital and other places in the district.

This Christmas was a particularly joyous one for residents of the Highlands in that it was an established fact that the contract for the new Community Church was about to be signed. As the Star went to press it was expected that plans would be formulated to begin on the excavation for the foundation of the building as soon as favorable weather arrives.

PUBLIC INSTALLATION

Mystic Valley Lodge Holds Important Event

Mystic Valley Lodge, A. F. & A. M., will hold one of the most important affairs in its history next Thursday night when the public installation of new officers and its annual ladies' night take place. Opening at 6 o'clock, the lodge will hold a reception to the ladies and other guests at 6:15. At 6:45 dinner will be served in the masonic hall. The evening has been planned especially for the ladies and guests, and many friends of the lodge have signified their intention of attending.

The installation, which takes place at 8:15, will be under the direction of Most Worshipful Dudley H. Ferrell, Grand Master of Masons in Massachusetts. He will be assisted by Rt. W. Frank H. Hilton, Senior Grand Warden, acting Grand Marshall. Following the installation ceremonies there will be an entertainment and dancing.

One of the visitors in Winchester over the holiday was Mr. Sydney Elliott of Long Island City who spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Elliott of Linden street.

CHRISTMAS AT THE HOME FOR THE AGED

Not many Winchester households held more of happy anticipation for the Christmas holiday, or experienced their hopes more fully realized than the one at the Home for the Aged. The tender thoughtfulness and generous consideration that is constantly given this Home the year round, doubled its reputation for the holiday season.

Early in the week little children, from the Second Congregational Church under the direction of Miss Fogg came to sing carols and give recitations.

A group of young women representing the Methodist Church gave a delightful evening's entertainment and left huge baskets of supplies for the Christmas dinner.

Money, crates of fruit, practical stores of all kinds, potted plants, useful wearing apparel, and greetings of cheer, came with eager hands and liberal hearts.

On Christmas Eve the carol singing under the direction of the Fortnightly and later by two other groups of carol singers, were a climax to an already overflowing cup of happiness, and Christmas morn was ushered in by a sweet peace as befitting the day.

From all who enjoyed these benefactions, and from everyone who feels the responsibility of the furtherance of this worth-while work, grateful thanks are hereby expressed to the many, many friends of the Home for the Aged in Winchester.

SUNDAY EVENINGS AT THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

A special series of New Year services will be held at 7 o'clock Sunday evenings at the Baptist Church. The music will be made a feature with a Chorus Choir assisted by Paul Russell of Brookline, Tenor Soloist. Mr. Walcott will preach a special series of sermons in January on, "The Long, Long Trail." The topics on successive Sunday evenings will be: Jan. 3—"The Lure of the Untrodden Path;" Jan. 10—"The Dangers of a Winding Road;" Jan. 17—"The Joy of a Good Traveling Companion;" Jan. 24—"The Glory of the Land of My Dreams."

FORTNIGHTLY OPENS NEW HEADQUARTERS WITH HOUSEWARMING JAN. 6

All Fortnightly members are cordially invited to attend an informal reception and tea in the new Fortnightly Hall over Randall's store, Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 6, from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock.

Since this occasion affords an excellent opportunity for old and new members to meet and know each other the committee hopes for a large attendance.

STILL WORKING ON POST OFFICE

The Board of Selectmen are in receipt of a letter from the town's representative from the 8th district, Congressman Harry I. Thayer, stating that the latter had introduced into the House of Representatives a bill calling for an increase in the appropriation for the construction of a new Post Office building in Winchester. Mr. Thayer assures the Board that he will do all which he consistently can to obtain favorable action.

Miss Mary Richards and Miss Josephine Brine are Winchester ladies who are patronesses for the whist to be held at Alden Park Manor, Brookline on next Monday. In aid of the fund which the Convent of Notre Dame is raising to erect a chapel in Newton.

ANNOUNCED ENGAGEMENT AT TEA

An engagement of interest is that announced on last Saturday afternoon of Miss Dorothy Ordway, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Ordway of this town, to Vincent Farnsworth, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth of Copley street, Winchester. The announcement was made at a small tea given by Dr. and Mrs. Ordway at their home, 371 Main street. Those who poured were Mrs. Frank L. Ripley, Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth, Mrs. Harry S. Parsons, Mrs. Fletcher Parker, Mrs. Harold V. Farnsworth and Mrs. Merton E. Grush.

Miss Ordway and Mr. Farnsworth are both widely known among Winchester's young people. The former, the granddaughter of Mrs. Ripley and the late Frank L. Ripley, is a graduate of Walnut Hill School and of Smith College, in the class of 1925. Mr. Farnsworth graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale in 1924, preparing for college at Phillips Academy, Andover. At Yale he played on the varsity hockey team and was a member of St. Anthony Hall. He is at present in business in Cincinnati, O., being associated with Proctor & Gamble Co.

JAMES W. RUSSELL

The Boston Market Gardeners' Association of which he was a charter member, and the Winchester Trust Company, of which he had been an official were among the organizations represented at the funeral services for James W. Russell which were held at his home, at 86 Main street, on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 24 at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Winchester Unitarian parish.

The honorary pallbearers were Samuel S. Symmes of Winchester and Alfred S. Hall of Revere who are brothers-in-law of Mr. Russell; Charles E. Barrett, Charles H. Symmes, George A. Fernald and Fred L. Pattee, all of Winchester and members of the Board of Directors of the Winchester Trust Company. The body was cremated at Mount Auburn.

WINCHESTER MAN'S CAR STRIKES WOBURN COASTERS

Last Saturday afternoon Leslie A. Drake of 231 Cambridge street, Winchester, while driving his automobile on Buckman street in Woburn had the misfortune to strike two young coasters, Joseph O'Donnell, 5, and James T. O'Donnell, 6, sons of Mr. and Mrs. George L. O'Donnell of 19 Stoddard street, that city.

According to the police account of the accident the two little boys were coasting on Stoddard street, and had turned their sled into Buckman street when they ran head on into Drake's machine before the latter had a chance to swing his car from their path. Joseph was taken to his home where he was treated by a physician for cuts about the head, but James was so badly injured that he was removed to the Choate Memorial Hospital. There his condition was found to be critical, he having sustained a possible fractured skull as well as other injuries to his head and body.

The Woburn police attached no blame for the accident to Mr. Drake, but held him on the technical charge of operating a motor car so as to endanger the lives of the public. He appeared in the District Court at Woburn on Monday morning where his case was continued for a week.

UNITARIAN MEN'S CLUB

The next meeting of the Unitarian Men's Club is scheduled for Friday, Jan. 8, with dinner at 6:30. The speaker of the evening will be Mr. W. Harry Allen, president of the New Brunswick Guides' Association, who will give a talk on "Big Game Hunting and Salmon Fishing" in New Brunswick. His talk will be illustrated throughout by moving pictures and his entertainment promises to be very interesting.

A feature of the dinner is the fact that Mr. Allen has very kindly offered to donate enough of his own smoked salmon to supply the diners. The officers of the club therefore request that all members make known at an early date their intentions of attending or not.

CHRISTMAS AT THE WINCHESTER HOSPITAL

The observance of Christmas at the Winchester Hospital this year was undoubtedly the most notable celebration of the great festival in the history of the institution. All through the day before Christmas, there were visitors who called to leave flowers, decorations and gifts for the patients and the nurses. On Christmas eve there was carol singing by choristers from various Winchester churches.

At half past five Christmas morning the nurses assembled in the hospital and sang carols and two hours later the choir from the Episcopal Church sang carols outside in the garden. The nurses had their own very enjoyable party in the new Nurses' Home. There was a splendid tree in the class room and gifts and jokes were exchanged. Miss Ethel Knowlton of Winchester acted as Santa Claus. Games, music and refreshments followed. The delicious strawberry ice cream was made at the hospital and the little cakes and pop corn contributed by friends. About 30 nurses were present. Their guests were the training school committee: Mrs. S. P. Williams, Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer and Mrs. W. Dudley Cotton.

There was another beautiful tree in the hospital. This was a small tree, but very gay and festive and was moved about from ward to ward. It seemed to be a heart-throb of the home planted right in the midst of sickness and convalescence—a most cheery symbol of the spirit of Christmas.

All day long on Christmas, hospital rules were waived and visitors were allowed to come and go as they wished. Miss Mackay, the hospital superintendent, who had charge of all the festivities, wishes to thank the people of Winchester in behalf of the staff and the nurses for their many kindnesses. A list of donations for the occasion follows:

For the Hospital
Mr. Abbott—Six large wreaths with ribbon.

Order of the Eastern Star—Check for $10.
Mrs. May—Bon-bon baskets for patients' trays.

Betty Mead—Bells, silver trimming, flowers for decoration and a doll.

Mrs. Williams—Rolls of red and green crepe paper.

Miss Murray—Bead ornaments.

Miss Mason—Candy baskets.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Beggs—One case of grapefruit and one case of oranges.

The Wadleigh School—Christmas cards, scrap books and puzzles.

The Fortnightly—Book cart with books and magazines.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Siedhof—Two books.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowen Tufts—Two plants.

For the Nurses' Home

Mrs. Eben Page—Check for $5.

Dr. M. D. Sheehan—$14 for Christmas tree presents and four large boxes of candy.

The Misses Mason—Ornaments and tinsel for the tree and plant for the nurses' home.

The oldest known bell still in use is

Use Salt Sparingly
Did you use 120 pounds of salt last year? If not you did not get your share, for according to the United States bureau of mines, there were 3,803,115 short tons of this necessary substance used or sold by producers in the United States in 1924. Even then Americans used salt more sparingly, for in the year before the allowance per person was about 127 pounds.
Over a third of all this salt is in the form of brine and the rest is evaporated and rock salt. New York, Michigan and Ohio produce nearly four-fifths of all the salt in the United States, and Kansas, Louisiana and California produce the rest.

CALUMET CLUB BOWLINGClosing Games Being Rolled in Winter Tournament

But nine more evenings remain for the bowling in the winter tournament at the Calumet Club, and teams are still fighting hard, both for prizes and to top the "bread line." The outstanding feature of Monday night's matches was the excellent work of team 1, which piled up a total of 1576 with three over 500. Team 8 won three points from 3, 1 all four from 7 and 11 three from 19. Individual work was good, especially among the members of team 1. The best scores

BIG GAME NEXT WEEK

A basketball game of unusual importance will be played on next Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 6, at 3 o'clock in the high school gymnasium when the faculty five, composed of teachers and executives of the School Department, will clash with Capt. "Wop" Rolli's varsity quintet. A large crowd is expected to view the contest.

These faculty-high school games have been played in basketball with more or less regularity for several years, and last spring the teachers put a nine on the diamond which was able to "take" the school team minus the services of its star battery, Tansey and Melly. To be sure the boys have always claimed that the umpiring made it impossible for the "pros" to lose, and have made sure that an absolutely impartial official will be on the job next Wednesday to insure themselves an even break. The faculty have given out no advance statement on the game but apparently have no dread of the issue. An air of quiet confidence in their camp would lead one to believe that they have several winning tricks up their sleeves. Their team will be picked from among the following: Superintendent James J. Quinn, Principal Wade L. Grindle, Arthur E. Butters of the Mathematics Department;
James E. Fuller, Science; Otis W.
Leary, Mechanical Drawing; James F.
Cusick, History; George A. Kuyper, English; and Wendell D. Mansfield, faculty coach.

BOAT CLUB OFFICERS NOMINATED

The nominating committee of the Winchester Boat Club announced this week the list of officers selected for that organization for the coming year.
The annual meeting will take place on Wednesday, Jan. 13, at the Edward T.
Harrington Company offices on Church street, at which time the regular election will take place.

The officers nominated are as follows:
President—Edward B. Ladd
Vice President—George B. Cummings
Secretary—Alan Hovey
Treasurer—Kenneth Pratt
Fleet Captain—Stafford Rogers
Directors—Nathaniel G. Hill, Arthur W.
Toppin, Bert G. Gage, Marshall Symmes, Norman M. Mitchell, Francis Handlett, Philip S.
Hight, Merrill Tucker.

The nominating committee included Messrs. Charles H. Eastwick, Chairman; Nathaniel G. Hill, Alan Hovey, George B. Cummings and Robert E.
Hight.

LINCOLN SCHOOL CHRISTMAS PARTY

At the Lincoln School a very interesting Christmas program was carried out last week. The pupils were pleasantly surprised with a Punch and Judy Show made possible by the kindness and thoughtfulness of Mr. James J. Fitzgerald.

The following school program opened the assembly:
Christmas Carols—Grades 1 and 2
Recitation—A Christmas Poemist
Joseph Hanley
A Christmas Dream—Dolls—
Grades 3, 4 and 5
Rag Doll—Louise Luongo
Lollipop—Frances Pearson
Sailor—Norris Benoit

WINCHESTER HOSPITALA Report from the Building Committee

The Building Committee appointed to care for the construction of the addition to the Winchester Hospital is very glad to report the progress which has been made since the campaign for raising funds.

The problem which was presented to them was a three-fold one—
(1) To provide necessary accommodations for an increased nursing force;

(2) To improve the heating facilities and provide enlarged quarters for the laundry; and
(3) To provide additional accommodations in the hospital in order to better satisfy the demands which were being made for increased service.

The committee felt that it was of first importance to properly house the present staff of nurses, and at the same time provide additional quarters, as it might become necessary to increase the nursing staff, so that their first attention was spent on this part of the program. As the result, the old home has been moved to a new location on Fairmount street and a new building added, practically duplicating the old quarters. The addition is now ready for occupancy, and the Home will care for about 45 nurses.

The next problem was improved heating facilities, and this was met by the erection of a modern, up-to-date heating plant. Steam is provided for all buildings by two large high pressure boilers. On the second story of the boiler plant has been erected a room for the laundry, which will practically double the present laundry space.

The remaining problem, of additional quarters in the hospital, is before the Committee and will take their time and attention during the coming months.

Thus far, three payments have been made on the pledges taken a year ago last March, and while it is hoped that the Committee will be able to begin construction work on the addition to the hospital during the coming spring and early summer, construction can only be carried on as further payments are made on pledges.

"FOLLIES OF '76"

William O. Partridge, Jr., of Arlington Heights, will be dramatic director for the "Follies of '76," midwinter frolic of Winchester Masonic organizations, to be given in the Town Hall, Jan. 22. Mr. Partridge's innate humor and stage lore have already made a very favorable impression upon those rehearsing for the various show parts, and his long experience on the professional and amateur stage, first as actor and later as coach, is bound to make "The Follies" an outstanding show.

Mr. Partridge in his early stage days was associated with several of our nationally-known stage personalities, among them James K. Hackett in "John Ermine of the Yellowstone," the first legitimate stage attraction at the Globe Theatre, and Mrs. Fiske in "Mary of Magdalen" at the Tremont.
Other stage successes in which he participated were with Viola Allen in
"The Eternal City" and Henrietta Crosman in "As You Like It." After several years on the road, however, he became interested in coaching amate-teur plays and in stock company productions, being for a time at the Old Castle Square Theatre, and this has led to community and club work, in which he has become very well known locally.

Some of Mr. Partridge's work has been with John Harris Gutterston, well known to Winchester audiences, in his Theatre Guild at the Fine Arts Theatre, and with Walter H. Baker Company, the playwrights, in preparing plays for the stage, some of the best known being by Courtenay Bru-erton of Tufts College, first produced by "Pen, Paint and Pretzels." Other directing work has been with the Lincoln Players of Watertown, Lowell Textile School, and 12 years supervision of the Howe and Hale Club productions at Dix Street Church, Dorchester.

Within the next few days, Mr. Partridge expects to hold several conferences with the show principals, in preparation of specialty acts to fit into the general structure of the show, particularly on the comedy parts, and a rare treat will be in store for patrons of "The Follies."

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

On Monday afternoon, Dec. 28, the Fortnightly held its regular meeting in the Town Hall. In the absence of our President, Mrs. Ernest Keepers, Second Vice President presided at the meeting. Usual reports were read and after the routine business of the day a most enjoyable program was rendered by the Sauviet Trio, Lucia Sauviet, violinist; Dorothea Fraleigh, cellist and Elford Caughey, harpist.

The program was as follows:

Trios—
(a) Prelude D Minor	Bach
(b) Menuet	Valisusien
(c) Gavotte	Martini
Violin Solo—
(a) Berceuse	Faure
(b) Gitana	Kreisler
Trios—
(a) Song Without Words	Tchaikowsky
(b) Melodie	Tchaikowsky
Harp—Fantasie	Saint Saens
Trios—
(a) Londonderry Air	Kreisler
(b) Romance	Debussy
(c) Spanish Dance	Maskowski
Cello Solos—
(a) Goin' Home	Dvorak
(b) Spanish Serenade	Glagunow
Harp—
(a) Marguerite at the Spinning Wheel	Zabel
Trios—
(a) At the Brook	Boisdeffe
(b) Orientale	Cui
(c) Melodie	Daves

Miss Sauviet played with her usual vivacious manner. She is easily an artist of superior ability and her numbers were received with that fine

Christmas has meant the message of "Peace on Earth, Good Will To Men."

Not merely to men of our own race and color

Nor men of our way of thinking,

But to all Mankind. It has meant

The substitution of the law of love and the Accomplishing of things through it, for

The old law of claw and fang.

And this new teaching, which despite our protestation

Has been of slow growth among us,

Is slowly, oh, so slowly, making over the world.

May every home in Winchester

Have a happy and prosperous New Year.

appreciation which her work so justly merits.

Dorothea Fraleigh touched a responsive chord in the hearts of all music lovers with the mellow depth of tone which literally sung from her cello. Her work was exceptional in every way and the audience accorded her a generous measure of applause.
She played "Goin' Home" with much expression and sympathetic tone. The Spanish Serenade with the arpeggio accompaniment on the harp was delightful.

Elford Caughey was received with an equal measure of happy appreciation as the sincere applause for his numbers evidenced. He told an interesting anecdote of the Harp solo by Saint Saens and played as an encore The Hurdy Gurdy Man, to recall the "good old summertime." "Marguerite at the Spinning Wheel" was a very pleasing selection.

The Melodie which closed the program was especially interesting being written by the present Vice President of the United States. The ensemble was a charming blending of artistry which merged the feeling of the performers and the listeners into a unified recognition of the perfect program beautifully rendered.

Literature Committee

The Literature Group invites members to meet on Monday, Jan. 4 at 2.30 p. m. in the Fortnightly Room.
Mrs. F. S. Hatch and Mrs. E. S. Lar-ned are in charge of the program for the afternoon, which will complete the study of the short story. Mrs.

Charles H. Dodge and Miss Jessie D.
Pierce will act as hostesses.

Room Committee

The Room Committee Chairman announces the Housewarming in the new Fortnightly Hall over Randall's store on Wednesday, Jan. 6, 2.30 to 4.30 p. m. and urges all members to attend.

LOW AUTOMOBILE NUMBERS

Winchester automobile owners are well represented in the list of low registration numbers according to the new lists coming out. While there are several under 450, there are also a number above that figure and under the 1000 class. Among the low numbers of local cars noted are the following:

512—Louise B. Mitchell
513—Edward H. Stone
515—George Neley
517—Harry Goddard
746—Agnes M. Hartz
774—Harold M. Farnsworth

Experience of Dollar Bill.

The Chicago chamber of commerce recently carried out an interesting experiment in order to trace what happened to a dollar bill within the short space of 14 days. It put into circula-tached asking every person into whose hand it came to make a note of the use he had made of it. By the end of the fortnight it had been spent 31 times—five times in payment of salaries or wages, five times for tobacco, five times for cigarettes, three times for meals, three times for candy, twice for shaves, twice for "men's furnish-

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

A man's good breeding is his best security against other people's ill manners.

If people only knew when to be blind and deaf and dumb they might be continuously happy.

The man who goes to church on Sunday and thinks he has a passport for the balance of the week should have his thinker repaired.

Climbing, building and creating, that's the right spirit for any man, that's living.

How many of us realize that it is the set of the sails, and not the gales that decides the way to go.

HANDS DOWN!

This is a command which the Massachusetts Department of Public Health is issuing to children—and grown-ups too. It means hands away from the face and out of the mouth. A large per cent of colds and other sickness is caused by putting dirty hands and objects in the mouth. The hands touch things which are covered with germs.
These do not show on the fingers, so no one hesitates to put his fingers into the mouth. If a red circle should appear wherever there was a cold or disease germ, people would be pretty careful about washing their hands thoroughly and keeping them away from the mouth. Remember that there are persons all around with colds.
They sneeze and spray the germs about. They moisten their fingers and then touch things. Well, we can't lock them up for that; but we can take precautions ourselves.

A NEW YEAR'S PRAYER

By Grace Helen Barnard

Come into my heart, O dear New Year Filling it with thy heavenly cheer
Driving away gloom, evil and tear Making me feel that Jesus is near!

Come into my thought, O dear New Year
Loving my neighbor while you are here.
Daily think good and true all the year
Cleansing my life from sin ever near!

Come into my soul, O dear New Year
Keeping sluggish conscience ever clear Serving duty's stern call, never wear Praying to Jesus, He'll always hear!

O glad New Year, come into my life
Banishing hate and sorrow all strife, Conquering in Christly spirit all rise,
Crown with blessings the end of thy life!

HOLIDAY PIANO RECITAL

There was a good attendance at the annual Christmas recital given by the pianoforte pupils of Mrs. Annie Soule Lewis on Tuesday evening in the new Fortnightly Committee Room on Mt.
Vernon street. The affair was most informal, but a comprehensive program was presented, ranging from the more simple melodies of the beginners through the intermediate grades to the difficult selections rendered by the advanced pupils, including those from Woburn and Medford as well as from Winchester.

Assisting with the program were Mrs. Lewis's niece, Miss Sybil Smith of Wellesley, soprano; and Mr. J. J.
Larkin, baritone of Boston. Mr. F.
Pereyval Lewis was the accompanist.

The following pupils were heard:
Loretta Mullin, Jeannette Mullin, Jean Huckins, Loraine Hamm, Elizabeth Bezanson, David Wadsworth, Edward Jackson, Madeline Goddu, Fern Patterson, Barbara Small, Ruth Dresser, Virginia Wadsworth, Jean Osmond, Katherine MacDonald, Richard Riley,
Priscilla Richardson, Doris Heald,
Evelyn Lord, Jack Caldwell, Howard
Razee, Ruth Jaquith, Eleanor Francis,
Florence Anguish, Lester Goldstein, Thelma MacDonald, Helen Smith, Beulah Desmond, Dorothy Harrington, Priscilla Sawyer, Kathleen Valley, Betty Linscott, Lucile Anguish, Dorothy Collins, Priscilla Frost and Esther McCarthy.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

At this time the interest of everyone is centered about the spirit of Christmas and with this thought in mind it is very gratifying for our Guild to reflect on her Christmas charity work which has been made possible by the support extended by members and their friends during the past year.

Chief among our Christmas charities is the Christmas Tree and Party conducted at the Home for Destitute Children. The several Guilds throughout the state by their combined efforts are able to furnish a heavily laden Christmas tree, as well as make a substantial donation to the "Shoe Fund."

These Yuletide Festivities were held at the Home on last Sunday afternoon under the able direction of Past State Regent Mary F. Handschumaker assisted by the Regents of the several Guilds.

"Black Sheep" Relations

"Are you ashamed of being related to Adam and Eve?" asked Elizabeth one day of her mother.

"Why, no," replied her mother laughing. "Whatever made you ask such a question as that?"

Elizabeth was rather offended. "It's no laughing matter," she replied with some dignity. "Especially since I never heard you mention them."

FAMOUS CROSSROADS OF THE WORLD

One of the most important men in the United States is the traffic policeman at Washington and Meridian streets, Indianapolis. With one blast on his whistle he can send automobiles to Miami, Fla., or Seattle, Wash.
At will he can turn his back on Florida and Seattle and route cars to New York or Los Angeles.

The Washington and Meridian streets intersection in Indianapolis is the crossroads of the main transcontinental highways of the United States.

Mankind has many remarkable crossroads, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

There are crossroads of the sea at Singapore, Panama Canal, Hawaii, St.
Paul Island and Colombo; crossroads of cable lines at Guam and the Azores; crossroads of history in Palestine; crossroads of intercourse between Europe and Asia at Constantinople. And now appear the crossroads of the air at Prague.

Great Cities Are Crossroads

Practically every great city has to be a geographic crossroads before it can be a great city. History counts Chicago only a fledgling crossroads but the Windy City lays claim to two records in fusing streams of men and metal; its train a minute advertisement is a hint to its position as the world's greatest rail center, its feverish trade gives to the intersection of State and Madison streets the title of the "busiest corner in the world."

Fifth avenue and 42nd street, New York, may make more people bump shoulders, but for thronging pedestrians and vehicles Chicago's most crowded crossroads stands alone.

The spot where Braddock met defeats, where the extending avenues of British and French colonial progress collided, is today one of the most remarkable of the United States' crossroads. The town of Braddock, eight miles out of Pittsburgh, on the Monongahela-River, is supposed to be the tonnage center of railway traffic. Iron ore comes in from the North and coal from West Virginia to feed the hungry blast furnaces. Six of the heavy freight-carrying railroads pass Braddock's front door.

London Claims Busiest Corner

London questions the American claims to street traffic records, pointing to the Bank of England corner.
Under this frowning, austere facade, vehicles and pedestrians in unending streams debouch from Cheapside, Threadneedle, Cornhill, Lombard, King William, Queen Victoria and Princess streets.

So strictly immutable are the laws of geography that London's traffic whirlpool today is the same crossroads of England that Caesar's captains established 2000 years ago. The Romans entered England by the Thames and by the Kent coast. The old Kent road sought the most satisfactory crossing of the Thames which would be still within reach of the sea.
"Londinium" became the crossroads to the fertile midland. London is not only the crossroads of England today but also the intersection of many world streams of trade. Before the World War no important banking transaction took place on earth without the guardians of the financial crossroads of the world in London taking their toll. New York now pockets the toll tax for money's highroads.

Paris Is Europe's Civic Center

Probably the best investment in crossroads real estate is Paris. Geographers say Paris is the natural headquarters of mankind. That it is the inevitable crossroads of France is plain, for it commands the best routes to England, Belgium, Germany, the Mediterranean and to the Loire. When all parts of the world have been developed to their natural capacity Paris, they say, will hold sway. She has easy access to the Mediterranean and Africa through the break between the Alps and the Pyrenees. She is more convenient to the Atlantic than Germany and Italy. Vast Eurasia can come to her better than to England, Spain or Italy. She has better access to America than Japan or China.
Paris' international atmosphere today is evidence that "all roads lead to Paris," not Rome.

The World's Zero Zero

A good question for a geography final examination is: Where is the world's Zero Zero? Answer: The intersection of the Equator, zero latitude, and the zero longitude which runs through Greenwich, England, is the arbitrary map crossroads of the world. The point lies in the Gulf of Guinea 400 miles off Accra on the Gold Coast of Africa.

When the Turk became traffic policeman and turned the "Stop" sign against Europe in Palestine, he produced one of the few traffic jams for which the world can give thanks.
Vasco da Gamma went off on a detour and discovered the way around Africa and around Palestine, the most important crossroads of ancient history. And what was still worse for the Turk, Columbus started off in the opposite direction. Columbus' discovery of America broke the Ottoman monopoly. The busy isthmus between the Red Sea and the end of the Mediterranean has been the parade ground of conquerors—Camses, Alexander the Great, Pompey, Saladin, Richard the Lion Hearted, Al-laddin and many, many others. No real empire could do without it. But the tonnage of the Panama Canal last year passed the Suez. The crossroads Columbus discovered has eclipsed that of history.

Coming Back

They had quarreled seriously. Finally the wife declared, angrily:

"I'm going home to my mother!"

The husband maintained his calm in the face of this calamity, and drew out his pocketbook.

"Here," he said, "is the money for your fare."

The wife took it and counted it.
Then she faced her husband scornfully:

"But that isn't enough for a return ticket!"

PERUGIA: A CITY OF UPS AND DOWNS

With so many ancient landmarks tumbling before the pick and steam-shovel of modern progress the news that an ancient gateway in Perugia, one of Italy's famous hill towns, has been saved from destruction through popular appeal is welcome to lovers of antiquity. Permission had been granted by the Commune of the town to run electric trams through this gateway, near the Palazzo del Popolo, famous palace, but public indignation brought about a rescinding of the permit.

The city has known one of the stormiest and bloodiest of histories, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. High on a hill commanding the River Tiber, Perugia has been safe from enemies from without, but it has been torn by internal quarrels. In the decline of Rome no barbarian mounted its walls, but the plots of its nobility and the quick tempers of its citizens resulted often in teapot tempests that went on until one side or the other was almost exterminated.

A City on a Hilltop

Perugia is almost midway between Rome and Florence, although not on the mainline railroad connecting the two cities. Like Siena and Assisi, its neighbors, it is built in antiquated style, partly on top of a group of hill-tops and partly on the slopes, with fine views of the Apennines in every direction. It has a picturesque quality of accident, of irregularity, of rising and falling ground, and of striking combinations of light, shade and color.

Everywhere except on the short spinal ridge the streets are staircases and toboggan slides. Everywhere one climbs or burrows. The life of a Perugian is truly one of ups and downs.

On the map, Perugia is spread out like a great stone-scaled dragon on its rock, crouching over the country and extending long paws down the valley side. Nature furnishes backgrounds of olive-covered hills and distant mountains, while nearly every vista on its staircase streets is broken and framed by the graceful stone arches that buttress the tall houses. The old towers and donjons have largely disappeared, but the atmosphere of the town is military and despotic. Many houses still show traces of the heavy chains that barred the streets after nightfall, when, if a man forgot his steal undershirt, he came home in a wooden one!

No Modern Perugia

Perugia is really four cities in one.
There is the ancient Etruscan Perugia, with its walls and stone gateways; the Roman Perugia, whose masonry rests on what remained of the Etruscan city after the natives had set fire to it; the medieval Perugia of the Baglioni, built on the Roman foundations; and the Renaissance Pe-rugia of the Popes, reared on the ashes of the Baglioni palaces.

In the strict sense, however, there is no modern Perugia. The railroad station is, as in most European cities, far outside the ancient city walls.
Two street car lines, a few automobiles, and sore up-to-date shops, clustered around the tourist center, are the only intruders the present has been able to make. There has been no temptation to build since the 16th century. The patches added to its crumbling ramparts and houses in the last 400 years have enhanced their natural attractiveness.

The rich pastoral beauty and repose of Perugia's surroundings have left their mark on the art of the city. As the seat of the renowned Umbrian school of painting it earned a high place in the realms of Italian art during the 15th century, when Perugia was the most powerful city in this part of Italy. The neighborhood of Siena and the religious atmosphere of nearby Assisi and Loreto doubtless exercised an influence on the prevailing style, which has been described as lacking dramatic power but being rich in reverie. Raphael was once a student of the Perugian master, Pietro Vannucci. Today the walls of many of Perugia's churches and former palaces are alive with examples of the work of the school.

Stone Throwing Pastime

In the main square by the side of the big unfinished Gothic Cathedral the life of the city once centered.
Here the gentle Perugians played at one of the bloodiest and most dangerous games in the world—that of hurling stones at one another until often a dozen were killed and scores wounded. In times of peace this was the Perugian equivalent of a base-ball game or the movies.

According to some critics Perugia has, in the Porta Augusta, one of the finest gates in the world. It beetles in black magnificence above a whole quarter of the town, its base early Roman, the middle sections Romanesque, and the airy top Renaissance.
The whole is now blackened with dust, decay and fire, and, while it is not imposing in the sunlight, its heavy stone bucklers, fluted pilasters and massive base are awe-inspiring in the damp and gloom, when mist is flying through the streets. These Umbrian cities seem so Roman, says one writer, that the sight of Caesar's legions marching through them, with lances and bucklers flashing in the sun, would be the most natural thing possible.

Arrested Development

Betty lived in the city and it was not any too often that she saw even a horse. So perhaps it is not to be wondered at that she stopped one day in the park as a Shetland pony went by and exclaimed: "Look, mother!"

"Yes, dear," replied her mother,
"what is it?"

"Don't you see?" continued Betty.
"There's a horse that got discouraged and never grew up!"

Two Things to Mind

"It ought to be easy," said Uncle Eben, "to lead a safe and peaceable life. All you really has to do is to mind de Ten Commandments an' de traffic signs."—Washington Star.

TAHITI: PACIFIC HEADQUAR- TERS OF FRANCE

Tahiti, which was visited by a section of the United States fleet when in Pacific waters, is France's most important possession among the South Sea Islands, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Papeete, its chief port is in turn the metropolis of the southwestern Pacific, "The Honolulu of the South."
Because of its position almost midway between Panama and New Zealand, and its reasonable distance—as South Sea distances go—from Samon, the Marquesas, and Hawaii, Pa-peete is a sort of ocean crossroads, and its cosmopolitan aspect never fails to impress visitors. On its wharves and in its streets one encounters vanilla and coconut planters; traders—French, British and American, engaged in every line conceivable from copra and silk stockings to fertilizer and pearls; sea captains and shipping agents; French officials, (for Papeete is the capital of the French Pacific); missionaries; natives; the ever-present Chinaman; and the nondescript beach-comber.

Interior Uninhabited

Tahiti is of volcanic origin and might be described as a pile of green mountains. The highest peaks tower 7300 feet above the sea and are smothered in a blanket of rank, tropical vegetation that sweeps to the topmost pinnacle. Even knife-like rock ridges are covered with trees and shrubs that stand out against the skyline like bristling hedges.

Tahiti is made up of two loops like a figure 8, one smaller than the other, connected by a narrow neck. The larger unit is about 15 miles across and the two, lengthwise, extend for 30 miles. The forest-covered, mountainous interior is almost uninhabited, the population being confined to the relatively level strip along the coast. In this strip are the vanilla, cocconut, and sugar plantations of the foreigners, as well as the villages of the natives.

There is little to urge a Tahitian to work. Fish may be caught on the coral reefs for the spearfishing, and breadfruit and feli, a species of banana, can be gathered as needed in the mountains. With the advent of Western methods and an influx of Chinese these easy-going islanders have suffered from a competition they do not understand and their numbers have grown less.

Good Food Follows the Tricolor

Papeete may be far from civilization from the viewpoint of the stay-at-home, but the palate of the visitor to Papeete certainly will not suffer for delectable food. In the bustling port town with its 2000 French residents, some of them competent chefs, one may find viands that would not be amiss in the restaurants of the Rue de la Paix—from vin rouge, through moulet roti to cafe noir. And if he wishes native food he may fare well on coconut-fed pig roasted whole, fish with coconut sauce, shrimp, baked banana, and baked breadfruit, the latter with a texture like very fine cheese and an indescribable, mildly pleasant flavor. For dessert he will have oranges, pineapples and various tropical fruits.

The most ambitious sight-seeing trip in Tahiti is a circuit of the island by horse-drawn vehicle, along the coastal strip. This entails the ford-ing of many streams which flow out of the mountains of the interior. Or one may push up one of the many valleys over trails that skirt swift streams and plunge through tunnels of verdure to a mountain top. If one climbs for the view, however, the time must be well chosen, for clouds shroud the mountain summits a large part of the time. The most novel

Odd Fish Found Only in California Waters

One of the strangest fish known to science is the hagfish, found in Monterey Bay, California.

This fish is blind, and yet is so voracious that other fish are not found in the same waters. How does it manage to find its food? To make up for the loss of sight, the hagfish possesses a keen sense of touch and an unknown chemical sense—or what seems to be an exaggerated sense of smell.

It has been noticed that when food is dropped into an aquarium where there is a hagfish, the fish instantly swims towards it. This fish, although blind, has rudimentary eye spots; they are not, however, in the least sensitive to light.

According to Dr. David Starr Jordan, the hagfish, which is purplish-blue in color, varies in size from about eighteen inches to two feet, and in general appearance rather resembles an eel.

Another peculiarity of this fish is that it has three hearts. Besides the main heart, it has, like the eel, one in the tail, and in addition to this another special heart for the portal system of veins.

No Blare of Trumpets

With the opera flourishing, and the names of prima donna figuring in all the papers, it is interesting to recall the modest announcement which heralded the first appearance of such a lady on the British stage. It appeared in 1832, and ran as follows: "The Italian lady, just come over sea, who is so famous for her singing, will perform." No more than that, not a word about her palaces, her jewels, her pets, or her differences with other gifted ladies. No mention even of her name.

Heat in Death Valley

Almost Beyond Belief

Death valley, which lies between the Amargosa and the Panamint mountains, along the eastern line of California, is the hottest place on this continent in summer, says Adventure Magazine. It is 276 feet below sea level and about 75 miles long. It has a record of 134 degrees above zero. In winter the rawest cold winds imaginable blow through it.

In summer the air is so dry that a blanket soaked in water and hung on a line will be totally dry in half an hour. A man must drink as often as every half hour to keep alive. At Furnace Creek ranch the hens wade in the irrigating ditch and squat in the water. The coral containing cows, mules and horses has sheet iron nailed on its fence to protect the animals from hot winds. Only one man has been able to endure the heat more than three summers, and he did it by sleeping in water at night.

SELL ESTATE ON CAPE

Through the office of Charles S. Bishop, the sale of another estate on the Cape has been completed, the grantors being Stephen and Ella Langley of this town, and the buyers Edgar J. Leland et al. It is in the Sippewasset section, with large frontage on what is known as Town Way, and about one-half mile water frontage. A large part of the property has improvements, such as water, sewer, etc., and it is the intention of the new owners to build a number of new streets, and lay the lots out in suitable size, thus allowing plenty of room for house and garage.

One important improvement to be started at once by the new owners is the construction of a 250-room hotel to contain every modern convenience. It will be fireproof, and is estimated to cost about $250,000 above the land. A number of cottages are also to be erected and ready for occupancy next summer.

The sale of the Langley property is of considerable importance from the fact that it is taken out of the market, another large estate which will mean the expenditure of thousands of dollars in improvements. The portion sold to Mr. Leland and associates is valued at $150,000.

Benzene's Birth

A hundred years ago Michael Faraday discovered benzene. Of all his discoveries, scientists consider that of benzene to be the most important.

At the time of Faraday's discovery, gas was compressed into iron cylinders and supplied in the same way as oxygen is today. With the natural curiosity of a scientist, Faraday examined the gas and so discovered benzene—a substance composed of six parts carbon and six parts hydrogen.

The actual form of benzene opened up a new field of thought for the chemist. Benzene should be pictured as a hexagon formed of carbon with an atom of hydrogen at each of the six points.

World Illuminated by Spread of the Bible

A man from Corea arrived recently in London with his two sons. He could not speak a word of English, but he showed an address inside a little Bible and was guided to the Bible house. In Queen Victoria street, then he poured out a heap of money on a table and pointed to his two sons. When an interpreter was found, writes a London correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, the man related how he knew of nothing else in England but the place which had sent his Bible to him in Corea, and he had come there with his sons because he wanted them to be educated as Christians.

In the windows of the Bible house are Bibles which show the link with little peoples and great peoples all over the world. Because of this work, the Bible, or parts of the Bible, are printed in 572 languages today. By reason of such efforts the Gospel has been published in a fresh language every six weeks for the last ten years.

Spanish Counterfeiters Laugh at Authorities

Many a tourist in Spain has made the acquaintance of the Sevillian dollar, that mysterious counterfeit which contains more silver than a genuine 5-peseta piece and which, though a forgery, is tolerated. The duro sevillano holds a unique place in the history of coins. Its origin goes back to the days of the war in Cuba and the Philippines, when the Spanish government, in want of money, increased the circulation of silver dollars minted for about half their face value. Counterfeiters seized the opportunity to set up a rival mint which has never been discovered and in which duros sevillanos are produced. It is believed that persons of high rank own this mint and derive their incomes from it. In 1908 a finance minister decided to gather in all the counterfeit dollars. He offered one good duro in exchange for a sevillano. The silver thus collected weighed nearly 70 tons when melted into bars. The minister's initiative cost the state a round sum, but did not stop the flow of sevillanos. Anchales Castilla! (Wide is Castile!) is an old saying, and in the vastness of the plains and sierras of all the Spains is perhaps the best explanation of why wholesale counterfeiting of the coin of the realm goes on undisturbed.

Lotus Gingerbread

The legendary lotus, the fruit of which made Ulysses' sailors forget their homes, is supposed to have been the same plant now used by natives of northern Africa to make sun-dried cakes which taste like gingerbread.—Science Service.

New Mechanical Marvel

Cigars have been sorted by hand according to color. The process was slow, expensive and inaccurate. To eliminate the hand-sorter a machine was invented and is now in use. It recognizes 32 shades of brown in the cigar wrappers, puts each by itself and does it all at a rate better than one a second. Some of the principles of radio and photography are used, but the description is too technical for us laymen. The machine is called a triumph of science. Most of us could not understand how it distinguishes such fine shades, when the average eye cannot do it.

The machine is another development in mechanical invention. Like the linotype, it displays an "intelligence" almost beyond belief. Perhaps if the inventors keep working they eventually will create a machine with "super-human intelligence" that can be placed behind the automobile steering wheels and prevent some of the grade-crossing accidents.—New Orleans Item.

Sunlight and Health

We now know that health and well-being are directly dependent on the sun through acting through the medium of the sunbeams sent down to earth. There is something more essential in the sun than the glowing splendors of the sunrise and sunset, the brightness of the day and its mental effect of creating hope, joy. It has the power of stimulating growth and building up resistance. It is one of the best medicines that God has given to man.

The ultra-violet rays, those invisible waves of light which the camera only can see, are the life-giving, health-creating element of sunlight. They are that part of the sunshine that helps to prevent rickets, a disease all too common in nursing infants.

Vast Store of Nectar That Is Unproductive

Apiculture, or bee-keeping, is one of the few branches of agriculture that does not tend to exhaust the soil. The account with the honey crop therefore does not include the usual item, "cost of fertilizer," says a report in the New York Times.

The nectar produced in the flowers is wasted unless gathered by bees or similar insects. It has been conservatively estimated that not over one-tenth of all the nectar produced in the United States is actually harvested. The amount that goes to waste in a dozen counties near New York city is over 1,500,000 pounds.

The study of the honey bee and bee-keeping methods is becoming more popular, and to satisfy those desirous of knowing more about this subject short courses are being offered in several of the leading schools and colleges, among them Columbia university. Many people living in the suburbs cannot go in for poultry raising, gardening, etc., because of lack of space. For them a few hives of bees should afford an interesting and remunerative enterprise.

Agreement That Pleases

Rich but Unhealthy

The climate of British Honduras is hot, moist and generally unhealthy for foreigners. The coast is, as a rule, low and swampy and a large part of the interior is covered with forests yielding large quantities of mahogany and logwood. Over 50,000 acres are under cultivation and yield fruits, rubber, coffee, etc. The colony is administered by a governor, and has an executive and legislative council. United States gold currency was adopted as legal tender in 1901. The majority of the population is composed of negroes, mulattoes and Indians.

Geysers of Boiling Mud

Suddenly subsiding without the slightest warning—a big area of ground in front of a Maori meeting house at Whakarewareware, New Zealand, from a level plain suddenly became a huge cauldron of boiling water, 15 feet deep. Heavy steam clouds issued from the cavity. In the Valley of Whakarewareware many forms of thermal activity are found. Some of the geysers throw columns of boiling water 100 feet into the air. A Maori community has built nondescript dwellings among the precarious surroundings of mud volcanoes and boiling springs. The natural heat of the water and mud serves them instead of fires for cooking.—Family Herald.

Fixed, but Free

He was a reformer, and he was giving the audience a few homely truths. Every now and then he would thump a clenched fist into his palms as he emphasized some vital point in his speech.

"Yes, my friends," he said, "although you are all above sin, you must beware of the demon. The demon is chained to the wall, waiting to jump out and catch you. If you give him the slightest chance he'll stretch out his hand in front and grab you! Or he'll stretch out to the right and grab you! Or he'll stretch out to the left and grab you! He'll even stretch out behind and grab you!"

This was a little too much for a man in the middle row of seats, and, rising to his feet, he shouted: "Well, the blessed thing might as well be loose."

Needed More Fire

When the old gentleman paid a visit to the city he saw and heard a great many strange things, but he was always wary in his comments.

One day his little granddaughter enticed him into a tanshop, and, leading him to a small table, proceeded to order some eclairs, a delicacy of which she was extremely fond.

"I know you'll like them, granddad," she said coaxingly, and the old gentleman bravely tackled the unfamiliar object.

"Isn't that delicious?" inquired the little girl, seeing a strange expression come over her grandfather's face as he took his first mouthful.

"Well, it may be," replied grandfather in a noncommittal tone; "but doesn't it appear to you a trifle underbaked in the middle?"

TRAFFIC SIGNALS CHANGED

The traffic signals in the centre were discontinued for several days over the week-end to allow a change to be made in the control at the central tower in front of the Winchester News Company's store. An additional station has now been added.

Heretofore the signals worked simultaneously. When traffic was halted on Mt. Vernon street it was also halted on Church street; likewise on North and South Main street. It has been the custom when the gates are lowered for trains to pass to block off the whole centre—that is to turn all signals to "stop."

With the new station, the signal on South Main street may be set at "go" independent of the setting of any of the other signals. This will be used to allow cars turning into Mt. Vernon street to proceed while the gates are down and will also allow cars traveling north on Main street to make the left turn across the tracks to Church street, the south-bound traffic being held.

By this new station the officer in charge of the signals will have more complete control of the traffic than previously, and it will also relieve congestion during the wait for the passage of trains.

A PIONEER SEES HIS DREAM COME TRUE

Seeing a 48-year-old geographic prophecy come true, is the privilege of William H. Jackson, veteran geologist, who has been the guest of the National Geographic Society's expedition which is exploring the prehistoric Pueblo Bonito in Chaco Canyon, N. M. Jackson, with the Hayden party in 1877, scouted down Chaco Canyon and mapped the many deserted pueblos of this winding cut in the treeless hills. Pueblo Bonito, he reported, was the largest in the Canyon and the only one which still had walls standing higher than two stories. Jackson is an artist as well as a geologist, photographer and plainsman. He drew a picture of Pueblo Bonito as it might have appeared in its prime.

Dr. Neil M. Judd, in charge of the Society's expedition took with him Jackson's mind's-eye map, when the digging began four years ago. Every year of excavation has confirmed the prophetic vision of his original conception of the prehistoric apartment house.

The ground plans and descriptive information prepared by Jackson, Dr. Judd says in a communication to the Society, still stand as marvels of accuracy.

Revisiting the scene of some of his earlier explorations for the first time in 48 years, Mr. Jackson, now 83 years old, enjoyed himself to the utmost. He sought out old stairways and pictographic inscriptions he remembered; he displayed a strong, active interest in the current explorations and devoted a portion of each day watching the work.

Instead of a ruin of broken-down walls, Jackson visualized in 1877 what exploration has since revealed, a structure of trim brick shaped like the horseshoe end of a great stadium. From the interior are of space left for games and religious festivals, the terraces rose, giving each apartment a view of the "playing-field." The outside wall of the are was a sheer drop of four stories. The ends of the are were joined by a lower defensive wall parallel with the dry creek bed. The whole communal dwelling lay under the shadow of a huge cliff.

As in the adobe rooms of Pueblo Indian buildings today, ladders gave access to the prehistoric apartments. By pulling up their stairways, the occupants could present a solid front to an attacking enemy. Above a certain safe limit, all the walls were punctured by windows to admit light to the apartments.

Also indicated in Jackson's drawing and established beyond doubt by Dr. Judd's excavation, are the estufas, or round subterranean religious rooms. These were the tribe's high places of worship.

At Pueblo Bonito Jackson found much of his prophetic drawing recreated in solid, durable stone. Dr. Judd has carefully cleaned out the debris of centuries from the great ruins, sifting it so that the dead dwellers. The breaking walls he and his workmen, many of them Zuni Indians and probably blood descendants of the very occupants of Pueblo Bonito, have repaired, using the same kind of brick. They are trying only to preserve the remains, not rebuild the vast dwelling, but the work accomplished gives the visitor a clear idea of the original pueblo and the life its inhabitants lived.

Jackson is one of three survivors of the Hayden Expedition which went into Arizona and New Mexico in the late seventies, during the danger of Indian attack to explore this little-known territory of the United States. Dr. William H. Holmes, now of Washington, D. C., was associated with Jackson in this pioneer expedition.

Business Propaganda

You can't always tell about anything; maybe there is a sleeper in the statement, and just as like as not the man who broadcasts the opinion that pedestrians have the right of way and don't have to hop around to avoid being run over by a motorcar is an attorney who is looking for damage suits to settle.—Albany Press.

Copied Eastern Tables

It was not, probably, until the time of the Crusaders that the table became an honored piece of furniture in the homes of the Britons. It has been established that the knights and squires of these times, on their journeys to the East, saw specimens of tables that were exquisite in their beauty of design and perfect craftsmanship. It is not too much to imagine that on their return to their own land they set about to copy the tables that they had seen in the palaces of the Egyptians and Assyrians.

Present and Absent

A curious instance of Israel Zangwill's absent-mindedness came to my notice the other day. He was rehearsing one of his plays at the Scala, and arrived punctually to the minute on the stage. Taking up his position he opened the prompt copy and addressed an empty stage as follows: "I am here to the minute. Why is it that no member of my company can be as punctual?" At that moment his stage manager, who had been searching for him, put in an appearance, and gently reminded him that the rehearsal was in the foyer, where the entire company was already waiting for him.—London Mail.

Early Rising Duke

The duke of Wellington was a very early riser. His early habit of punctuality is pleasantly illustrated in the following anecdote: "I will take care to be present at five tomorrow morning," said the engineer of New London bridge, in acceptance of the duke's request that he would meet him at that hour. "Say a quarter before five," replied the duke, with a quiet smile. "I owe all I have achieved to being ready a quarter of an hour before it was deemed necessary to be so, and I learned that lesson when I was a boy."

The Nervous System

The human nervous system is really a living telegraph line made up of electrical condensers, thinks Dr. W. R. Whitney of the General Electric Co., according to Science. This idea is sharply disputed by scientists, who say that nerve messages do not travel at the speed of electricity, but Doctor Whitney demonstrated with condenser apparatus that the transit time of a message can be slowed down even to three seconds, a time much longer than the known nerve reaction time of a human being.

No Spoiled Food for Her

"Now, you understand, Bridget, the jelly is to be served next to the last." "But faith, missus, ye told me the blommint' stuff was molded so I throwed it out."

The Navajo

The leading tribe of the southern division of the Athapascan stock of North American Indians was the Navajo or Tonnai, which was the name used by themselves. Since first known they have occupied the land on and south of the San Juan river, in northern New Mexico and Arizona, and extending into the states of Colorado and Utah. They were surrounded on all sides by the cognate Apache tribes, except on the north, where they met the tribes of the Schosonean family. At present the Navajo are on the reservation bearing their name in Utah, New Mexico and Arizona.

New Egg-Drying Process

Chemical advance has now developed a process, already in commercial use, whereby large numbers of eggs can be kept for indefinite periods without the use of cold storage or preservatives, and which, it is said, will have a material effect upon the seasonal egg markets of the country. The new process produces perfectly dried eggs in the form of a powder. They will keep indefinitely and can be used for almost any form of cooking.

Unkind

One day, at the table of the late Mr. Pease (dean of Ely), just as the cloth was being removed, the subject of discourse happened to be that of an extraordinary mortality amongst lawyers. "We have lost," said a gentleman, "not less than six eminent barristers in as many months." The dean, who was quite deaf, rose as his friend finished his remarks, and gave the company grace: "For this and every other mercy, the Lord's holy name be praised."—London Answer.

Forensic Marathons

The longest forensic speech was that of Coleridge in the Tichborne trial, which lasted 23 days; and another lengthy one was the 11 days' performance of the attorney general in the Behring arbitration case. It may be safely said that, however long Sir John Simon took, some of the old school, like Erskine, Brougham and Russell, would have taken double the time. For their style was much more verbose, and judges were much more patient, several of them making a habit of taking a nap while the drowsy eloquence proceeded. Long tracts of evidence were read out, and once Pollock commenced to read 300 letters. After an hour or so the judge said: "Is it necessary, Mr. Pollock, to read all those letters?" "Absolutely," was the unblinking reply, "for I have never seen them before."—Manchester Guardian.

Vulcanite Production

Practically all rubber intended for commercial uses is treated at a high temperature with sulphur, with the result that it becomes enormously hardened. When, however, the proportion of sulphur used is very high, the production is vulcanite—a rubbery compound of such extreme hardness as to resemble ebony. Vulcanite faded looks very much like ebony, and is often called ebony. In this form, it is frequently used as a substitute for horn, ivory or bone, in such articles as combs, knife handles, pipe stems, buttons, and the like. The word is derived from Vulcan, the God of Fire of the ancient Romans.

FORTNIGHTLY NEWS

The Community Christmas Tree was formally presented to the Town Christmas eve, everything going according to schedule. At 7:15 o'clock the bells were rung and at 7:30 in the Town Hall the exercises were opened with our President, Mrs. Emerson in the chair. Mr. Rawson gave a trumpet solo, "Holy Night" by Adams, then all sang our usual opening song, "America the Beautiful," followed by the salute to the flag.

Mrs. Emerson then introduced Mrs. Barstow, the State Federation song leader who enthusiastically led the audience of several hundred of our townspeople in singing four Christmas carols.

Rev. Mr. Hodge read passages from the Scriptures pertaining to women and trees. After which Mrs. Emerson introduced Mrs. Elizabeth Winsor Pearson of Newton Center who spoke most interestingly and touchingly of her mother for whom the community is named. She told of the town having barely 1700 souls when her family came to Winchester, her father, Dr. Frederick Winsor coming to take the place of the town's only physician who had died. They lived in a house standing between where the present Brown Block is and the Aberjona River, with a large garden extending to the old mill dam. In Mrs. Winsor's parlor in 1882 was held the first meeting of the Fortnightly. One member of that little group is still living in Winchester, Mrs. Sophie U. Thompson.

After the singing of another carol Mrs. Emerson spoke of the continuity of the work as carried on by the Fortnightly committees, this Conservation Committee completing the work which was started by last year's committee under Mrs. Sanderson as chairman who passed over $10 as a start toward the tree which became an actuality under Mrs. Messenger the new chairman, she purchasing the tree last May and having it set out on the Common.

Mrs. Sanderson read a letter from a former president, and charter member of the Fortnightly, Mrs. Pleasantine C. Wilson of Orford, N. H., expressing her regret of her inability to be present on such an occasion and sending best wishes to the club. Mrs. Wilson is the only president that served at two different periods, first in 1895 and again in 1905.

Mrs. Emerson then had a surprise for the audience, showing a very interesting and useful accomplishment of another of the committees—the filled book wagon, a Christmas gift to the Winchester Hospital from the Education Committee.

We were fortunate in having with us another of the State Federation officers Mrs. Myron A. Davis, chairman of the State Conservation Committee who spoke of the planting and preservation of trees and of the great good of evergreens, especially for the conservation of water.

Mr. Davidson, chairman of the Park Board, spoke in heartfelt enthusiasm of the consummation of what their board had tried to accomplish as permanent and which the Fortnightly were presenting to the Town.

He told how a thousand dollars was spent to celebrate the birthday of our Nation, but voted he thought unthinkingly, no appropriation to celebrate the birth of our Saviour which is infinitely more important.

Whereas patriotism is a beautiful thing and loyalty to country, but no nation has ever existed long without the supreme help of God and with religion and justice as its foundation.

Led by Mrs. Barstow and the trumpeters the congregation marched singing carols to the Common, where the tree was brightly illuminated with many colored lights. Mrs. Emerson formally presented the tree to the Town and Mr. Davidson, in a few well chosen words accepted the gift. Dr. Howard J. Chidley offered prayer asking God's blessing to rest upon us all and help us to have the right spirit for Christmas and community life.

After the exercises on the Common the carol singers visited the Home for the Aged, the Winchester Hospital and the home of some of the shut-ins.

Parachutes for Mountain Climbers.

Mountain climbing will lose most of its perils, if not all its thrills, when the suggestion of E. E. Louy in Science and Invention is carried out. Both the dangers of climbing and the difficulties of descending will be removed "if the Alpinist will carry a 17-pound pack on his back containing one of the regulation United States army parachutes. This parachute opens by merely pulling a cord, conveniently placed with a large ring on one end. The new parachute is fully opened after a drop of 60 feet and a man has actually jumped from the low altitude of 75 feet from a flying boat traveling at 100 miles an hour. The breaking of a lifeline or a fall from a precipice need have no terrors now if one has a parachute. In case of a sudden storm or a perilous descent it will be safer and quicker to get down by means of the parachute."

Game and Fish in Alaska.

If you go up to southeastern Alaska the fare from Seattle to Ketchikan is only $35, meals included, and the steamer lands you right on the threshold of the biggest game and fish country in North America. Plenty of black-tailed deer in season; bear as thick along the salmon streams as cottontail rabbits in the bush of the Middle West states; every sort of duck that flies; the streams splurting with trout and salmon; clams squirting from every little beach along the coast; big, juicy crabs for the netting; all sorts of berries in late summer; to say nothing of the mountain goats up around timberline on all the higher hills, and moose back from the coast among the inland swamps and lakes.—Adventure Magazine.

Prerogation

For truth it is ever the fitting time; who waits till circumstances completely favor his undertaking will never accomplish anything.—Martin Luther.

Substantial Backing

The bore was telling the assembly in the smoking room how he had made his money.

"When I started in business," he said, pompously, "I resolved that my motto should be 'Get thee behind me, Satan.'"

"Excellent," murmured a quiet voice from the rear of the room; "there's nothing like starting life with a good backing."

Some Long Distances

In our finite conception of things it is hardly possible for any of us to imagine the vastness of the universe. It is this restricted point of view that makes it difficult for us to appreciate the practical value of developments beyond the earth. Our sun is about 93,000,000 miles away, and to the average person that appears to be quite some distance.

We think that even our nearest neighbor, the moon, is a long way off from us because the intervening gap is about 240,000 miles. But when we think of these bodies in terms of other celestial objects it becomes apparent how close we really are to our source of sunlight.

The reflected light from the moon reaches us in one and a quarter seconds, while even the light from the sun, traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, gets to us in eight and a third minutes.

All this represents rapid service in view of the truth that the light from the nearest star to the earth requires more than four years to reach us.—Floyd W. Parsons, in the Saturday Evening Post.

Stucco Used Long Ago to Beautify Temples

The homebuilder of today is perhaps apt to think of stucco as more or less of an innovation, something very new and modern. But stucco, like many other things of beauty, had its beginnings back in the dim Dark Ages. The temple of Apollo at Bassai in Greece, built about 470 B. C. of yellow sandstone, was faced entirely, both inside and out, with stucco. The stucco was an ideal ground for the decorative polychrome painting which at that period of Grecian history had reached a very high degree of beauty. Not only the wall but also the temple pavements were made of a specially resistant stucco and stained in various patterns with gay pigments. As almost all early art was in the decorative field it would have been very difficult for the artists of those bygone days to have progressed very far without some material of the type of stucco to provide the groundwork for their artistic labors. We are now using these same decorative schemes on the walls of the modern home, perhaps soon we shall be using them on the floors as well.

Christmas has gone and New Years is on the way, the time for good resolutions to be made. Will you join in the resolution to use your influence to abolish the word "Xmas" from usage at Christmas time.

The Greek letter "X" may be all right for fraternity use but it has no place as an abbreviation for the use to which it is put at Christmas time.

Let us, therefore, use the full word Christmas and at least proceed less hurriedly at this beautiful season of the year.

A Happy New Year to you all.

WINCHESTER AGAIN ON MED-FORD'S GRID LIST

According to Medford High School's football schedule for 1926, just made public by Faculty Manager Roy Kendall Winchester is down to meet the Blue and White on the gridiron again next fall. The local eleven met Medford during the season just passed and made an excellent showing against the former Suburban Leaguers, losing after a hard fought game, 13 to 0.

The game is a good one for Winchester in that it will provide opposition against a strong eleven, furnishing experience of much value in its late season objective games. With a veteran club in sight Coach Mansfield expects to make a good showing at Fulton street next fall, and it is evident that the Medfordites do not hold the locals too cheaply in that they are given the third date on the schedule, the game coming on Oct. 2. Steneham will play the opening game at Medford, Sept. 18.

Mystic Lake Now in S'ne Shape for Sport

After indifferent skating on most of the small ponds about town since Christmas Day, the ice on the larger lakes formed for the winter last Sunday and held by the cold snap of the early days of the week, is now in excellent shape for the sport.

Big Mystic, after skimming over twice, closed in Saturday night and is now the popular skating place of this vicinity. Skating started on it Tuesday, but not until yesterday was the ice deemed safe for general use by the veteran ice boat skipper Frank Trott, who has ruled the lake in this respect for many years and knows its freaks and turns probably better than any other man in this vicinity.

Mr. Trott had his big red flags out marking the skating limit as early as Tuesday noon, and yesterday he had moved them still farther out towards the centre. As a matter of fact the lake is safe in every place except the two or three large "air holes," which are always open for several days after the lake freezes, and this year even these are skimmed over, although yesterday they were still unsafe.

Late in the afternoon the first ducking occurred, and members of the Medford Boat Club, headed by Mr. Trott had an exciting 20 minutes pulling Paul Welburn of 9 Ridgeway road out of his big pond after he had gone into one of the big air holes, which was wholly his own fault, as he had no business there with the lake so plainly marked.

Members of the club working at rigging the ice boats heard his cries and saw him holding onto the ice about half-way up the lake on the Parkway side. There is always a tender place in the lake at this point and it is usually the last place to be used by the skaters. Messrs. Trott, Graham, Quinn, Ralph Thorson, William Cheetham and Lieut. James Harlow took the ladder kept at the club for just such an emergency and ran up to the rescue.

Welburn, after getting into the difficulty, kept his head and proved himself a doughty water dog, he holding onto the edge of the thin ice and making no struggle. Graham Quinn went out on the ladder to aid him, while the others held it. Just as Welburn was able to catch hold of Quinn's hand the ladder and Quinn went through and Quinn, releasing his hold, grabbed Welburn in the open water. After that it was only a case of climbing up the ladder through the broken ice to solid footing, where both were assisted out and hurried to the club house.

A hot fire is always kept at the boat club and both were soon wrapped in warm blankets in front of it, none the worse for their ducking. Welburn was in the water about ten minutes. During the entire time there were two automobiles parked on the Boulevard quite near the place, the occupants watching the rescue in an interested manner, but not offering in any way to aid or help. Lieut. Harlow took both boys to their homes.

Last evening there was a large crowd out skating on the lake, the conditions, with the fine moon, being ideal. Red lanterns were added to the marking flags to warn of thin ice.

Most of the ice boats on the pond are now rigged and ready for sailing, and several new boats have arrived and are being set up. It is expected that today will see the first sailing of consequence, Mr. Trott having been, as usual, the first skipper to test the ice with his boat. Charles Welch, Carrol Fiske, Roy Pigeon, Ralph Thorson, Earl Nichols, William Cheetham, Waldo Manson and several other skippers have their boats in commission and ready to race, and New Years will see the start of the sport in good earnest.

HURT IN AUTO SMASH

Mrs. J. Ervine Johnson of Alben street received painful and possibly serious injuries on last Saturday evening in an automobile accident near Natick on the way to Noantum.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson had gone to Natick to visit Mrs. Johnson's brother who had sustained injuries to his foot, and while there it was decided to take the latter in the Johnson car to visit his family physician in Noantum.

While on the way to that place their machine was run into by another car which came out of a side street without warning and according to reports at a high rate of speed. Although Mr. Johnson who was driving did everything possible to avoid a collision he was unsuccessful, and his car was rammed hard amidstships by the other auto.

Mrs. Johnson who was riding alone in the tonneau of her machine received the full force of the collision's impact. She was hurled to the floor of the car and received a bad gash on the head as well as other bruises and abrasions. She was removed to a neighboring drug store where she was given first aid treatment by a local physician. Later she was removed to her home where her injuries were treated by Doctor Roger M. Burgoyne. The exact extent of her injuries could not be determined at once, and X-ray pictures have been taken to clear up any existing doubt.

TOZIER PARTY OFF

On Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 30, there passed through Winchester about 3:45 o'clock the largest and finest private train that has ever left the North Station. It contained the "Tozier Party" 275 strong, bound for its annual outing to Quebec. In the party were numerous Winchester people, all looking forward to the elaborate entertainment arranged for them by the City of Quebec and the Canadian Pacific Railroad. This is the 15th anniversary and it was necessary to use 14 all steel compartment cars to hold the members. The party is under the management of Dr. Charles H. Tozier of this town.

Different When Polished

Diamonds in their natural state are usually of a dull lead color.

Angora Goats

As a rule Angora goats are small, weighing from 80 to 100 pounds. Sometimes in the United States they weigh as much as 140 pounds, with an occasional one even heavier than this. Both males and females usually have horns and beards. The fleece weighs from 3 to 12 pounds.

Recalling Noah's Wet Spell

Zululand was recently flooded by a rainfall of over 30 inches in one week.

Tallest Smokestack

The world's tallest smokestack rises from a smelter on Puget sound. It is 572 feet 10 inches high.

2026 ARRIVED IN TOWN

2026 arrived in Winchester quietly and in general without much display of unseemly exuberance. At the police station the holiday was characterized as "quiet" while "very quiet" was the report at the Central Fire Station where not even a false alarm was received during the day.

The police were not quite so fortunate. One member of the community so far allowed his pleasure in greeting the New Year to over-shadow his better judgment that he landed in durance vile during the "night before" being arrested on a drunkenness charge. During the night of the holiday Officer Regan was called upon to quell a disturbance in a house on Winchester place and Officer E. O'Connell was sent to Black Horse terrace when a disturbance was reported in that district. Everything was quiet upon his arrival and in neither case was it necessary to make an arrest.

RETIRING OFFICERS HONORED AT FIDELIS CLUB DANCE

A successful New Year's dancing party was held on the evening of Jan. 1 in the Knights of Columbus Hall by the Fidelis Club composed of young ladies, members of St. Mary's Parish. The affair was given in honor of the retiring officers of the club, each of whom was presented with a handsome bracelet, the gift of the organization and presented by its founder, Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons of St. Mary's Church, who was the guest of honor of the evening. A pleasant surprise was the presentation by Fr. Fitzgibbons, his own gift, of individual bouquets to the newly elected officers of the club who went into office with the New Year.

The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion with colored streamers and crepe paper while splendid music for dancing was furnished by "Terry" Cullen's Assiet Orchestra. The matrons were Mrs. Milton J. Quinn and

HINTS TO PARENTS

Jan. 5, 1926

My dear Mr. Wilson:

In view of the large number of Mothers' Clubs and Parent-Teacher Associations in Winchester I think you may be interested to reproduce in the Star "Some Hints to Parents" which appeared in a very attractive little folder prepared by the United Parents Associations of Greater New York.

The folder was so helpful and met with such approval that it was immediately copied by School Life and Child Welfare Magazine.

I hope very much that you can find space for these "Hints."

Martha Sprague Mason

Some Hints to Parents

Arrange the breakfast and lunch hours so that there is no rushing at home or to school.

Encourage punctuality and regular attendance, not permitting trifles to interfere.

Children should be dressed suitably for school.

Find out how much time should be devoted to home work, and see that it is done.

Provide a quiet place for home study, with good light and ventilation. Prevent interruptions as far as possible.

Show an interest in the children's school work, athletics, and other activities.

Visit the classroom for a better understanding of conditions.

Do not criticize the teachers or school within the children's hearing. Always hear both sides of every question and ask the teacher about it.

Instill in the children habits of obedience and respect for authority.

Picture the school as a happy, desirable place, rather than as one children should read.

Keep in mind that the school offers unlimited opportunities to those who take advantage of them, parents as well as pupils.

Plan to meet other parents in the school. It will help you understand your children better. Mothers should arouse the interest of fathers in the school activities and get their co-operation. If there is a parent-association in your children's school, join it; if there is none, form one. Intelligent co-operation brings splendid results to all.

FRANCES E. G. POINIER

Mrs. Frances E. G. Poinier, mother of Mr. Paul D. Poinier, passed away early on Tuesday morning at the home of her son, 15 Calumet road. She was 75 years of age and a native of Newark, N. J., the daughter of George B. and Maria Guerin. Services were held yesterday at Newark, and the interment was in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, that city.

MASONIC OPEN HOUSE MUCH ENJOYED

The fourth annual open house of the Winchester Masonic Bodies was held on New Year's Day from 11 to 1 in the Masonic Apartments. About 150 Masons representing William Parkman and Mystic Valley Lodges and the Royal Arch Chapter were present and thoroughly enjoyed the spirit of good fellowship prevailing throughout the party which was wholly informal.

There was mass singing which was led by George E. Willey and a brief address which was much enjoyed by Right Worshipful Fred L. Moses, Past District Deputy Grand Master of the 6th Masonic District. Perhaps the feature of the program, coming as it did as a complete surprise, was a tenor solo sung by Albert Wilson of William Parkman Lodge. It seems that Mr. Wilson had been hiding his vocal talents under the proverbial bushel, his brother masons being so emphatic in their endorsement of his efforts that he was obliged to respond to an encore. He was accompanied by Magee's Orchestra of six pieces from Boston which also rendered instrumental music throughout the affair.

A collation was served at 12:30. Preston E. Corey as Master elect of William Parkman, the senior body represented, presided and the toast to the Grand Master was proposed by Worshipful Ralph W. E. Hopper, Past Master of Robert Lash Lodge of Chelsea who now makes his home in this town.

Assisting Mr. Corey on the committee in charge of arrangements were T. Parker Clarke, Master of Mystic Valley Lodge and Ernest W. Hatch, High Priest of Royal Arch Chapter.

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS PLAY

It is expected that there will be an unusual interest attending the forthcoming production of the Junior-Senior play, W. H. S., Saturday evening, Jan. 16, as Miss Chapman has been fortunate in securing permission to present the record breaking comedy, "Lightnin'," which had the distinction of making the longest run known on Broadway, New York City, having had capacity houses three solid years during which time thousands laughed and sympathized, even to the point of tears, with Lightnin' Bill Jones, a character who will never be forgotten by the present generation of theatre goers. Much careful consideration has been given by Miss Chapman to the selection of the various characters, and it is evident that she has chosen her cast most wisely, her ability in this particular having much to do with our past successes. Doubtless the Junior-Senior classes will be the first to present Lightnin' in New England, and this comedy in prologue and three acts should easily draw the largest audience ever assembled for the play.

Miss Chapman's selection, most faithfully for the past weeks, and by the time the comedy is offered to the public, it should run in the usual professional manner. Break any engagement to see Lightnin', which promises to be an unqualified success.

ANNUAL GUEST NIGHT

The Woman's League will observe its annual Guest Night Tuesday evening, the 12th at 8 o'clock.

"The Twain Shall Meet," an original presentation of Baptist Foreign and Home Mission activities, prepared and directed by Mrs. W. J. Armstrong and Mrs. A. W. Friend, will be given by members of the League and World Wide Guild. Miss Marion Clapp of Brookline, a contralto soloist of great charm, will render Star Folk Songs. Women of the congregation, with their husbands are cordially invited.

The E. P. H. Class, Mrs. Norman Mitchell, president, will assist the League in the Social Hour. Mrs. A. O. Weld and Mr. Frank McLean have helped to arrange musical features in the program.

It is expected that representatives of Baptist Women's organizations in the state will be present.

CALUMET BOWLING

Matches End Within a Few Day

With but a little over a week of the schedule remaining, the bowling teams in the Calumet Club's winter tournament started off with a rush Monday night. Team 1 captured three points from 17 by rolling a total of 1631 to 17's 1545. Team 8 took all four from 12 and 3 four from 10. All of the bowling was good. Stephenson led in

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

There are two times in a woman's life when she wittingly tells her age, when she is young and doesn't mind, and old and doesn't care.

If you have strength enough to be, to do, to love and live, happiness, amusement and content will come to you.

The love you liberate in your daily life, is the only love you keep.

It is more blessed to be deceived in some things, than to be suspicious in all things.

Modesty is the only sure bait to use when you angle for praise.

Frederick Manley Ives announces this week that he will not be a candidate for Moderator of our Town this year. He retires after his continuous service, during which he has served the Town ably, and in fact has been as efficient and painstaking a public official as Winchester has ever had in a like capacity. His knowledge of law and his Town Meeting decisions and opinions have been unquestioned. He has been a good officer. Winchester owes him its thanks for his services. A lawyer, in this town, who can hold this job year after year and give satisfaction deserves it. May we have as good a man take over the helm.

THE SIZE OF OUR SEWERS

To the Editor of the Star:
The Winchester Chamber of Commerce has taken some considerable interest in ascertaining the reason why the trunk line sewers laid through the center of our town have been at times so full of sewerage as to overflow and create a first class nuisance of a very unsanitary nature. We find that there are three trunk line sewers existing in town that were constructed to take care of the sewerage of the people of the town, so that the incline of these sewers is very limited. It has been said that there is only about one inch fall in a hundred feet, whereas the city and towns north of us are located on much higher ground and the sewerage makes a quick run into the sewers of our town from the north, and as the grade is so slight in Winchester, with the small outlet where these three sewers unite just below the Bacon Felt Mills, it is not to be wondered at that we in Winchester are a dump hole whenever there is a heavy fall of rain.

These three sewers spoken of above are as follows: in size, so reported.

Old Mystic Valley Sewer constructed in 1875, 26x28 inches.

Metropolitan Sewer constructed 1893 35x38 inches.

New Mystic Valley (Reading) sewer constructed 1913, 54 inches in diameter.

The combined contents of the above sewers are supposed to empty into the sewer located south of the Bacon Mills, which is 40x42 inches in diameter, and when this sewer cannot take care of the flow, Winchester has to suffer by the overflow.

The state authorities are the proper ones to correct this nuisance.

We hope that these and many other facts will help our present town committee to press the early construction of the proposed sewer from Woburn.

Nathaniel M. Nichols,
Secretary of Winchester Chamber of Commerce.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL MEN'S CLUB

The committee feels unusually gratified to be able to announce that the speaker for the next meeting of the Congregational Men's Club, to be held Jan. 15 at 8 p. m. will be Representative Henry L. Shattuck. Mr. Shattuck's subject is to be "The Coal Situation."

As a member of the New England Governors Fuel Committee, Mr. Shattuck has given a great deal of intense study to the whole matter and comes prepared to give us the benefit of his investigations.

It will be remembered that Mr. Shattuck is a keen student and faithful and hardworking public servant whose efforts for the welfare of the State have been widely recognized and praised.

It is only at considerable personal inconvenience that Mr. Shattuck is able to address the meeting and the Board of Directors felt justified in assuring him a record attendance. You are urged to bring with you at least one non-member.

Refreshments will be served after the lecture.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED AT BRIDGE

Mrs. Eugene Carpenter of Brookline and Martha's Vineyard was hostess at bridge last Saturday afternoon at her home, at which she announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Goodenow Carpenter, to Franklin Knight Haven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Haven of Lloyd street.

WATCH NIGHT SERVICE AT SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The Community Watch Night Service of Winchester Highlands as has been the custom in the Highlands for the last few years, was held at the Second Congregational Church, on New Year's Eve.

There were quite a number present to enjoy the varied and interesting program prepared and many stayed through until the new year 1926 was ushered in.

At 8:30 the Cornerstone Class of the church held its annual installation service and the new officers elected to serve for 1926 were President, Mr. Harry S. Ward; Vice-President, Mr. Frederic Buckmaster; Secretary, Treasurer, Mr. A. E. Kendrick. The reports read by the retiring officers of this class showed great progress made during the year. This is an adult class of the church and does substantial work.

The service was then turned over to the Eureka Class for their first annual installation service. The Eureka Class is a class of young ladies who have worked hard and contributed largely to the support of the church work. The officers installed for 1926 were President, Miss Helen Webber; Vice-President, Miss Christine Higgins; Secretary, Miss Margaret Parker; Treasurer, Olive Robinson.

The balance of the evening up to 10:30 o'clock was in charge of the Program Committee and the Misses Eunice, Isabel, and Lillian Nettleton of Roxbury, entertained by readings, songs, musical selections and impersonations. This was a most enjoyable program.

Cafeteria lunch was served and a social hour was enjoyed from 10:30 to 11:30.

Between 11:30 and 12 p. m. the devotional service was in charge of Rev. John E. Whitley, pastor of the church, who read many fine selections and poems, appropriate to the passing from the old to the new year. The last five minutes of 1925 were kept in silence until the ringing of the church bell at just 12 p. m.

These annual watch night services are well attended and are very fitting observances of the years as they pass along from the old to the new.

REV. EDWARD CAREY APPLE-GARTH

Rev. Edward Carey Applegarth, retired Baptist Clergyman, died Tuesday morning at the Winchester Hospital after a long illness. He was 59 years old.

Rev. Mr. Applegarth was born in Baltimore, Md., and was the son of Henry Clay and Emily (Abe) Applegarth. He received his early education there and later was graduated from Johns Hopkins University with the degrees of M.D. and Ph.D. For six years he was a practicing physician in Baltimore and then entered Crozier Seminary at Philadelphia where he took theological courses, entering the Baptist ministry in 1898 when he became pastor of the Elm Hill Baptist Church, Roxbury. In 1911 he went to the Maplewood Church in Malden and in 1918 he held a pastorate in Williamsport, Pa., from which he retired two years later on account of ill health. Since that time he had made his home in Winchester at 23 Garfield avenue.

During his Roxbury pastorate he married Miss Inez Packer who survives him with a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Ring of Baltimore and two brothers, Rev. Henry C. of Rochester, N. Y., and Walter W. Applegarth of Baltimore.

Private funeral services were held at the late residence on Thursday morning at 11 and were conducted by the Rev. Clifton H. Walcott of the First Baptist Church. Interment was in Pine Grove Cemetery, Lynn.

OBSERVE SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Brown of Rock avenue observed the 25th anniversary of their marriage on last Sunday evening, Jan. 3, when they were hosts to a large number of relatives and friends who gathered at their home to offer congratulations and best wishes. The evening was pleasantly spent, vocal solos by Mrs. Mollie Maguire and Miss Mabel Coty adding much to the enjoyment of the guests who numbered many from out of town as well as from Winchester. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Brown received many handsome gifts, including a purse of $100 in silver. The former is well known to many in town as a member of the Fire Department.

MISS BILLINGS' LAST LECTURE

Miss Beatrice Billings will give her fourth and last lecture on "Food and Nutrition" on Wednesday, Jan. 13, at the Second Congregational Church on Cross street at 2 o'clock. The Washington Chapter under whose auspices these lectures are given, extends a cordial invitation to all who are interested. Demonstration dishes will be served and recipes given out. These lectures are free though a small contribution is solicited to meet expenses.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

Rev. Palfrey Perkins, of Weston, will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Ladies' Friendly Society, on Tuesday, Jan. 12. His subject will be "Some Women in the Bible." The meeting will open at 11:30 with a short business session, followed by an address at 12 o'clock. Miss Mary W. Studley will be in charge of the luncheon, which will be served at the usual hour.

BATEMAN APPOINTED CHAIRMAN

Representative Thomas R. Bateman was appointed chairman of the Committee on Bills in third reading on Wednesday. Mr. Bateman is a member of the Judiciary Committee and his further appointment is in line with his excellent work in the House.

EMBLEM CLUB NOTES

The next regular meeting of the Club will be held in Lyceum Hall Wednesday evening, Jan. 13 at 8 o'clock.

That we have made a splendid showing in conjunction with the local lodge of Elks in the welfare work of the town during the holiday season, has been generously commented upon by Exalted Ruler Maurice Dinneen and his band of "big brothers" and while not being exactly puffed up with pride over our achievements we yet feel sufficiently encouraged to take up our labors in the social line, replenish our treasury and carry on the good work.

A coming event of much interest to all is the luncheon whist announced by Mrs. Anna W. Lochman for Friday, Jan. 15, in Boston. A very attractive menu will be served at 1 p. m. Members and their friends are urged to attend as the proceeds will go towards the Club funds. Those wishing to make reservations at tables must notify Mrs. Lochman who has full charge of arrangements as soon as possible. Tel. 0756-W.

As an act of accommodation to the local lodge of Elks, the date of our next social night has been changed to Friday, Jan. 29. A New Year's party is being arranged for that evening, with Mesdames Albert Horn, Jas. Horn and Benj. Cullen in charge. Needless to say with these ladies at the helm, this is bound to be "some party." The program includes orchestra music, dancing and a general good time.

As every Elk family should have a representative in the Club, it is hoped that the next few months will do much towards enlarging our membership list. Bring in all delayed applications at this meeting for a class initiation in March, the last month of the present regime.

ENTERTAINED AT WINCHESTER

Rev. Dr. Howard J. Chidley, Rev. S. W. Adriance and Rev. Lisle B. Swenson, entertained members of the Woburn Association of Congregational ministers on Tuesday afternoon last at the regular mid-winter session of that body. Dr. Stephen A. Norton, for many years the pastor of the First Congregational Church of Woburn read a carefully prepared paper, describing his many years of ministerial life with its joys, perplexities and friendships. He has recently been supplying the Congregational Church at Manhattan Beach, Cal., and described alluringly the wonderful climate, the fruits and the healthfulness of that state of the Golden Gate. In connection with the meeting various matters of business were transacted. Fifteen ministers of the Woburn District were present. After the meeting adjourned, the members were served with refreshments.

Dr. Norton is supplying the pulpit of the church in Woburn, during the interim when they are without a pastor and received a warm welcome from his former associates in this section.

Fifteen ministers were present at the session.

TOZIER PARTY REPORTS FINE TIME

Local members of Dr. Charles H. Tozier's party of Winter sports tourists who returned to Winchester the first of the week after several days at picturesque Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, reported this year's trip excellent in every respect. The usual events of a complete Winter sports program were enjoyed as well as many new features. There were tugs of war in which the mothers of the party defeated their daughters and in which the married ladies were victorious over their single sisters, and still another featuring a win for members of the Tozier party over the employees of the Chateau. Trips were organized to the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre and to Kent House and Montmorency Falls while fireworks, an advertising ball and a hockey match between Princeton and the Sons of Ireland were additional feature events. While Winchester members of the party made no outstanding records during the trip, Bowen Tufes and J. Edward Downes of this town were prominent in the festivities at Kent House while William McLean was featured in a vaudeville skit at one of the indoor parties. Two Winchester young ladies the Misses Virginia and Hersilia Warren were winners of prizes at one of the dancing parties, the former being awarded five pounds of chocolates as the winner of the elimination dance while Miss Hersilia was the fortunate possessor of the foot to fit the handsome pair of black and silver evening slippers offered to the Cinderella of the guests.

Among the Winchester people included in the party in addition to Dr. Tozier and his son, William, were Mr. and Mrs. Bowen Tufes and daughter, Miss Molly Tufes, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Whitaker, Mr. Mark Shultis and Miss Katherine Shultis, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Luce, Mr. Dean Symmes, Mrs. John W. Watters, Miss Georgianna Watters, Miss Barbara Watters, Miss Florence Watters, Mr. Colver Dyer, Mr. William McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Warren, Miss Virginia Warren, Mr. Robert Warren, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lowe, Miss Helen Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Elvin P. Deal, Miss Eleanor Carr, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Downes, Miss Rose Downes, Mr. Thomas Downes, Mr. Edward Downes, and Miss Ruth Perkins, besides Mr. and Mrs. Dummer and daughter, Miss Elizabeth Dummer, of Alden Park Manor, formerly of Winchester.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. Archie T. White of Everett announces the engagement of his daughter, Florence May, to Mr. Thomas F. Burns of Clayton street, Malden. Miss White resides with her sister, Mrs. Charles H. Gallagher of Canal street, Winchester. Mr. Burns is a World War veteran and charter member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. No date has been set for the wedding.

SHOT TO DEATH FOLLOWING ALTERCATION

One Dead—One in Grave Condition After Fight on Harvard Street

One man is dead and another is in a critical condition at the Winchester Hospital as the result of an affray which took place on last Sunday evening shortly after 7:30 at the corner of Harvard and Chester streets. A third man, Francesco A. Ferraro, 30, of 19 Olive street, alleged by the police to have been the other member of a group of three figuring in the affair is in a cell at East Cambridge where he awaits a hearing on Jan. 13, having already been formally charged with murder in the District Court at Woburn.

The first which the Winchester Police knew of the trouble was when headquarters was notified last Sunday evening that several shots had been heard on Harvard street near Chester. Officers Regan and Archie O'Connell were dispatched to the scene and upon arrival found two men laying upon the ground apparently desperately wounded. They were picked up and rushed to the Winchester Hospital in the police car where it was found that Antonio Seraco, 33, of 35 Oak street was dead, having been shot through the chest, while Giovanni Ieradi 31, of 59 Irving street was in a critical condition with four stab wounds in the body. Doctors C. E. Ordway, M. J. Quinn and R. M. Burgoyne were summoned and worked hard over Ieradi who was very weak from loss of blood.

According to the account of the affair which the police were able to piece together after an all night rilling of several suspects and residents of the town's Italian colony, Seraco, Ieradi and Ferraro had gone together on Sunday evening to the home of Antonio Cefali at 355 Washington street. It is alleged that when the group arrived at Chester street, a short distance down Harvard from Washington street, Seraco attacked and badly cut Ieradi, following which the former was shot by Ferraro.

Immediately upon the discovery of the fatality the Winchester Police under the direction of Chief William R. McIntosh and Sergts. Rogers and Cassidy began a thorough investigation of the affair. A search of the place where the shooting occurred resulted in the finding by Officer Henry P. Dempsey of the blood stained knife with which the stabbing was alleged to have been done. Several suspects were rounded up and grilled at police headquarters, Chief McIntosh being assisted by State Detectives Ferrari and O'Neil. Francesco Ferraro was among the number, and following a thorough cross questioning and in the light of other testimony was finally placed under arrest by Chief McIntosh.

Another search of the ground at Harvard and Chester streets was conducted in the morning and the gun with which the shooting is said to have been done was found by Officer James P. Farrell. Both the knife and gun, the latter a .32 cal. Savage automatic, are being held by the police.

Ferraro was arraigned in the District Court at Woburn Monday morning where he was charged with murder. He pleaded "not guilty" and was held without bail for a hearing Jan. 13. After being finger printed at the local station house by Sergt. Rogers he was taken to East Cambridge and locked up. Meanwhile the police are continuing their investigation in the hopes of shedding new light upon the affair. Several visits have been made to the bedside of Ieradi at the Winchester Hospital but the results of the visits have not been divulged. The latter is still in a precarious condition, though his chances for recovery were considered improved yesterday. It will be a few days yet before he can be said to be out of danger even though no new complications should arise.

Mr. C. L. Billman of this town has been re-elected vice president of the Beacon Trust Company of Boston.

A Buick coach operated by Edson Laraway of 310 Main street and a Buick coupe driven by J. Hughes of 18 Gay street, Newtonville, were in collision on Church street near School street late in the afternoon of Wednesday. According to Mr. Laraway the coupe attempted to pass his car and struck his left front mudguard. No one was injured and the damage to both cars was slight.

MONTE BANKS in "KEEP SMILING"

NEWS

The man who is smart enough to save, usually earns more and more money.

The Bible says something about "to him that hath shall be given."

Whatever else it may mean, it must mean that there is something in the ability to hold onto earnings that entitles the holder to earn more and more.

The man or woman who saves $5 a month soon gets a "raise" of $10—then saves $15 and is "raised" $25—and so on and on it goes.

While we cannot guarantee this system, we've known it to work so often that we heartily recommend it.

WINCHESTER OPENS AT BELMONT

Winchester High School's basketball team journeys to Belmont this afternoon to play the first game of its interscholastic schedule with Belmont High School in the latter's gymnasium. It is the first game for Winchester in the new Middlesex League and Captain Rolli's boys are out to get away to a good start by taking their opponents. In view of the fine showing which the high school hoop tossers made against a strong Alumni quintette before Christmas, the team's chances of winning today are considered better than even. Coach Mansfield will start a team picked from among Captain Rolli, Haley, Kendrick, Fitzgerald, McCauley, Harriman, Johnson and Reardon, but probably the entire squad will make the trip.

Next week Winchester plays two games at home, Wednesday afternoon with Reading and Friday with Wakefield.

The complete schedule follows:

Jan. 8 Belmont at Belmont
13 Reading at Winchester
13 Wakefield at Winchester
19 Rivers at Brookline
19 Melrose at Winchester
22 Stoneham at Stoneham
24 Watertown at Watertown
29 Lexington at Winchester
Feb. 3 Wakefield at Wakefield
3 Manchester at Manchester
10 Stoneham at Winchester
12 Belmont at Winchester
19 Lexington at Lexington
19 Reading at Reading

BUS WRECKED ON CAMBRIDGE STREET

Another of the large busses running over the Cambridge street route was wrecked last night shortly before 12 o'clock at the turn near Swan road. Traveling towards Arlington, the bus got out of control on the turn and struck a tree, wrecking the front end and injuring three passengers, who were taken to the Winchester Hospital.

News of the accident was telephoned the police department at 11:45 by Mrs. Robert Burr of 50 Glen road, near whose home it happened. Officers Reagan and Rogers went to the scene with the police ambulance and Dr. Quinn was at once notified. The injured had already been taken to the Winchester Hospital by Mr. Harold V. Farnsworth. They were William Myers of 64 Winthrop street, Everett; Miss Thelma Jones of 21 Curtis street, Somerville and Miss Annie Chunnish of Manchester, N. H. They suffered from abrasions, cuts and shock.

The bus was in charge of Carl J. Masters of Jamaica Plain, who was slightly injured. No explanation of the cause of the accident was given. The front of the bus was badly damaged.

THE LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Mr. Jams J. Quinn spoke on the all important subject of the public schools to an interested group at the home of Mrs. Sewall E. Newman on Wednesday afternoon. His address which was most comprehensive dealt with Finance, School Buildings and Maintenance, and Instruction.

Under the heading of Finance he took up the matter of the per pupil tax. While there has been a material increase in the school population it has been possible to reduce the per pupil cost from $104 to $98—$9 without reducing standards. The minimum of reduction has been reached, however, if the Winchester public schools are to be maintained along the present lines of development.

Among the 113 towns of a population of 5000 and over Winchester ranks sixth in the matter of per pupil tax, third in the amount of wealth available, and 72nd in the proportion of total taxes; that is the schools absorb 25 or 27 per cent of the total amount raised by taxation to defray town expenses.

Mr. Quinn believes that the town in its recent acquisition of finely ventilated school buildings has four units of which it may be justly proud. While it costs from $20 to $25 per month to operate the ventilating fans in each building (it is hoped that a lower rate for power will soon be secured), yet for the sake of the children's health on which so much depends these ventilating fans are a great asset and well worth the price. There has been a marked improvement in janitor service and in the upkeep of school property. Failure to recognize the business side of school affairs has been the bugbear of public school systems. Mr. Quinn evidently intends that this criticism shall not apply to the Winchester schools.

The salaries of teachers are not commensurate with services rendered. If the finest type of teacher is to be attracted and retained, remuneration should be proportionate. While Winchester should compete with towns of similar wealth instruction should be constantly improved and developed.

The child's health, his character, his attitude and his habits are of the utmost consideration and the curriculum should be developed in such a way that these ends may be attained. Mr. Quinn's address was followed by questions and discussion which brought out valuable information.

ANTONIO SERACO BURIED YESTERDAY

Antonio Seraco, aged 35, of Irving street, who was shot to death last Sunday evening following an altercation with two fellow Italians at the corner of Harvard and Chester streets, was buried with military honors this afternoon. Services were held in St. Mary's Church at 2.30, conducted by Rev. Cornelius Murray, following which the flag draped casket was escorted to East Woburn, by the Winchester Post, American Legion Colors and Color Guard under command of Corp. Theodore Lawson and a firing squad of the 13th Infantry from the Army Base in Boston in charge of a non-commissioned officer.

At the grave three volleys were fired and taps were blown by an Army bugler.

Seraco was born June 12, 1891 in Italy, son of Alchelo and Caterina (Cesentino) Seraco. He served overseas with the A. E. F. for three months at Gievres, France and was honorably discharged from the Army July 16, 1919. He leaves a wife, three children and a brother who makes his home in Pennsylvania.

TWO ACCIDENTS ON MAIN STREET

As Mr. Herbert Wadsworth of Highland avenue, traveling south on Main street, turned into the Jenny gasoline station yesterday afternoon, he was struck by a car driven by Robert J. Leopold of Jamaica Plain following close behind. After striking the Wadsworth car, Leopold struck a Ford car driven by Harry O. Blaisdell standing in front of the Blaisdell Market.

A few minutes before 6 o'clock an Auburn sport touring car driven by Frederick N. Hammersrom of Woodside road collided with a team driven by Joseph Levenson of Dorchester and owned by the Kelley & Hawes Company. This accident occurred on Main street at Park street. The front fender of the automobile was damaged.

JUNIOR RED CROSS

Activities in Winchester High School
Jan. 1, 1925 to Dec. 8, 1925

January-June

Life Saving Class for girls each Saturday morning at the Cambridge Y. M. C. A., under the instruction of Mr. Glenn C. Perduyn, Assistant Physical Director of the Cambridge Y. M. C. A. Ten girls passed the Life Saving tests and received insignia and pins from headquarters at Washington.

Senior Tests—Margaret Newman, Mary Brown, Katherine Nelson, Junior Tests—Molly Tufts, Katherine Carlisle, Barbara Wentworth, Ruth Woodbury, Janet Goddard, Margaret Harrington, Eleanor Healey.

September

Thirty bags made as containers for Christmas gifts—bought by local chapter of American Red Cross to be sent to soldiers and sailors.

October

Directions for knitting sweaters typed by members of Commercial Department of High School.

November

Meeting of 13 home room representatives and all others interested in any Junior Red Cross activity. President elected by Australian ballot and following projects discussed: Life Saving Class, Foreign Correspondence, Christmas box for a Winchester girl at Perkins Institute for the Blind.

The Life Saving Class have already had three lessons with an average attendance of 10. Eighteen girls have signed up for the class; 16 of them are new members, while one is a last year's Junior trying the Senior test this year; the other passed the Senior requirements last year and is now taking tests which will qualify her to act as an examiner in Red Cross Life Saving.

A Report of the Junior Red Cross of the Wadleigh School

In October, 1925 the Wadleigh pupils held a Junior Red Cross membership drive. Every pupil contributed some money, the total amount received being $21. We subscribed to two copies of the Junior News for each 7th grade room, and one copy of the Courier for each 8th grade room. We sent $6.50 to the National Children's Fund, keeping $5 for local use. Each pupil was asked to give a written report on some bit of helpful service performed for others which would make him honestly entitled to wear the Junior pin with the motto "I serve." These reports were varied and most interesting.

A Red Cross Council was formed consisting of four pupils from each room. They elected officers. Through this Council notices, appeals and reports are made to the several rooms.

The pupils, outside of school time, have collected and mounted crossword puzzles, have made collections and mounted them, have made up books of pictures and stories, and have made up puzzles. These will be sent to hospitals.

At Thanksgiving time a contribution of fruits and vegetables was asked for. The response was most generous. When everything was piled together, we found we had about 60 lbs of many kinds of canned goods, several jars of home-canned fruits, 15 jars of jelly, 6 pounds of sugar, half-peck of nuts, one bushel of apples, half-bushel of potatoes, several squashes and pumpkins, celery, cranberries, carrots, turnips, cabbage, etc., making a display over which the children were very happy. These were given to Mr. Nichols to distribute in order to avoid duplicating the contributions made by the Welfare Department of the Town.

Just now in some of the English classes Christmas letters are being written to patients in the Children's Hospital. The envelopes are being decorated in the Printing room.

Arrangements are being made for a group of our pupils to sing some afternoon soon at the Home for Aged People. The orchestra will, no doubt entertain there at some later date.

Next week the 8th grade girls in their Cooking classes will make candy for Mrs. Hoey to take to the Disabled Soldiers. In the Sloyd classes the boys are preparing crabbage boards to be sent to the same place at Christmas time.

Foreign correspondence will be carried on during the year with France and perhaps one other country.

While much of the work has to be done outside of school hours, the teachers are more than willing to cooperate in some Red Cross service in their classes whenever possible. I have been deeply appreciative of the interest displayed by the children as a whole in these bits of service. To me their response is truly wonderful, and when one seriously considers what may result from cultivating such a response in service, it seems as though this work is a most vital part of the education of our boys and girls. We only wish we had more time to give to it.

In closing, I want to say that I have seen many evidences in our pupils of how the right spirit has been developed in the lower grades through the splendid program carried on by the teachers there under the direction of Miss Pratt. In the words on the beautiful Junior poster this year, we hope to keep the candle burning which has already been so brilliantly lighted for us.

Signed: M. Jane Davis

My dear Mr. Quinn:

The following represents a summary of the Red Cross activities which were carried on in the Elementary Grades during the year 1925:

December 1924—December 1925
To Children's Ward, City Hospital

Report of the work done between September and December, 1925:

Six elementary schools enrolled.

Forty subscriptions to Junior Red Cross News sent.

Eighty-six Christmas boxes shipped.

Pupil organization in each school formed.

Membership in elementary schools 100 per cent.

At least one meeting and in some schools two have been held.

Reports from each of the six secretaries have been received.

Significant quotations from these reports:

Highland—"To become a member, each person besides giving money had to do something for someone else. Some pupils helped their mothers at home, others helped other pupils."

Lincoln—"Decided every third assembly of the month should be a Red Cross Assembly."

Mystic—"One number on the program was, 'The Meaning of the Red Cross Flag.'"

Noonan—"A sick committee has been appointed to visit any child in the building who is out with any sickness except a contagious disease, help him to keep up with his studies and bring cheer of various kinds."

Washington—"In electing officers, we voted by ballot very much like grown-ups do."

Wyman—"Three boys were appointed to take the Christmas boxes to the office and two boys were appointed to help pack the boxes."

Respectfully submitted,

Blanche A. Pratt,

Director of Junior Red Cross in the Elementary Schools.

JAMES H. HUSTIS RETIRES AS HEAD OF BOSTON & MAINE

Many Winchester residents were interested to learn of the resignation made public over the past week-end, of James H. Hustis, formerly of this town, as head of the Boston & Maine Railroad after 11 years in the chief executive's chair over a period which covered the trying times of war and the difficult post war readjustment involving receivership, reorganization, Federal Control and the strike of mechanical forces with the attendant financial difficulties. Despite these difficulties increased by the tremendous growth of motor transportation the road under Mr. Hustis has assumed a much stronger position through the years until its showing for 1925 is most gratifying. The directors make no secret of the fact that they believe the present high standing of the Boston & Maine with the public, with other railroads and with the Government authorities is largely due to the standards which their retiring president has always set and insisted upon.

Now after nearly 48 years of railroad service, a life work which began when he was 14 years of age and which took him from office boy for the general superintendent of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad through the positions of clerk, chief clerk, Assistant Superintendent and Superintendent to the executive positions of Assistant Manager, Managing Vice President and finally to the Presidency of the Boston & Maine, James H. Hustis has asked that his name be not considered as a candidate to succeed himself. In his own words he wishes to enjoy "a measure of leisure to come and go and, free from official responsibilities."

His friends in Winchester hope that his future may lay wholly in pleasant places and that he may greatly enjoy his well earned vacation.

GEKES DANCED AT COUNTRY CLUB

The first of the winter subscription dances given under the auspices of the Winchester or Eta Chapter of the Gamma Eta Kappa Fraternity was held on Monday evening at the Country Club from 8 until 12 o'clock.

Included among the 60 couples present were many from out of town with a large representation of college students. Excellent music for the dancing was dispensed by the well known Tech Tunesters Orchestra of six pieces the members of which did some clever doubling on their instruments and were obliged to respond to many encores. Decorations were the usual club Christmas decorations augmented with a huge Geke fraternity shield.

Mrs. George Goddu and Mrs. G. W. Apsey were matrons and the committee in charge of arrangements included Hubert Bernard, Phillip Bartlett and Robert Apsey.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at the home of Mrs. Annie H. Blood, 10 Wedge Pond road on Friday, Jan. 15, at 3 p. m. During one of the wars of the last century in which the United States engaged, a message was sent again and again by a certain general, "All is quiet at the front." At last he was sternly reminded by the headquarters commander that it was not his business to keep peace at any price, but rather to drive back the enemy.

Have we not, as members of the W. C. T. U. and as churches, been too content to rest in the assurance that "All is quiet at the front" when in reality there is dire need for aggressive action on our part? We must come to realize the unpleasant truth that all is not "quiet at the front."

The enemies of our prohibition laws are organizing for a denite attack on the Volstead Act. Members of the A. A. P. A. are circulating a petition to which they claim to have over 12,000,000 signatures; they are purchasing space in metropolitan papers for big display advertisements proclaiming the failure of prohibition. They are putting up a desperate fight to restore the beer traffic as a legalized business. "All quiet at the front" is very evidently a misrepresentation of the situation. The opponents of the dry law are far from quiet; they are proclaiming that the United States is on the road to destruction unless Congress can be persuaded to relieve the situation by legalizing beer. They are now proposing to hold in our National Capitol on Jan. 15, a convention which they openly announce is for the purpose of breaking down our prohibition laws.

At a meeting of representatives of the liquor manufacturers held in Dortmund, Germany, Sept. 23, 1925, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved: That with our whole power, we will give the American people their freedom back, for nobody and no law has any right to forbid anything to intelligent people. We will fight until this stupid Eighteenth Amendment which has sprung from the brains of some morons who seek to keep 110,000,000 people in chains has ended."

It is high time that the law-abiding people of this nation saw to it that on the dry side, it should not be "All quiet at the front," but that for every wet voice that speaks out falsely on the subject, there should be 100 voices proclaiming from the house tops that prohibition has proven worth while and, therefore, should be given a fair chance to prove its value to society.

Let us no longer lull our conscience to sleep with the belief that "All is quiet at the front," but rather put on our armor as Christian soldiers and join the troops that are supporting the Federal government in the enforcement of the dry law. There's good fighting all along the line. No American citizen should want to be drafted, but all should volunteer for service to hold and secure the observance of the greatest moral law, ever placed in our Constitution.

Grace M. Hamilton

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The Fortnightly will meet as usual on Monday at 2:30 in the Town Hall. Following the business session the club will be entertained by Elizabeth West Parker, a writer of short stories, poetry and essays. Mrs. Parker is a native of Woburn; has served on the School Board there and in many other prominent positions. She will read "Petunias for Remembrance" and other stories.

The musical program of the afternoon will be presented by Miss Althea Tibbets, who is one of Pauline Hammond Clark's "Original Bird Trio," of Boston, which has had tremendous success on the concert stage. Miss Tibbets will be heard in a group of whistling solos. She has chosen a most attractive program well planned to display the unusual and fairly inspiring interpretation of the whistling art. She will be accompanied by Miss Gertrude Gibson, at the piano.

The January meeting of the Literature Group was held on Monday afternoon in the new Fortnightly Room. Though only about 25 were present, the meeting was a most enjoyable one. The room proves to be a highly satisfactory meeting place for groups of this sort.

A very interesting talk on the literary news of the month was given by Miss Weeks, who spoke, among various topics, of the recent Hall of Fame elections, the discovery of unpublished Shelley poems at Harvard, and some recent best-selling novels. She gave a brief and clear review of E. Barrington's "Glorious Apollo," as an example of the type of fiction biography.

The topic of the afternoon was the present day American short story, which had been planned by the chairman, Mrs. F. S. Hatch and Mrs. E. S. Larned, but because of their unavoidable absence, Miss Mary L. Hodge acted as chairman. The program was arranged to show the types of stories, which represent different sections of the country and show manners and characters of our time, so that they may be said to be written for the future. They will show to the succeeding generation the life of their present-day ancestors. Groups represented were the Pennsylvania Dutch, the Mountain Whites of Kentucky, the Mexican Border Americans and the New York shop girls. These stories were read by Mrs. W. W. Hill, Mrs. Eugene McDonald, Miss Mary Hodge and Mrs. Minnie C. Ely.

The Social chairman for the afternoon were Miss Jessie D. Pierce, Mrs. E. A. Carlisle and Mrs. Charles H. Dodge, who served tea at the close of the program.

Ancient Needlework

The earliest example of needlework known to exist comes from the tomb of a Pharaoh 1500 years before the Christian era, and there are specimens of Greek work dating from twelve centuries later.

To the heirs-at-law,

WILL OF MICHAEL CONROY PROBATED

The will of Michael Conroy who passed away at his home on Lloyd street about three weeks ago became public last week when it was filed at the Middlesex Registry of Probate at East Cambridge. The estate is valued at $21,000 in personal property and real estate, the bulk of the bequests including those to Boston College, St. John's Seminary, several Catholic clergymen and other projects fostered by that Church.

Five thousand dollars, also in memory of his son, is left to St. John's Seminary, Brighton, to be known as the "William E. Conroy purse."

Two hundred and fifty dollars is left to four Catholic clergymen, Rev. Francis E. Rogers of Woburn, formerly of this town, Rev. Hugh Maguire of Winchester and Rev. Neil A. Cronin and Rev. William A. Dacey both of Boston, the money to be used for masses to be celebrated for Mary E. Conroy, wife of the testator, who died a little over a year ago. Fathers Cronin and Dacey were also left a part of the household effects of the deceased.

One dollar is left to each of two sisters, Ellen Reardon of Somerville and Mary Farris of Malden. Mary Conroy of Boston, a cousin, is bequeathed the furnishings of her aunt's room in the Conroy home.

One thousand dollars is left for educational purposes to the Franciscan Fathers of the College of the Holy Land at Brookland, Washington, D. C., and after the specifically named bequests the will provides that the residue of the $21,000 estate shall go to the Boston directors of the Propagation of the Faith.

The executors named in the will, which was drawn Dec. 29, 1924, are Patrick F. Maguire of Winchester and Attorney Charles A. Birmingham of Boston.

FORTNIGHTLY RECEPTION

The housewarming held at the new Fortnightly Hall on Wednesday afternoon was a most enjoyable occasion. Our President, Mrs. W. S. Emerson; First Vice-President, Mrs. A. F. Woodside; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Ernest Keepers, and Mrs. G. W. Apsey greeted and made welcome the large number of guests.

The room was most attractively decorated with greens and a beautiful oil painting, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Hayward, and bouquets. The spic and span spacious room with its cream colored walls, dainty new scrim casement curtains, and beautiful cretonne overdrapes made a delightful setting.

The coat room with its accommodations for hanging wraps in an orderly and easily attainable fashion is a great convenience. The kitchen with its every convenience of a well-ordered home from up-to-date gas stoves to the splendid blue and grey linoleum upon the floor, makes a complete club home.

A table was set with a beautiful tea set, and on the exquisitely embroidered cover edged with cluny lace, were plates of dainty and delicious sandwiches and cakes, salted nuts and candies. Mrs. William H. Gilpatrick, Mrs. C. F. A. Siedhof, Mrs. C. H. Watkins, and Mrs. A. K. Hayden poured, and the following members of the Room Committee: Mesdames G. W. Apsey, R. E. Carlisle, W. H. Dotson, M. J. England, G. B. Hayward, Ernest Keepers, D. C. Linscott, H. W. Moulton, E. L. Mudge, G. C. Neiley, N. C. Page and Miss E. B. Freeman under the able leadership of Mrs. W. J. Breen, chairman of the afternoon, assisted in serving refreshments to the guests.

Mrs. Annette Synmes Hughes sang in a sweet and charming manner a group of songs. She was accompanied at the piano by our much esteemed club member, Mrs. Faye H. Lefavour.

A true spirit of hospitality pervaded the room throughout the afternoon, and it is the opinion of those present that the club has taken a long step forward in increasing the sociability of our organization. To Mrs. Breen and her very efficient committee, the club is indebted for a very pleasant event which we hope may be only a beginning to the happy hours spent in club companionship.

WINCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION MEETING

HIGH SCHOOL ASSEMBLY HALL, TUESDAY, JAN. 19, AT 8 P. M.

COLLEGE NIGHT

Business Session For the Open Discussion of Questions of Vital Concern to Our Children Which Should Prove of Great Interest to All Parents, Will Immediately Precede the General Program of the Evening

The Winchester High School Parent-Teacher Association will hold in the High School Assembly Hall on Tuesday evening, Jan. 19, at 8 o'clock, what will undoubtedly prove, not only to be a most interesting and unusual meeting, but also one which will bring out many worthwhile suggestions relating to matters of vital concern to the proper guidance of the education of our children.

The first part of the evening's program will be given over to a discussion of a number of important questions arranged by a "Committee on Resolutions" consisting of Mr. William L. Parsons, chairman; Mrs. James W. Russell and Dr. W. H. Lowell. Some of the subjects which will be taken up and open for general discussion relate to "a systematic period of study," to "interruptions of study," to "curtailment of social activities," to "the automobile problem," to "a proper rest period," to "supervised school athletics" and to "supervised reading."

Mr. William S. Packer will talk on the subject of prizes. All parents and others interested are invited and are urged to attend this part of the program as well as that which follows it. It is hoped also that all who care to, will feel free to enter into the general discussion.

The second part of the evening's program will have a direct bearing on the work of our High School with special reference to college requirements. There will be class demonstrations by pupils of the High School in the subject of "mathematics," Miss Palmer conducting and also in French, under the direction of Miss Perham.

A report on the college records of our High School graduates both with reference to their entrance examinations and relating to their college work will be made by Mr. Kuyper of the teaching staff of the High School.

Mr. Wade L. Grindle, principal of the High School will talk on the subject of "College Requirements."

Graduates of the High School who are now in college have been asked to speak or send letters, which will be read at this meeting. It is expected that the following colleges will be represented in this manner: Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Vassar, Harvard, Wellesley, Amherst, Smith and Dartmouth.

On Feb. 16, this organization is making arrangements for a meeting at which Mr. James H. Quinn, our Superintendent of Schools will talk on "The School Financial Situation." Every parent living in Winchester and all others interested should attend these two meetings.

Mr. Robert F. Guild is president of the High School Parent-Teacher Association and Miss Mabel A. Richmond of the High School teaching staff is secretary.

WAKEFIELD TONIGHT

Winchester High School will entertain the Wakefield High School basketball team this evening in the high school gymnasium. Between the halves there will be a game between the "Independents" and the high school second team. First game to start promptly at 7.30.

ADDIE M. PEARSON

Mrs. Addie M. Pearson, widow of Edward N. Pearson of Concord, N. H., passed away Saturday, Jan. 9, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Howard A. Morrison, 12 Glen road, Winchester. Private services were held at the late residence on Tuesday forenoon conducted by Rev. Lisle B. Swenson, of the First Congregational Church.

Walter Badger and Jessie Wilson of Winchester; John Converse of Andover and Alexander Morrison of Lynn were bearers. Services were also held Tuesday afternoon in the chapel of the South Congregational Church, Concord, N. H., followed by interment at Blossom Hill Cemetery, Rev. Carl Bare officiating.

Mrs. Pearson is survived by two sons, Edward N. Pearson of Long Beach, Cal., John W. Pearson of Concord, N. H., a daughter, Mrs. Howard A. Morrison of Winchester and by her sister, Mrs. M. M. Converse of Andover. Four grandchildren also survive.

SELENA S. DENTON

Funeral services were conducted on Tuesday afternoon in the Church of the Epiphany for Mrs. Selena S. Denton, widow of Daniel Luther Denton, formerly of Albany, N. Y., who passed away the first of this week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frederick W. Coburn, 722 East Merrimack street, Lowell. She was born in London, Eng., Sept. 1, 1842, daughter of Henry and Susan Mount Mollison.

Surviving, besides her daughter, Mrs. Coburn, are three sisters, Mrs. Florence Davidson of Brighton, Eng., Mrs. Cora Fulton of New York, and Miss Minnie Mollison of London, Eng. The deceased will be remembered by many of the town's residents as having formerly for some time made her home here with Mr. and Mrs. Coburn while they were living in Winchester on Stevens street.

KATHERINE COLE SMITH

Mrs. Katherine Cole Smith, wife of Albert P. Smith, passed away last Sunday night, Jan. 10, at her home on Myopia road following a two-weeks illness.

Mrs. Smith was born in 1861 at Bellevue, Ia., the daughter of Eli and Maria (Rhea) Cole. Her early life and up to the time of her marriage was spent in the West, but following her marriage in 1891 to Albert P. Smith she came east and lived for a time in Somerville before coming to Winchester 19 years ago to make her home on Myopia road.

Surviving besides her husband are two sons, Eli Cole, and Albert Paine Smith; a sister, Lillian Cole of Chicago; and two brothers, Aylmer Cole of Minneapolis and Eli Cole of Chicago.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at the late residence, conducted by Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church. Burial was in Mt. Auburn.

NEW BOAT CLUB OFFICERS

The annual meeting and election of the Winchester Boat Club was held on Wednesday evening with a good attendance at the Edward T. Harrington building on Church street.

The following officers were elected: President—Edward B. Ladd
Vice President—George B. Cummings
Secretary—Alan Hovey
Treasurer—Kenneth Pratt
Fleet Captain—Stafford Rogers
Directors—Nathaniel G. Hill, Arthur W. Touman, Bert R. Gare, Marshall Symmes, Norman M. Mitchell, Francis Randlett, Philip S. Hight, Merrill Tucker.

Mr. John W. Lane of Nelson street reported the theft of a pair of boy's skis from his yard sometime Monday.

FLORENCE SWAN COFFIN

Mrs. Florence Swan Coffin, wife of Augustus W. Coffin and a life long resident of the town, passed away early last Saturday morning after an illness of three weeks.

Mrs. Coffin was born in Winchester 48 years ago, the daughter of Lafayette and Lydia (Brown) Swan. The Swans were among the first settlers of the town, her grandfather, John, who was of the seventh generation by that name, building his home on the West Side opposite to the entrance of the present Swan road. His brother's residence was on the site now occupied by the Winchester Country Club. For a time Mrs. Coffin made her home with her family on Fletcher street, but for the past 15 years she had lived on Fairmount street in the Highlands district. She attended the Winchester schools and was for some time employed in the office of the Winchester Star, being forced to retire because of ill health. An accomplished musician she was a former member of Lansing's Orchestra and Odell's Orchestra, both of Boston. She was a member of the First Baptist Church and of the Y. P. U. of that body as well as of the Victoria Rebecca Lodge of this town. Of late her time had been more and more devoted to her gardens and the growing of beautiful flowers for which she had established quite a local reputation. Not alone did she enjoy the fruits of her labors. The life of many a sick or shut-in friend and neighbor was often brightened by the blooms she loved to share with others.

In 1919 she was married to Augustus W. Coffin who survives her with her father, Lafayette Swan, two sisters, Ella M., and Carrie E., and two brothers, Roswell E. of Detroit and Alfred Swan who is now in the Veterans' Hospital at Northampton as a result of wounds sustained while serving with the American Expeditionary Forces in France during the World War.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at the late residence, 14 Fairmount street, and were conducted by Rev. Clifton H. Walcott, pastor of the First Baptist Church, who was assisted by Rev. Henry E. Hodge, former pastor, and by Rev. Arthur Winn, a neighbor of the deceased. The services were largely attended and there were many beautiful flowers. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

HIGH SCHOOL CLASSES TO PRESENT PLAY

The live wire American comedy Lightnin' to be presented by the Junior-Senior classes Saturday evening, Jan. 16, promises to be a rare treat for our loyal Winchester residents who have always shown much interest in our annual school play. The large cast of characters deserve much credit for their untiring efforts under Miss Chapman's intensive direction and are as follows:

Lightnin'—Bill Jones Gilbert Hook
John Marvin George Bartlett

Rodney Harper John Harriman
Evelott Hammond Francis McCauley
Nevin Blodgett James Hall
Oscar Nelson James Halworth
Teddy Peters Charles McCormack
Walter Lennon Thad Smith
Fred Peters Daniel Dennett
Zeb Crothers Donald Higgins
Liverman Charles Cassidy
Mildred Buckley Betty Sweetser
Mrs. Jones Sally Brooks
Margaret Davis Imelda Mobis
Mrs. Harper Helen Fleming
Frida Virginia Hunkins
Paula Jarvis Elizabeth Woodbury
Mrs. Moore Dorothy Brown
Mrs. Jordan Cecile de Cordella
Mrs. Preston Alice O'Leary
Mrs. Starr Emily Wormelle

Prologue—John Marvin's Cabin in Nevada.
Act I—The next day. Scene 1—Office of the California Hotel on the State Line between Nevada and California.
Act II—Six months later—Superior Court at Reno.
Act III—The Hotel—the same evening.
The audience is requested to be in their seats at 8 o'clock that the prologue may not be marred by confusion.

TWO ANNIVERSARIES

The First Congregational Church will on February 2 celebrate two anniversaries. One is the 85th anniversary of the founding of the church and the other is the 10th anniversary of Dr. Howard J. Chidley as it's pastor.

These two events will be celebrated in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, Feb. 2.

Dean Charles R. Brown of Yale Divinity School will be the speaker. The D. L. Page catering company of Lowell will serve the dinner. There will be special music by the chorus choir under the direction of Mr. Woodworth.

The dinner seating capacity of the Town Hall is limited and those wishing to attend these celebrations should secure their tickets at once either of Mrs. William I. Palmer, tel. Win. 0151 or at the Parker & Lane Company office, tel. Win. 0162.

NEW FOUNTAIN AT RANDALL'S

P. H. Randall, local caterer, has been installing a fine new soda fountain at his Mt. Vernon street store this week, replacing the old one which had seen many years of hard service. The new fountain which measures 24 feet over all is the last word in modern construction. Its base is of green marble with white counter set in black and gold inlay. The top is of Onyx and it has a Tennessee back-bar with Onyx slabs. The fountain will have a capacity of 45 gallons of ice cream in nine five-gallon containers while four draught stations for soda and two sets of syrup tanks will greatly facilitate quick service. It is equipped with the latest improved devices for refrigeration and sanitation including that by which the syrups are cooled as well as the soda, thereby insuring the coldest possible drink.

CHARLES A. ROHDE

Charles A. Rohde, aged 50, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, died suddenly of a cerebral hemorrhage last Friday afternoon about 5:30 while attending a motion picture performance at the Regent Theatre in Arlington.

Mr. Rohde, a retired postal clerk, had made his home for the past three years with his sister, Mrs. Fannie Lafleur, on Washington street. He had not been in the best of health, having suffered two previous strokes which had left him partially paralyzed and without the power of speech. He was, however, able to get about and was a regular devotee of the Regent, visiting the theatre on an average of three times a week. During last Friday's performance Mr. Rohde was noted by several in the audience who thought him asleep. Finally when he failed to move an usher was called and it was discovered that he had passed away. The Arlington police were notified, and a letter in his pocket addressed to Charles A. Rohde at 270 Washington street, Winchester, led them to communicate with the local authorities who in turn notified Mrs. Lafleur. The latter identified the body as that of her brother and it was removed to her home where funeral services were held on Monday morning at 9 o'clock followed by a high mass of requiem celebrated in St. Mary's Church by the Rev. Fr. Cornelius Murray. Among the many floral tributes were those from the clerks in the Cambridge Post Office with whom the deceased had been associated; from the Bagley Post, Spanish War Veterans; Winthrop War Veterans and other organizations. A detail from the Charlestown Navy Yard acted as pall bearers and escorted the casket, draped in an American flag, to St. Paul's Cemetery, Arlington, where a salute of three volleys were fired over the grave, followed by taps blown by a naval bugler.

Mr. Rohde was born in Cambridge, the son of Joseph and Margaret (Milligan) Rohde. His father was well known locally and was for many years one of the city's successful merchants. Mr. Rohde received his education in the Cambridge schools and was for many years a postal clerk in the city post office. During the Spanish-American war he served his country in the navy. He was a member of Bagley Camp, Veterans of the Spanish War, of Charlestown. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Fannie Lafleur of Winchester and Mrs. Fred McKenzie of Shirley; and two brothers, Frederick of Revere and Leo Rohde of Cambridge.

READING GIRLS WON

Winchester High School's girls' basketball team lost a practice game at Reading Wednesday afternoon, losing to the Reading girls' team in the latter's gymnasium 30-28. Neither team enjoyed much of an advantage, but Winchester might have won had it not been for a fatal lapse in the third quarter. The locals left the floor at half time on the long end of a 14-11 count. At the resumption of play the Reading lassies forged quickly to the front and ran up a commanding lead which a determined Winchester rally failed by two points to wipe out in the final quarter. Winchester's chances were materially weakened by the loss early in the game of its Captain and veteran guard "Dot" Bond, who was ordered out of the pastime mid-way through the first quarter for over-guarding. Miss Fowler for Reading and "Kay" Valley for Winchester were high scorers.

The score:
READING.....WINCHESTER
Fultz, lf.....12, Cassidy
Fowler, rf.....11, Shultz
Adams, c.....10, Von Noitz
Upton, lg.....10, Carlisle
McBrien, lg.....10, Valley

FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS AT EPIPHANY

The fifth annual parish Festival of Lights was observed last Sunday afternoon at 5 in the Church of the Epiphany. There was a large attendance at the service which is of particular significance to the local parish, being held as it is on the first Sunday after the Feast of the Epiphany from which the church takes its name. The Feast of the Epiphany celebrates the manifestation of Christ to the world, and the Festival of Lights is symbolic, typifying the spreading of Christianity throughout the world by means of the church and its members.

Last Sunday evening's service was in charge of the rector, Rev. Allen Evans, Jr. who started the spreading of the light by lighting his own candle from those burning upon the church altar and then in turn lighting the candles of the two wardens of the church, Mr. Alfred S. Higgins and Mr.
Stanley G. H. Fitch. From them the light was spread to the members of the choir and congregation until every one present bore a gleaming candle.
The lights of the church were then switched off and the spectacle of the hundreds of individual flames sharply outlined against the sombre gloom of the auditorium was most effective.
The congregation filed out into the street still bearing the burning tapers and many instances have been reported where the candles were still ablaze when taken into homes in remote parts of the town.

Preceding the Festival of Lights there was a choral service including a special Epiphany anthem sung by the vested choir of 40 voices under the direction of organist and choir-master
J. Albert Wilson.

Sydney Beggs new craft which was known as Ruweida IV last season will probably be called Ruweida V another year. When the boat was delivered from Denmark about mid-way through the past racing season she was found to have arrived in a much damaged condition and although repaired at Lawleys could never be put in proper condition for hard racing.
Later when examined thoroughly the racer was found to be far from her designed lines with the keel and rudder all out of plumb, and extensive repairs will be necessary to put her in shape to show the speed of which she is capable.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL AND ITS USE IN ACCIDENT CASES

Accidents will happen even in the best of regulated families and so, too, in the best of regulated towns. Since this is so, and since it appears unavoidable, it certainly is wise to have at hand a place to care for these accidents. Such is the place the Winchester Hospital occupies, at your service. All hospitals, for the sake of humanity, take in and care for any case taken there directly from the accident.

Unfortunately for the finances of the hospital, many of these cases cannot pay for their care, or when the towns, where they reside, pay, it is only after the lapse of considerable time, if the cases have to be presented and tried in court. So it is desirable that the sustaining members of the Winchester Hospital stand by in the future, as they have been doing in the past, to help out with the daily running expenses.

From April 1, 1925 to Nov. 1, 1925
there have been 80 accident cases taken to the Winchester Hospital, 42 stayed at the hospital for treatment, 38 were treated and sent home, 43 were Winchester cases, and 37 were citizens of other towns. Of these 80 cases, 28 had not yet paid for their care by the first of December. These figures show that on an average, an accident almost every other day is taken to the hospital. Nearly half of these were automobile accidents, some very serious cases. Twenty-five cases were from falls, four from cuts, three struck by fragments of rocks. Other accidents were caused by dog bites, crushed foot, needles and slivers, broken glass, fire crackers and barbed wire.

The need of the hospital is apparent daily and Winchester is fortunate that it does not have to send accident cases a greater distance, for immediate attention greatly facilitates their chances of recovery.

CORRECTION

In our last issue, in the list of officers of Mystic Valley Lodge for the coming year, the names of Rev. Allison
B. Gifford and Rev. Clifton H.
Walcott were given as chaplains. Mr.
Gifford has recently removed from town and consequently is no longer one of the chaplains, although he is still an honorary member of the lodge.
Rev. Lisle B. Swenson, assistant minister of the First Congregational Church, is the newly appointed chaplain to fill the place left vacant by Mr. Gifford's retirement.

SENTENCED FOR THEFT OF COAT

After a long postponement Charles
T. Williams of Main street and Rocco DeToso of Olive street with Harriet Mahoney, a 19-year-old Stoneham girl, appeared on last Friday morning in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge where they were charged with breaking and entering the department store in Lowell known as Fidler's Inc., and with the larceny of a fur coat valued at $100. They were also charged with receiving the coat knowing that it was stolen.

According to the police the trio went to Lowell following a dance after the Mahoney girl had expressed a desire for a fur coat. Seeing one in the window of Fidler's Inc. which pleased her the glass was smashed by one of the trio and the coat removed.
The breaking glass was heard and the police were soon on their trail, the three being rounded up the same evening. The two men were taken together in an automobile and the girl discovered later hiding in another car with the stolen fur coat under her own.

All three defendants at first pleaded "Not Guilty" but half way through the testimony of the first witness for the government they changed their pleas to "guilty." The girl was sentenced by Judge George Flynn to the Women's Reformatory at Sherburne for an indefinite period while Williams, who was found to be the possessor of quite a police record, was given a like term at the Concord Reformatory. DeToso who had never been in court before was placed on probation and ordered to make restitution of $150 for damage done the coat and for the broken window. Miss Mahoney broke down and wept when the sentence was passed.

OUR RETIRING MODERATOR

To the Editor of the Star:

I assure you Mr. Editor that your humble servant felt grieved when I learned through the columns of the last issue of the Star that the present moderator of our town meetings has decided to sever his connection as presiding officer over the intelligent electorate that participates in the activities of our old fashioned town meetings. I trust that pressure will be manifested to induce him to be a candidate for a membership on some of the boards that have a bearing on the future destiny of Winchester.

He has served the Town of Winchester faithfully and intelligently as a member of the Board of Health and as Moderator for 15 years. He appointed the able committees that erected our new schools, fire and police stations and beautiful bridges, and was instrumental in appointing the committees that financed the above propositions with the assistance of the tax payers.

It was immaterial to the present
Moderator if you were a plumber, a scribe, a laborer, a lobbyist or a bob-baired flapper when you arose to speak, you were recognized, and I for one grasp this opportunity to most heartily thank the retiring Moderator for the efficient service he has rendered to the Town of Winchester for the past 15 years. More power to him.

Very truly yours,

The Customer Who Comes Back

The customer who happens upon our candy casually for the first time, but who returns again and again because he has found what he wants, is our very best advertisement. The faces of most of these customers are familiar to us. They present themselves so often and so regularly that we can't help remembering them, even though their names may be unknown to us. It's not long before we even associate their preferences in our stock with their faces.

HIGHLAND TEACHERS RATE
100 PER CENT

(Special to the Winchester Star)
Washington, D. C., Jan. 11—One hundred per cent of the teachers of the Highland School, Winchester, are enrolled in the National Education Association, according to a report received by Mr. J. W. Crabtree, secretary of the association, from the principal, Mrs. Bertha S. Hefflon. In a letter to Mrs. Hefflon, acknowledging the report, Mr. Crabtree says: "We are proud of your 100 per cent membership in the National Education Association. It means that your teachers realize the necessity of solidifying the profession. You and your associates are to be congratulated on this record. You will soon receive the certificate granted by the executive committee."

WINCHESTER LOST OPENING TILT

Winchester High School's basketball team lost its first game of the interscholastic season last Friday afternoon at Belmont, losing to Belmont High School in the latter's gymnasium, 27 to 18. Incidentally it was the first game for the locals in the new Middlesex League of which they recently became members and the result is naturally a big disappointment. In view of the team's showing against the alumni before the Christmas recess Winchester had gone to Belmont with plenty of confidence, and possibly this worked somewhat against its players who were rather completely outclassed until well toward the end of the battle.

It must be admitted that Winchester at no time played the game of which it is capable, the game which showed against the strong graduate outfit which it might have defeated had its players had a bit more experience. Belmont employed a very effective five-man defense against the locals forcing them to do most of their shooting from well down the floor. This proved a distinct handicap since the low ceiling of the Belmont gymnasium made long shooting particularly difficult.

The half ended with the home team leading 12 to 3, with Winchester scoring its only points on three shots from the foul line. The locals appeared dead on their feet, and their passing game was not effective. At three-quarter time Belmont had a 24 to 8 advantage, and then the locals seemed to shake their lethargy and show the game they can play. Gradually drawing up upon their opponents they gave the home team and its supporters the scare of their lives while scoring 10 points to 3 for Belmont during the last quarter. With a bit more time to play Winchester might very well have won, but as it was the boys were still nine points in the rear at the final whistle and they left the game badly disgruntled.

An analysis of the score shows that the local forwards were completely snowed by the Belmont defense, scoring with center, McCauley, but five points, three of which were on fouls. "Nicky" Fitzgerald and "Jack" Harriman, guards, scored 10 points among them, the former leading with a total of six. This contrasts sharply with the work of the Belmont scoring men who ran up 24 of their team's total of 27. Winchester will have to learn to work the ball toward the net instead of away from the hoop as was the case at Belmont if its team is to be in the running for league honors. At present it has no one with the exception of Fitzgerald who has shown any ability at lengthy shooting and this type of offense can only be effective where a gym has plenty of height.

MUSIC GARDEN

The annual meeting of the Music Garden was held Tuesday evening, Jan. 12, at the home of Mrs. Annette Hughes Symmes of Winthrop street. We are all glad to know our efficient President, Mrs. Knight, was willing to accept the position for another year. After the program was over, all the members joined heartily in singing many of the old songs we all love so well. A social time and refreshments followed.

The following selections were played:

WIN JACKSON HOLDS LOCAL GOLF RECORD

W. A. "Win" Jackson, local golfer of parts, is assured of at least one record for the Royal and Ancient game which can never be equalled, let alone broken, the same being the pair of 71s which he made for the old course at the Winchester Country Club. In the new lay-out several of the holes over which he played while turning in his low figures have been eliminated, hence the assurance that his record will stand as long as the little white agate is belted around the Country Club pasture. Mr. Jackson added considerably to his golf prestige last summer when he took the local club championship away from Perley Chase in a sizzling 37 hole match after the latter had ruled the Winchester roost for all these many years. "Win" is a "5 handicap" man in state competition which places him pretty much in the ranks of the select. Before coming to Winchester he played his golf at Hartford among other honors won the Connecticut Valley Championship on one occasion. Skool.

Mr. Harry A. Wilcox of Mt. Vernon street, well known pharmacist at Knight's in the square, sustained a bad fall while on his way home last Monday evening when he slipped on the icy pavement near Winchester place. He complained of injuries to his back and head, but was able to be on the job as usual the next day.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The sixth regular meeting of the Fortnightly was held in the Town Hall on Monday afternoon, Jan. 11.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wes Parker gave a most entertaining program. She divided her subject into two parts, the first being a lecture entitled, "Who carries the Torch." Literature was defined as "Knowledge of the past, stored up in books." The King James translation of the Bible in 1611 marked the beginning of the growth of literature. This was followed by the works of Shakespeare, Bunyan's Pilgrim Progress and the works of John Milton. The various races that invaded England added to her vocabulary and can still be traced in many words in common use today. The English language is rapidly becoming a world language on account of the World War. Mrs. Parker spoke of the more modern writers, telling of the place Scott's works hold, and referring to Hardy's novels—15 of which are considered works of genius. She also spoke of the many biographies, also autobiographies, lately written, as being of great value.

She commended the works of Kate Douglas Wiggin, Miss Dickinson, and Amy Lowell.

For the second part of her talk, Mrs. Parker told Dorothy Canfield Fisher's story, "Petunias for Remembrance" in a very charming manner. The Music Committee gave an unusual touch to the afternoon's program through their presentation of Althea Tibbetts, concert whistler.

Miss Tibbetts has a round, flexible, singing tone which carries her through the lilting cadences and sustained trills with exceptional ease. Her program, which was divided into two parts, was significant in its color contrasts.

The first group included "June Brought the Roses" by Openshaw, a ballad form, in which the fullness of her tone was particularly apparent; "The Glow Worm" by Lincke, a favorite of lovers of light opera and "The Dance of the Honey Bees" by Richmond.

Miss Tibbetts gave an interesting bird-like interpretation of "The Glow Worm." Through its sweet warbling phrases and soft occasional twitterings one was easily carried in imagination to a garden at dusk where the glow worm was being serenaded by a full-throated songster atop a swinging bough. The illusion of the garden was carried over into the third number, though time had brought the sunlight and warm breath of flowers being wooed by their lover bees to the scene.

As an encore to this group Miss Tibbetts rendered the Pizzicati from the Opera "Sylvia" by Delibes most effectively.

The opening number of her second group, "The Indian Love Call" from "Rose Marie" thrilled her listeners with its spirit of romance and made one feel that the inspiration which prompted the call itself must have been imparted to the Indian people through the throats of the winged songsters of the forest.

This lovely number was followed by Lawrence B. O'Connors, "Four Little Blackberries" which vividly pictured four little picnicians, like dusty blackberries by the roadside, carelessly swinging along humming and whistling as they go.

Perhaps the most stirring of all Miss Tibbetts' numbers was her closing "Neapolitan Medley" of old Italian street songs.

Throughout the entire program Miss Tibbetts maintained the rich, lucid quality of tone which makes her art exceptionally attractive. She was accorded a most enthusiastic reception.

Miss Tibbetts was accompanied at the piano by Gertrude Gibson, one of Boston's prominent young pianists. Miss Gibson has received unusual honor in her work, having been offered two scholarships by the Chicago University and one at Boston. She has recently completed a course of study with Professor LaCroix of Paris. Her comprehensive interpretation of the piano parts added much to the charming character of the afternoon's program.

Both young artists are members of the Copley Club Singers and Entertainers, under the management of Pauline Hammond Clark of Copley square, Boston. Their popularity has been attested by many radio fans who have heard them through Station WBZ.

The Art Committee has arranged a visit to the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum to be made by automobile from Winchester, Thursday, Jan. 21 (not Wednesday, as announced at the Fortnightly meeting). The cars provided will leave the Winchester Railroad Station promptly at 1 o'clock, weather permitting. A nominal charge for transportation will be made, not including admission to the museum. Anyone wishing to be included in this trip should send notice as early as possible to the chairman, Mrs. C. H. Watkins, tel. 0370, or to Mrs. George H. Reed, tel. 1316-W.

The Soldier and Sailor Welfare Committee wishes to acknowledge the gift of $5 given by the Junior Red Cross of the Mystic School. This money was used to buy Christmas gifts for the men in the hospital at West Roxbury. Twenty pounds of fudge was made and sent to these men by the Junior Red Cross of the Wadleigh School, and through the kindness of Mr. C. H. Watkins, 40 pounds of chocolates were donated.

Mr. John C. Avres, a shoe manufacturer, contributed a very substantial amount of Christmas happiness by his gift of 40 pairs of shoes.

Miss Ruth Chandler Johnston, little 12 year old dancer of this town, is among the children entered in the Child Dancer Contest being conducted by the Metropolitan Theatre in Boston and the Macan-Ruby Company. The contest which is open to any boy or girl in New England under 13 years of age opens Jan. 28, and entries must be in by 5 p. m. the day previous. The first prize is to be six complete dancing costumes.

PUEBLO ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION NOTES

The second regular bi-monthly meeting of the Pueblo Athletic Association was held at their club rooms, 9 Fairmount street, Winchester Highlands, on Thursday evening with Coach Mansfield of the High School as honor guest.

Head Chef Dick Murphy ably assisted by "Turner-of-Spits" Harold Hatch and Paul Kendrick, bus boy, put on a feed that was a "K. O."—everything from soup to nuts. If the club continues to serve such banquets they can easily count on doubling their membership when the news gets around, and their quarters are none too large at present to take care of the gymnastic apparatus, game tables, library, etc.

The nose-bags were hitched on promptly at 7 p. m. and it was fully 8:30 when President Franklin rapped for order and after a brief introduction presented the speaker of the evening, Mr. W. Doolittle Mansfield. His subject was "The Value of a Club" and his address was full of pep, pitched on a high plane and was received with much applause.

A report on the Pueblo Hockey Team was presented by Tarzan Derby showing that these skaters are giving a very good account of themselves. Games are desired with strong teams of an average age of 16 years.

Tentative arrangements were made for a strong ball club for 1926 which it is hoped will meet with liberal moral and financial support from all the citizens, as it is planned to put on a series of good games every Saturday afternoon during the season on Leonard Field.

The only unpleasant incident to mar the festivities occurred about 9:30 when without warning the lights went out and it was found that the landlord had called to collect the rent which was somewhat in arrears. The treasurer was able to take care of this little matter and in a few minutes the lights came on again and the meeting proceeded.

The decorations were done in white and blue, the club colors and were very effective.

Vocal selections of college and popular songs were enjoyed in which all participated and original poems were read by members.

Thanks are due the Second Congregational Church for the use of chairs, tables and cooking equipment.

Those present were Mr. W. D. Mansfield, Tarzan Derby, "Phil" Hanson, "Bonsey" Murphy, "Skin" Kendrick, "Bull" Franklin, Gene Kearns, "Lead" Kearns, "Tiny" Smith, Ernest McAdams, "Lefty" Hatch, La Merte Clark, Clyde Clark, "Swede" Grandlund.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, March 17, with a program appropriate to the day.

FIRST LARGE SNOW STORM SATURDAY

The first snow storm of size arrived last Saturday, a heavy fall continuing through the day and leaving about five inches. For a time it appeared as though we were going to have a real, old-fashioned storm, but at sun-down it petered out and a cold wave accompanied by a high wind took its place. The electric lines had their plows out and the cars were somewhat delayed during the day. The Town Highway Department displayed its usual efficiency in clearing the streets, Sunday morning finding all the highways well scraped of snow and our streets in excellent condition. The skating and ice boating was apparently finished for the remainder of the month. Beautiful weather followed the storm, Sunday and Monday being perfect winter days.

The Harvard Woman's Club of Boston chose as the play to be presented in its annual Dramatics "Sardines" by Mrs. Carolyn Draper Gilpatrick of this town. The performance took place last week in the Hotel Vendome Boston, and the members of the cast were from the Medford Woman's Club.

LEGION OFFICERS ELECTED

Nathan Thumim Leads Local Post For Second Year

The annual election of officers for Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, was held on last Thursday evening in the Legion home on Washington street. As a result of the balloting the following officers were returned for 1926:

Commander—Nathan Thumim
Vice Commander—Louis A. Price
Adjutant—Stanley W. Mobbs
Finance Officer—Andrew F. Anderson
Historian—William E. Ramsdell
Chaplain—Vincent P. Clarke
Athletic Officer—Charles N. Bacon
Executive Committee—George J. Barbano,

Daniel F. Lynch, William Rogers, Dr. Milton J. Quinn, Roy Nelson, Kenneth Hall, Arthur Harris, Arthur Mullen, Rowen Parker, George F. LeDue, G. Elliott Hunter, J. Leslie Johnston, Arthur Donaghey, Arthur Cameron, Robert Hamilton.

The newly elected officers were installed by Maj. William W. Wade of Woburn, County Commander of Middlesex District, American Legion. Interesting remarks on the work of the Veterans' Bureau were made by Dr. Melanson, a member of that organization who has recently come to make his home in Winchester. During the evening several new members were received into the Post, and the prospects for the coming year seem the best which the members have yet looked forward to.

Taxes, life insurance and the winter's coal bill all coming at once, but Mr. Brown is not worrying. He saves regularly for fixed expenses.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Who wouldn't be a bee, work three months in the summer, and loaf all winter living on honey. When all men are what they pretend to be, jails will be torn down, churches turned into storehouses and all the policemen will be driving pleasure cars.

There is a certain pride in long ancestry that is enjoyable, it surely is nice to be able to look back upon a noble life of men and women and think that you are one of them. In this modern democratic world of ours it happens to be the men that count. Living up to a good reputation is often as difficult as living down a bad one.

HOW TO USE POTATOES

The high price of potatoes this winter should make homemakers want to get every bit of food value out of each one says the Middlesex County Extension Service.

The amount of nutriment found in the cooked potatoes depends largely on the way they are prepared. By cooking them with the skins on, some of the most valuable parts of this vegetable are preserved. The mineral matter lies in a layer right next to the skin. When the skin is cut off and thrown away before cooking, good is lost and the cut surfaces let much more be dissolved in the water. By boiling the potatoes after they have been boiled nothing but the skin is removed.

Baking is the most desirable method of cooking potatoes. To get the best results they should be baked in a fairly hot oven until they are just tender. Then the skins should be broken to let the steam escape and thus prevent them from becoming soggy. If the potatoes are well rubbed before baking the skins may be eaten. Rubbing the potatoes with oil or fat before baking makes the skins more palatable.

Note in cold water or starting them to cook in cold water for by so doing vitamins and minerals are lost. Start the cooking in boiling water and as soon as the potatoes are done drain off the water immediately.

WHY EXCLUDE COASTING?

Mr. Editor: Will you kindly allow space in the Star for this item?

I wish to express the opinion of many of the young people of Winchester—we should like to have a coasting place.

In the summertime children have playgrounds, not far from their homes, where they can play in safety; the tennis enthusiasts have courts at Leonard and Palmer Fields to practice on; and the swimming fans have a beach provided for their pastime. At this time of the year those who love skating have the Palmer street rink flooded for their use.

Why not provide the lovers of coasting a safe place for their sport? It seems to us that this could be done at a very low expense.

Isn't it possible to close Mystic avenue, Winthrop street, or some other sloping street to traffic for several hours in the evening, or why not have a policeman direct traffic at dangerous intersections?

Coasting used to be a favorite winter sport but seems to be dying out as there is no place to enjoy it. The hills are now developed into streets making it unsafe for coasting.

OVER 100 TAKE PART

More than 100 students will take part in the annual mid-winter concert to be given by the musical clubs of Northeastern University at the Mechanics Building, Boston, on the evening of Friday, Jan. 15. The concert, which is followed by a dance, is staged entirely by student organizations, and is one of the most largely attended social events of the year at Northeastern.

A concert orchestra of 40 pieces will play selections from the lighter classical music. The Glee Club and the Banjo Club will offer as their part of the program a group of college songs and popular selections, while the student Dance Orchestra will furnish music for the dancing as well as several specialty numbers on the concert program. The clubs have been rehearsing regularly for some time, and though this is their first public concert this year, they have already been heard at several student gatherings. Professor H. S. Winkler and Mr. A. E. Whittaker of the Northeastern faculty have been directing their work.

WINCHESTER WON FROM READING

Winchester High evened its standing in the Middlesex Basketball League when it defeated Reading High School in the High School gymnasium Wednesday afternoon, the score being 27 to 24.

The game was exciting as the closeness of the score would indicate, but was hardly a good exhibition of basketball both teams being a bit too inclined to rough it and being allowed to get away with plenty by Referee Sanborn. Neither team had much of an edge, the score at half time standing 13 to 12 in favor of the visitors. In the second half Winchester showed a decided improvement and outplayed their opponents, deserving to win but being right up to the final whistle, none too sure of the issue. The locals on the whole looked much better than they did against Belmont, and with more competition under their belts should be able to more than hold their own with the other clubs of the circuit.

One thing which must look up is the tendency toward loose shooting. At present Capt. Roll and "Nicky" Fitzgerald are the only members of the quintet who draw a good bead on the hoop. Many of the attempts at goals on Wednesday did not even hit the backboard. The team play against Reading was the best which the boys have shown to date.

Between the halves of the first team game the High School second team was defeated by the Reading seconds, 14 to 12.

WINCHESTER FAVORS NEW ROUTE

The secretary representing the Winchester Chamber of Commerce went on record Wednesday before the Metropolitan committee of the legislature in favor of the Circumferential route as laid out by the Metropolitan Planning Division, in bill 134 before the legislature.

This bill proposes to take one million dollars from motor fees and one million dollars from the Metropolitan Shore below Scituate.

This necessitates the building of a short stretch through the Lynn Woods to connect up with the Middlesex Fells Parkway. It is proposed to use the Mystic Valley Parkway from Medford to Massachusetts avenue and build a connecting link from there to the fresh pond boulevard over land owned by the Commonwealth. It is then necessary to build only a very short connecting link from the Stony Brook Parkway in Readville to carry the Boulevard as far as the Blue Hills.

It is then proposed to carry this Boulevard right through the Blue Hills to Braintree, or use Blue Hill avenue and cut a new road along the South side of the reservation. There seems to be no opposition to this proposed completion of the circumferential route as outlined.

Nathaniel M. Nichols, Secretary of Winchester Chamber of Commerce.

WINCHESTER COUNTRY DAY NOTES

Last Friday the Browne and Nichols juniors came to Winchester for an informal hockey contest. Three twenty minute periods resulted in a 0 to 0 tie. Roland Sherman and Bob Smith starred for the visitors. The Country Day played Bobbie Warren, Bunky Crafts and Johnnie Chadwick in its forward line. Hup Wallis, Gardner Cushman at defense and Jackie Pave in goal. Russ Billman and Hayden Estey also got into the game.

Coasting and tobogganing are popular, and hockey is played every day on the new rink at the school which is in excellent shape.

Jackie Page of Everett avenue has enrolled at the school and is doing intensive work preparing for Milton Academy.

Junior Goodale's entrance has been delayed owing to a slight illness.

LUNCHEON IN HONOR OF MRS. PLEASANTINE C. WILSON

The Room Committee announces a luncheon on Wednesday, Jan. 27, at 1 p. m. in the Fortnightly Hall, Mrs. Pleasantine C. Wilson, a founder, past president and honor member of the Fortnightly will be the guest of honor. A social hour and bridge will follow the luncheon.

Since the number of tickets is limited, and many have already been spoken for, those wishing to attend should make reservations early, applying to Mrs. Woodsie, tel. 0323, or to any member of the Room Committee.

The Room Committee also announces a White Elephant Rummage Sale for an early date in the Spring, and urges all club members to put aside any articles they are willing to spare for the benefit of our Fortnightly Home.

MASSACHUSETTS NEEDS A NEW STATE PRISON

To the Editor of the Star:

I have recently been requested to present again in the Legislature a bill for the appointment of a commission to build a new State Prison.

I have already sponsored such a bill for three successive years in the Legislature. I have argued in favor of it for three successive years before the Joint Committee on Public Institutions, to whom the bill was referred and as a member of the Senate I argued in its favor on the floor of the Senate in opposition to the report of that committee.

In order that every one might become familiar with the real situation at Charlestown and what might be done to better it, I have called the matter to the attention of the press throughout the State and have circulated to a selected list of business men of Massachusetts 20,000 copies of a pamphlet discussing this question and suggesting how conditions might be remedied to the financial advantage of the Commonwealth as well as for humanitarian and education reasons. For three years I have given all of the time that I could possibly spare from my other interests, and through newspaper advertising and the distribution of pamphlets have expended a substantial sum of my own money, in order, if possible, to create a public interest that might be reected in the Legislature.

I have spoken before many gatherings of men and women. In every instance, so far as I could observe, these gatherings were in entire sympathy with my presentation of the case and in some instances resolutions were passed requesting the Legislature to act.

The bill which I introduced for three successive years was last year presented to the House as Bill Number 222. The records show that the Committee reported "Next Annual Session." The vote "Next Annual Session" may mean, first, that the subject requires more careful consideration and it ought to go over to another Legislature in order that the Committee may take further time for deliberation; or, secondly, it may be a more polite way to dispose of it than to say "Ought not to pass."

If the members of the Legislature care to pay attention to what seems to be public sentiment on any question, it seems to me that they have never had a better opportunity to judge of public sentiment than with reference to this case, for I laid before the committee last winter more than thirty editorials from the leading papers in this state advising immediate action; and so far as I know there was not a single editorial in any paper in the state which was opposed to it.

I will not attempt to repeat the arguments which I have presented from time to time. They are to be found in brief form in the pamphlet referred to above, (which I circulated throughout the State last year), copies of which still may be had on application.

Governor Fuller in his recent business-like message to the Legislature says:

"Prompt, vigorous and effective prosecution would speedily make crime less prevalent. Apprehension of the criminal must be certain; prosecution must be inevitable; and adequate punishment must promptly follow if the criminal law is to be restored to the respect of the people and made effective for their protection."

"The doctrine has been preached far and wide that when a crime is committed the thing to do is to try to reform the wrongdoer rather than to inflict punishment for crime. It is punishment for the crime—swift and sure—that is the best protection for society. If during that process reform takes place, well and good, and I believe it is more likely to take place under those conditions than through coddling and sympathy."

I am in complete and hearty sympathy with these ideas. Again he says:

"A rational and constructive building program should be adopted by the Commonwealth."

And again in my judgment he is sound. Any corporation that neglects its plant by withholding capital and expenditures as the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has done in the last 10 or 15 years would be headed toward the rocks.

Let it be determined as early as possible what buildings need to be constructed, in the next ten years, for instance, in order that the business of the Commonwealth may be carried on effectively and economically. Decide how much should be done each year and begin immediately to do something, and in time we will get where we ought to be. If after such examination and plans have been made the State Prison ought to come first, let that be begun. If it ought to come last, let the work on the others precede it, but let something be done this year and each succeeding year until we have completed a definite program.

Inasmuch as this bill has been before the Legislature for three successive years and inasmuch as there are at least two members of the Legislature who signed a report in 1921 more condemnatory in its character than anything I have ever dared to say—for in it I find this sentence: "No human being is bad enough to deserve confinement in such a place or dangerous enough to need it"—there is only one conclusion to be drawn, that the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts thinks such a bill ought not to pass.

Any member of the House who may be interested can call this up in the present year, and it will again be referred to the proper committee for consideration.

President Hopkins has requested me to act as chairman of a committee to plan, build, equip, and find a method for financing a much needed new Library Building at Dartmouth College, and I feel that such time as I can spare from my personal affairs must be given to that work. There-

WINCHESTER FIREMEN ELECT

The annual meeting of the Winchester Firemen's Relief Association was held on Monday evening at the Central Fire Station. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—John McCarron
Vice President—John Gorman
Secretary—Robert Scanlon
Treasurer—E. S. Flaherty

Directors—John Flaherty, Combination 1; John Hanlon, Engine 1; Edward D. Fitzgerald, Engine 11; Harry E. Brown, Ladder 1. The Fireman's Ball will be held this year on Friday evening, Feb. 5, in the Town Hall. This event, always one of the red letter nights of the winter season, is to be, according to all reports, better than ever before, if such a thing is possible, and another capacity crowd is expected to attend. As usual provisions have been made to ensure everyone a good time, a splendid entertainment program having been arranged especially for those not interested in dancing. Leo Daley's Orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music for the evening which announcement in itself is enough to awaken unusual interest.

The various committees for the affair which have been hard at work on the arrangements include the following:

Dall—E. S. Flaherty
Printing—A. W. MacKenzie, E. G. Beaton, J. Gorman
Music—E. D. Fitzgerald, J. J. Flaherty, J. Hanlon
Entertainment—J. Gorman, A. W. MacKenzie, George R. Nowell, E. S. Flaherty, Edward Fitzgerald
Reception—F. Duffy, R. S. Scanlon, H. Sherry, J. E. Noonan, H. E. Brown

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Children between the ages of seven and 14 years are earnestly requested to attend a "Patriotic meeting" which will be held on Sunday, Jan. 17, at 3 o'clock in the Baptist Church vestry. Mrs. M. E. Ricker, State superintendent of children's work will be the speaker. Parents are urged to have their children attend this worth-while meeting.

Richard H. Scott, president of the great Reo Motor Car Company at Lansing, Mich., challenges specific attention to one phase of prohibition. He says, "I have found that prohibition and the automobile are as closely related as the auto and gasoline. A drinking America could not have bought 2,427,000 motor vehicles purchased in 1924. The significance of prohibition as an essential to the auto industry is emphasized by the highway accident rate. The number of drivers' licenses revoked for intoxication suggests where the blame for some of these accidents must be placed. With open saloons selling intoxicants to all comers, we would have to multiply this terrific total to an unbelievable figure. The drinker, whether driver or pedestrian, is a menace to the public as well as to himself. For the sake of the safety of the people as well as for the continuance of the prosperity of the auto trade, with which is bound up the prosperity of the nation, prohibition must continue and must be enforced. Nothing but prohibition enforced can make the automobile safe for America."

From "The Baptist" we have the following: "Among the surprising results of a prohibition law which is a 'failure' is the closing up of notorious drinking resorts in the great American cities, places known the Sometimes we speak of a rich man's son having been born with a silver spoon in his mouth. That expression originated more than 500 years ago, when it was the fashion for wealthy godfathers to present their newly christened godchildren with a silver spoon. These were regarded by the parents as actual wealth, for, like all silver, they could always be melted down into money.

Expression's Origin

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

A Winchester young woman has just written a very interesting essay taking for her theme Christmas and New Year's cards. The former are far more numerous. But some Winchesterites send out Christmas cards by the score, while their greetings of the New Year are confined solely to those whom they hold in very deep regards. A relative who is advanced in years, a friend on some distant point of the planet, someone endeared to the writer by a hundred memories of auld lang syne is a recipient of a New Year's missive.

Holiday seasons may be viewed from a number of angles. A certain gentleman here in Winchester is a most worthy individual, but slightly given to grumbling. Three weeks of December found him rushed with work, then he had to ride a long distance to join his family on Christmas Eve, and on the day after Christmas he had to rise early to catch a train and be at his office in Boston to meet a client. This Winchesterite, by the way, is an excellent lawyer, and his clients make allowance for growls over being worked so hard. But in looking over an account of old-time Christmas customs, he read that in medieval England winter frolics began at St. Martin's Day, early in November, and lasted until Twelfth Night. There could be, it occurred to him, too much of a good thing. Nearly seven weeks of games and merry-making, parades singing at all hours of the night, festival crowds intruding into houses, on with the dance and let the joy be unconfined. There are many who at 14 could stand this fairly well, but there are many who at 40 would get sorely tired of it. Reader, knowest thou not some who can go out in burlesque attire on Halloween and at least half believe that it amuses them, who would be indescribably bored with a week or two of such performance? This Winchester barrister yawned at the very thought of a long round of jokes by the oldest inhabitant, stories of ancient doings by women of 95 whose faculties had been seriously impaired for at least 40 years, songs beginning at sundown and lasting till near the dawn, pastimes long drawn out simply because the players knew not what to do with themselves. It is better, he reasoned, to bear the ills we have than fly to others that we know not of.

Artemus Ward early and impressively wrote: "I hope they pay particular tushen to spell in these schools because if a man can't spell well he's no count." Counsel to the same purpose was given to the children of "The Spectator's" day. Sometimes it was heeded and sometimes it was wasted. We have known a reporter with ability in gathering news to be ridiculed for mistakes in spelling. But the most impressive address on orthography we ever heard came with-in a fortnight. A veteran compositor told "The Spectator" that he was at one time a resident of an old town that prides itself on its families of long descent. It was taken for granted that everybody knows something about pedigree, and that whether a prominent citizen is the great grandson or great-grand nephew of a Governor of Franklin's time will be a matter of general information. To proceed to the narrative—in this good old town a citizen imbibed indiscreetly and his jollity got him into jail—likewise was the prisoner's case one of publicity. After his release he went to the office of a local newspaper and raised a gigantic row because his name had been incorrectly spelled. It would not have been safe to court further trouble with the magistrate, but the long suffering editor bore with his protests or passed him along to the foreman.

Dickens speaks of these "who can bear a great deal of pleasure," but there are good folks here in Winchester who cannot. To a portion of the race no work is so wearing, no study such a weariness of the flesh as a game which has ceased to amuse or a funny story which has lost its point. Anyone who has found real pleasure in reading, observing nature or thinking is likely to be desperately bored by those Winchesterites who go through a routine of so-called amusement merely because others do so or because they cannot think of anything else to do. On the whole, "The Spectator" inclines to the opinion that he would rather endure the rush of the twentieth century than the merri-ment of the good old days.

With firmness, like that of a mature character, a maiden of sweet 16 declared: "I've been an angel twice, and I won't be an angel any more." This calls for an explanation. She had taken the part of an angel in two Christmas festivals and did not want to go through any more rehearsals.

—The Spectator

HOPE, A SOUL PRESERVATIVE

(Written for The Winchester Star)

O might we but the evil trust
For what it holds in secret hiding—
Good not forgotten of the dust,
Not nobly born, of God's providing.
None like the false can venerate
The honest Truth for being true;
And still the wrong the wrong be great,
Draws hope from what the Right can do.
Courage, my heart! Though evil things
Be round thee like an ocean swelling;
To thee no ill the evil brings.
Nor to try happy truth-bound dwelling!
One hypocrite thrust down another:
Still from the first our world hath seen
And the poor child of lust or spleen Corrupt in Truth his erring brother.
Ill hath no kingdom of its own,
No church and no common table;
A bubble is its only throne,
Can only beat each other down.
What need we fear through tumult rolls
And wicked men are mischievous making?
Come, patient Hope! preserve our souls—
We give thy hand a hearty shaking.

DISCUSSES REAL ESTATE CONDITIONS

President Gleason of E. T. Harrington Company Believes Homes Will Be High This Spring

There has been a slowing up of home building operations during the last few months and the spring will find a scarcity of houses. As the law of supply and demand governs prices, I can see no reason why homes will not be as high this coming spring as in the last three years.

Labor, which comprises 90 per cent of the cost of a house, is not going to accept lower wages. Usually it is possible to employ unskilled labor during the winter at lower rates than the other eight months of the year. It has not been true this season. The labor unions govern skilled labor and one can't expect a change without a struggle. Labor will not relinquish its present living conditions and I can see no reason why one should wish it to.

Business conditions all through New England are on the upward trend. Our mills and factories are much busier than they have been in three or four years. The banks that have been withholding loans on real estate hitherto have begun to look around for loans. With a knowledge of the fact that general conditions throughout the country have never been more prosperous, I believe 1926 will be one of the best years we have ever experienced.

One can hardly realize the effect of the exodus to Florida of the great numbers of real estate operators and investors. A great many people put their money in Florida instead of into a home in this State and greatly checked the activity here. It appears to me that a great deal of the land selling in Florida has been conducted on pyramidical sales—not a healthy growth.

There is every indication that the great playground of Massachusetts—Cape Cod, is going to experience a boom which will reflect benefit on the rest of the State. The same thing is taking place in almost every State in the Union. Certain choice locations in all States are being brought to the public eye. Alabama, North Carolina and even Texas are launching such movements.

All these booms cannot but help to be beneficial to our country as a whole. Yet will notice what becomes of our surroundings the minute our old roads become State roads and traffic starts through.

Boston has at last awakened to a realization that our narrow crooked streets, at one time our pride because of their association with our country's history, are harmful. We are now going to have wide arteries giving Metropolitan Boston easy access to the centre of our city. The change is bound to have an effect on valuations which will mean more beautiful buildings and greater prosperity.

We cannot stand still. We must either go ahead or fall behind. It is good judgment to make those provisions which will keep us going ahead.

WINCHESTER GIRLS OPEN TODAY

Winchester High School girls' basketball team will play its first league game of the season this afternoon in the high school gymnasium when it will meet the girls from Watertown High. Game will start at 3 p. m. The locals will probably line up with "Kay" Valleley and "Vin" Rollo at the forwards, "Kay" Carlisle, jumping center, Margaret Stevens, center, and Captain "Dot" Bond and "Kay" Shultis, guards.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk by Jeannette Anna Higgins of 9 Penn avenue, Somerville and Ralph Dexter Larson of 979 Main street and by James Violante of 575 River street, Mattapan and Hilda Intinarello of 69 Florence street.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Keyes of 39 Lloyd street are the parents of a daughter Mary Stowell, born Jan. 6 at the Winchester Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Carroll of Russell road are the parents of a daughter, born Jan. 8 at the Winchester Hospital.

Expected Gifts Listed

In China, a betrothal takes the form of a bridal contract, and a category of expected wedding presents is solemnly inserted in the contract that binds the engagement; but the Chinese would very much resent having this stipulation considered a "price." In Japan, it is the custom for the bride to give gifts to the bridegroom's family—and there are many other interesting forms of intra-marital exchange of presents.

THE LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

Mr. Palfrey Perkins of Weston, gave a talk upon "Some Women of the Bible" at the meeting of the Society on Jan. 12.

The guest of honor at the luncheon was Mrs. John T. Wilson, a former President of the Ladies' Friendly, who was warmly welcomed by all her old friends. The luncheon, a very delicious one, was in charge of Mrs. E. S. Mansfield, Chairman and Miss Mary W. Studley, sub-chairman.

Among the names of lecturers in the Boston Public Library Lecture course for this season appears the name of Mrs. Alonzo F. Woodside of this town. Mrs. Woodside's subject being "Scandinavian Writers."

TO THE BOARD OF SELECTMEN OF THE TOWN OF WINCHESTER: The undersigned respectfully petitions for a license to keep, store and sell
GASOLINE
1000 gallons in the public garage; 2000 gallons for outside filling station, which garage and tank is to be located on the land in said Winchester situated on Main Street and numbered 662-672 thereon, as shown upon the plan filed herewith and certifies that the names and addresses of all owners of record of land abutting the premises are as follows:

Thomas Quigley, Snafford Street, Newburyport; Margaret J. Nauffts, 658 Main Street, Winchester; Elin J. Nelson, 62 Vine Street, Winchester; Alma G. Nelson, 58 Vine Street, Winchester; Willis O. Blaisdell, 1 Lewis Road, Winchester.

ALBERT T. STUART
256 Centre Street, Newton
Town of Winchester, in Board of Selectmen, Jan. 4, 1926. On the foregoing petition it is hereby ORDERED, That notice be given by the petitioner to all persons interested, that this Board will on Monday, the 25th day of January 1926, at 7:40 o'clock P. M., in the Selectmen's Room in the Town Hall Building, consider the expediency of granting the prayer of said petition when any person objecting thereto may appear and be heard; said notice to be given by publishing a copy thereof, with this order of notice thereon, once in each week for two successive weeks in the Winchester Star, the first publication to be at least fourteen days before such hearing and by mailing copies of the same at least fourteen days before said hearing, by prepaid registered mail to every owner of record of each parcel of land abutting on the said parcel of land.
A true copy.

MR. JAMES W. RUSSELL

The Board of Directors of the Winchester Trust Company at its meeting held Jan. 20 passed the following resolution:

Mr. James W. Russell, our senior vice president whose death occurred on Dec. 22, 1925, was officially connected with this bank and its predecessor, the Middlesex County National Bank, from the very beginning of the institution. He was made a member of the first board of directors on April 28, 1897, and became vice president on Feb. 11, 1901, serving continuously and faithfully in both capacities to the time of his death. His long unbroken service as director for nearly 29 years has been equaled by only one other member.

Mr. Russell by nature was retiring and not inclined to unnecessary speak, but when he expressed an opinion, it always carried great weight, because it was recognized as the sound judgment of one whose counsel was never given hastily, whose experience in business had been long and successful and whose character and integrity were never doubted. We regret and mourn his loss. Therefore be it unanimously resolved: That the statement which has just been read be adopted by the Board of Directors, made a part of the permanent records of the Bank, and that copies thereof and of this resolution be sent by the clerk to Mr. James W. Russell, Mrs. Alfred H. Hildreth, Mr. Fred A. Russell, Mr. James W. Russell, and Mrs. George A. Rivinius and to the press.

JOHN PATRICK ALLEN

John Patrick Allen, aged 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Allen of Loring avenue passed away Sunday afternoon at his home following a week's illness with pneumonia. The young man was born in Woburn and had a host of friends in that city where he attended school and had spent his life until two months ago when he came with his parents to make his home in Winchester. Surviving, besides his father and mother, are two sisters, May and Abbie Allen, and six brothers, Charles, James, Robert, Thomas, Henry and Francis Allen all of this town.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday morning with a High Mass of Requiem celebrated in St. Mary's Church by the Rev. Fr. Hugh Doyle of St. Charles Church, Woburn. Robert Kelley, Charles Egan, Joseph McGuerty, Charles Martin, Eldredge Buffin, George Devin and Daniel McElheney of Woburn and John Mawn of Winchester, the last three named, cousins of the deceased, acted as bearers. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, East Woburn.

CATHERINE A. LORING

Mrs. Catherine A. Loring, formerly for many years a resident of Woburn, passed away on Monday morning at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. John J. Dineen of 47 Chester street, Winchester. Mrs. Loring was 78 years old and a native of Montvale where most of her life had been spent and where she was well known. She was the daughter of Patrick and Mary McKenna. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. William H. Gibbons of Montvale; three brothers, John McKenna of Stoneham, Philip McKenna of Montvale and James McKenna of Woburn, and seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Funeral services were held at 8:30 on Wednesday morning from the home of Mrs. Loring's granddaughter, followed by a High Mass of Requiem in St. Mary's Church. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Montvale.

Mr. Lars Sandberg of Brown University has a case of water on the knee, the result of an injury received while skiing. He has been laid up for a fortnight or more, and returned to College this week.

HIGH SCHOOL ACTORS PRESENT "LIGHTNIN'"

A large audience was present last Saturday evening in the Town Hall for the annual "Class Play" given by the Senior and Junior Classes of the Winchester High School. This year's production was the three-act comedy, "Lightnin'", by Winchell Smith and Frank Bacon, a play which had enjoyed tremendous popularity upon the professional stage and though many were a bit skeptical of its presentation by a high school cast, the consensus of opinion after the show was that the young actors had done very well with their not too easy assignment.

The plot centers about the character, Old Bill Jones, known by everyone as "Lightnin'" for the same reason a 220 pound football lineman is usually called "Babe". "Lightnin'", a whimsical, altogether lovable though shiftless and lazy old fellow, is not a model provider, but is possessed of certain admirable qualities which endeared him to his friends despite his shortcomings. His wife runs a hotel on the boundary line of Nevada and California which, because of the fact that part of the building lies in each state, is a Mecca for divorcees since a six month's residence can be established without going from beneath its roof. The hotel becomes the center of much trouble when two adventurers arrive in town to push a law suit over the purchase of some timber land against one John Marvin, a young man for whom "Lightnin'" has the greatest affection. In the course of events the two first named attempt to come into possession of the hotel but are blocked by the refusal of "Lightnin'" to sign the release. His refusal is played up until divorce proceedings are instituted by his wife while the same trouble estranges John Marvin and Bill's stepdaughter, Mildred. The final untangling of the knot and the reconciliation of "Lightnin'" and his wife and John Marvin and Mildred provides a human story which is crowded with action, pathos and good wholesome fun.

The parts were well taken. Probably the largest cast ever to participate in a Class Play took part in last Saturday's production and even to the minor characters, the young actors gave a commendable performance. The principal parts of "Lightnin'" Bill and his wife were very well portrayed by Gilbert Hook and Sally Brooks, their work in the court scene being among the best bits of acting seen in a high school play for some little time. Some particularly clever character work was done by Imelda Mobbs and Harold Johnson in the parts of Margaret Davis and Judge Lemuel Townsend. Their comedy work in the hotel lobby was immense. George Bartlett as John Marvin and Betty Sweetser as Mildred Buckley also stood out. The more minor characters were capably handled by Helen Fleming, Virginia Hunkins, Elizabeth Woodbury, Mary Carr, Cecile de Coriols, Alice O'Leary, Emily Wormelle, Temple Newell, John Harriman, Francis McCauley, James Hall, James Halwartz, Charles McCormack, Thad Smith, Daniel Dennett, Donald Higgins and Charles Cassidy. Especial mention should be made of the fact that Mary Carr made her appearance as Mrs. Moore with but one rehearsal, having substituted for Dorothy Brown who was unable to appear because of illness.

Between the acts the winners of the ticket competition were announced as follows: 1st, Kezar Nichols; 2nd, Edward Woodbury; 3rd, Dorothy Friend. Candy was sold by Margaret Newman, Margaret Stevens, Ella Howlett, Wilhelmina Simmons, Linda Foster, Ruth Hollins, Eleanor Healey, Florence Watters, Virginia Tompkins and Bara Baugher. Floyd Robinson, Wilfred Prue, Kezar Nichols, Flavio Rolli, Charles O'Donnell, Ronald Simonds, Clarence Chamberland, Donald Hight, Harry Benson, Lemert Clark, Arthur Downer, Richard Murphy, Howard Ambrose and Russell Kendrick were ushers. Nicholas Fitzgerald was head usher.

"Lightnin'" was coached and staged under the personal direction of Alice Eudora Chapman who has achieved such success with past high school productions. Miss Chapman was presented with a bouquet by her cast at the conclusion of the performance.

SALE OF GAS SHOWS GREAT EXPANSION

A notable expansion in the gas manufacturing industry of the United States in recent years is reflected in a report of the American Gas Association showing that 421,000,000 cubic feet of gas were sold in 1925 by various companies, an increase of 16,000,000,000 feet over 1924. Sales of gas in the last five years gained 100,000,000,000 cubic feet and in 10 years have more than doubled.

MISS BILLINGS' LAST LECTURE

The Washington Chapter of the Winchester Mothers' Association held another of its open meetings on Wednesday, Jan. 13, at the Second Congregational Church in the Highlands. After a brief business session, Mrs. Farrell presiding, the meeting was turned over to Miss Beatrice Billings of the Middlesex County Extension Service, who gave her fourth and final lecture on the general subject, "Food and Nutrition." These talks, given once every month since September, have been most interesting and profitable, and the sustained good attendance has been an evidence of the practical value the mothers and home keepers have placed upon these lectures. This course, as presented by Miss Billings, is very well planned; it leads from a general survey of the elements of nutrition, the kinds of food that should appear with frequent regularity every week on the home table, and the reasons why certain groups of foods are absolutely necessary to the health of the family, through the discussion of special problems in the feeding of the overweight, the under-weight and the constipated members of the household, and the overcoming of food prejudices; up to the final task of intelligent and practical meal planning and the making of balanced and wholesome menus. The work has furthermore, been made practical by the outlines and pamphlets which have been distributed at each lecture, the numerous recipes given out, the demonstration dishes brought in and served by members of the group and the informal discussions, questions and helpful suggestions with which each meeting has concluded.

It is because of the appropriation made by the Town of Winchester for County Aid to Agriculture (Town Report, page 294). That this lecturer, with all her bright personality, experience and wealth of material, has been secured by the Washington Chapter to give this helpful course. There are a number of other lectures, classes, and courses, equally practical and suitable for Mothers' meetings. Red Cross work, canning classes, etc., which are available through this same "County Aid" appropriation and by applying to Mr. Quinn, Superintendent of Schools who was appointed Chairman of this department.

The Washington Chapter wishes to express its appreciation of the kindness of the trustees of the Second Congregational Church in allowing the use of the Church auditorium for these lectures in the absence of any suitable assembly hall in the Washington School, this office has met a real need.

ANNUAL MEETING OF WINCHESTER TRUST COMPANY

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Winchester Trust Company held Wednesday evening, Jan. 20, the following officers and directors were elected:

Directors: Charles E. Barrett, Cutler B. Downer, Jere A. Downs, George A. Fernald, Freeland E. Hovey, Ralph E. Joslin, William L. Parsons, Fred L. Pattee, Frederic S. Snyder and Charles H. Symmes. Mr. Ralph E. Joslin was elected president, Mr. Freeland E. Hovey, vice-president, and Mr. Fred L. Pattee, vice-president. The other officers are Charles E. Barrett, treasurer and Helen M. Monroe, assistant treasurer.

This bank has had another prosperous year, making large gains in deposits and earnings. It now has a capital of $100,000 and surplus and undivided profits of over $120,000. Dividends were paid for the year 1925 at the rate of 10 per cent per annum.

Capt. and Mrs. Nelson H. Bearse of Watertown and Osterville on the Cape observed their 60th wedding anniversary at their home yesterday. Capt. Bearse, who is well known to many Winchester people as the proprietor of East Bay Lodge at Osterville, is brother to Mr. Percy A. Bearse of Warren street, this town.

Mrs. George H. Lochman has accepted the position of organist and choir director at the First Congregational Church, Woburn.

WINCHESTER AT STONEHAM

Winchester High will have a good chance to better its standing in the Middlesex Basketball League this evening when its team will hop over to Stoneham for a scuffle with Stoneham High. Thus far the locals have won from Reading while losing to Belmont for a percentage of .500. The last named schools are at present leading the circuit with two wins and a loss apiece and while there is scant possibility of Lexington's knocking Reading from the peak there is a chance that the locals may boost their stock in by a win over Stoneham which club has yet to take a game. Basketball is a new sport at Stoneham where the big noise in the winter time is hockey, yet several boys in its last season's net squad showed much promise and it is safe to say that in another year its game will be upon a much higher plane. Winchester's starting lineup is problematical, and whether Coach Mansfield will use the combination which went so well against Melrose or will revert to his former outfit is something which won't be settled much before game time.

BUILDING PERMITS

The Building Commissioner has granted permits for the week ending Thursday, Jan. 21 as follows: George A. Saltmarsh, Winchester, alteration to present garage at 156 Mt. Vernon street.
Ralph P. Sylvester, Winchester, new dwelling on Lot 76 Carter street.

WINCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

Large and Enthusiastic Gathering—Important Resolutions Passed

The Winchester High School Parent-Teacher Association held their monthly meeting Tuesday night in the High School Assembly Hall. The gathering was very large and from a practical and enthusiastic standpoint was certainly one of the most successful ever held by that organization. Mr. Robert F. Guild, president of the association, presided.

The first part of the evening's program was given over to a set of resolutions prepared by a committee consisting of Mr. William L. Parsons, chairman; Mrs. James W. Russell and Dr. W. H. Lowell. The resolutions were read by Mr. Parsons and explained by him in a most eloquent and comprehensible manner. While the resolutions, which are given below, might seem radical to some people, it was explained by Mr. Parsons that they were not made with the idea of any bad situation in the school, for it was the opinion of the committee that not in the past decade has the high school stood on such a high plane. The committee realized, he said, that there were too many outside interests taking up the attention of the pupils from their work in the school and the committee believed it was up to the parents to see that certain rules were laid down to more eminently fit the pupils for the work in the high school and in higher institutions of learning.

It should be stated that the following resolutions were concurred in by Mr. James J. Quinn, Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Wade L. Grindie, Principal of the high school and teachers in the high school. They were also unanimously accepted by vote of the members of the Association present.

Resolutions

We, the parents of pupils in the Winchester High School, desire to co-operate with the teachers in the interest of the school and in the education of our sons and daughters. Realizing that there are many outside interests tending to distract the attention of the pupils from their school work and to interfere with their educational training, and that the responsibility is on us to see that our sons and daughters in school are mentally alert and physically fit, with a serious attitude toward their school work, and believing that our united efforts will be more effective, we hereby resolve—

First: That systematic home study by the pupils, sufficient to master the work assigned, be encouraged and required. One-half hour of home study each school day is necessary.

Second: That no interruption of the period of home study be permitted; that long and unnecessary telephone conversations be especially disapproved.

Third: That social activities, including attendance at moving picture shows, be not permitted during any afternoon or evening next preceding a school day.

Fourth: That automobile driving and riding for pleasure be not allowed during any afternoon or evening next preceding a school day.

Fifth: That our sons and daughters be urged to obtain an adequate amount of sleep, which the doctors say is nine or 10 hours each night.

Sixth: That participation in supervised school athletics be encouraged.

Seventh: That the reading of books and magazines be supervised, in co-operation with the teachers, in order that only wholesome and beneficial material will be read.

Mr. Parsons said that it was the consensus of opinion among the teachers that two and one-half hours of home study each day was necessary.

It was voted that copies of the resolutions be printed and mailed to the parents of children in the High School and it was also voted that the President appoint a committee to carry out the last resolution on the reading of books and magazines.

Mr. William S. Packer in charge of the Committee on Prizes reported that he had obtained two members and that two more would shortly be added.

He thought there should be some important prize for those who do not do very well so that some inducement might be made towards improvement as they go on with their school studies.

The second part of the evening's program was taken over by Principal Grindie and Mr. Kyper of the teaching staff, with special reference to college requirements. There were class demonstrations by high school pupils in mathematics under Miss Palmer and in French under Miss Perham.

A very interesting part of the program was the reading of letters received from various graduates of the class of 1925 who had gone direct from the high school to different colleges. They included those from Dartmouth, Amherst, Wheaton, Vassar and Wellesley. The inquiry was sent out by officials of the school with the idea of determining if the high school preparatory work was sufficient to perform the college courses. There were personal talks by students from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Simmons and Harvard, all of class of 1925. All of the Collegians agreed that any scholar in the high school could with proper individual study enter college direct. It was brought out that 32 of last year's graduating class had gone direct from the high school to institutions of higher education.

The high school orchestra conducted by Miss Hagar, furnished music of highly entertaining and musical calibre.

Fireman Edward D. Fitzgerald has been selected to drive the new Ahrens-Fox pump which the local department recently acquired. "Fitz" had previously driven the ladder truck.

FREE MOVIES FOR CHILDREN SATURDAY

The North End Improvement Association has arranged to treat the children of its district to free "Movies" on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 23, in the Lincoln School Hall. It is announced that admission will be strictly by ticket, the same having been distributed by the teachers at the Lincoln, Noonan, Washington and St. Mary's Schools. Two shows are to be put on that all the young ticket holders may be accommodated. "Alice in Wonderland" and "Easy Street" featuring "Charlie" Chaplin are the films which have been selected as having a special appeal for youngsters and yet both may be enjoyed by grown-ups too at a third exhibition to be held in the evening, and to which children under 14 will not be admitted. A short business meeting of the North End Improvement Association will precede the evening show and will start promptly at 8 o'clock. Messrs. James J. Fitzgerald, Frank Randall and William Cleary are the committee in charge of arrangements.

LITERATURE AND LOCAL COLOR

Address Sunday Evening by Mr. Chidley

At the First Congregational Church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, Mr. Chidley will give a special introductory address, in his series of book reviews, on "Literature and Local Color." Mr. Chidley has given this address before several literary societies and it makes a good background from which to study modern fiction and non-fiction.

In the address Mr. Chidley will show how he tested the truth of the story told in a number of books by going to the place where the book was written and studying conditions. This investigation led him through a number of the countries of Europe and Asia Minor and up into Alaska.

The service will be in the vestry and the public is invited.

HEAVY FOG MONDAY

Winchester experienced one of the heaviest fogs of the year on Monday, particularly in the river valley and around the lakes. Even in the square it was impossible to see ahead any great distance and traffic moved slowly and with great care. Only one accident was reported during the day and that was of small consequence. Ross Whynot of 12 Bridge street, in turning his car on Church street backed into another machine, the resulting damage being slight.

During the evening's heavy storm several fires were blown at the Central Fire Station and police officers were notified to be on the watch for fires in the districts where the boxes were affected by the tie-up. Only one call came in during the night and that, sent in by officer Hogan, was for a burning wire at Cross and Main street. The Edison Company's repair crew was notified.

FIRE IN PUMP HOUSE

At 6 o'clock last evening the fire department was called out in answer to an alarm from box 42 for a fire at the Beggs & Cobb plant on Swanton street. The blaze was insignificant in a way, being in a detached house used as a "pump" house. Just what started the fire is not known, but it was extinguished with a line of water from the plant fire system, before any damage of consequence was done. Shortly after 8 o'clock the department answered a still alarm for a blaze in the bowling alleys in the Norris block on Main street run by Jerry Sullivan. This fire was in the boiler room and was extinguished without damage.

GEORGE GRIFFITH, JR.

George Griffith, Jr., 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Griffith of Quigley court, died early Wednesday morning, following an illness of three years. At the time he was first stricken with ill health the little boy had been a pupil in the third grade of the public school. Surviving are his father and mother, three brothers and two sisters. Funeral services were held this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock in the New Hope Baptist Church conducted by the Rev. William H. Smith, pastor. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

ON A HOUSEBOAT IN FLORIDA

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dreier sailed from New York Tuesday on the H. F. Alexander for Miami, where they were met by Clarence W. Barron, publisher of the Boston News Bureau and the Wall Street Journal, on whose houseboat they are to be guests for a couple of weeks or so. Before returning home they will also be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Willard Haven of Lexington, who are spending the winter at Naples, on the Gulf.

AFTERNOON TEA

Mrs. Fred C. Hersom of 41 Glen road gave a tea to about 40 of her friends on Tuesday afternoon of this week, to present Mrs. Ober E. Pride.

Mrs. Hersom was assisted by Mrs. Joseph W. Worthen, Mrs. Stafford Rogers, Miss Constance Lane, Mrs. W. Allan Wilde, Mrs. E. R. Glidden, and Mrs. Lyman E. Snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Pride have recently removed from Somerville to Winchester, and reside at 43 Glen road.

It is reported that Mr. John F. Cassidy, one of Winchester's veteran grocers, plans to retire from this business in the near future to devote his time to the field of Real Estate and Insurance.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL NOTES

Miss Jeanette Orr, the new dietitian, took up her work last Saturday. There were 18 babies born at the Hospital from Jan. 1 to Jan. 18, an average of one a day. At times, however, the babies seem to arrive more often. For instance, on Jan. 16, Miss O'Shea, the night supervisor and the two nurses of the Training School who were assigned to operating room duty, welcomed three babies between 3 o'clock and 7 o'clock Sunday morning.

A recent trip took a group of the older boys to the top of the Boston Custom House Tower where an interesting hour was spent in absorbing the geography of the port of Boston.

The long thaw has enlarged the school rink to almost four diameters, and a hard freeze is awaited for more fun.

The school recently enjoyed an interesting and helpful morning talk from Mr. Charles E. Fish of this town.

Last Saturday an afternoon of skating followed by a dinner party gave entertainment to several friends, teachers in greater Boston private schools.

The enrollment of the school has been growing slowly but steadily and promises to increase considerably with the opening of the new term, Feb. 1.

WINCHESTER GIRLS MEET WELLESLEY

The girls' basketball team from Wellesley High School will meet Coach Wheeler's charges on Tuesday afternoon in the local gymnasium. Winchester has been showing a steady improvement since early season, and against Lexington displayed a scoring ability which was better than anything seen in several seasons. While it will meet sterner opposition in the Wellesley team than was the case at Lexington, the local girls are confident of making a good showing against the visitors from the college town. Coach Wheeler will probably start the same combination which went so well against Lexington with "Kay" Vallery and "Vin" Rollo, forwards; "Kay" Carlisle, jumping center; Margaret Stevens, side center; and Capt. "Dot" Bond and "Kay" Shultis, guards. Manager Newman is trying to arrange a practise tilt for Monday afternoon with some strong club not represented in the Interscholastic League.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Carmine Luongo are the parents of a daughter, Caroline, born Jan. 9 at the residence 85 Swanton street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tebando are the parents of a son, Vincenzo, born Jan. 12 at their residence 52 Swanton street.

Mr. and Mrs. Axel Hallborg of 81 Loring avenue are the parents of a son, born Jan. 15 at the Winchester Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Joyce of 827 Main street are the parents of a daughter born Jan. 17 at the Winchester Hospital.

Isaac Budrea of this town with "Ned" Perry, local wizard of the keys at the piano is taking part in the Fiddlers' Contest being run in connection with the old time dancing parties at the Elks' Home in Medford.

DANCING PARTY

Social Night at the Emblem Club generally means a "wonderful night" and the dancing party scheduled for Friday evening, Jan. 29, in Lyceum Hall is expected to be the banner social of the season.

The affair, in charge of three of the Club's best entertainers, Mrs. Ethel Horn, Mrs. Gertrude Horn and Mrs. Emma Cullen is being planned to attract all lovers of the terpsichorean art, ladies and gentlemen, old or young. An orchestra will furnish the jazz music so relished by the younger set; and there will also be a side line of old-time music for lovers of the dreamy waltz, the schottische and reel. A demonstration of some of the latest dance fads will feature the entertainment program, and several child dancers will endeavor to please those who go just to look on. Admission tickets may be obtained from any of the committee in charge and at the door, that evening. Remember, there will be a good time for all.

The group of 31 who attended the luncheon whist, sponsored by Vice-President Anna W. Lochman, were so charmed with the affair that they vow to repeat the program next year. The very dainty luncheon, served at the Food Demonstration Shop on Boylston street, Boston, appealed to all. Whist favors were awarded to Mrs. M. J. McKeon, Mrs. Scully, Mrs. Scott Simonds, Mrs. Lilla B. Green, Mrs. Ervine Johnson, Miss Ohlman and Mrs. Mahoney.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TEA

The Intercollegiate Tea was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Ramsdell, 3 Lakeview road, Jan. 15. There were about 100 present. The President of the Mt. Holyoke Club, Mrs. Greene, introduced the speaker Miss Mary E. Woolley President of Mt. Holyoke College, who gave us an interesting talk on the Institute of Pacific Relations" which she attended in Honolulu last June. This institute consists of members from the U. S. A., Canada, China, Australia and other lands on the Pacific Ocean. Here they discuss their problems international and otherwise. After the talk tea was served.

CHAMBERLAND TO LEAD HIGH SCHOOL NINE

At a meeting of the letter men in baseball held at the Winchester High School last week Clarence "Nip" Chamberland was elected to lead the school nine on the diamond next spring, succeeding Frank Melly who was graduated in June. Chamberland should make a good captain as he is one of the outstanding performers at the local institution. Last season he played both well at both positions in the outfield, doing well at both positions. During the past summer he showed some nice ball as a member of the Winchester Town Team and of the Riley Club in the Woburn Sandlot League. Good Luck, Nip.

WINCHESTER YOUNG MAN HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Mr. John Boyle of Oak street, well known employee of Randall the Caterer had a narrow escape from serious injury early Sunday morning when his Ford touring car was in collision with a Hudson coach, operated by an Everett party, on Winthrop street in Medford.

Mr. Boyle who had been spending the evening with friends was driving two young men, members of the party, back to their dormitory at Tufts College and was headed for Medford Hillside along Winthrop street when he met a large auto bus which was going toward Winthrop Square. Just before the two cars came abreast of each other the Hudson swung from behind the bus directly into the path of Mr. Boyle's machine. The latter attempted to swing his car so as to avoid the collision, but was unsuccessful, the Hudson striking his Ford's rear end with terrific force, knocking the smaller vehicle some little distance across the sidewalk. Fortunately no one in either machine was injured but both cars were badly wrecked. Mr. Boyle made his way on foot to Winthrop Square where he was picked up and brought to Winchester by Fireman James Callahan of the local department.

Later both young men with Mr. Roy Nowell of the Winchester Ford Service Station returned to the scene of the accident and towed Mr. Boyle's car to Winchester. The Hudson was removed by a wrecking crane from Everett.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Regular meeting of the Fortnightly will be held on Monday, Jan. 25, at 2:30 o'clock in the Town Hall.

Hazel Chandler Parks will be the entertainer and will read two one-act plays—Fleurette and Company and Hardy Perennials, and will give a miscellaneous number. Mrs. Parks comes to us from Belmont. Her personal charm and dramatic ability appeal to her audiences. In an effective manner she shows her power of interpreting characters of various types.

The Music Committee is happy to announce that Mrs. Charles H. Mason, our own club member and Mrs. Albert V. Lally of Belmont are to sing for the Fortnightly Monday.

Tea will be served by the Social and Hospitality committees under the direction of Mrs. C. A. Batchelder, chairman.

Luncheon in Honor of Mrs. Pleasantine C. Wilson

The Room Committee are expecting a large attendance at the Luncheon-Bridge party to be held in the Fortnightly Hall on Wednesday, Jan. 27, at 1 o'clock. Several out of town guests are expected, among them Mrs. Electa M. Sherman, a past president of this club and Mrs. Inez M. Holcombe, one of our honorary members. The luncheon is in charge of Mrs. R. E. Carlisle and Mrs. Ernest Keepers. For tickets phone Mrs. Keepers 0911-M.

Social Committee

Feb. 11, Thursday—Auction Bridge given by the Social Committee at Fortnightly Hall at 2 p. m. sharp. Tickets 75 cents each may be obtained from Mrs. C. A. Batchelder 0826-W or any member of the Social Committee.

Legislative Committee

The Legislative Committee announces that the Legislative Conference for this district will be on Tuesday, Feb. 2 in Auditorium Ball Room, Malden.—The Old and New, of Malden, acting as hostess.

The bills that the Federation endorses for study and action at the mid-winter meeting of the Federation, Feb. 16 will be presented and explained by experts at this conference. A large attendance from this club is particularly requested. For further information, telephone Mrs. Ashley Hayden, 0864-W.

At the business meeting, Jan. 25, Mrs. Helen I. Fessenden, Counselor of Legislation in this district, will give a short talk on the state and federal bills endorsed by the Federation. The Parliamentary Law Class has extended its course for four more weekly lessons, beginning Jan. 28. This class is planning a "luncheon bridge" to be held Friday, March 5, in the Fortnightly Room.

Membership Committee

An item of interest comes from Mrs. Mary E. Siedhof, Chairman of the membership committee, that one of the founders of our club, Mrs. Ellen E. Manny, for many years a resident of this town but now of Lexington, has very recently celebrated her 100th birthday and is in very good health.

Hospitality Committee

Mrs. Mary D. Wadsworth, chairman of the hospitality committee announces that the following have been added to her committee, Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth, Mrs. George Heintz and Mrs. L. L. G. DeRochemont.

TWO ANNIVERSARIES

Dean Charles R. Brown of Yale College who will deliver the address at the 85th Anniversary of the First Congregational Church and Dr. Childley's Tenth Anniversary as its pastor, to be held in the Town Hall Tuesday evening, Feb. 2, is a most impressive speaker and is considered one of the foremost orators of our day. It is safe to say that the Town Hall will be filled to capacity.

The Customer Who Comes Back

The customer who happens upon our candy casually for the first time, but who returns again and again because he has found what he wants, is our very best advertisement. The faces of most of these customers are familiar to us. They present themselves so often and so regularly that we can't help remembering them, even though their names may be unknown to us. It's not long before we even associate their preferences in our stock with their faces. Don't you want to sample candy that will satisfy the way Clara Catherine satisfies these fine customers?

WINCHESTER LOST TO WAKEFIELD

Wakefield High School's basketball team defeated Winchester High last Friday evening 22-15 in the High School gymnasium.

The game did not affect Winchester's league standing, and possibly this had something to do with the lackadaisical attitude which cropped out in the locals' play at times. It appears as though the boys either didn't give the proverbial hoot about the issue or were dead on their feet.

During much of the game the battle was close though Wakefield showed by far the better team work. In fact Winchester did not show much of anything resembling combination play and many of its shots at the hoop were away wide of the mark. Probably the team play of the locals suffered because of the fact that three first string players had been unable to practice much of any during the week because of participation in the Class Play. At all events Winchester was outclassed by Wakefield last Friday, yet on form the boys should have been able to more than hold their own.

Presport, the visiting right forward just about decided the issue for his team by caging five goals from the floor and two from free tries for a total of 12 points, just twice as many as any of the locals was able to amass. Captain Rolli was his team's individual star with Knowlton showing a good game in the back court.

The clubs were deadlocked with 10 points apiece at the half, but there after the passing game of the visitors began to tell and they ran up seven points to none at all for Winchester in the third quarter. Both teams added an even five during the final period but there was no questioning Wakefield's superiority.

The score:
WINCHESTER
Presport, rg. 12; Knowlton, lg. 10; Harriman, Dulong, lg. 10; Johnson, Horrixan, c. 10; Fitzgerald, McMaister, c. 10; McCauley, Talbot, rg. 10; Hale, Dutton, lg. 10; Rolli, c. 10.
Score—Wakefield 22; Winchester 15. Goals from the floor, Presport 5, Horrixan, Talbot, Dutton, Rolli 2; Kendrick 2; Hale, Knowlton. Goals from free tries, Presport 2, Dutton 3, Horrixan, Rolli 2, Fitzgerald. Referee, Davis. Timer, Cassidy. Scorer, Murphy. Time, four eight minute periods.

Between the halves of the main game the high school second team defeated an outfit known as the "outcasts" in a battle which was full of thrills, especially during the first half. The "outcasts" with a football lineup which included "Bud" Robinson, "Spike" O'Donnell, "Bonesy" Murphy, "Jim" Halwartz and "Arbie" Taylor gave the seconds a spirited run for their money during the greater part of the pastime, the score being five all at the half. "Spike" O'Donnell in particular was all over the floor, both literally as well as figuratively speaking. During the second half the "outcasts" grew a bit sour and the seconds were able to pull ahead until at the final whistle they had a five point edge for a 13-7 win.

The score:

WINCHESTER GIRLS LOSE LEAGUE OPENER

Winchester High School girls' basketball team lost its first game in the Greater Boston Interscholastic League last Friday afternoon when it was defeated by the Watertown girls, 27-26 in the high school gymnasium.

The locals put up a hard fight, and had it not been for a poor getaway, might have come out on top. The visitors went right after the game from the start and profiting by what seemed a case of stage fright on the part of the home team, ran up a 14-8 lead at the half.

After intermission Winchester braced perceptibly and more than held its own during the closing minutes of the contest. Watertown showed the better passing game and also had the better of the goals thrown from the floor, caging 13 to eight for the locals. Winchester did the better foul shooting, tossing in 10 from free tries to a single one for Watertown.

Winchester's trouble at present seems to be its defensive game. With Captain "Dot" Bond the only experienced defense player on the squad, visiting forwards are having too free a rein in the locals back court. Coach Wheeler tried out three different combinations against Watertown, all of which showed promise. A lack of speed has been noticeable in the work of the team thus far, but much of this can be traced to the uncertainty of the inexperienced players.

The score:
WATERTOWN

RIVERS SURPRISES WINCHESTER

Rivers School sprung a big surprise Tuesday afternoon when it defeated Winchester High School at basketball in its own gymnasium, 23-21, in a closely contested game. The locals entered the game apparently confident of the issue and during the entire first half failed to take their opponents seriously. The sooner the boys get this idea that past competition in the Suburban League gives them an edge over all new outfits which they are meeting this season, the quicker they will break into the win column and stay there. They simply cannot afford to take things as easily as they have been doing; that is, if they expect to get anywhere. They were not outclassed at Rivers, the half ending 12-9 and the score standing at 21 apiece 30 seconds before the final whistle with the ball in Winchester's possession. Here Mann intercepted a local pass at mid-floor to cage the winning basket. Betts for Rivers and Rolli and McCauley for Winchester were the outstanding performers.

The score:
WINCHESTER
Mann, lg. 10; Johnson, H. Winslow, lg. 10; Harriman, Betts, rg. 10; K. Knowlton, R. Winslow, c. 10; McCauley, Taylor, lg. 10; c. Fitzgerald, Merchant, rg. 10; Kendrick, lg. 10; Hale, c. 10.
Score—Rivers 23, Winchester 21. Goals from floor, Betts 8, Mann, Winslow, Rolli 4, Kendrick 2, McCauley, Fitzgerald 2, Johnson. Goals on free tries—Betts, Taylor, R. Winslow, Knowlton. Referee—Trask. Time—nine-minute periods.

DECEMBER ROLL-OFF

The December roll-off was held Saturday evening on the Calumet alleys, 20 bowlers participating. This was the regular monthly roll-off between the bowlers scoring the best figures for the month, and four very attractive prizes were offered, three for best totals with handicap and one for best single string with handicap. Newell Morton won both the three-string total and the high single score, the latter being 147. J. R. Smith had second best single with 139, both scores including handicap.

The winners, together with some of the high rollers, were as follows:
1st. 2nd. 3rd. 4th. 5th.
Morton 153 101 42 367
Hildreth 108 119 123 30 361

CORRECTION

The Star wishes to call attention to an error which occurred in its columns last week. In reporting the disposition of a case in the Criminal Court at East Cambridge the week previous, a case arising out of the arrest some time ago in Lowell of two Winchester young men and a Stoneham girl who were charged with breaking a window in the store of Fidler's Inc., in that city and stealing a fur coat, through an error in information the name of Rocco De Teso of Olive street was substituted for that of Rocco De Tesco of Summer street who was one of the three found guilty of the break and theft. The Star got its information from sources which it considered authentic and regrets exceedingly the trouble which its report may have caused the innocent Mr. De Teso and his family and friends.

F. S. SNYDER ON PACKERS' PUBLIC RELATIONS BOARD

Mr. Frederick S. YES, WE DID HAVE HOCKEY!

The appearance of Leon Tuck on defense for the Dartmouth Alumni sextette and Richard Higgins at goal for the Harvard graduates in the hockey game which the two teams waged at the arena last week recalls the days when Winchester High was a power in interscholastic circles, ranking with such schools as Melrose, Cambridge Latin, Medford, Stoneham and Arlington as a leader in the schoolboy puck chasing league.

Hockey has gone into the discard at the local institution but time was when any schoolboy club around Boston would number a win over Winchester among its season's achievements. And well they might, for year in and year out the Red and Black was very good on the ice.

Tuck's name recalls what was certainly one of the best teams, if not the very finest aggregation of which the local school has ever boasted. Seven man hockey was in vogue at that time and on the forward line were Leon Tuck at center, Warren Goddu and Theodore Hurd on the wings and Irving Small, rover, Lowell Smith played cover point with George LeDuc and Louis Goddu alternating at point while Norman Small was at goal. We can't recall anyone's taking this outfit into camp and we doubt if any school, barring possibly St. Paul's, ever turned out a much classier all around team.

Irving Small became one of the very best hockey players in the United States which Tuck, a star while at Dartmouth where he captained the varsity, was good enough to make Uncle Sam's Olympic team and later to coach his alma mater, acknowledged one of the leaders in the intercollegiate ranks. Lowell Smith became a regular on the varsity team at Amherst College while Norman Small developed into one of the best "goalies" playing club hockey in the East. Not so dusty for one small high school club!

Winchester has in the past given quite a few men to intercollegiate hockey. We recall off-hand the names of a few of them. Besides Leon Tuck, at Dartmouth there was "Bill" Mason who also captained the team of the Indians of the North. "Ren" Clarke played at Amherst as well as Lowell Smith while "Dick" Higgins was a real good goal-tender for the Harvard varsity. "Vin" Farnsworth was a letter man with the Yale varsity a year ago while the late "Chet" Tutein was a regular on the Tech team during his undergraduate days in Boston engineering school. "Clint" Mason is at present carrying Winchester's colors in the college ranks as a member of the Williams' sextette.

One of the very best players ever to represent Winchester in interscholastic competition was Warren Goddu. A fast skater, skillful stick handler and a deadly shot he made the school team as a freshman and later became acknowledged as one of the leading schoolboy stars of the district. In 1913 he was the unanimous choice for captain of the all scholastic hockey club, the only Winchester boy so far as we recall to

SONNET

(Written for the Winchester Star)

The winter here and gloriously bright,
The snow falls o'er the tops of houses gray.
And signifying shortening winter days,
It is like truth so beautifully white.
The winter is a thing of beauty too;
And although with it comes an awful chill,
And every little stream, a frozen rill,
Sometimes we see a sky of lovely blue.
But we are happy in the winter time.
Our poets who love the ever whitening ground:
Put their many golden thoughts in rhyme
That duplicates the sparkling snows light sound
When it falls in this delightful time,
And puts the flowers in their sleep so sound.

ALAS, POOR FIDO

The Winchester Police have been in receipt of constantly increasing complaints about dogs throughout the town. The complaints range all the way from annoyance at being disturbed by barking to the more serious charge of being attacked and bitten. Many of the complaints refer to collarless animals and several dogs of this sort have been dispatched by the police who are determined to rid the town of the nuisance which these four footed marauders have become.

BATEMAN DOES NOT OPPOSE GOLF

Representative and Whitfield Tuck Hold Different Views

Rep. Thomas R. Bateman does not oppose golf! In fact it looks as though he likes it. At any rate he has filed a bill in the House for an investigation by the Metropolitan District Commission as to the feasibility and cost of constructing more golf courses on the land of the Metropolitan Park System.

Whitfield Tuck opposes it! Mr. Tuck says that golf is not a poor man's game but a rich man's game—and the idle rich at that.

So there you are! Rep. Bateman may be a poor golfer and Mr. Tuck may be a good talker—who knows? But between the two of them it looks as though we are going to have more golf courses, for William F. Garcelon, secretary of the Massachusetts Golf Association, favors it strongly, to say nothing of the STAR, which supports Rep. Bateman's bill tooth and nail. "More and better golf" say we!

It is to be hoped that the District Commission will hustle right to it. Let's give Tom a chance to brush up his game and Whitfield opportunity to look over the idle rich—he will see some of them when we get out and do our 70 (Harry Bowler coaxed us and he says never to lie).

Therefore it is possible, nay more than possible, for Rep. Bateman swings a wicked club we hear—that this idea may be favorably acted upon and we may have a course or two nearby which everyone can use. And we should!

Everyone other than Mr. Tuck appeared to favor the bill at the hearing before the committee on Metropolitan Affairs Monday, and statistics showed it to be a self supporting proposition.

CHAMBER WILL ACT IN TOWN AFFAIRS

At a meeting of the directors of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce Friday evening it was voted that the body take active steps to effect the removal of the unsightly and obstructing posts in the square in front of Lyceum Building. These posts have been an eyesore to many, and last year an effort was made by the Chamber to have an article inserted in the annual warrant calling for action towards their removal.

Nothing being done at that time, the Chamber instructed its secretary to appear on Monday night before the Selectmen asking that an article be inserted in this year's warrant. A determined effort is to be made to have these dangerous posts removed.

The Chamber of Commerce has also been active in placing directional signs about town. Last year the matter was taken up both with the Selectmen and the State, and definite plans laid out to equip Winchester with intelligent, readable signs. It was reported that a sum of money was available for the purpose and that the State would lend aid.

More recent inquiry reveals that as nothing was done in the matter, the available money was used in other ways, and the Chamber of Commerce therefore plans to take up this matter with the idea of securing results.

Another matter which the organization is interested in is the widening of the east side of the road at Symmes corner. This plan calls for the taking of a certain amount of land, which it is reported will be given the Town by Mrs. George E. Henry, to eliminate the sharp curve.

The Directors voted to hold a meeting the latter part of February for the purpose of taking up certain town matters and discussing them. A committee composed of Messrs. James J. Fitzgerald, Herbert Seller, Daniel Holmes, Charles H. Symmes and John Lynch was appointed a nominating committee to bring in names of new officers for the ensuing year.

The following letter has been received from the Selectmen relative to the Town Warrant:

Jan. 19, 1926

Nathaniel M. Nichols, Sec., Winchester Chamber of Commerce,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:
Replying to your letter to the Board requesting that articles be put in the Warrant to enable the Town to remove posts from the Centre and regarding Directional Signs, and also referring to the matter of the widening of Symmes Corner on Main street opposite Ridgely road, the Board wish to state that all of these matters are being handled by them at the present time.

Yours very truly,

Mabel W. Stinson,
Acting Clerk of Selectmen

MIXED BOWLING STARTS

Fourteen Teams Open Tournament at Calumet Club

Fourteen teams of four couples each opened the mixed bowling tournament at the Calumet Club last night when the first scheduled match was run off. The next match takes place on Monday evening, and from then on six teams will bowl each night from two to three times a week until the middle of April.

The tournament is a popular this year and many old bowlers are entered. The ladies list contains a number of experts and experienced rollers, and interesting and hard-fought matches are anticipated. New rollers will be re-rated after their third match and the whole list of teams will be rated over after the seventh match.

An attractive list of three team and six individual prizes is announced, all individual prizes going to the ladies.

The composition of teams is as follows:

WINCHESTER WINS FROM MELROSE

Winchester High got back into a winning stride Wednesday afternoon in the local gymnasium when it defeated Melrose 22-12, in a game which for the most part was rather slow and uninteresting.

You Can Bank On "People."

President Coolidge says, "we need a broader, firmer, deeper faith in people, a faith that men desire to do right."

Here in co-operative bank circles, we have come to have a high respect for "people."

We know that the man who starts out to own his own home is about the most reliable individual you can find.

All our funds are working in the home ownership field.

One of Oldest Customs

The custom of drinking healths is of great antiquity. At an entertainment given by Hengist, in the Fifth century, to the British king, Verterger, the daughter of the host, Rowena, knelt and presented the wine cup to the king, saying as she did so: "Dear king, your health," and this is generally quoted as the origin of the custom.

Mountain Really Overlooked

It depends on where a thing is whether it is important. Between San Francisco and Honolulu there is a mountain 8,000 feet high, but it does not attract any attention, because there are 2,000 feet of water covering its peak. It has been discovered in charting the bed of the Pacific ocean.

RACING KING WINTER DOWN THE GREENLAND COAST

Racing King Winter down the Greenland coast furnished the MacMillan Arctic Expedition with a series of adventures on its way south from Etah, Greenland, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Both the Bowdoin, the flagship of the expedition, and the Peary, the airplane carrier, made interesting and valuable additions to their respective logs, while the scientists and photographers took advantage of the long days above the Arctic Circle to obtain the most complete surveys of bird, plant, animal and human life, and of the geographic features of the country, that have ever been secured, says the bulletin.

Everything from near-shipwreck to a new running record featured the Bowdoin's journey from Etah, the ship and airplane base in the Arctic. The Peary, more heavily loaded, had its most anxious moments when the supply of coal ran low on the last stage of the trip down the coast. After battling a heavy head sea for hours it arrived at Godthaab, southern Greenland, with hardly a ton of fuel in its bunkers.

Bowdoin Jettisoned Gasoline
Shortly after leaving Etah the Bowdoin ran aground in Murchison Sound, one of the "inside" passages along upper Baffin Bay. The tide had just begun to ebb and only by the quick action of the crew in throwing overboard several steel gasoline drums was the ship prevented from capsizing. It tilted to an angle of 33 degrees. The Peary, which was at Igloo Dahoungy storing the airplanes on board, was hastily summoned and at high tide a two-inch hawser was connected with it. Just as the elaborate preparations for refloating her were completed, however, the swell from a bursting iceberg nearby washed the Bowdoin off the reef and into the deep water again. The stout little ship came through with hardly a scratch.

Better weather favored the expedition on the next stage of the journey. The Bowdoin and Peary literally played tag on the run to Cape York, first one leading, and then the other. Photographs were made of the picturesque tupiks, the summer tent homes of the Eskimos, amid the snow banks along the shore. A brilliant sun brought out the beauty of the famous Crinson, or Mahogany, Cliffs north of Cape York and the photographers were kept busy recording this unique topographical feature under a heavy mantle of new snow.

Bowdoin Makes Record
Melville Bay, which proved so difficult on the northward journey, was almost free of ice on the homeward trip. In fact, the Bowdoin hoisted full sail, soon after rounding Cape York and made the longest continuous run of its career—a total of 715 miles, reaching Holstenborg, just north of the Arctic Circle, in 84 hours. Sails were used to conserve fuel, although the Bowdoin's oil engines can use seal or whale oil in addition to the regular market grades.

The Peary, not so versatile, put in at Umanak, 300 miles north of Holstenborg, to obtain enough coal for the run to Godthaab, the principal coaling station along the west coast. Through the courtesy of the Danish government the Peary was refueled on both the northward and homeward journeys at Greenland west coast ports, although the supply is seldom more than sufficient for local needs.

Adding to the excitement of the night runs in heavy fog was the knowledge that the compasses on both ships were unreliable, due to the removal and shifting of the steel gasoline barrels and Liberty engines. By keeping clear of the rocky islets and headlands near the coast, and by dodging an occasional iceberg, it was not necessary to stop to make corrections until fueling stations were reached.

Natives See Selves in "Movies"
At Holstenborg the Bowdoin was given a noisy welcome by the natives, who swarmed around the expedition's flagship in their little boats. In the evening a moving picture show was given on deck for them, including views of themselves and their little town nestled among the rocks and snow, taken by Commander MacMillan last year. At this port also Commander MacMillan discovered evidence to confirm his belief that William Nutting, of the Lief Erikson, and his brave comrades, have sailed from their last port.

Meanwhile the Peary was having the most exciting run of the trip. After leaving Holstenborg the ship bucked a heavy sea and head wind, with rising barometer, all night. The morning brought exceedingly cloudy weather. Godthaab, where she was to coal for the rest of the homeward voyage, lies 14 miles up a fiord with myriad islands at the entrance. As the coast is largely uncharted and lighthouses are unknown it was only with extreme difficulty that the small, unlighted beacon floating outside the harbor was picked up.

This beacon is not easily located in clear weather. Under full clock, not making more than a mile an hour, the Peary carefully picked her way through the fog, bucking a high sea still. With practically no coal in her bunkers and heavily laden on its upper decks with the three airplanes, the ship offered high wind resistance which, with its weight, caused it to list over like a schooner under full sail. Only three of the personnel appeared for breakfast, a message from the expedition succinctly stated. There was hardly a ton of coal in the bunkers of the Peary when it finally dropped anchor inside the harbor.

Amazing Appetite
Large animals have the advantage in water. A man coming out of his bath carries one pound of water with him. A mouse coming out would carry its own weight, while a fly in similar circumstances would be loaded with 50 times its weight. Small animals have to have more food because the heart has to do relatively more work. A mouse thus eats one-third of its own weight every day.

American Slang Spreads

Every language has its slang, of course; the dictionary remarks that the word "slang" itself is derived from the Norwegian phrase "slengla kjetten," which means "to sling the ja." But no other language is in a position to give its founding words the same publicity that predominance in the air and on the motion picture screen affords to the American.

Got Change, All Right

A wealthy business man went to a rough camp for his summer vacation. The cooking was bad, the beds were bad, the insects were very bad. Upon his return he sat on the veranda of his palatial mansion enjoying a lake breeze and commended with himself after this fashion: "You go away for a change, and I'll say this—you never fail to get it."

Earth's Temperature

The earth is like a steam boiler jacketed with a layer of asbestos, the central portion, whatever its nature, occupying about three-quarters of the earth's radius, with an outer shell of rocks. If this is so, it will take at least a hundred thousand million years for the internal temperature to fall to half of what it originally was.

Tracing Age of Man

Efforts to fix the date of the first appearance of man on earth have proved futile. We can only fall back upon the methods used in geology. Man as we find him, now first appeared in the concluding phase of the Pleistocene period as the artist of the caves at a time when the British Isles formed part of the continent of Europe.

Country's Record Bad

The National Safety council says that the United States leads other countries in deaths due to accidents by at least 200 per cent. Here the rate for accidental deaths is 76.3 per 100,000 population; in England it is 33 per 100,000; in Canada 54 per 100,000.

WOBURN TO BUILD SEWER

Ends Long Fight—Asks to Borrow $300,000

Mayor Thomas H. Duffy filed a bill in the Legislature Friday asking for permission to borrow outside the debt limit the sum of $300,000 for the purpose of constructing the Aberjona Valley Sewer from Winchester to the Wilmington-Woburn line.

For the last five years the Aberjona Valley sewer has been a thorn in the side of the Legislature because of the vigorous fight that has been waged to have the sewer built at the expense of the Metropolitan District. It once passed the House but was killed in the Senate, and last year it was referred to the Metropolitan District Commission for report.

The commission reported against the assessment of any part of the cost on the district, claiming that Woburn should build the sewer at its own expense. In view of the commission's report it was considered futile to fight any longer for the passage of the bill as a district measure.

Representative Gustave W. Everberg, who led the fight, advised Mayor Duffy that there appeared to be no chance of getting the bill as a district proposition and the manufacturers in the district whose business is imperiled because of the situation, strongly urged the Mayor to undertake the construction at the city's expense.

It is the biggest single undertaking of its kind ever attempted in Woburn, but it is forced by the serious predicament of the industries in the valley. The State Department of Health has repeatedly warned the manufacturers that unless a sewer is constructed they would be forced to suspend their business.

There are four big tanneries in the valley, together with the big plant of the Merrimack Chemical Company. Their waste is claimed to pollute the Aberjona River, which runs into the Mystic Lakes and the manufacturers say that the only way to avoid pollution is the construction of a sewer.

A year ago the situation became critical when the State health authorities ordered the pollution of the river stopped or the manufacturers would be obliged to close. Action was started in a legal way and the industries appealed to the city officials for assistance.

Hundreds stormed the committee rooms of the Legislature and staged a fight that is rarely witnessed.

Mayor Duffy declared that the filing of the bill is absolutely necessary for the protection of the industries. "These industries employ 1000 men, with a payroll of at least $300,000 a week," Mayor Duffy said, "with a total of $1,500,000 a year. If the State will not build the sewer, then the city must."

"As I view the situation, it is our duty to protect our wage-earners. The industries in the valley are prosperous and desirable, and it is vital to our future that they be undisturbed. Then there is another angle and that is the sewerage of East Woburn and North Woburn. There is no sewer north of Central Square and no facilities in East Woburn. This Aberjona Valley sewer will provide an outlet for North and East Woburn."

"I would hesitate long before filing a bill that would bring upon Woburn any further indebtedness, but after conference with Representative Everberg and men deeply concerned in the matter, I have been advised that it would be no longer feasible to fight a losing fight in the Legislature. We still believe that we are entitled to assistance from the district, but since everyone else seems to feel otherwise, the only thing for us to do is to protect our industries and our homes and undertake the project ourselves."

Mayor Duffy said that, while he considered the predicament of the industries, the immediately imperative necessity for sewer construction, he said that the more tremendous possibilities involved are the placing of facilities in North Woburn and East Woburn. This has never been possible before because of the character of the country. The Aberjona Valley offers the only solution to this problem.

Representative Everberg, in discussing Mayor Duffy's bill with leading members of the House, was assured that every assistance would be given to the city in having the authority granted.

FOUND GUILTY OF DRUNKEN DRIVING

Fred A. Carleton of 15 Tantine street, Medford, was found guilty by Judge Morton in the District Court at Woburn Monday of operating a motor car while under the influence of liquor, or drunkenness and of operating his machine so as to endanger the lives of the public. On the drunken driving count he was fined $100, the charge of operating so as to endanger brought a $50 assessment and the drunkenness count was filed.

Carleton was arrested by Sergt. Thomas Cassidy of the Winchester Police following an automobile accident in which he figured on Cambridge street near Swan road at 6.30 o'clock Sunday evening.

According to the police account of the smash-up, Carleton was driving a Hudson coach, the property of the Lafayette Used Car Company of 317 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, and was headed north along Cambridge street when his machine collided with a Ford touring car owned by John C. Miller of 20 Tremont street, Woburn and in charge of his son, Hall A. Miller of the same address. The Ford was also headed North and was standing at the side of the road, having run out of gasoline, when it was hit by the Hudson.

The force of the impact threw Mrs. Etta Miller, who was sitting in the Ford, out onto the ground, injuring her to the extent that she was removed to the Winchester Police Station where she was treated by Dr. Conlon of Woburn. She was found to have sustained a cut on the head, a sprained shoulder and a general shaking up.

Carleton was taken into custody by Sergt. Cassidy and booked at the Winchester station house, charged with drunkenness, operating while under the influence of liquor and driving so as to endanger the lives of the public.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

A certain Winchesterite was 42 the other day. It is easy if the dates of birth, of manhood and of a few leading events are ascertained to guess at what facts have made the most impression on a mind. But are these guesses of much value? Unless we know the man, his family surroundings and his mental trend we know almost nothing of how these matters affected him. Suppose that a surgeon's son had wished to follow in the footsteps of his father how intently he would have followed the news of the Roentgen rays. A boy quite as intelligent, fully as mature, who had no surgical bent might hardly remember that the Roentgen rays had shown in the horizon, so look out for the bright young men of engineering talent whose fathers were on the Panama Canal force. Among their schoolmates will be some to whom Panama was far away—some commercial scientific, or industrial event was the great fact of their times. Maybe the great coming botanist, somebody to outshine Linnaeus or Hooker is now about 14, and maybe he thinks Luther Burbank the greatest man of modern civilization. If we could talk with ten or twenty men and women younger than ourselves, and find out what most interested or impressed them in their teens we should get some light on the variety of human craving. We would also meet with revolutions for in some cases the boyish plans and purposes are almost forgotten before the man reaches 25.

Recently the parents of a lad in a town less than an hour's ride from Winchester told The Spectator that he was taking a lively interest in a Spanish class. He evidently is. A bright little note from him in Spanish brightened the corner where The Spectator was the other morning. Those who today study Spanish have a decided advantage over those who 40 years ago started in the same direction. The readers of today give an amount of information concerning Spain, the West Indies and South America which the older textbooks lack. Some of the best manuals of today are as interesting as a good magazine. A Winchesterite who wants to read about pumas and pampas, cafe and condos, Andes and alligators, can find the material.

Is there anything which does not suggest the old by-word "It is a poor rule that does not work both ways." An old man in a community not far from Winchester, while walking in his sleep, fell from a window and was saved from death because he struck a clothesline. Put opposite to this that a schoolmate of a gentleman living in Winchester today was running, that a clothesline caught him under the chin and threw him so violently that he died of concussion of the brain.

To any Winchesterite who notes the light sentences so often passed on forgers, the sternness of former days is an impressive contrast. How many boys and girls of today have heard of Dr. Dodd, a clergyman who went to the gallows for this offense, and of Samuel Johnson's vain efforts to secure a pardon for him? A Hindu named Nuncomar, a man of higher family connections, paid the death penalty for forgery. Macaulay insists that the execution was a piece of politics on the part of Warren Hastings, but later evidence makes this doubtful. There is also a case of a British naval officer who was sent to Australia and given to understand that he ought to be very grateful that he escaped the death sentence. Forgery is not new, but getting off as if it were a misdemeanor is.

"This is the first year," observed a Winchester lady, "that I have seen the face of Abraham Lincoln on a Christmas card which reached a friend of mine here in Winchester. However, the card bears a message of peace and good will. By the way, is there any man whose counterfeit presentments differ so widely? There are pictures of Lincoln which do not show any higher quality than that of shrewdness; there are some which bring out the great abilities of the man, and in all there is the sadness that never left him. Even when he set juries in a roar or swapped jokes with Dan Rice, the leader in circus clowndom of those days, there was melancholy in his countenance."

FIDELIS CLUB

The popular Fidelis Club of Winchester composed of the brightest and most interesting girls of this vicinity are to stage a Valentine's Party at Waterfield Hall, Winchester, Feb. 15, 1926. "Tommy" Gigliotti, the well-known jazz artist and the director of St. Mary's Mandolin Circle, together with his snappy trio will furnish the music.

The newly appointed officers of the Club held a successful business meeting last Thursday night at the home of Miss Mary Boyle, who has been re-elected President. Miss Boyle, together with her newly elected assistants are as follows:
President—Miss Mary Boyle
Vice President—Miss Hazel McKenzie
Secretary—Miss Anna Oliver
Treasurer—Miss Mary Norton
They promise a year of entertainment and surprises for 1926.

The Club has made much progress since its first meeting Jan. 27, 1925. It must be remembered, however, that their founder and Director, Rev. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons is greatly responsible for the success of the Club. Anyone knowing the personality and wonderful character of Fr. Fitzgibbons knows full well that he in himself is an incentive to the girls and without his general leadership together with his kind ways and generosity, the Club would not have attained such a goal.

Here's hoping that his work, together with the girls will continue for the year 1926.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue and in execution of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed dated January 29, 1924, given by Frank S. Bartlett and Dorothy M. Bartlett, husband and wife, in her right to the Somerville Savings Bank and recorded in the Registry of Deeds for the County of Middlesex in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in Book 4694, Page 508 and for the purpose of foreclosing the equity of redemption of said mortgage, the undersigned, as mortgagee, do hereby give notice of public sale on the premises hereinafter described on Monday, the fifteen day of February, 1926, at three o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held on Jan. 15, at the home of Mrs. Blood was largely attended.

Mrs. Elizabeth Richardson led the devotional service.

Reports from the superintendents of departments showed good work done by the members during the past year. Their activities included a "Survey of the Woburn Court."

A national speaker at one High School Assembly.

Posters and temperance literature put into the hands of teachers to assist them in giving scientific temperance instruction in the schools.

Many children and young people of our Sunday Schools have signed the total abstinence pledge.

Good work has been done through the departments of "Flower Mission," "Soldiers and Sailors," and "Social Service."

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Grace M. Hamilton; Secretary, Mrs. Allena Roberts; Treasurer, Miss Eugenia M. Elliott; Vice President, Mrs. Elizabeth Denne; Mrs. Martha Whitehorn, Mrs. Fannie Weld, Mrs. Mary Winn, Mrs. Jennie Tolman, Mrs. Josephine Arnold and Mrs. Capitola Welburn.

The following we glean from articles read by Mrs. Woodbury and Mrs. Cayting. In the first test vote on

WINCHESTER GIRLS SWAMP LEXINGTON

The Winchester High School girls' basketball team broke into the win column Wednesday afternoon at Lexington when it fairly swamped the Lexington High lassies, 52-7, in a game which was too one sided to provide much of a thrill.

This is the first year in several seasons that Lexington has had a team on the floor and its inexperienced players were no match for the locals who were showing their best game to date.

Winchester's passing and floor work were big improvements over what its players have shown in previous contests and offensively the forwards and centers showed a nice ability to work the ball into scoring position. Defensively the team had little chance to show its ability since the action was for the most part in Lexington's back court. The fact that their opposing forwards were able to cage but three floor goals during the matinee is proof positive that Captain Bond's department was functioning above reproach.

"Kay" Valleley was the big scoring noise for Winchester and her 17 goals from the floor reminds the old timer of the days when Ruth Pettin-gill and Barbara Wellington and "Kay" Fairfield were keeping the adding machines heated.

To a Lexington player, Josephine Van Germdt, went the distinction of caging the first "feminine" basket scored in interscholastic competition in the school's new gymnasium this season, which of course is as it should be.

The score:

prohibition this season, House dyes swept aside by a vote of 139 to 17, a proposal to restrict the use of funds for the purchase of liquors as evidence. The proposal was in the form of an amendment to an appropriation bill and would have prohibited resort by prohibition agents to the usual recognized practices to detect crime and "ascertain its nature." The amendment was offered by Rep. Tucker of Virginia, who carried with him but 16 votes.

Newspapers which heralded the proposed amendment as one upon which a test vote was to be taken, on the sentiment of the House this session toward prohibition, will take note of the overwhelming defeat of an effort to handicap the government in its enforcement of the 18th Amendment.

Mr. William Paxton, Scottish author, in his book, "The Truth About Prohibition" states the following. At a time when Europe is suffering from commercial paralysis, and Britain has over a million unemployed people, there is a period of phenomenal prosperity in the United States. In North Carolina furniture factories have increased by 50 per cent in the last two years, and the capital invested has quadrupled. The gross value of the manufacturing in 1924 was over $42,000,000 and 11,181 persons were employed. Thousands of working people are buying their own homes, and the annual report of the United States League of Building and Loan Associations says, in the midst of its mass of figures of borrowing and lending, "Prohibition is the handmaiden of thrift, home building, happiness and prosperity. It was feared that there would be a slump in realty values when saloons, hotels and breweries were closed, but the very opposite happened. Saloons were in corner stands for the most part, and these were eagerly taken up by owners of multiple stores; hotels by adjustment and alterations in structural arrangements are carrying on successfully; and the breweries have been converted into factories, mills, and warehouses to the satisfaction of owners of lands and buildings."

Mr. Paxton regards prohibition in this country as "one of the most beneficial measures in the history of government," and believes that, "with the passing of years and the rearing of a race that has never seen a saloon, America will give a lead to the whole world in solving one of the most difficult problems of modern times."

Last year's contest was won by Woburn, but the Elks with a strong team hope to reland in the ranking position in the present competition.

The town water was cut off from the North Reservoir this morning owing to the taste from the vegetation. The water board has received numerous complaints concerning the taste of the water, and while the trouble is absolutely harmless, it has been decided to shut off this supply of water for such period as the unpleasantness is encountered. Last winter it was found advisable to cut off the North Reservoir for two months. The minute vegetable growth causing the unpleasant taste is absolutely harmless, but difficult to prevent. It sometimes occurs at this season. During the period of discontinuance of the North Reservoir, the Town will be supplied from the South and Middle Reservoirs.

The Mystic Chapter of the Mothers' Association is to have a social in the Mystic Kindergarten room on Tuesday, Jan. 26, at 3:30 p. m. Parents and friends are invited to meet the teachers.

Present-day China, over-population in the Orient, mandates, the compatibility of internationalism and nationalism and Pacific problems were some of the topics discussed by specialists and speakers of international repute at the three days' School of Foreign Affairs held by the Massachusetts League of Women Voters last week at Radcliffe College.

The sessions were attended by the following members of the local league: Mrs. A. Beatrice Thompson, Mrs. Francis K. Henderson, Mrs. J. T. Lowe, Dr. Mary T. Maynard, Mrs. Frederick Hamerstrom, Mrs. Ashley Hayden, Mrs. Kenneth Young, Mrs. B. Bernard, Mrs. Daniel Bennett.

A large attendance is expected at the Dutch supper which is being held on next Wednesday evening in Lyceum Hall under the auspices of Winchester Lodge of Elks. The affair is to be a "stag" party and the fact that "Bill" Whelan is in charge of the arrangements is a sufficient guarantee that things will be done according to the well known Hoyle.

At last Monday's meeting of the Board of Selectmen David Meskell of Clark street was appointed a permanent member of the Winchester Fire Department.

A rumor which has been going the rounds of the square this week to the effect that the G. W. Blanchard Co. had sold its coal business has been denied by Mr. Dean Blanchard of that firm. In talking with the Star reporter yesterday Mr. Blanchard said that his company had suspended this department until such a time as it could obtain anthracite again. The Blanchard Co. is unwilling to handle coal substitutes because of the risk of fire which doing so would entail, and the referring of its customers desirous of buying same to other dealers may have given rise to the false report in question.

Miss Alice Rennert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick I. Rennert of Mystic Valley Parkway, a junior at Simmons College, has been appointed advertising manager of "Mike," the college year book. Miss Rennert's achievement is worthy of note in that usually only members of the senior class are eligible for this honor.

Hen. Lewis Parkhurst of this town will be in the receiving line at the annual Dartmouth Potlatch to be held in the grand ball room of the Copley Plaza on Saturday evening, Jan. 30. Mr. Parkhurst is closely allied with everything of importance pertaining to the "Big Green" college and is president of the Board of Trustees.

The Scoutmaster in charge of the Boy Scouts meeting on Monday evening in the Congregational Church has complained to the police about a gang of young hoodlums who have greatly annoyed his troop.

Officers Regan and Dempsey of the local police in response to a phone call at headquarters Monday evening took a quick run to Appalachian road to investigate the actions of a party in a parked car. They found nothing irregular.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Tuesday morning a Flint sedan, owned and operated by Paul R. Widder of 18 Hopkins road, Arlington, and a Ford touring car, owned and driven by Russell H. Lynn of 88 Main street Stoneham, were in collision on Washington street near the Watch Hand Factory. Mudguards on both machines were damaged but no one was injured.

Howard Ambrose of Vine street reported to the police on Tuesday evening that three men had abandoned a Hudson sedan in the field off Bacon street near the railroad bridge, often called "Ginn's Field." The machine was towed to the Central Garage for safe keeping, and the Metropolitan Police notified. Investigation disclosed the fact that the car had been stolen in Revere and was the property of Frank Vest of Garfield avenue, that city.

Mrs. George Horton of Bradford, formerly of this town, is the guest of Miss Emma Trowan at the home of the latter on Mystic avenue.

Clinton Mason of this town is a member of the Williams varsity hockey team which played against Harvard at the Arena Wednesday evening.

Patsy Tafari of 17 Spruce street reported to the police on Wednesday that during the afternoon his 7 year old son had been struck by a Ford on truck driven by Charles Capone. The little boy was not seriously injured and was treated for several bruises by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy.

The local Board of Selectmen's appointments of Samuel S. Symmes as Moth Superintendent and David H. DeCourcy as Forest Warden have been approved by the State Forester.

Mr. George J. Barharo of Oak street has been appointed a Registrar of Voters for the Town of Winchester to serve until April 1, 1928.

While it is still rather early for much local political activity several candidates for town office have gotten nomination papers into circulation. Papers are out for Charles E. Kendall to succeed himself as a member of the Water and Sewer Board, Frank H. Enman and Harrie Y. Nutter are candidates for Assessor and Town Treasurer respectively, and Nathaniel M. Nichols seeks re-election as Collector of Taxes. The other papers in circulation are those of Samuel S. Symmes for Tree Warden and George T. Davidson for Park Commissioner.

ST. MORITZ CAPITAL OF WINTER SPORTS

While winter vacationists in America are fleeing from snow and ice to Florida and California, Europe is making a general exodus to white-clad fairylands among the snows of the Alps, the Pyrenees and the Scandinavian Peninsula. Heavy garments are being packed, and skis, skates and toboggans are being made ready for the sports carnivals that begin this month.

St. Moritz, oldest and most famous of Europe's winter-sports centers, is opening the season with a series of hockey matches, to be followed this month by the European ski jumping championship, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

A Tiny Village in Summer

One must look closely on the map of Switzerland to find St. Moritz. It is another of those places whose fame has far out-distanced its growth in population. If your map is large enough, however, you will discover it in the eastern part of Switzerland, far down near Bernina Pass, one of the gateways into Italy. Most of the year it is a quiet little village of fewer than 3000 persons. Its altitude, more than a mile above sea level, helps to make its climate severe. Frosts in summer are not unknown. In fact, the natives have a couplet describing the climate of St. Moritz as nine months of winter and three months of cold.

Low temperatures, of course, do not interfere with winter sports, nor are they ever so extreme as to drive away those seeking air cures. Mineral springs have given St. Moritz more or less of a year-round vogue as a health resort, but its uniform winter weather, with dry, cold, bright days and almost no thaws, has attracted to its rinks and sled-runs champions and enthusiasts of winter sports from all over the world. In winter its population is more than doubled, while the neighboring villages of Celerina, Camper and Pontresina benefit by the overflow.

Protected from Winds

St. Moritz Dorf, of Village, nestles in a sunny, well-sheltered nook on the north bank of St. Moritz Lake, a widening of the River Inn. The mountains protect it from severe winds. With the adjacent village of St. Moritz Bad, or Bath, St. Moritz forms the largest community in the Upper Engadine district. The little groups of hotels and chalets, with tall church spires watching over them, have a pleasing aspect when seen from the many paths winding up the mountainside. In back of every picture, too, are the serrated peaks of the Bernina Alps, the bare rocks of precipices and the blue-stained surfaces of glaciers standing out sharply against their white winter mantel.

In addition to catering to the tourist and invalid trade, the natives produce in their home shops fine wood carvings, furniture, embroidery, pottery and pictures. The wood of the stone pine, which grows in great profusion around the shores of the little lake, is especially suitable for carvings. American tourists are among the chief purchasers of the latter, perhaps because it is one of the few things on which there is no duty.

Sledding a Mile a Minute

Before the days of the airplane and the automobile St. Moritz offered the world's fastest ride. Its famous Cresta Toboggan Run, which drops nearly 500 feet in three-quarters of a mile, has been traversed in 58.7 seconds, at speeds touching more than 70 miles an hour. It is still largely a track for experts, but there are other runs where beginners can find excitement aplenty while leaving the fine points of the art. Although practically the same course has been used on the Cresta Run for the last 40 years, those who have experienced season after season, the breathless thrill of flying down its ice-surfaced, snow banked course agree that age cannot wither, nor custom stale the infinite variety of its excitements.

TRUCK HIT BAKER'S FINE MONDAY

Warning an alarm from Box 22 at 20 Monday morning for a slight fire at the Bangs' residence on Central street the big Ahrens-Fox ladder truck in making the turn from Church street into Central street skidded on the icy roadway in such a manner as to cause the ladders on its rear-end to collide with a baker's truck, operated by George C. Woulas of 492 Main street, Woburn, who was accompanied by Peter Contaloni, also of Woburn and living at 34 Walnut street, owner of the machine. The car, a Dodge truck, which was parked just north of the corner of Church and Wildwood streets, had its body panels smashed on the left side as well as the glass of its windshield and door. Woulas was struck by the ladder and slightly injured, being taken to the Winchester Police Station where he was treated by Dr. R. W. Sheehy and later taken home. Outside of a slight scratch on one of the ladders the ladder-truck was unharmed.

BAD SMASH ON CHURCH STREET

A Ford runabout and a Buick brougham figured in a bad smashup at the corner of Church and Fletcher streets last Sunday afternoon. The Ford, owned and operated by William Richardson of 207 Cambridge street was headed West on Church street while the brougham, owned and driven by Mrs. Edith M. Walker of 464 Broadway, Somerville, was coming out of Bacon street to cross Church and enter Fletcher street, the collision taking place on the northerly side of Church street at the corner of Fletcher. With Mrs. Walker as passengers were her three children and Helen C. Healey of 59 Bow street, Medford. Both cars were badly damaged and Richardson was severely cut about the head, one of the gashes requiring six stitches to close. He was taken to the Winchester Hospital in the car of Dr. A. R. Cunningham and there was attended by Dr. R. L. Emery.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

On Jan. 25 the club was delightfully entertained by Hazel Chandler Parks, reader. Mrs. Parks has a pleasing personality and much charm. She held her audience, and kept them highly amused during the whole afternoon. Her interpretations were well done,—she changed readily from a woman of the world and her troubles to the broken English of a voluble French woman; from a small child with an intense desire to have her tonsils and adenoids out "like all her other friends," to a harried hostess in her hectic preparations for giving a tea. A one act play, "Hardy Perennials," caused much merriment. The daughter, the "hardy perennial," because she had been "brought out" for several successive seasons, and her match-making mother.

The afternoon's music consisted of a group of vocal duets rendered by Mrs. Charles H. Mason of this town, a Fortnightly member and Mrs. Albert V. Lally of Newtonville. Mrs. Mason and Mrs. Lally have sung together professionally in church, concert and oratorio work for many years. Their voices blend with fine harmony of tone and their responses are both spontaneous and natural. Mrs. Mason possesses a clear, supple soprano voice of charm and finesse which balances perfectly the full, rich contralto of Mrs. Lally.

In the "Wanderer's Night Song" by A. Rubinstein their voices merged sweetly into the soft round chords of the melody which suggest a dreamer of the open road, evening shadows and a single star. This was their first number and evidenced their aptitude for close harmony.

"Message-birds Farewell" by Eugen Hindach was brilliantly rendered. The swinging rhythm of the first movement, like the dipping, swaying, graceful flight of many birds, was beautifully sustained. The second movement was rapturous, joyous, colorful. The flute notes of Spring, dancing sunlight, clear blue skies, birds swinging on new green boughs! A dazzling harmony of lyric soprano notes thrilling above the pliant, facile contralto.

In response to unanimous, enthusiastic applause Mrs. Mason and Mrs. Lally sang "Wiegenlied" by Johannes Brahms. Its delicate, slumberous quality was perfectly interpreted by the evening pianissimo of both voices. In this number both artists evidenced absolute control of tone.

Mrs. Lally's accompaniments of the numbers upon the piano were altogether pleasing and gave proof of considerable ability in this direction also.

In fine, Mrs. Mason and Mrs. Lally furnished an inspiring, credible performance of well-rooted music and it is hoped that the members of the Fortnightly may be afforded the pleasure of hearing them often.

At the close of the program refreshments were served by Mrs. C. A. Batchelder, assisted by a large and efficient committee.

Literature Committee

The Literature Group will meet Monday, Feb. 1, at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Charles H. Dodge, 9 Lakeview ter. The program, which will deal with Robert Frost and Sara Teasdale, will be in charge of Miss Mary Hodges and Mrs. W. C. Sache. Mr. George A. Kuyper head of the English department of the High School, will speak on some recent books. Club members are invited.

Legislative Committee

Please bear in mind that the Legislative Conference for 1926 will be held Tuesday, Feb. 2, at the Auditorium Ball Room, Main support our District Delegation. Harriet C. S. Hildreth by a representative attendance from our club. Bills for action at the mid-winter meeting of the State Federation were explained at our meeting on Monday very effectively by our Mrs. Helen I. Fessenden, and these bills will be presented and further explained by experts at the Conference on Tuesday. For further information phone Mrs. Ashley Hayden, 0864-W. Parliamentary Law Classes will meet on Thursday, Feb. 4, at 10 a. m. in the club rooms.

PLENTY FISH

It literally rained fish last Friday evening on Main street at Lake street when a large barrel of sea food fell from a passing truck without attracting the attention of the driver. The local police were notified and surmising that the truck might have been headed for Woburn the authorities there were informed of the incident. They soon located the express company who had lost the fish and eventually its lost property was restored, but somewhat the worse for wear.

LYCEUM LEAGUE OF AMERICA

Ten old Winchester boys met on Saturday night at the Boston Chamber of Commerce and enjoyed a reunion and dinner which signified the first gathering of the group for a period of over 39 years. Through the memory and desire of Mr. William C. Corey of Wilmington, Del., the affair was brought about in the calling of a meeting of the "L. L. A." (Lyceum League of America), an organization formed in Winchester many years ago under the parentage of the Youth's Companion.

At the time of its formation the boys comprising its members were pupils of the seventh grade at the Wadleigh School, and its existence, if memory serves correctly, covered a period of about two years. Needless to say, the L. L. A. has long passed into history, and even the officials of the publication which originated and fostered it, fail to recall its existence today.

But it served its purpose, it brought the boys together to face the more serious problem of life and government, and now, nearly half a century later, it served to again unite the bonds of friendship and fellowship which it tied so long ago.

There were present the host, Mr. William C. Corey of Wilmington, Del., Rev. Sidney B. Snow of Montreal, D. Nelson Skillings, Amherst; Carl X. Brackett, Haverhill; William J. Smith, Somerville; James F. Dwinell, George T. Davidson, Dwight D. Elliott, J. Frank Tuttle and T. Price Wilson of Winchester.

The reunion was a happy one. The host, assisted by Mr. Tuttle, left nothing to be desired in the arrangements or menu. An interesting feature was the seating of the members by old photos, taken years ago and unknown or forgotten by the subjects, and as was customary in the league, each member was called upon for remarks. The history and experiences were interesting, holding the gathering until a late hour.

Two absent members, Rev. Charles R. Wellman of Deerfield, and Mr. Farman F. Dorsey of Rochester, N. Y., were absent, and felicitations were sent them. The other action taken by the meeting was to send greetings to Miss Elizabeth Marston, who had the misfortune to teach every member of the league during his progress through the Winchester schools.

An interesting feature of the reunion was the fact that every member of the league is alive today; well and happy. It was the desire and hope of the gathering to continue the meetings thus revived, and to hold a reunion yearly.

MYSTERY OF COL. HOUSE RE-VEALED AT LAST

His Private Diary and Letters While on Confidential Errands for President Wilson to be Given to Public

The mystery surrounding the close friendship of Col. Edward M. House and President Wilson, and the amazing part that friendship played in world history is finally to be revealed. Col. House, the only person who could now give the whole story to the public, has decided to publish his personal diary, his correspondence and the record of his activities as confidential spokesman for the President during those fateful years.

This promise, to be one of the most remarkable and intimate documents in American political history.

Called "Col. Mouse" For 11 years the very name Col. House has been synonymous with secrecy. "Col. Mouse" was the nickname bestowed on him by Coy. George Harvey, and to newspapermen who tried to discover the purpose of his confidential errands to various European and American statesmen Col. House has always been "The Sphinx."

He threaded his noiseless way through political campaigns; his quiet word was the final word in selecting Cabinet officials and high Government officers. His missions from the White House to the capitols of Europe were so important and confidential that even our own Ambassadors were not permitted to know what he was about. Sir Edward Grey, Britain's Foreign Secretary, left orders that Col. House alone should have free access to him in his rest hour.

And yet, not until now, has the world ever known what he was about on his errands of so great importance to the American people.

Public to Know at Last Now President Wilson is dead, and Col. House has decided that the record of his part in our Government—official but more important than the part of most officials—belongs to the permanent public history of the American people. He is going to deposit his personal diary and private correspondence in the archives of an American university. But not until he has first given it to the public through publication in a few newspapers throughout the country.

"The Intimate Papers of Col. House" will allow Americans to follow him day by day in his movements and plans, known at the time only to the lonely man in the White House, making and unmaking Cabinet officers and Ambassadors, consulting the ruling heads of Europe, crossing the battle lines from the Allies to the Kaiser, with the confidence of both through our ticklish years of neutrality, trying to avert war. How far President Wilson went—and he went the limit—in a last desperate resort to "keep us out of war," is now to be disclosed for the first time.

Boston Globe Paid $25,000 These papers give the closest possible close-up of the most debated character of the war era, Woodrow Wilson; and the truth of momentous decisions and our entry into the war.

The Boston Globe paid $25,000 for the privilege of being the only New England newspaper to print this extraordinary record, and "The Intimate Papers of Col. House" will be given to the public for the first time in the Sunday and daily editions of the Boston Globe beginning next Sunday, Jan. 31.

Too True

"What's one man's get-rich-quick scheme," said Uncle Eben, "is often a get-poor-scheme for a whole lot of folks."—Washington Star.

Said to Be No Spot Quite Free From Dust

When beams of sunlight shine into a partially darkened room you are able to realize how thick the air is with millions of tiny particles of dust. But it is only with the help of a strong microscope that you can appreciate the marvels of dust.

In the dust in one room you may find such various matters as the pollen grain of grasses, scales from our own skins, as well as fragments from our clothes.

You may also find atoms of salt. Salt dust is carried scores of miles inland from the sea, and there is no part of any land where it does not fall. Sand, too, floats in the air, both sea sand and desert sand. Always there is meteoric dust, ground-up morsels of some lost planet, floating in the air. This dust you find everywhere, on the tops of snowclad mountains and in the deepest abysses of the ocean.

Everything provides dust, from the ash of your cigarette to the scales from the wings of a butterfly.

FOLLIES OF '76 AN UNUSUAL SHOW

The performance ended with an exhibition of the polka by Dorothy Hamilton, Ruth S. Priest, T. Parker Clarke and Leonard Waters, and a nifty display of the Charleston by Marjorie Davidson and Ruth Brooks.

The Executive Committee in general charge of the affair had George W. Stidstone as chairman; Martha R. Doane as treasurer; Kingman P. Cass secretary; and included Hubert N. Bernard, John Carruthers, T. Parker Clarke, Floyd S. Clement, George H. Lechman, Mildred Sanford, Edward B. Small, Alden H. Symmes, Esther A. Stidstone and William B. Wood.

The presentation was under the personal direction of William O. Partridge, Jr., the dances were arranged and coached by Hazel Sands Welch and the choral numbers were directed by Helen E. Barr. Music was furnished by Ives Orchestra of Boston. The accompanists were Mary H. French and Estella V. Cooper.

During intermission candy was sold by the Misses Violet Winn, Marion Ladd, Linda Foster, Hazel Goddu, Henrietta Sanford, Teresa Heath, Phoebe Dotten, Aleda Goddu, Aurora Rondina, Marjorie Davidson, Ethel Hersey and Estelle Simonds.

Some particularly efficient ushering was done by members of Middlesex Chapter, Order of De Molay with H. N. Bernard, Jr., as head usher, H. K. Miller and L. M. Daley, aids; and including T. H. Bartlett, F. H. Brock, L. J. Carter, G. R. Curtis, J. P. Dike, A. F. Downer, D. R. Downer, G. K. English, E. L. Frost, C. J. Ingalls, R. W. Larrabee, B. F. Litchfield, J. B. North, N. O. Prescott, J. Dogs Seldom Mad

When dogs bite people in the summer time, they're seldom "mad," except in the sense in which normal human beings often get mad. They're surly and grouchy, perhaps, because they are affected by the heat like human folk, and have less ability to help themselves.

Suppose, on a hot, sultry day, when you were fairly stewing in the heat, and the flies were biting you, you couldn't find a cool spot to lie down and, worse than that, couldn't find a bit of cool water to drink. And suppose every person you approached hopefully was surly and ill-natured and gave you a kick or an ugly look instead of something to moderate the heat. Wouldn't you feel like snapping at somebody's calves?

Dogs probably don't run amuck in hot weather any more than people do, though with more provocation.—Kokomo Dispatch.

UNIMAK: LARGEST OF THE ALEUTIAN STEPPING-STONES

While America faces a coal shortage this winter, prospectors in the interior of Alaska are anxiously awaiting the end of summerlike weather, so the rivers may freeze and they can make their way out. Unusually high temperatures for November have followed the reported activity of Mt. Shishaldin, a volcano on Unimak Island.

Unimak Island, the largest of the Aleutian stepping-stones, is a focus of volcanic activity second only to the Katmai district, scene, in 1912, of one of the greatest volcanic eruptions from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Although it has an area only a little larger than Rhode Island, so many craters occur on Unimak Island that there is often a great deal of confusion as to the location of the various eruptions reported.

Fujiyama's Double Mt. Shishaldin, the peak recently reported active, is the most striking and beautiful of the 11 major craters of the island. It has one of the most nearly perfect cones in the world, seeming to float suspended in the air above its cloud-girt base. Because of its white symmetry it has been called the most formidable rival of the celebrated Fujiyama. Fortunately, however, the visitor who has seen this Alaskan queen in all her beauty, for most of the year Unimak, and the rest of the Aleutians, are enveloped in a heavy blanket of fog and low-lying clouds.

Despite Unimak's size and its separation from the mainland panhandle of Alaska by only a narrow strip of water, it is of little importance. There are no good harbors around its shores and only one settlement, Cape Alsit Village, is listed.

Cod fishing on the great banks to the south of the island, which are similar to those of Newfoundland, and the mining of small quantities of sulphur and pumice stone are the principal industries. The inhabitants are mostly the remnants of the original native tribes found here by the Russians in the 18th century.

Telescope Tourists There is no tourist trade, partly because there are no accommodations for them, but mainly because the beauties of the island can be seen to advantage with binoculars on shipboard. West coast steamers bound for Nome and other places on the Bering Sea, or for the Arctic Ocean, pass almost around the island, for the narrow strait separating it from the mainland is not as safe as Unimak Pass, the strait between it and the rest of the Fox group.

Like its sister islands Unimak is in general desolate and scraggy along its rocky, grass-covered lower slopes. It is treeless, and, except for its heavy rainfall and fogs, has a delightful climate. Summers in Unimak are cooler than places farther north, while in winter the weather is milder than that of Tennessee or Kentucky, 20 degrees of latitude farther south. The warm Japan Current, which sweeps up the coast of Asia and around the Aleutians, gives it a January average of 30 degrees above zero.

Grasses of all kinds grow in abundance on the lowlands all year round but the climate is too damp to mature grain. Although the soil is rich, being composed of a vegetable mold mixed with volcanic ash, the land is rugged and there are no places where farms of any size can be made. Small though the island is, the interior has never been thoroughly explored, and reports of a lake of sulphur in solution there have never been confirmed.

On Direct Route to Japan Unimak and other islands of the Aleutian chain, believed to be the route by which man first migrated to the Western Hemisphere, should be better known to the world at large, for they are on the shortest route between our northwestern States and Japan. The great expanse of the Pacific and the curvature of the earth places Yokohama almost due northwest of Seattle, if one follows the most direct path.

The American World Flyers remember Unimak as part of one of the most difficult stages in their globe-circling trip. Port Moller, the community to which Major Martin made his way on foot after his plane crashed, is about 150 miles farther east. The district presented the same pitfalls for aviators as Unimak, conical peaks and sharp ridges rising suddenly out of dreary fog-hidden tundras and marshes. Portage Bay, where a forced landing was made, is on the mainland opposite Kodiak Island, but is similar to the few indentations of Unimak's shoreline, with rocky cliffs and treacherous sand shoals.

The Aleutians, however, have an added handicap in the "willie-waws," cyclonic winds peculiar to the region and probably attributable to the meeting of the cold winds from the north and the warm breezes from the Japan Current.

In addition to Mt. Shishaldin, Unimak has several other exceptional peaks. Pogromni Volcano, the mile-high sentinel of Unimak Pass in the western part of the island, today is but the broken shell of a vast crater which is said to have burst in 1795. Other violent eruptions are reported between 1827 and 1830. Lately it has been a very well behaved volcano. A thin, slow wisp of smoke is a constant reminder, however, of its lurid past. The Isanotsky Peaks are credited with a violent eruption within the last century, but, as is the case with so much of the rest of the history of the island, there is no confirmation. Their appearance suggests a long period of erosion rather than frequent activity.

Ship's "Eyes"

"Eyes" of a ship is a term applied to the foremost part of the bow, so called from the ancient practice which still obtains in parts of the Mediterranean and elsewhere of painting a large eye on each side of a vessel's prow-water as an emblem to avert the evil eye.

THIS IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR

Pledge to the Public on Used Car Sales

1 All used cars offered to the public shall be honestly represented.

If a car is suitable only for a mechanic who can rebuild it, or for some one who expects only a few months' rough usage on a camping trip, it must be sold on that basis. Each car must be sold for just what it is.

2 All Studebaker automobiles which are sold as CERTIFIED CARS have been properly reconditioned, and carry a 30-day guarantee for replacement of defective parts and free service on adjustments.

This is possible because tremendous reserve mileage has been built into every Studebaker, which it is impossible to exhaust in years.

3 Every used car is conspicuously marked with its price in plain figures, and that price, just as the price of our new cars, is rigidly maintained.

The public can deal in confidence and safety only with the dealer whose policy is "one price only—the same price to all." For, to sell cars on this basis, every one of them must be honestly priced to begin with.

4 Every purchaser of a used car may drive it for five days, and then, if not satisfied for any reason, turn it back and apply the money paid as a credit on the purchase of any other car in stock—new or used.

It is assumed, of course, that the car has not been smashed up by collision or other accident in the meantime.

Not only to the public, but also to The Studebaker Corporation of America, whose cars we sell, we pledge adherence to the above policy in selling used cars.

JOHN H. BATES, Inc.

The Studebaker Corporation of America takes pride and pleasure in announcing that the above Pledge is being carried out by

JOHN H. BATES, Inc.

WOBURN and WINCHESTER

THE Pledge speaks for itself. It is a formal declaration of the fair and square attitude of Studebaker dealers toward the public. It is an assurance of honest dealing in a line of merchandising which in some times and places has fallen into ill repute.

It is an assertion of confidence in the reserve mileage built into the sturdy "one-profit" Studebaker automobiles.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Often times men struggle for something for the inner man.
Women struggle for something for the outer woman.
No man can expect more out of his work than he puts into it.
Some men are too lazy to have good luck.
The real test of any man is the fight he makes.
Mix with people who are successful. We are all creatures of environment and we take on the qualities of those we rub against.

A man who has nothing to show for his ancestors is much like a potato plant, the best part of it is under ground.

TELEPHONE COMPANY PROMPT IN EMERGENCY

Malden, Mass.

Jan. 28, 1926

To the Editor of the Star:

You are always pleased to receive news items of local interest so I am providing the following for your use:
On Sunday evening, Jan. 24, Mr. T.
M. Farrell, Winchester Wire Chief received a visit at his home from the police.

The officer inquired of Mr. Farrell as to what had been done with Signal Box No. 5 located on Swanton street near Washington street. Mr. Farrell informed the representative of the law that he had no knowledge of the signal box being disturbed. The wire chief immediately got busy, however, and arranged for the placing of a temporary box which he had connected and working early the following morning.
The wire chief's prompt action and spirit of service brought an expression of satisfaction from the police as well as all who knew of the good work that had been done.

After a somewhat lengthy search, the original signal box was found thrown out on the ice of Black Ball Pond by someone who had evidently passed through the neighborhood and wished to annoy the police authorities.
Very truly yours,
W. M. Crotty, Mgr.

LEXINGTON HERE TONIGHT

Winchester High will entertain the basketball team from Lexington High School tonight in the local gymnasium.
Despite a defeat at the hands of the Watertown High outfit on Tuesday the locals are confident of winning from the minute-men and will work their hardest to this end since a victory will put them into a top triple tie in the Middlesex League.

Coach Mansfield was by no means discouraged with his team's showing against Watertown which school has a big rugged club and one much more experienced than his own five. Winchester has shown a decided improvement in its last few starts and against Stoneham played the best all around game seen on that court this season.
The local team still has a tendency to take things easy at the start of hostilities and Coach Mansfield has been working overtime in an effort to correct this fatal weakness.

Against Watertown his forwards missed many easy shots for the net due to the fact that the transparent glass backboards made the hoop hard to locate. In their own gymnasium it is a safe bet that the locals would have made many more of their shots good, and against Lexington the boys are expecting to miss but seldom.

The game will start promptly at 7:30 and the lineup will probably be the same as that which took the floor against Stoneham and Watertown.

WINCHESTER GIRLS AT MEL-ROSE TUESDAY

Coach Wheeler will take her Winchester High girls basketball team to Melrose Tuesday afternoon for an inter-scholastic skirmish with the red bloomered lassies of Melrose High.
Winchester has shown to much better advantage in its last few games and is all primed to make Melrose travel to the limit. Against Wellesley on Tuesday the local defense looked much better than has been the case previously, and had the girls been able to travel at top speed all the way they might have pulled out a win. Their week's rest should put them in fine fettle for Tuesday's meeting, and an interesting game is sure to result.
Winchester's lineup will probably be forwards, "Kay" Valleley and "Win" Rollo; centers, "Kay" Carlisle and
"Margaret" Stevens; backs, "Dot" Bond, "Kay" Von Nostitz, "Kay" Shultis and "Kay" Cassidy.

STREETS DESIGNATED FOR COASTING

In compliance with repeated requests that some place be provided by the town and made safe for coasting the police have designated and set apart Myrtle street, Fenwick road and the West end of Swanton street as spots where those so minded may enjoy this seasonal sport.

TWO JURORS APPOINTED

At last Monday's meeting of the Selectmen Messrs. Fred H. Scholl of 51 Vine street and James Cullen of 66 Salem street were drawn to serve as travellers jurors for the Feb. 15 session of the Superior Civil Court at East Cambridge. Mr. Scholl was drawn for the first session, Mr. Cullen for the second.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE BY REV.
DANIEL CRONIN, S. J.

On next Sunday evening, Rev. Daniel Cronin, S. J., will deliver a lecture in K. of C. Hall, Winchester, the talk to be illustrated with scenes of Jamaica, (British West Indies.)

The members of St. Dominic's circle which conduct every month an afternoon whist in aid of the Jesuit Missions at Jamaica have the lecture in charge and they extend to all a most cordial invitation to be present on Sunday evening and enjoy with them the scenes among which our Missionaries labor.

Fr. Cronin is noted as a splendid speaker and will no doubt make a profound impression on his hearers.
The time set for the lecture is 8
p. m. and there will be no admission charge. Miss Mabel M. Coyle, our well known talented singer will be the soloist.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The event of the season—Suzanne
Keener at the Town Hall, Feb. 22.

At the hearing held in Boston last week to discuss Mayor Nichols' plan to assess automobilists either $5 or $10 for city parking Mr. Thomas M.
Vinson of this town was one of the speakers who favored waiting until more data on the proposition was obtainable before arriving at any decision.
It has been announced that Mr.
Amasa Harrington of Winchester is one of those who have written in as favoring the proposed legislation. The next hearing on the matter is set for
Feb. 17.

It is reported that the bowling alleys now conducted on Main street by "Jerry" Sullivan will be taken over by T. J. Donovan of Boston within a few days. Mr. Donovan already has his license.

New carrots, two bunches 15c; fancy spinach, 25c pk.; iceberg lettuce, 10c and 15c head; mushrooms, 55c lb.; Arlington sausage, 35c lb.; pork to roast, 25c lb.; brisket corned beef, 25c lb.; short legs lamb, 37c lb.; special dell's Market, tel. 1271 and 1191.

Mrs. Mary Hogan of Medford, wife of Daniel W. Hogan, who died suddenly at Belair, Md., last week while on the way to Florida with her husband, will be remembered by some of the older residents of the town as a former teacher in the Winchester schools. She was 63 years of age.

A still alarm at 7:25 Wednesday evening called the firemen to put out a chimney fire at the home of Tony Tafari at 19 Spruce street.

The event of the season—Suzanne
Keener at the Town Hall, Feb. 22.

After a continued spell of mild weather extending through the whole month with one or two exceptions, zero temperature struck Winchester last night, and this morning the glass registered all the way from 0 to 8 below. A high wind last evening made it very unpleasant for anyone obliged to be out of doors. The indications are for warmer weather with the temperature rising gradually.

Congressman Harry I. Thayer today publicly announced that he would be a candidate for re-election from the 5th Massachusetts Congressional District. This early announcement was made on account of reports being circulated to the effect that Mr. Thayer would not be a candidate.

The Fire Department answered a still alarm at 11:20 Thursday forenoon for a chimney fire at the residence of Selectman John H. Powers on Mt. Vernon street. There was no damage.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherard Clay of Lloyd street left town Tuesday for a three months' stay at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Hakanson of Sheridan circle are among the Winchester people who will spend the remainder of the wintry weather in Florida.

Zero weather brought its accompaniment of fires last night and this morning, the firemen being called out several times to face the icy blast.
Fortunately none of these fires were serious and no damage of importance resulted. This morning between 8 and 9 an alarm from box 572 called the men out for a long run to Ridge street, where an attempt to thaw water pipes in the home of Thomas M. Hutchinson started a blaze. The firemen were also called to the same locality last night, when box 571 was called for a fire at the residence of J. H. Kernsey on Henry street. This was a chimney fire. Two still alarms last night called the department first, for a blaze on Ginn Field when burning brush was sending out dangerous sparks, and later for a chimney fire at the home of W. A. Ayer on Sylvester avenue.

KELANTAN: A RUBBER STATE IN ASIA'S FLORIDA

American automobile owners un-knowingly helped to pay the award of nearly $2,000,000 which the Malay state of Kelantan recently gave on court order to an Englishman. Kelantan is waxing financially fat on rubber so the treasury probably found no difficulty in compensating the winner of the case, which, among other things, revealed how English commerce penetrated Kelantan back in the eighties and how the state was incorporated into the British Empire in 1909.

Kelantan's present prospects and the improvements effected in its government are related in a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.
Has Mountains That Florida Lacks

Think of the Malay peninsula as an elongated Florida tacked on southeast Asia. Singapore shall be Key West; then the southern boundary of Kelantan is approximately in the position of Orlando and the northern boundary is 150 miles above, that is, at Jacksonville, Fla. Kelantan is 60 miles deep, which is a trifle more than half the width of Florida. Since Kelantan lies five degrees from the equator, it would be quite willing to trade mountains for a bit of Florida's latitude.

Miami had a 14-inch fall of rain recently which seems to put it in the running with Kelantan where over 100 inches fall annually in the plains district. When the figures are all in Florida's average will be shown only one-third as great. Kelantan's steeping climate swaths its hills in the densest of tropical forests. The jungle is matted above ground and matted below. An American surveyor boring for a bridge pier cut through 100 feet of crushed and rotting leaves and branches to find the bottom obstructed by a rotting trunk of a forest monarch that may have fallen more than a century before.

Green is a tyrant in Kelantan. A native will cut out a garden plot in the jungle. By dint of industry he can keep the jungle back for two years' crops of tapioca root. Two years abandonment results in a growth 10 feet high, impenetrable without an axe. Acres of Virginia farms abandoned during the Civil War support 30-foot pine trees, but one can still identify the old corn rows. Ten years after the Kelantan garden patch is surrounded, only the practiced eye can distinguish the spot from natural jungle.

Rice Beds and Pastures

But not all of Kelantan
The plain in the northeast largest level regions in the insula, affords views where no trees to be seen for miles; only rice beds glistening like windows of an enormous hothouse and grass pastures for cattle. Even the disordered jungle is giving way to the ordered rows of rubber trees. Rubber is now the most valuable export of Kelantan.
Two other tree products, coconuts and betel-nuts figure heavily in its trade. Betel-nuts are a chewing gum substitute of the Orient.

Kelantan offers a handy example of the East Indies before and after European intervention. Kelantan has been made safer for the ordinary native citizen and his family and a greater share of the profits of the citizen's toil come to him.

Government, Kelantan Style

The native conception of municipal government can be understood best by imagining a parallel political system set up in an American corn-belt town.
In the first place the mayor would regard the community solely as a source of wealth for himself although he would not live there but instead in Chicago. Neither would he take the responsibility for governing the town or collecting the taxes for himself since he could farm out that work to an exacting foreigner. In Kelantan the foreigner would be a Chinese.

Anyone in the community who committed a crime would be haled before a court in another city. Since the chief ends of justice, Kelantan style, are to support the judges, half the damages and costs, together with what terrorism, bribery and blackmail could exact, would go to these dignitaries. Once in jail the citizen's chance of getting out would be small indeed.

Friends Must Feed Prisoners

It would be necessary to abandon the clean, well-kept jail of our hypothetical mid-west town to approach the old Kelantan standard. In a vacant lot there would be erected a high, solid-planked palisade. Inside there would be a double row of stout wooden cages about 30 inches from the wall and six inches off the ground. The cage dimensions are six feet long, two feet wide and five feet high. If the jail is crowded two persons can be put in one cage. Slat of the cell allow little light and air and there are no sanitary facilities. While men who have entered such compounds in Malay states tell that the stench is overpowering. The jail warden would be permitted by law to feed his prisoners with a half bush of corn taken from every wagon entering town. None of the prisoners would ever get the corn.
Unless relatives and friends fed them, a fee being charged for this by the warden, the prisoners would starve.
Indeed, in Kelantan many did starve to death.

Continuing the parallel, the Midwest citizen's tax bill would have to be greatly augmented. There would be the poll tax to raise a tribute to the capital. The mayor in addition would send a consignment of goods which the townsmen would have to buy whether they wished the goods or not and at an exorbitant price. At command they would have to leave their cornfields to the weeds to cut timber in the wood lots, float it down the river, surrender it to the authorities and receive no compensation. In addition, if the farmer should try to re-

British Cut Tax Burden

British intervention in Kelantan has wiped away most evils of this medieval system, which was far worse in practice than anything Europe ever knew in the blackest centuries of the Dark Ages. Even the native ruler, who is still nominal head of the state, reigns in greater luxury, because he pays the taxes he levies ale British adviser has slashed at he may levy.

Kelantan has railroad service with Bangkok and Singapore now. A branch line came in from the north as far as the capital, Kota Bharu. Another finger line stretched toward it from the south. The fingers have joined and Kelantan's prosperity is assured for where the railroad goes in Malay Peninsula rubber goes.

WHY EGYPT LIMITS COTTON PLANTING

Cotton, Egypt's chief crop, is to be restricted during 1926. According to recent dispatches from Cairo, a law has just been placed in effect in Egypt which will prohibit the planting of more than one-third of the arable land with cotton this year.

The statute directs attention to peculiar physical features of the land of the Pharaohs, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.
For, although Egypt cuts a big notch in the map of northern Africa, only a narrow strip along 960 miles of the River Nile is arable or habitable. In an area which is about equal to that of Maryland, more than nine times
Maryland's population, or some 13-600,000 people, must be fed.

Egyptian Tobacco A Myth
It is necessary, therefore, for the government to enact stringent regulations concerning the use of this land.
Tobacco growing is prohibited. Farming land is much too precious to be used for luxuries, especially for such soil-enervating luxuries as tobacco.
Egypt has many cigarette factories and its cigarette makers are skilled in curing and blending tobacco, but the leaf is obtained elsewhere, generally from the Levant, or from the islands of the Aegean archipelago.

Egypt, as has so often been said, is the gift of the Nile. The life of the country, its trade, its foreign contacts, and even the character of its inhabitants have been molded to meet the capacities and the whims of this great stream. No country in the world is so dependent on a river.
Without the Nile Egypt would cease to exist as a fertile country. It would be only a desolate depression in the vast expanse of desert that stretches across northern Africa from the Atlantic to the Red Sea.

The Egyptian Type

The desert, however, has been a co-star with the Nile in the Egyptian spectacle of the ages. Cloudless blue skies, powerful sunlight, and dry, warm air have given Egyptian citizens a uniformity especially suited to the formation of definite types.
Domestic animals, in particular, give proof of its transforming influence.

Oxen, often exterminated by murrain, have been replenished by foreign breeds from every part of the globe, and in a few generations almost invariably assume the well known Egyptian type, familiar from the paintings and hieroglyphics of ancient tombs and temples.

The natives, too, have changed little. Despite a turbulent political career in the last few centuries, during the course of which Egypt has the builders of the Pyramids. To-day they speak Arabic and profess Mohammed as their prophet, but they still reverse the Nile, and they still irrigate their fields with its waters after the same fashion as the suc-

The Milk and Honey Express

The area watered by the Nile is thus being increased from an original acreage of a little more than 5,000,000 to nearly 8,000,000 acres. Tendrils of steel are following in the wake of those of water, in order that crops may be marketed readily. Egypt already possesses 3000 miles of railroad, extending along the Mediterranean coast and up the Nile to the First Cataract. It is connected with the railway systems of Europe and Asia by a line across the Sinai Peninsula, the route of the famous train known as "The Milk and Honey Express."

Charm of Brick House

Europe has been a land of brick houses for hundreds of years and America is rapidly emerging from the "Wooden Age." Many a traveler has returned from abroad with tales of the picturesque homes of England, quite unaware that the underlying cause of their charm lies in the material—solid, dignified brick—the appeal of which has only been enhanced by years of sunshine and storm.

360,000 Homes In One Year

A New York trust company estimates that home ownership was made possible for 360,000 families in one year through loans by institutions organized on the co-operative bank plan.

That means more than one-third of all such transactions throughout this land.

Our plan is constantly growing in favor because co-operative bank loans are fair, convenient and safe. We will be glad to furnish full particulars.

Newfoundland Is the Oldest British Colony

Newfoundland is often called "The Ancient Colony," because it is the oldest colony in the British empire. It was discovered by John Cabot, who sailed out of Bristol, England, in 1497. Cabot took possession of the island in the name of King Henry VII. Three years later the Portuguese under Gaspar Corte-Real explored portions of the coast. In 1588, during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, Sir Humphrey Gilbert renewed the claim of British possession, but his attempt to colonize was not a success, nor were the attempts made later by Lord Baltimore. During all these years the island was visited by fishing expeditions from England, France and Portugal, and the ownership of the island was a matter of dispute. It was finally settled by the Treaty of Utrecht of 1713, which brought to a close Queen Anne's war. By this treaty France acknowledged Britain's ownership of Newfoundland and ceded to Britain the region known as Acadia, now forming the provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

To Turn Wood Black

One of the simplest ways to stain wood black is to drop a small quantity of sulphuric acid into a little water, and then brush this over the wood. Afterwards, hold the wood to the fire, and the result will be a fine black color that will take a good polish.

Famous French Palace

The Louvre is a famous palace in Paris, originally the residence of French kings, but since the French revolution used as a museum of art and antiquities. The Louvre derives its name from an ancient hunting chateau that stood on the site of the present palace, in the midst of a forest infested with wolves and known as the Louverie. It is said to have been a royal residence in the time of Dagobert (628). The foundation of the present building was laid by Francis I in 1541, and the structure was enlarged and adorned by successive kings, particularly Henry IV and Louis XIV, the latter being the last king to live in it. The work of uniting the Louvre and the Tuilleries in one structure was completed in 1877; and the combined Louvre and Tuilleries covers an area of 48 acres.—Kansas City Times.

Washing the Flag

A reader questions the propriety of washing a flag and inquires what to do about it. Taking a navy official as authority, it is perfectly proper to wash the United States flag if this is carefully done so the colors will not run. And this is the way he says it should be done:

Use tepid water and pure soap or soap flakes for washing the flag. Do not wring it, but squeeze it out carefully and rinse in several clear, cold waters. Do not let it lie in the water and hang it up immediately after the last rinsing. Hang it so the stripes run up and down and the blue field hands over the line.

These precautions will prevent the colors from mingling.
Dry in the shade to avoid fading. If the flag requires pressing do this carefully.

Was Flirting With Other Fellow's Girl

He was a gallant post office clerk and for the moment business was slack. Presently to his joy a pretty girl entered the office.
"What can I do for you?" he asked with unusual affability.
"I want a 2-cent stamp," said the girl. "And would you mind weighing this letter for me as I'm afraid it may be a little too heavy."
Mind? He was delighted and chatted glibly about the weather while he executed her order. He ever volunteered to affix the stamp for her—a courtesy she accepted with a demure blush.
Just as he was placing the stamp on the envelope, however, she stopped him.
"Put it upside down," she requested.
"Why?" he asked.
"Oh," she replied, "that means something to Charlie!"
And the clerk's interest vanished as the clouds of monotony once more gathered on his horizon.

"House" and "Home"

A house is built of stone and brick, of pliers and posts and sills, but a home is built of loving deeds and endearing associations that last throughout hundreds of years. A house, though only a humble cottage, may within its modest walls hold a home, like a priceless gem in a ring, rich in affection's eternal gold.

Fish and Fish

In the Philippines there are fish that climb trees, fish that squirt poison through syringes, fish so small that 10,000 of them, matured, make a light breakfast for a native, and fish that live on dry land and drown when placed in the water.

Not an Easy Job to Get Python to Eat

When kept in captivity, pythons often refuse food and go on a prolonged "hunger-strike," which frequently results in death.

To obviate this it is necessary to feed the big snakes by forcible means, and a writer in the Wide World Magazine gives a very interesting description of how this is done.
"It is a very simple process," he says. "Our python was carried out to a sunlit grassy lawn. One man held the snake's tail, a second fastened its middle, while a third gripped its head and forced open its jaws. Koyorka squatted in front and, taking a pound of meat, gently thrust it into the snake's capacious throat, and with a smooth, round stick, about a foot in length, pressed the meat into the reptile's gullet. It was now the second man's job to caress the meat and massage it a yard down the long, red lane. No. 3 then took charge and carefully worked the lump down to the pocket where the stomach is located."

Gorilla Near Extinction

Among the rare animals which are in danger of extinction is the gorilla, though between 100 and 200 still remain in the Belgian big game sanctuary in the Congo.

The Gleaning Bell

In many parts of rural England one may still hear the gleaming bell being sounded at morn and eventide, to tell the country folk when they may begin gleaming and when they must cease.

The custom is of considerable antiquity, being mentioned by Tusser in the year 1557. As a rule, the bell is sounded from the belfry of the parish church, and the ringer is entitled to a penny for the whole period from each family that goes gleaming.
In some parishes, however, a crier permebrates the district with a hand bell while in others a gong, suspended from a tripod on the village green, is utilized.

Meals for Sponges

One of the hardest things to believe is that the sponge you use daily was once an animal, and not a vegetable growth of the ocean. Sponges live their own lives, and eat their own food as other animals do.
The separate existence of a sponge begins with the breaking away from the parent of a tiny particle. The latter, after being whirled about for a time by tides and currents, eventually attaches itself to a piece of rock, and from that home it seeks its own livelihood.
The food of infant sponges consists of yolk cells, which contain a form of nourishment. Later, as the sponge grows, it requires something more solid, and this is brought by the currents, which sweep into a bag—half-mouth, half-stomach—minute particles of the new food.

Wood Used for Type

Hard maple is used to a far greater extent than any other species for wood type. Maple is very hard and dense, and stands up well under severe treatment. It also "stays put" after being cut to final form. For electrotypesetting and wood engravings cherry has in the past been very largely used, but due to the scarcity of this wood others are being substituted.

WINCHESTER AND WELLESLEY GIRLS TIE

Winchester and Wellesley High School girls' basketball teams played a thrilling 28 to 28 tie game on Tuesday afternoon in the local gymnasium. The locals were playing their second game in two days, and had they been able to maintain the pace set in the first half, might have defeated their opponents. The game was very fast, and for the first time this year Coach Wheeler's charges went out in front from the start. The half ended with Winchester having what looked like a comfortable lead, the score standing 17 to 8 in its favor.

Whether the local girls figured Wellesley was going to be soft for them or whether the fast pace had taken too heavy a toll of their reserve stamina is a question. At all events they slowed perceptibly, and the visitors added 12 points to their score during the third quarter while holding Winchester to 5.

With the score in its favor, 22 to 20 the locals braced and the game became the fastest in which they had figured this year. Nevertheless Wellesley pulled up even, and from then until very nearly the end of the battle the lead saw-sawed back and forth in a most thrilling manner. Forty seconds before the final whistle the visitors were leading 23 to 26 when "Kay" Valley led a floor race to make it even 28-28. With the crowd in an uproar Winchester held its opponents even until the referee's whistle ended the battle with the score deadlocked.

Wilson and "Vin" Rollo were the game's high scorers, the former scoring 19 and the latter 17 points. Winchester's defense looked much better than in previous appearances.

The score:
WINCHESTER: K. Valley, 17; H. Stokelberg, 10; Rollo, 19; J. Smith, 10; J. M. Gerber, 10; Stevens, 10; E. Snow, 10; D. Bond, 10; M. E. Gehl, 10; K. Von Nostitz, 10; E. Wilson, 10; K. Cassidy, 10.
WELLESLEY: K. Valley, 17; H. Stokelberg, 10; Rollo, 19; J. Smith, 10; J. M. Gerber, 10; Stevens, 10; E. Snow, 10; D. Bond, 10; M. E. Gehl, 10; K. Von Nostitz, 10; E. Wilson, 10; K. Cassidy, 10.

Score Winchester 28, Wellesley 28. Goals from the floor, Rollo 8, Valley 5, Wilson 3, Gehl 3, Paul goals, Valley, Rollo, Wilson, Gehl 3. Referee, Smith and Wellsman. Scorer, Newman, Timor, Livingston. Time, four eight minute periods.

C. D. OF A. INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

The best of many fine installations held by the local court, daughters of America, on evening of last week in Lexington. There was a large attendance which included many guests from town, Reading, Stoneham and Woburn and several Grand Regents from sister courts.

The installing officer was Miss Frances Ahern, D. D., of Arlington and she was assisted by her Monitor, Mrs. Mary Grannan also of Arlington. The newly installed officers of Winchester Court follow:

Grand Regent—Mrs. Annie E. Vayo
Vice Regent—Mrs. Nellie Moffett
Professors—Mrs. Mary O'Connor
Monitor—Mrs. Bridget Murray
Sentinel—Mrs. Nora O'Melia
Financial Secretary—Mrs. Anna Hanlon
Historian—Miss Mary Martin
Treasurer—Mrs. Catherine Keane Line Lynch, Miss

Grath
An especially pleasing feature was the appearance of Mrs. Rooney, organist of Court Reading, a former resident of Winchester and the wife of former Tax Collector A. William Rooney. Mrs. Rooney was warmly greeted by her old friends and her interesting talk was much enjoyed.

On behalf of the court, handsome pictures were presented to Grand Regent Vayo and to District Deputy Ahern while gold pieces were given to four retiring officers: including Vice Regent Mrs. Frances T. Conlon, Monitor Mrs. Elizabeth Bullard, Trustee Mrs. Elizabeth T. Powers, and Lecturer Mrs. Elizabeth C. McDonald.

A splendid entertainment program was provided and much enjoyed by all present. Groups of songs were sung by Mrs. Mollie Maguire, Miss Mabel Coty and Mrs. Mary McGrath and there were readings by Miss Marion McLaughlin. Featuring the entertainment were solos by Mrs. Mary Kerr, Grand Regent of Court Reading and some really clever humorous monologues by Grand Regent Ahern, D. D., of Arlington.

Work Must Have Been Terror to Printers

It has always been a subject of unpassioned debate among the unfortunate who have to deal with such things just how bad a manuscript can be.

We have Ben Jonson's word for it that Shakespeare never blotted a line—which must have endeared him to his copyist and printers, no matter what the critical Ben thought of it. We have also Arnold Bennett's assertion that he never touches pen to paper until he has his subject so well thought out that all he need worry about is calligraphy. We know that Anatole France shamelessly seized scissors, paste and pen and began the real revision when the proof sheets arrived, the Living Age says.

But the glory of writing very nearly the worst manuscript in literary history, must certainly go to Dostoevsky. The great Russian seems to have had nearly as hard a time keeping his pen sedately at its own proper employment as the ordinary run of mortals experience when they sit down to express what they believe to be thoughts.

One page, which has found its way from his family's possession into the Dostoevsky room in the Historical museum at Moscow, shows a portrait sketch, a debt bit of Gothic architecture, and the name Rachel scrawled over and over again in Roman letters of copperplate perfection, contrasting oddly with the incredible badness of the Russian writing.

With all this it is amazing that the novelist should find any room at all for his writing—but he did, and for innumerable corrections, interlineations, and marginal corrections, also.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The sixth anniversary of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States was commemorated on Sunday, Jan. 17, in thousands of churches and places of public gatherings throughout the length and breadth of the country.

Several pastors of the churches in Winchester spoke of the benefits which our country has received through this great law, and urged the people to do all in their power for its proper enforcement. In the afternoon a patriotic meeting for children was held in the vestry of the First Baptist Church. Mrs. M. Ella Ricker, State Superintendent of Children's Work was the speaker. With much enthusiasm the children voted to hold a meeting once a month.

Our minds turn back to that meeting held in Washington six years ago, when there were gathered together United States Senators, Congressmen and many high officials of the government, to observe the inauguration of the Eighteenth Amendment, which marked the coming into force of this mightiest of reforms the world has ever seen. There was a solemn stillness which seemed to emphasize the realization that this hour marked not the end, but the beginning of effort, for they realized that it took time to bring about great reforms.

Slavery was abolished in 1807. In 1817 Monroe called for more enforcement laws.

In the thirties 200,000 slaves were smuggled across annually. Not until 1871 do we find the last act against the slave made, nearly two generations.

Lotteries were forbidden many years ago, but only eternal vigilance keeps them from raising their heads from time to time. So with this greatest moral amendment to the Constitution it is not reasonable to look for a perfect consummation of its benefits in six short years.

WINDS THAT BLOW UP AND DOWN

That winds blow up and down as well as horizontally was forcibly brought home to many people for the first time by the destruction of the "Shenandoah." Far from being unusual, such "vertical winds" lie at the heart of some of our best known weather phenomena, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Every flash of lightning that you see, or that you hear as thunder and every pellet of hail that falls is probably due to a "vertical wind," says the bulletin. These are the fruits of rather violent upward and downward blasts. If you consider as well the gentler rising and falling currents—the "vertical breezes," let us say—you must take pretty much the whole field of weather for your sphere.

Rising Air Important Weather Factor
Practically every surface wind, whatever be its direction or speed, is moving along to replace air which has risen. Clouds, too, are built by rising air. The elusive little circles on weather maps that denote "lows" and "highs" are in final analysis the representation of upward and downward air currents. Where cold air from the upper regions flows down it compresses the surface atmosphere and produces a "high"; where the air, because of heat, is rising, it relieves the pressure and forms a "low." Most weather phenomena are due to the interplay of forces between "highs" and "lows," which bring in their train changes in wind, temperature and humidity.

The most spectacular of the effects of "vertical" winds are thunder storms. As the tracer bullet marks the flight of projectiles for a marksman, so the great towering "thunder head" marks the upward rush of the invisible wind. Often these thunder clouds may be seen growing before one's eye. Seldom is the growth slow and orderly. More often it is violent, and the upsurging clouds appear to boil madly. Thunder storms are usually local affairs and the wind that has rushed upward must come quickly earthward again to restore the atmospheric balance. In the rear of thunder storms, therefore, strong downward currents are usually encountered. It was such an upward then downward rush of air, apparently, that played an important part in the destruction of the Shenandoah.

Where Lightning Comes From

Until comparatively recently the origin of the tremendous charges of electricity in a thunder storm baffled science. Now it is pretty generally believed that they are caused by the upward gusts of air—that these are in truth the dynamos of the sky. The building up of the electrical charges is supposed to be brought about by the gusts blasting raindrops to pieces, the smaller fragments carrying negative charges upward while the large droplets with positive charges remain behind. Hostile forces are established and when the strain becomes too great it is relieved by a lightning flash. When the negatively charged upper cloud floats away before the strain is relieved, the flash is to the earth.

Vertical winds are also credited with the production of hail, and their onion-like structure bears out the theory. Raindrops carried upward by the less violent gusts, according to this hypothesis, are frozen in the cold upper air. Sinking in the boiling cloud they acquire more moisture on the lower levels and are again carried to the freezing region. On the number of skyward trips made before they escape from the boiling cloud and fall earthward depends the size of the hailstones.

No Corn Just Then

An English girl visiting in America and Kansas City for the first time, gazed doubtfully at an ear of corn served her the other day at a hotel, then watched her American friend demonstrate the process of roasting ear consumption. "It is fascinating to watch you," she told her friend. "But I don't believe I'll try it—I've just had my hair washed."—Copper's Weekly.

NEPTUNE'S FIRE WATER

Phosphorescence bright enough to make newspaper headlines readable, which was recently encountered by the Navy aircraft tender Patoka in the Gulf of Mexico, is a fairly common phenomenon in many parts of the world, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The ghostly, eerie fire of the waves, however, has nothing to do with the substance that goes into the manufacture of matches, despite a remarkable resemblance and an obvious derivation of name.

For, although sea water contains salts of phosphorus, called phosphates, it has no free, uncombined quantities of the element. Luminescence, the name preferred by recent investigators, is a more appropriate term, as the light is largely the result of the oxidizing, or burning, of minute particles of dead animal and vegetable matter, the oxygen being derived from small amounts dissolved in sea water.

In addition there is a phosphorescence, or luminescence, of living organisms. Several varieties of protophyta, tiny single-cell plants that float on the surface of the water, diffuse the dull glow called milky sea in the Far East, or white water of the Gulf of Aden. Certain forms of bacteria are also luminescent, and are often visible on sand and on fish cast up by the sea. This glow is not due to decay, for when decay sets in its luminescence ceases.

Some forms of sea fire are highly incandescent, giving off an intense, almost white, light. Sometimes it is difficult to believe that one would not have one's fingers burned by touching it. Others are golden yellow, blue and even red and green, giving weird, uncanny effects on dark nights. It may have been from some such inspiration that Coleridge drew the atmosphere for The Ancient Mariner.

Norwegian fishermen distinguish between two kinds of the phenomenon: dead phosphorescence and fish phosphorescence. The former resembles stars in a clear sky, myriads of tiny, nearly invisible, points emitting a scintillating light; now increasing, now decreasing, in intensity. Fish phosphorescence consists of great bubbles of light caused by fish rushing through the water. The fish disturb minute phosphorescent organisms, which flare up suddenly in response to the irritation produced.

It is the latter variety that so delights the visitor to strange lands and waters. It is this phosphorescence that gives the midnight wave tops their brilliant sparkle as they break on the shore, or bathes the oar in a magic glow as it ruffles the surface, or leaves the cometlike track of the stone dropped into the water.

Here's One Writer Has Good Word for Spider

The predaceous habits of spiders make them most useful to man. Our selfish interests should preserve and protect them, except where they annoy the housewife by building dust-catching and unsightly webs indoors. Even then they might be given a place. All forms are diligent producers of their kind, and were it not for their numerous enemies there would be enough spiders to alter considerably the overproduction of noxious insects. In comparison to the insects there are few spiders, both of species and of individuals. Considering the number of eggs spiders lay and the protective care they give their eggs, this seems surprising. But when we observe the ceaseless activity of birds, shrews, toads, snakes, lizards, robberflies, certain parasitic insects and, most particularly, mud dauber and digger wasps, it is more surprising that spiders exist at all.

Evidence Against It

A Chinese scholar asserts that America was discovered by his countrymen 1,000 years before Columbus came. This cannot well be a fact, since the institution of the laundry ticket was entirely unknown to the redmen.—Portland Oregonian.

Tonic in Air Travel, According to Doctor

At a medical convention in New York one of the speakers heartily urged tired business men to ride in the air as a tonic to lethargic mental processes. He says the air is vitiated at street level in the city, and those who would think clearly and to the point should soar aloft, taking their problems, light or heavy, as fellow passengers, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

All that holds back many persons from using the plane as a means of locomotion is the fear of falling. The best way to cure that fear is to fly. The many who have tried it do not need to be reminded of their exhilarating sentiment of utter security. One who flies is bereft of the ordinary yardsticks of measurement and feels disengaged from compass bearings as from plummetings of the depth beneath. Space seems the same on every hand; height loses its meaning, except as it expands the horizon. It is attachment to the earth, not detachment from it, that brings dizziness.

The supremely inspiring sensation is to feel oneself borne up and up, without apparent effort or any limitation, as though supported by a great, strong, supernatural hand that could not fail. Those who travel in a closed cabin, impervious to anything but a book or a card game, will not derive from the experience the thrill of travel in an open plane. It is hard to imagine that in days to come the hardened commuter will sleep or frivel away his hours aloft, frankly bored by the panorama beneath him. One who flies will lose much of the benefit if, having all the pure air there is, he does not fill his lungs with it.

Tree Frogs Creatures of Peculiar Habits

Many strange variations in breeding habits and rearing of young characterize the tree frogs of tropical America. A famous South American species makes small pens or nurseries under water, in which its eggs are left to hatch, and where the tadpoles are confined, protected from all danger. Another species carries its large eggs on its back until they hatch and the young remains some time afterward. Another species develops pouches in the skin of the back of the female, in which the eggs and young are safely transported.

North American tree frogs possess to a remarkable degree the faculty of changing color by modification of the contents of the pigment cells under the skin, no doubt a provision to enable them to elude their enemies. In winter they bury themselves in the earth or in the decayed wood and dust of old stumps, and breed in the spring.

Rubbing It In
"Was Jack heartbroken when you jilted him?" "No. He was perfectly horrid." "What did he do?" "When I gave back the ring he took a little file out of his pocket and made a notch on the inside." "What was horrid about that?" "There were five notches in it already."—Women Advance.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

ARE YOU KEEPING THAT RESOLUTION?

"We should always have secret agreements with ourselves to do certain important things from day to day," says George Matthew Adams, the noted journalist. "And these agreements should be kept to the letter. WE CAN'T HANDLE AN ADVERSARY UNTIL WE HAVE LEARNED TO HANDLE OURSELVES."

If you're beginning to slip on that good resolution you made on New Year's, take a fresh start today. Say to yourself that it will be easier this time—you've covered some of the ground before and you know what the pitfalls are.

Don't think that it's weak to make resolutions. It's only weak to break them.

"There is something very strong about the man who carries promises in his heart, and who means to keep them," says Adams.

WINCHESTER TAKES STONEHAM IN LEAGUE CLASH

Winchester High won a Middlesex League basketball game from Stoneham High last Friday evening in the latter's gymnasium, 31 to 18, being on top all the way.

Any team looks good when winning, but against Stoneham Winchester showed its best game of the year. Had its club approached the same standard at Belmont, the boys would have won handsily and be leading the league this minute.

Last Friday the locals went right after the battle from the start. Capt. "Wop" Rolli and "Sport" Kendrick were back at the forward berths after a game's layoff, and the former sent his team into the lead with a clean basket shortly after the opening whistle. McCauley was getting the tap at center regularly and Winchester's passing game and floor work were too much for the Stoneham boys. Shortly before the half which ended 16 to 6 in Winchester's favor Coach Mansfield sent in an entirely new line-up and the same shift was made again during the last quarter. Here Stoneham made its best showing holding the locals a bit better than even during the closing minutes of the game.

Between the halves the Winchester second team defeated the Stoneham seconds, 9 to 8, with Ross and Smith showing best for the locals.

The score of the varsity game follows:

WINCHESTER	STONEHAM
Rolli, rf.	lg. Metcher
B. Murphy, rf.	lg. Coy
Kendrick, lf.	lg. Ford
Haley, lf.	rg. Randuce
McCauley, c.	c. Taylor
Fitzgerald, c.	c. Richards
Johnson, rg.	lf. Adizigian
Knowlton, rg.	lf. Adizigian
Harriman, lg.	rf. Clark
Reardon, lf.	rf. Anderson

Score—Winchester 31, Stoneham 18. Goals from floor—Valley 5, Rollo 3, Locke 10, Anderson 4. Floor goals counting one point—Valley 4. Referee, Fifeild. Scorer, Newman. Timer, Hamm. Time, four eight minute quarters.

WINCHESTER GIRLS WIN AT BELMONT

The girls' basketball team of the Winchester High School invaded Belmont Monday afternoon with better results than those attained by its brother hoop tossers when it returned on the long end of a 32 to 28 booking after a strenuous debate with the girls' sextette of that town. The game was a practise tilt to put the girls on edge for their league battle with Wellesley the next p. m. and Coach Wheeler's charges found the Belmont lassies foemen worthy of their steel.

Recently the Spectator saw a copy of "Peirce on the Weather." The book is not costly but has long been out of print. The droughts, rains and snows as they came in the days of a far younger republic are told almost as briefly as if they were pages from the log book of a ship. The book is now out of print and has been so for a long time. There are out-of-print books cheap enough if you can find them, but not often found. Rarely may not mean a high price—if there are only 100 copies of a book left and only 25 persons likely to buy it—it will not bring a large sum. A man who had known John Dorgan was delighted to own a copy of his poems. He lost it, he sought it in divers places, he advertised for it—all in vain—subsequently he got a copy for 10 cents and glad was he to obtain it; but it may be 10 years before he runs across another copy. A Winchester gentleman who is quite a book worm and spends a lot of time in second-hand book stores in the large cities he visits told the Spectator of a collector who saw something particularly tempting—the title we never heard. But, at all events, the dealer said "You don't see that every day, I want $25 for that book." The customer paid with cheerfulness, and went forth—later he said that he had sold it for $700. If this buyer was given to exaggeration, arithmetic assures us that if he sold it for 10 per cent of $700 he came out handsomely on his purchase. Longingly did an Italian gaze at a medical dictionary, and apparently he was better qualified to absorb medical information than to translate from the English. "What do you want for it?" he asked. "Five dollars," "I would gladly give you $25 if it was Italian," he replied, and went his way. Some weeks later he returned, and bought the coveted volume. No doubt he had used the interval well and had made some progress in our tongue. It may be that he learned what he wished to learn more thoroughly because he dug it out with difficulty from another tongue. Les says that a German once said to him: "When I read the Bible in English, I pay closer attention than when I read it in my mother-tongue." Maury, on his first voyage, could find only one book in navigation, and that was written in Spanish—he dug and dug away until he understood it, and surely he learned navigation as few have learned it. Herbert Hoover says that at one time he desired certain information about old-time mines, and could find only one author who could give the information. Agricola has not been translated, Hoover had to work on his way through the Latin. "It was a hard job," he said, "but well worth it."

All of the boys in the game the Spectator has seen many a time and out. Not one of them ever bore the marks of combat. "Fighting is out of style," said a Winchester youngster, "I have heard of one fight in our school this term, and that one I didn't see and it may have been a false alarm." The physical encounter among boys is certainly not as much in evidence as it was a generation ago.

It is safe for the Spectator to tell this now for the guilty one is far from Winchester. A certain individual was not remarkable for paying his bills or for any of the homely virtues, but his manners were pleasing and he hoodwinked several of his fellow citizens. Somebody said that he was a mere idler. "No," was another person's reply. "He works—I was told that the person who said this believes that a hypocrite was somebody who either worked at a hippodrome or took care of a hippopotamus."

Alfred Harmsworth was one of the great newspapermen of the world, and it is not wonderful that he became Lord Northcliffe. But why should a prominent newspaper say that this gave him "the privilege of writing his name with a capital 'N'?" Most Winchesterites write proper names with capitals. Directories seem to consider this good form. The Star has followed this custom since its very inception. Nevertheless there are a number of persons who either did not go to school long enough to learn anything about capitalization or who forgot what they had learned. The Spectator was once present at an election held by a young people's society and assisted in the counting of the ballots. The number inscribed "john" or "anna" was large. What is harder to understand is this: The Spectator has seen perhaps eight or 10 letters written by one who invariably uses capitals for surnames but seems to count the beginning of a Christian name as indifferent. "Brown" and "Smith" she always capitalizes, but it may be a "William" or "william." The letters, it should be added, are very clearly expressed.

DEATH

(Written for the Winchester Star)

When on the bed of death,
Sickness, or age, or weary frame shall lay,
And fast our fleeting breath
Its airy flight shall wing,
No power of earthly balm can then ally
The pains of conscience sting.
A still but dreadful sound,
With magic voice, of actions past will tell,
How in the riddy round
Of fashion's idle mase,
We stepped enshrouded beneath a willing spell,
And courted Folly's bliss.
'Twill speak of wasted hours,
On talents laid on Pleasure's glittering shrine
Of Dissipation's bowers,
Those fruitless courts of shame,
Where falsehood, lust, intemperance, combine
To mar the virtuous name.
Cold Faith no power can boast
To calm the aching heart with guilt oppressed:
For, on the doubtful coast
Of dark eternity,
Vice, in her naked form, will stand confessed,
And meet the closer eye.
'Tis conscious worth alone,
Can strewn with flowers the passage to the tomb:
And while the anguished moan
Bursts from the heaving breast,
And racking the strength of body consume,
Can lull the mind to rest.
When in that awful hour,
The soul of man its last eternal flight shall wing.
May we, Almighty Power!
With joyful piety, Triumphant ask of Death, "Monster—Thy Slings?"
Of grave—"Thy Victory!"

ST. MARY'S COP AT MEDFORD

St. Mary's basketball team of this town defeated the Medford Independents 21-20, in a fast game of basketball Tuesday evening in the Dame School, that city. The contest was very close all the way but Francis Tansey's scoring ability proved enough to give the locals the edge. Duke showed best for the home club.

The summary: MEDFORD
ST. MARY'S
J. Callahan, Jr., lb, Murphy
J. Dolan, Jr., lb, DeFina
T. Dolan, Jr., lb, Gordon Flaherty, lb, Hanson
Murray, lb, Thomas
Quigley, lb, Hanson
Score—St. Mary's 21; Independents 20.
Floor goals, Tansey 6, J. Callahan, Flaherty, Murray, Duke 2, Gordon 2, Thomas 2, DeFina 2, Murphy, Hanson. Foul goals, Flaherty 2, T. Dolan. Referee, Brooks. Time, four eight minute periods.

THE WINTER

(Written for the Winchester Star)

A cloud! speedily flying 'cross the sky,
Another, following its long course on high,
And quickly sailing over the earth a third,
A bank of them, as if a trumpet heard.
And caused by the clouds a turning brown,
A darkness spreads itself above the town.
And then the wind a-whistling through the trees:
A hurricane, from just a little breeze!
A storm upon us, furiously came,
Its many cold and early winter blasts.
For winter driving sparkling hoards before,
Heavily whistles past the oaken door!

Course of Many Holes

A "dude" ranch out West boasted a golf course. The owner of the ranch was telling a friend about it. "And how many holes has your golf course?" inquired the friend. "That's hard to answer," replied the ranch owner. "You see, we have all the badger holes filled up and we're just starting on the gopher holes."

Early American Ship

The first American-built vessel to make a deep-sea voyage, the Trial, was launched 283 years ago, January 12, 1642. The builder was Capt. Thomas Coytmore, who was also the first commander of the vessel. The Trial was constructed at Boston and was of 165 tons burden. In these days of Leviathans and Mauretanas few persons would care to trust their lives to such a craft for even a short voyage, but in its day the Trial was considered a good ship and brought a rich return to its owners.

Peanut Not ProperlyAppreciated as Food

The peanut sold in this country, mainly to boys in the street and to persons wishing to feed the animals in the zoo, is rapidly becoming an article of the greatest commercial value. Already it is being used in the production of 145 foods and useful articles.

From the peanut we obtain peanut butter, ten varieties of milk, five kinds of breakfast food, two grades of flour, ice cream, salad oil, sauce, metal polishes, toilet and laundry soaps, oleo margarine, wood stains, leather dyes, ink, and glycerin.

A teaspoonful of peanuts can be made into a pint of milk, while the nuts make a better hard substitute than does cottonseed oil. Mixed with wheat flour, peanuts make a palatable and highly nutritious bread; they also make excellent biscuits and cakes.

Strictly speaking, the peanut is not a nut at all; it is what is called a "legume"—akin to the bean and pea. The peanuts grow underground, and the crop is harvested with a plow, there being special machines which clean and bunch the nuts.—London Times.

Remove the Stains

When the glass oven door becomes blackened and you are unable to see the food in the oven, use baking soda as you would a soap powder, and the door will become bright and clean.

Sight Not at BestBefore Age of Six

A child does not attain his keenest eyesight until he is six years old or more. Small objects are not so well seen, the parts of the brain devoted to vision being incompletely developed.

This is the statement of Dr. Edward Jackson, Denver specialist, who writes for Hygeia, popular health magazine published by the American Medical association, in an article on "The Baby's Eyes."

Abundant reason exists for using large type in primers, says Doctor Jackson. Fine stitching, beadwork and similar exercises, such as are sometimes expected of young children in kindergarten, may be quite harmful. Even when the object looked at is so small the young child must not be expected to look at it long at a time, but should be encouraged to turn the eyes away frequently to rest them. To "keep the eyes on the book" at times when they are tired does not help the child to learn and may be harmful.

Because they can hold things close to their eyes and still see them, and because they need larger images of what they look at to make up for the incomplete development of the eye, young children are liable to acquire the habit of holding things too near their eyes. As they grow older this should be corrected by encouraging them to try to see things at longer distances. Many children starting to school have eyestrain, or even inflammation about the eyes, merely because they hold their books too close to their eyes.

Banish Depression

Death should not depress us, for if we brood on death we make a depressing thing of life. The final earthly chapter is, after all, a common, natural, and general experience. Looked at in the right light, the thought should inspire us, for who knows what great wonders may lie immediately beyond?—Exchange.

Town Has Many Churches

Many church buildings are to be found in the towns of Pwllheli, Wales. It is a town of about 4,000 inhabitants, with a mayor and corporation, and boasts 14 houses of worship. Two alone would accommodate every church-going man, woman and child in the place, leaving the others without a single worshiper.

Some Things for Good"Sports" to Remember

Sport is sometimes criticized for the unfairness of its participants or the partisanship of its followers.

It has a mission besides the development of a healthy body, surely it is in the encouragement of fair-mindedness in the players and on the grandstand. Toward this end the following Golden Rules were printed recently on the back of a program by the army school of physical training in England, and these rules will well bear repetition elsewhere:

Play the game for the sake of the game.

Play for your side, and not for yourself.

Be a good winner and a good loser—modest in victory and generous in defeat.

Take all decisions without question or argument.

Be unselfish and always ready to teach and help others.—Toronto Globe.

Devices for FoilingFestive Holdup Man

While it may be impossible to prevent a visit from the holdup man there's no need for a merchant to give up a big sum of money simply because he demands it, says the Progressive Grocer.

In the first place, all the money possible should be banked late in the afternoon. If the bank closes at four o'clock everything should be cleaned up and banked by that time. If the bank keeps open until six o'clock or nine o'clock so much the better, for merchants should see that their cash registers or money drawers do not get too full. Along about the time the crowd begins thinning out, and before stragglers start coming in, the bulk of the money, the big bills, most of the fives and all those of larger denominations, are taken from the place where the money is kept and change is made. This money should be hidden away without even the clerks knowing where it is put.

One suggestion made by a detective is that one of the keys of the cash register be wired in such a way that, when it is pushed, the signal of distress is given.

Three alarms came in during the cold weather of last Sunday. The first was at 5:20 in the afternoon and was a telephone call from the Norris Block where smoke from a newly built fire caused some apprehension. At 7:30 the apparatus was called out by a still alarm for a blaze which destroyed a shack on Florence street used by the boys of the district as a clubhouse and at 8:30 p. m., Box 36 was rung in for a fire in the Studebaker sedan of Mr. Timothy Callahan of Oak street.

Winchester residents would do well to remember that the "no parking signs" placed opposite the Central Fire Station are there in the interests of public safety and that in moving them so as to park their cars while attending entertainments in the Town Hall they are taking a chance not only of having their property damaged but also of causing injury to some of the town's fire fighters. The pieces of apparatus need all the room they can get in making the turn out of the Central Station to answer an alarm and the signs are placed with a view of keeping a sufficient space for that purpose clear. The life of a fireman is sufficiently fraught with hazard without having the public he serves willfully make the danger he faces greater.

FIREMEN'S BALL TONIGHT

Big Crowd Expected for Annual Festivities

Arrangements are complete to handle another capacity crowd this evening when the annual Concert and Ball of the Winchester Firemen's Benefit Association will be held in the Town Hall. Last year the hall was taxed to the utmost and to all appearances the interest is just as keen this season. Not alone is the public solidly behind the project because the cause it represents is a particularly worthy one. The Firemen's Ball, as an entertainment, is perfectly able to stand alone, and many are attracted solely by the excellence of the program offered.

This year's committee has been to considerable plans to book an all-star bill for the entertainment end of the evening's program and the sketches as announced seem to promise some rare diversion for those not primarily interested in dancing.

The entertainment program follows:

Louis Cheever, New England's Greatest Pianist
Grace Chadwick, "In Moments of Melody"
Dick Gould, "Reading the Announcements"
Harry McGowan
The Delavan Sisters
Something New in Dancing
Lambert Brothers, Versatile Instrumentalists (Of the famous orchestra which learns their name)
Page and Shaw, Two Dancing Chocolate Drops (Late of Colored Show, "Shuffle Along") Dolly Varney
A Clever Girl Singing Clever Songs
"The Three of Us"

Melody—Syncope—Harmony
Pianist—Miss Helen Driscoll

The various committees for the affair include the following:

Hall—E. S. Flaherty
Printing—A. W. MacKenzie, E. G. Beaton, J. Gorman
Music—E. D. Fitzgerald, J. J. Flaherty, J. Hanlon
Entertainment—J. Gorman, A. W. MacKenzie, George R. Nowell, E. S. Flaherty, Edward Fitzgerald
Reception—F. Duffy, R. S. Scanlon, H. Skerry, J. E. Noonan, H. E. Brown

At the conclusion of the concert numbers dancing will be enjoyed until 1 o'clock to the strains of Leo Daly's well known orchestra.

LUCKY WINCHESTER!

Winchester is indeed fortunate in at last being given an opportunity to hear Suzanne Keener, Coloratura Soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York with her accompanist who comes to the Town Hall on Feb. 22 at 8 o'clock. Miss Keener who was loaned by the Metropolitan Opera Company to the "Peg O' My Dreams Company" to take the leading role, has just returned from a six weeks' concert tour of Florida where she sang to thousands of people, and was acclaimed the premier concert singer of America today.

An American by birth her beauty and charm, coupled with her remarkable voice have endeared her to the hearts of the American music loving public. Miss Keener was to appear in Winchester on Dec. 2, but because of the fact that the Fortnightly were holding their show on Dec. 4, and the desire of the Committee of the American Legion not to conflict, the date was advanced to Feb. 22. This necessitates a special trip for Miss Keener from New York to Winchester as Miss Keener is booked for the entire month of February in New York.

As an added attraction Miss Keener will be accompanied by 10 pieces of the 18th Century Candlelight Orchestra, an organization formed by Sr. Rafaelo Martino and endowed by old time music lovers to dig up the scores of 18 century music, and which has scored a decided success all over the country. They appear in Colonial costume and play by candlelight.

Miss Keener will also appear in colonial costume, and the ushers, made up of members of the American Legion Ladies' Auxiliary will wear the costume of the ladies of long ago.

The American Legion are presenting this wonderful attraction jointly with the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton Home and deserve the heartfelt thanks and support of the entire town for their presence and thoughtfulness in bringing an attraction of such magnitude to Winchester.

WINTON CLUB CABARET BRILLIANT SUCCESS

Once again the Winton Club cabaret proved the place it holds in Winchester social life by the brilliant and colorful assembly of guests who filled the Town Hall to capacity last Friday evening. Gaily-decorated horns and rattles adorned the tables, and were put to use by enthusiastic rooters during the evening. The show was full of snap, with no delays and had exceptionally lovely contrasts of color, lighting and really artistic effects.

For those who had witnessed former cabarets the "General chairman's Dream" which made the first act was full of reminiscence. Dr. Kelley and Mr. William Wyman, veterans of seven years' standing was vociferously greeted and each of the special favorites of former productions was received with enthusiastic approval. Mrs. Rufus Clarke and Mr. Mark Shults were recalled again and again as was Mr. Harold Fuller and his beauty chorus. Special mention should be made of the choruses, which for good looks, and for performance were exceptional. The music, both for the show and the dancing afterwards, was furnished by Marion Chases' Players, and was extraordinarily satisfactory.

Two of the most unusual numbers were the Fashion Drawing posed and danced by three "Mannequins" and the Legend of the Blue Willow Plates, conceived with imagination and most artistically carried out.

The "Evolution of the Charleston," beginning with the African Voodoo dance, continuing with the Dixie shuffle, performed by Dr. Kelley and Mrs. Harold Farnsworth in a manner which brought down the house, ended with a remarkable exhibition by Mr. Langdon Matthews, ably seconded by a very lively, if breathless chorus. General dancing followed the performance.

To Mrs. Christopher Billman, the general chairman, is due tremendous credit for the efficient manner in which the entire show was run off. She had the assistance, however, of a very able committee, and the success of the evening means ample funds for the linen supply of the Winchester Hospital for another year.

The complete program follows:

General Chairman—Lucy P. Burnham
Master of Ceremonies—E. S. Clarke
William U. Wyman, William H. McGill
Charles W. Kelley, Evelyn McGill
Arthur V. Rogers, Isabel H. Wyman
Helen S. Fuller, Emma B. Proctor

The Story
A Mandarin of great power and wealth has betrothed his daughter, Koonsee, to a Tajin, a duke many years her senior. The Mandarin's secretary, Chang, has seen and fallen in love with Koonsee. Her four faithful attendants, with the love of intrigue of their kind, do all in their power to further the match. Koonsee, unknown to her father, meets Chang, who implores her to elope with him. At first she refuses, afraid of her father's wrath, but finally consents. Under cover of the quiet and dancing of her hand-maidens, they plan to flee.

As they are about to go, the old Mandarin, who has suspected their love, tries to separate them, but the gate is under cover of darkness change them into birds, as a symbol of true love.

MILLER-HENEBERGER

Miss Virginia Bailey Heneberger, of 43 Myrtle terrace, became the bride of Francis S. Miller of Orlando, Fla., Wednesday afternoon, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Allen Evans, Jr., rector of the Church of the Epiphany. Immediately after the wedding the couple departed on a honeymoon trip to Virginia and other points in the South. They will reside in Orlando, where Mr. Miller is engaged in business.

Mrs. Miller is the daughter of Andrew E. Heneberger, of the Boston Herald, and the late Emma Bailey Heneberger. She was born in Pawtucket, R. I., and was educated at the Winchester High School and Mary Baldwin Seminary, in Virginia, an institution founded by her great grandfather, the Rev. Rufus Bailey.

Mr. Miller is a native of Harrisonburg, Va., and a graduate of Richmond College, where he was for several years manager of the college baseball team.

Willard T. Carleton has been re-elected vice-president of the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Company.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Celebrates Its 85th Anniversary and the 10th Anniversary of Dr. Chidley's Pastorate

Last Tuesday evening in the Town Hall, 500 members and friends of the First Congregational Church celebrated the 85th anniversary of the church and the 10th anniversary of Mr. Chidley's pastorate. The evening began with a banquet under the leadership of William Lewis Parsons as toastmaster. Greetings were brought to the church by one of the most outstanding of its past ministers, Rev. D. Augustine Newton. Rev. George Hale Reed of the Unitarian Church brought the greetings from the other Protestant churches of the town. The ministers of these churches, with their wives, were the invited guests of the church, and their presence on the platform at the speaker's table lent a fraternal spirit to the occasion.

Mr. Parsons before introducing the speakers reviewed briefly the history of the church, especially the beginning of the society, which was organized in 1840. The cornerstone of the original meeting-house was laid July 27, 1840. The house was dedicated Dec. 30, 1840; the first meeting for public worship was held Jan. 3, 1841. The present church edifice dates from the year 1859.

The principal address was given by Charles R. Brown, D.D., Dean of Yale Divinity School, who spoke on "The Trivial and the Essential in Religion." Dean Brown's address was punctuated with humorous illustrations which served to bring out the point that too many of the non-essentials in religion are magnified to the losing of essentials.

Throughout the evening the chancel choir sang many interesting secular songs, several of which were composed especially in honor of Dr. Chidley's 10 years of service and its effect upon the community. Dr. Chidley responded to the many gracious honors of the evening, pointing out the necessity for the expansion of religious work to include adequate plants in all the local churches for religious education of young people. Another point which he stressed was the proper use of leisure time, which he predicted would be more and more available to all of us. He also pointed out the fact that we must expect the village element in town to be slowly submerged by an incoming metropolitan element.

The divine blessing on the gathering of the evening was asked by Rev. Allen Evans. Rev. Clifton H. Walcott pronounced the benediction after the entire audience sang together "Auld Lang Syne."

The hall was beautifully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers, under the direction of Mr. John C. Haartz. The arrangements for the evening were carried out so well by the Anniversary Committee that everything went off with precision and enthusiasm.

LUNCHEON IN HONOR OF MRS. PLEASANTINE C. WILSON

At 1 o'clock on Wednesday, Jan. 27, in response to the invitation of the Room Committee a group of Fortnightly women and their friends many of them former associates of Mrs. Wilson, gathered in the new Fortnightly Hall to greet and honor a founder, former President and honorary member of the club, Mrs. Pleasantine C. Wilson of Oxford, N. H., who had been spending the past fortnight with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Doane of Myrtle terrace.

As a preliminary to the delicious luncheon the guests were put in a happy frame of mind by the hearty singing of "Should Old Acquaintance be Forgotten," by all present.

At the guest table were seated Mrs. Wilson and her special friends and former associates, Mrs. Inez M. Holcombe, Mrs. Electa M. Sherman, Mrs. Harriet B. Wills, Mrs. Lena R. Wellington, Mrs. Mabel G. Nichols and Mrs. Frank Doane, also Mrs. Helen B. Emerson, president of the club and Mrs. Lorence M. Woodside, chairman of room committee who presided.

Following the luncheon much merriment was afforded by the happy and spontaneous toasts of the various speakers.

To the many tributes and complimentary remarks Mrs. Wilson modestly replied that if all that was said of her was true she had forgotten it. Always a forward looking woman Mrs. Wilson refused even now to dwell in the past and urged club members to attempt and do large things and keep step with the times in civic and social affairs.

Accompanied by Mrs. Wm. Lefavour, Miss Jean MacLellan sang the following lines to the tune of the "Long, Long Trail."

"Oh 'Tis many years ago now
Since our dear old club was formed,
Way back in eighteen eighty-one
The Fortnightly was born."

It has grown from twenty members
'Til its now six hundred strong,
It has stood for truth and progress Always, tried to "carry on."

We have worked for education,
Civics, art, and music too,
And always lent a helping hand
To all the Town would do,
And they've all been good and true,
Only one has had an end,
And Mrs. Wilson—that's you!

The luncheon pronounced by many "the best ever," was in charge of Mrs. R. E. Carlisle and Mrs. Ernest Keppers as co-chairman, ably assisted by the following members of the Room Committee: Mrs. Mildred Moulton, Mrs. Frances Breen, Mrs. Sarah J. Apsey, Mrs. Nana M. Hayward, Mrs. Harriet R. Linscott, Mrs. Grace B. Dotten, Mrs. Ethel G. Englund, Mrs. Audrey L. Paine, Mrs. Harriet A. Page, Mrs. Alice C. Smalley, Mrs. Susan W. Mudger, Mrs. Dorothy F. Clement.

DAI BUELL

INTERNATIONAL FAVORITE APPEARS AT TOWN HALL FEB. 12

Dai Buell, an international favorite among concert pianists, is looking forward with more than cold professional interest to her appearance in Winchester under the auspices of the Fortnightly Women's Club. Many of our townspeople are already enthusiastic frequenters of her Boston concerts and—second only to the keeping of old friends is the pleasure of making new ones.

Dai Buell, it is fair to say, has won her present enviable position, young as she is, not by a meteoric dash sometimes misconstrued as genius, when promoted by the lavish use of printer's ink, but by the real genius of hard work begun at the age of 10 and not to be suspended for one day (forgive the unconscious pun!) so long as she shall live.

It is always interesting to the general public to know some of the more intimate thoughts and habits that fill the daily private life of an artist, so the music committee has prevailed upon Dai Buell to jot down in a few short paragraphs her idea of what an artist's life should be.

We will quote: "By conscious love of her does one first realize that he is chosen to be the medium for a muse, then if the gift proves sufficiently deep-rooted, the need of keeping the instrument sensitive dawned and, if a broad education has been supplemented by the knowledge that long work and hard is inevitable to prepare the physical instrument for its duties—a great artist is the outcome."

"First—the romantic child, saturated with the tales of the lives of the great masters, becomes imbued with the privilege of self-sacrifice for a chosen ideal. Nothing proves too great a denial for the pictured end. He sees the future when the present years are reaping their reward, and if the urge of the great artist is within him, he leaves play and youthful companions for the exacting routine which is to culminate in the realization of his dreams. The years round out with the broader lessons of life and the poet-child finds himself an artist in truth."

"So—by having kept himself sensitive to Beauty in all her forms he is doubly vibrant to the spirit of music which speaks through him—a veritable Aeolian Harp built by the Master for a chosen muse to sound."

Such an artist is Dai Buell who appears at the Town Hall on the evening of Friday, Feb. 12, at 8 o'clock. Such has been her life and such is her creed.

This concert in Winchester is unique in her present season, for it is the only "popular program" that she is giving in the vicinity of Boston. It will draw from all spokes around the Hub, as it has already been talked of in the suburbs and parties are being formed to motor to Winchester for the evening of Feb. 12. There is no question now about a full house as the committee reports a great demand for tickets. It is a case of making an immediate decision if tickets are desired for this notable evening. They may be had by calling Win. 1713, 0172-J, 1245-W, 1414-W, 1546, 0663-W or 1197 and at the Exchange.

CONSECRATION WEEK FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The week of Feb. 7-14 will be observed as a special Consecration Week in the First Baptist Church. Auditorium services will be held every evening except Saturday. Some of the strongest preachers in the greater Boston area will do the preaching. There will be special music every night. A full program will be found in the church notices of this paper. All who wish the spiritual uplift of these meetings are cordially invited.

It is said that our train service would have been maintained in fairly good shape yesterday but for a big 3600 type locomotive running off the track at the North Station about 2 o'clock. After struggling until nearly dark, with the snow constantly piling up and blocking the line, the railroad officials were obliged to announce the cancelling of service.

THE BARTA CAMP

On Saturday afternoon, Jan. 30, Miss Barta gave an informal barn dance at the Winchester Country Club for her young camp friends which proved a delightful get-together. The group, many of whom were from this town, included a number of the mothers and fathers who looked on with pleasure as the campers went enthusiastically through their program of games, singing, and this was followed by refreshments.

During the afternoon Miss Barta told of her plans for the new camp, illustrating her talk with many fine photographs of the new location on Lake Pleasant, Casco, Me., where one finds a glorious country of open fields, pine groves, mountains, lakes and rivers. On the lake shore facing west is located this comfortable and perfectly equipped camp with wooden bungalows carefully screened, and having latest sanitary arrangements, two separate halls (for senior and junior girls), pure spring water, plenty of shade as well as sunlight and a white sandy beach with gradual slope, making it an ideal spot for bathing, swimming, etc. The lake is three miles long, one mile wide and from its shore one gets many vistas of sloping fields and woods with the mountains rising in the distance.

Anyone desiring information please call Elinor C. Barta, 6 Cabot street, Winchester, 0049 or 1768.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

The dance last Friday night was a complete success in every way, and sponsored as it was by a very popular trio—Mrs. Ethel Horn, Mrs. Emma Cullen and Mrs. Gertrude Horn—may be rated as the best social night on the Club's program.

Music for the affair, furnished by Terry Cullen's artists, gave an old-time atmosphere to the evening's enjoyment in several of the dances. A prize waltz contest, in which much good-natured rivalry was displayed, gave the judges much ado to pick a winner. However, the prize, a $5 gold piece was divided between two couples Mr. Fred Clement and Mrs. Clara McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Little, who appeared to be the most graceful and accomplished of any on the floor.

Featuring the entertainment was a group of Miss Dorothy Horn's pupils who gave exhibitions of folk dancing and several jazz numbers which were encored time and again. Miss Elma Larson rendered popular songs in her usual charming manner and added much to the pleasure of the evening. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

The next regular meeting of the Club will be held in Lyceum Hall, Wednesday evening, Feb. 10. Much important business will be transacted at this session and a full attendance is requested.

President Allie E. Davidson announces a Valentine social as the next event on the Year's program. As yet, no plans have been formulated for this affair which is scheduled for Feb. 24. Every member should air her own ideas at the meeting and help plan a real "get-together" party for this social.

POLITICS QUIET

It is reported that Mr. Terence D. Cullen has nomination papers out for the Board of Public Welfare and that Mr. George B. Hayward will be a candidate for Moderator of Town Meeting. Mr. Robert F. Guild will not run for Selectmen, it is said.

BUILDING PERMITS

The Building Commissioner has granted permits for the week ending Thursday, Feb. 4 as follows:
William J. Allen, Winchester: portable metal garage, 10 Reservoir street.
Ralph P. Sylvester, Winchester: block of four stores 746 Main street.

CALUMET PLANS MANY EVENTS FOR FEBRUARY

Advance announcements seem to indicate that the year's shortest month will be crowded with interesting events for members of the Calumet Club, and their ladies. On next Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 10, there is to be a ladies' afternoon bridge at 2 o'clock in charge of Mrs. Henry Crowley, Mrs. S. W. H. Taylor and Mrs. A. W. Pitman while the following Saturday, Feb. 13, there is to be another of the interesting Fathers' and Sons' Nights with moving pictures and a talk on Alaska by Ernest Dudley Chase. Old fashioned dances are the vogue and the club has arranged to stage such a party on Tuesday evening, Feb. 16, at 8, with square dances, songs of the past, old fashioned music and a general good time. No details are vouchsafed for the Old Timers' Night which is to be held Saturday, Feb. 20, but there is action promised for every minute of that evening starting at 8 o'clock. The big Open House and All Day Bowling Tournament comes as usual on the 22nd with the popular Children's Party in the afternoon and the dance for Juniors in the evening. On Feb. 26, at 8 p. m., there is to be an Old Fashioned Military Whist for ladies and gentlemen with which the month's festivities will be brought to a close.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Cards are out this week announcing the engagement of Miss Carolyn L. Breen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Breen of the Parkway to Mr. Paul D. Shores, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Shores of Northampton. Miss Breen is a graduate of Winchester High School and entered Wellesley College in the class of 1926. She left college at the end of her sophomore year to enter Tufts Medical School where she has been studying medicine. Mr. Shores is a graduate of Williams College '24 and also is a student at Tufts Medical School.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church will be held on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 9. The executive board will meet at 1:30 p. m. The singer of the afternoon is to be Mrs. Annette Symmes Hughes who will be accompanied at the piano by Mrs. F. C. Alexander.

MISS FITZGERALD NOT A CANDIDATE

To the Editor of the Star:
A news item appeared in your paper last week to the effect that I, Frances G. Fitzgerald, had taken out papers for re-election to the office of "The Public Welfare Department." This I have not done, although I have been called upon repeatedly by the electorate to run again. But, for reasons of my own, I feel, at this time, I must decline the honor, and take this opportunity to thank my constituents, and ask you to state this, my position, in the next issue of your newspaper.
With sincerest thanks to you and all my friends. Believe me,
Sincerely,
Frances G. Fitzgerald

DR. ALICE HAMILTON WILL SPEAK

The Winchester League of Women Voters has been unusually fortunate in securing Dr. Alice Hamilton for a Luncheon-Conference on Thursday, Feb. 18, at the Country Club. Dr. Hamilton who has recently returned from Russia will speak on the Russian situation. The Foreign Policy Association of Boston considers her an authority on this most important subject. Dr. Hamilton is a member of the League of Nations which meets every Autumn in Geneva. She lectures in the School of Public Health at Cambridge and was the first woman to be added to the Harvard Faculty.

WINCHESTER MEN ELECTED AT DARTMOUTH POTLACH

Mr. Lafayette R. Chamberlin of Wedgemere avenue was elected a vice-president and Mr. Harold S. Fuller of Fletcher street was elected to the executive committee of the Boston Association of Dartmouth Alumni at the annual big potlach, or dinner, held on last Saturday evening in the Hotel Copley Plaza. Hon. Lewis Parkhurst of this town was a member of the reception committee.

VIOLANTE—INTINARELLI

Miss Hilda Intinarelli, daughter of Mrs. Angelina Intinarelli of Florence street, was married on Saturday, Jan. 30, to James Violante of 575 River street, Mattapan, son of Antonio Violante. The ceremony was performed at 9 in the morning at St. Mary's Church by the Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons.

The bride was attired in a wedding dress of white satin trimmed with chiffon and wore a veil with a crown of orange blossoms. Her slippers were of white satin, and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Nellie Intinarelli, as maid of honor. She wore orchid georgette with a hand painted border of flowers, a picture hat to match and orchid stockings and black satin slippers. Her bouquet was of pink roses. The Misses Sadie Frongillo, Clara Vespucci, Florence Ferrina, Vincenza Rallo and Concetta Ferrina, all of Winchester, were bridesmaids. Their gowns were of rainbow colored georgette worn with black satin hats and slippers. All carried pink roses. The best man was Fred Violante of Mattapan, brother of the groom.

A reception was held at 575 River street, Mattapan, from 4 in the afternoon until midnight, the young couple being assisted in receiving by Mrs. Angelina Intinarelli, mother of the bride. The ushers were Carmen Frongillo of Winchester, John De Frederick of Southbridge, John Intinarelli of Cambridge, and Gidlio Fallone and Joseph Derro of Winchester.

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Violante left on a wedding trip which will include Connecticut, New York, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Saw the Light

They were talking over their summer plans. "And another thing," proclaimed Mrs. Thompson. "I've decided I'm going to learn to swim this summer." Her husband puffed thoughtfully at his cigar before replying. "It's all right with me, my dear. That explains to me why you took up dieting."

BOWLERS DINE

Prizes Awarded in Calumet Winter Tournament Saturday

There was an attendance of over 100 members of the Calumet Club at the annual winter bowling tournament dinner held on Saturday evening in the club hall, this annual event being one of the popular features of the season, and held for the award of the prizes to the various winning teams and individuals.

The dinner was opened at 6:30, caterer Howard Fitzpatrick serving a menu which delighted the diners. An entertainment of musical selections and songs was given during the dinner. At its conclusion, Chairman Albert S. Snow of the bowling committee took charge and made the presentation of the prizes, also giving the statistics and recounting the interesting features of the tournament.

In all 28 prizes were awarded, these being four team prizes and eight individual prizes. No bowler was allowed to take more than one team and one individual prize. The prizes covered a wide range of articles, the bowlers having the privilege of making their own selection to the value of the cash allotted. They ranged all the way from a lady's hand bag to a serving table, umbrella, golf clubs, smoking stand, cigar humidor, and included numerous other attractive articles.

The first prize was won by Team 1: Barton K. Stephenson, Marshall K. Berry, E. Russell Murphy, John Hart Taylor, George F. Purrington.

Second prize, Team 12: R. C. Orpin, M. M. Christensen, R. G. Palfrey, W. W. Winslip, R. Akerman.

Third prize, Team 9: Henry W. Hildreth, Howard W. Moulton, Arthur E. Sanford, Thomas A. Barnard, James R. Smith.

Fourth prize, Team 8: Lucius Smith, Robert M. Hamilton, Newell K. Morton, W. A. Maynard, Marshall W. Jones.

The high rollers in the individual contests, together with the winners, were as follows:

SPRING BOWLING BEGINS

Tournament Opens Tonight at Calumet Club

The annual spring bowling tournament opens at the Calumet Club this Friday evening for 1926, 11 teams competing. A schedule has been announced extending through April 16. Many of the team which took part in the recently completed winter tournament are entered in their entirety in the new contest, while there are also several new teams.

In general the tournament will be conducted in the same manner and under the same rules as the winter schedule. The bowling committee of the club, Albert S. Snow, chairman; Harry L. Pilkington, secretary; William Adriance, Marshall K. Berry and Earl B. Goldsmith, announce a list of seven attractive prizes, three team and four individual, and the usual re-rating and post-tournament dinner will be carried out.

The teams entered in the tournament are as follows:

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

We have tried all kinds of plans, but happiness is the greatest treasure we ever possessed. We would not trade the happiness we have had and are having for all the money in the world. Happiness from our standpoint, is worth a million dollars per day.

Great aches from little corns grow.

Some men sell themselves, others give themselves away.

In the old days, a walk down the lane and a couple of red apples was the thing. Now-a-days it's an auto ride and red lobsters.

A boy who was raised near the grass roots is often the biggest man in the city.

DIRECT SUNLIGHT HELPS GROWTH

Direct sunlight is an excellent "medicine," says the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. It is absolutely necessary for babies and growing children. It provides a material needed for the growth of the bones. Without sunlight babies develop rickets, which is a disease in which the bones become soft and the ends bulge out. Bow legs are caused by rickets. Sunlight coming through the window glass lacks this property of preventing rickets. The glass cuts out the ultra-violet rays in sunlight.
Therefore children should play outdoors or in a room with open windows.
Smoke acts similarly to window glass in cutting out the ultra-violet rays of sunlight. For this reason a smoky room is especially bad for children.

K. OF C. HALL CROWDED FOR LECTURE SUNDAY

Despite the inclement weather Sunday evening, K. of C. Hall was taxed to its utmost capacity when St. Dominic's Circle and their many friends turned out in large numbers to enjoy the lecture on Jamaica, which was given by Rev. Daniel I. Cronin, S. J.
From New York, Fr. Cronin carried his audience in fancy to the island of Jamaica, and after showing some fine pictures of the harbor, kept all present interested for two hours in numerous illustrations of the scenes in and around Kingston the capital of Jamaica.

Especially attractive were the pictures of the little natives being cared for by the Sisters in the government schools and pathetic indeed the anecdotes related by Fr. Cronin of his ministrations to the lepers and other unfortunates who had hidden themselves away far up on the mountain trails.

At the conclusion of his talk, Fr.
Cronin held an informal reception.
The Circle was assisted in making the lecture such a splendid success by the following gentlemen: Messrs.
Charles J. Harrold, Edward Martin, Wm. E. McDonald, Jr., Luke P. Glendon and Michael J. Foley.

MRS. MARY A. SHAW

Mrs. Mary A. Shaw, a resident of this town for over 14 years and the widow of the late John T. Shaw, died on Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edith Russell, 668
Main street. She was 75 years of age.
She was a native of Howland, Me., and the daughter of Bernard F. and Deniah F. Mason. She leaves two daughters living in this town, Mrs. F.
M. Williams of Thompson street and Mrs. Russell of Main street. She also leaves two sons and a brother and sister.

Funeral services are to be held this Friday afternoon at the residence at 2 o'clock, Rev. H. W. Hook of the Methodist Church officiating. The burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

OUR STREETS IN GOOD SHAPE

Probably no town or city in this vicinity has come through the big storm as well as Winchester. Practically every street in town has a path and all sections can be reached, notwithstanding the heavy drifting of snow last night and this morning. Our Highway Department deserves every credit for its efficient work. Not only has every man on the force been at work steadily since yesterday morning, but many additional helpers have been put at work aiding in breaking the town open from its blanket of snow. This storm, by the way, is said to have centered over this section, there being only a normal fall north of Lowell and south of Boston.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The crowding event of the evening was the presentation to Dr. Chidley of a "ticket to happiness," in the form of a large ticket on which was a ship riding on a sea of gold made up of $10 gold pieces. The ticket was designed and executed by Mr. Ernest Dudley Chase.

It is safe to say that this 85th anniversary of the First Congregational Church marks one of the outstanding epochs in its history, since, during the past 10 years the membership of the church has been doubled, and the organization is working smoothly and co-operatively. This was clearly shown in the remarkable crowd of people present and the fine spirit of the evening.

The committee in charge of the celebration was Mrs. Cutler B. Downer, Charles A. Lane, James Nowell, Mrs.
James Nowell, Mrs. William I. Palmer, William Lewis Parsons, Preston Pond, Frederick S. Snyder, Mrs. Allen
H. Wood, Ernest Dudley Chase, chairman.

Following are the original songs sung by the choir:

(Tune) Coming Thru the Rye

Should you need a clever parson
Chidley's just your man!
When you're sad or when you're merry
Chidley's just your man!
Every parish has its parson,
One they say have we
That many other churches envy, Howard James Chidley!

(Tune) Robin Adair

What's this dull town to me?
Chidley's not here!
He's fled to Sunny South
Taking with him all cheer.
Where's all our vim and pep?
Who makes us watch our step?
We're sad and tiff he comes back,
Chidley's so dear!

What makes this banquet fine?
Chidley is here!
What makes our faces shine?
Chidley is near!
Tis he we celebrate,
Even tho he works us late,
Long may he rule in state,
He has no peer!

(Tune) Yankee Doodle

Howard Chidley came to town
Ten years ago November
With his smile and walking stick,
How well we all remember!

Chorus

Howard Chidley, keep it up
We like to see you smile!
And the pen that's in your step,
It truly is beguiling!

Howard Chidley's walking stick
Has a swing quite airy.
When it comes across your path
You had best be wary.

Talpa galore that stick could tell
Of our favorite pastor.
Of his sprits up to the church
There's none could do it faster.

Of his daily pastoral calls
On the high and lowly,
In the house and out the door
E'er you can count ten slowly.

He's a whiz, is Howard J.,
A motorist or a walker,
He can do two jobs a day,
Just while the rest are talking.

So three cheers for Howard J.,
May he keep on speeding,
Ten years hence just as today
May he be always leading.

To the Tune of Antioch

There is a man in our town
And he is wondrous wise
He works from morn to dewy eve,
And naught escapes his eyes.
And naught escapes his eyes,
And naught escapes his eyes.

He keeps the movies out of town
In spite of much abuse,
And when they try to bring him 'round,
He says "Oh! what's the use!"
He says "Oh! what's the use!"
He says "Oh! what's the use!"

He rules the church with ease and grace,
And keeps it "going some!"
There'll be no rest for weary souls,
Till Parish House is done.
Till Parish House is done,
Till Parish House is done.

On Sunday morn he takes his place Within a chance new,
And glows with joy to know at last,
His dreams have all come true.
His dreams have all come true,
His dreams have all come true.

Upon the church's marble floor,
He treads with solemn pace,
And tames his feet which daily walk
As though to win a race.
As though to win a race,
As though to win a race.

And when the Parish House is built,
And all the money given,
We fear that like Enoch of old
He'll fly away to Heaven,
He'll fly away to Heaven,
He'll fly away to Heaven.

WINCHESTER ELKS' DEGREE TEAM WON AT ARLINGTON

The degree team from Winchester Lodge of Elks won the initiatory competition for lodges in the Massachusetts Central District at a contest held in G. A. R. Hall, Arlington, last Sunday afternoon. The participating lodges were Arlington, Brookline, Newton and Winchester.

As a result of its victory the local Elks come into permanent possession of the handsome silver loving cup offered as the trophy for the competition.

The Winchester team comprised the officers of the lodge, including Maurice Dinneen, E. R.; Fred H. Scholl, E.
T. K.; George H. Lochman, E. L. K.;
Thomas F. Fallon, E. L. K.; Dr. James
H. O'Connor, Sec.; John F. Donaghey, Treas.; Robert Bolling, Chaplain;
Benjamin Cullen, Esq.; George F. Arnold, Inner Guard, and John P. O'Brien, Tyler. Charles A. Farrar acted as the candidate.

Winchester's win was clean cut, its team attaining the exceptional score of 95.45 per cent with the next highest, 88 per cent. The local lodge is now qualified to compete for the big Nicholson Ritualistic Trophy to be contested, for at Brookline, Feb. 14.

HEALTHY HAPPENINGS

When I feel that I'm going to cough or sneeze
I pull out my handkerchief. P. D. Q.
I sneeze into my handkerchief. It's only fair.
Instead of spreading cough germs everywhere.

The Saracco murder case comes up for trial in East Cambridge Court today. It is stated that Francisco Ferraro will plead guilty of manslaughter as he claims he fired in self defense.

GOOD PUNING

Fine Foundation Now for Winter
Sports at Home

Yesterday was a good day for pungs. Today is even better, for with the abundant snow firmly packed, the foundation is superb. It also appears that this section is now due for an inning of winter sports, which may be indulged in to their limit by any and all without travelling to Maine or New Hampshire. Incidentally, the storm was a record-breaker which will linger in the memory of us all for many years.

Following the snow of Monday, an ordinary winter storm, the Highway Department made a good job of cleaning out our streets, and they had no sooner finished the job and polished it off, so to speak, than it began to snow again yesterday morning.

Increasing through the day it reached hurricane proportions at noon.
Between 12 and 1 o'clock it was difficult to see across the street, and the thick screen of snow, driven by the gale, made it almost impossible to do much walking in the open.

Although it snowed hard and a high wind prevailed during the forenoon, it took the finishing touch at noon to put a stop to transportation and tie this section up solid. Until then the electrics ran spasmodically behind the big plows and the steam trains maintained a very fair schedule. To be sure, the electrics were a little off time and the trains ran either on schedule or five or ten minutes behind, but nothing indicated any tie-up of consequence.

But after noon! Then it was that things began to slow up—and they slowed up promptly and completely.
A few electrics ran on both lines, but no one outside the crews in charge can tell how long it took to make the trip from Arlington or to Stoneham.
The trains ran about as well. It is said that there were three inward and a like number of outward trains from noon until 6 o'clock. Hundreds of Boston business folks were marooned in town, unable to either reach home or secure accommodations in the city.
The telephone lines were kept busy far into the night carrying messages of explanation and assurance. And through it all the storm continued, not letting up to any extent until the middle of the evening.

Although the Highway Department tackled its job right at the start, it was hopelessly outclassed.
With six big truck plows and its one tractor, heroic efforts were made to keep the main thoroughfares clear for travel, and by combining with the electric plows, the two cross lines were fairly passable, although the stalling of cars and trucks made them of little real use unless one was willing to put in hours of backing, turning and waiting.

On Cross street drifts six feet high were encountered, while one plow and gang of men were lost on Ridge street from 9 a. m. until dark. In both instances, however, the streets were opened, although by morning they were well filled in again from the drifting.

Every street about town had one or more stalled and abandoned autos, some nearly buried out of sight in the snow. Rescue parties were busy all day and last night digging these cars out of the drifts.

Winchester escaped any fires, although its roads were in much better condition for the passage of apparatus than any of the surrounding places.
At 10 o'clock last night we were called upon to lend assistance to Woburn, a bad fire in Gorham Block on Main street menacing the business section there. Chief DeCourcy sent up the big pump, which worked on the blaze for over three hours, lending material assistance in fighting the flames. The damage at this fire is reported to be about $75,000.

Today the town is snow bound. By working ceaselessly all night, our Highway Department, aided by hundreds of additional men, have opened practically every street for foot travel and fair auto travel. Sidewalks are impassable except a few main streets, but it is no great difficulty for any one to leave or his home.

No school signals have been sounded in all of the town and cities in this neighborhood, and the week-end will be devoted unquestionably to digging out. Reports state that the storm is the heaviest in 25 years.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

In a case now before the courts it is charged that in consequence of a minor operation, a girl lost the sense of taste. This is yet to be proved or disproved, but it revives numerous cases in which taste was a prominent matter. All Winchesterites know that some persons a favorite article of food gives great pleasure, while others seemingly in good health seem indifferent. Benjamin Franklin did not remember that his father ever expressed satisfaction or dissatisfaction over a meal while Benjamin, judging from his gait, sometimes dined not wisely but too well. The Spectator has known vaccination to be followed by a chill, and the chilled mortal for a short time lost all sense of taste. Invalids are sometimes drowsy for days, and scarcely aware that they are eating. There are also cases in which taste seems to undergo a change—the food that was once almost repugnant is enjoyed, or the favorite dish wearies. A physician told the Spectator that with some individuals taste is the most constant of all the senses, and told of an instance in the life of an insane man. The patient was a man of literary habits and highly imaginative—he believed that the insane hospital was his private mansion and delighted in walking about the grounds.
To a visitor he said: "These servants are most attentive today. I ordered a good dinner, roast chicken, a trout and strawberries—they brought what I wanted, but there was a strong taste of mush." Mush had been part of the ration for the day, and his sense of taste was strong although he fancied, fish or fruit whenever he wished to see it.

Here is something really lamentable. A physician and a good one did not know why the funnybone is so called. Every Winchesterite ought to know, and no one who hears the explanation can forget it. The bone is called the funnybone because it borders on the Humerus.

One day the Spectator met a young man in the naval service. He said that during his first term of enlistment he grew homesick. The town of his boyhood seemed like fairyland. He dreamed of it and hoped to end his days there. Never, he vowed, would he re-enlist, and he was surprised at an officer's comment: "You'll be back before you know it." His discharge came in due time; he made his way to his home town, and of the boys he longed to see, not one remained. While there had not been many deaths, the removals had followed fast, and he could not find one whom he looked on as a companion. Eighteen days after he had reached what he once looked on as "the old place" he had re-enlisted. The Navy had many familiar faces, the school ground was new and strange to him. During his service he has passed through the Panama Canal seven times. The Spectator asked him, "Where would you go if you were traveling for pleasure?"
"Scotland. Both my parents (and both of them are gone) were born in Glasgow." It is a common experience to hear men past 50 say that the old town has grown strange to them, but to hear this from one under 30 is less to be expected. However, a young Englishman in Winchester told us that after four years in this country he went back to his native town and was so lonely that he cried. Of his old friends some had gone to Canada, some to Australia, some to India, some were in various parts of the United States—practically all were gone.

A Winchester young man told the Spectator that he had been taught in childhood to give his seat in a street car to a woman, and had rarely failed to do so. On one occasion, however, he was unusually tired, and allowed a young woman to stand. She, as a delicate reminder that he should vacate his seat in her favor, kicked his shins.
This tried his temper and he took revenge in ignoring her tactics. She soon ceased, but her wrath at failing to make any impression upon him was manifest. The old-fashioned courtesy is certainly a good rule to maintain, but the Spectator, at least twice the young man's age, has never known a woman to adopt this method of hinting at the observance of the rule.
Oddly enough the young woman by her dress and bearing plainly showed that she lived in a part of the community where the average of refinement must be high.

A Winchester gentleman—a member of Rotary and who plans to join the Kiwanis says there is no "deadwood" in these organizations, the members maintain an attendance of 60 per cent or they are dropped from membership. Membership in these organizations is prized to such an extent that very few men are dropped from membership for non-attendance. And when regular attendance is maintained, the members get so much out of their clubs that it is harder to stay away than it is to attend. Why would it not be good to impose some such requirement upon citizenship? What good is citizenship to persons who do not make use of it? If a citizen lacks sufficient interest to go to the polls, at least once a year, why not drop him from membership? If a citizen cannot maintain a high percentage in voting, why not drop him from "membership" as a citizen? If men and women were to be deprived of their

360,000 Homes In One Year

A New York trust company estimates that home ownership was made possible for 360,000 families in one year through loans by institutions organized on the co-operative bank plan.

That means more than one-third of all such transactions throughout this land.

Our plan is constantly growing in favor because co-operative bank loans are fair, convenient and safe. We will be glad to furnish full particulars.

THE HEBRIDES, CIVILIZATION'S NEWEST VICTIM

Civilization has a new victim. According to local officials in the Hebrides, a group of islands off the west coast of Scotland, the radio, crossword puzzles and other modern ideas are threatening to spoil the islanders and remove all the picturesque of the country of the crofters, as the Highland farmers of the district are known. Already, they complain, the traditional oatmeal has been abandoned for more luxurious fare of tea, white bread, and jam, a change which the authorities of the region declare is dietetic folly.

Although the Hebrides have been almost within gunshot of some of the great steamship highways between the Old World and the New they include some of the wildest and least known sections in the British Isles, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Waves that toss voyagers on the so-called short-route to America, which passes between the Hebrides and the north of Ireland, have, until recently, washed ashore little to change the inhabitants from those who bled with Wallace.

Inner and Outer Chains

Like two flotillas of stone-turreted battlecruisers the Hebrides are strung along the west coast of Scotland, mainly parallel with the coast. The islands are roughly divided into two groups, the Outer and the Inner Hebrides, separated by the Minch and the Little Minch, wide channels of water, from each other. The separation, however, is geological as well as geographical. The outer Hebrides have a foundation of gneiss, a granitic rock, while the Inner Hebrides, or at least the more northerly of them, lie on trap rock. In popular parlance, the two groups are often referred to as the Western Islands.

As the Hebrides lie along the Gulf Stream the climate on the islands is mild, but exceedingly humid. The rainfall averages 42 inches in some places, as compared with New York City's yearly average of 3 to 4 inches. Boats and waterworks might be said to be the typical costume of the islanders. Mists, also, are almost perpetual, hiding the peaks of the mountains and making navigation in the vicinity difficult and exciting.

Despite these handicaps, however, the Hebrides have played a significant part in the settlement and life of Scotland. For a long period the region was a battleground between Scandinavians and the early Celts. The Vikings came to rob and slaughter, but once satiated they settled down, married the daughters of the land, and even adopted its language. The Hebrides also figured largely in the feuds and struggles of the early Scottish kings.

Early in the 18th century the lure of the West almost depopulated the islands. A potato blight in 1846 brought about another wholesale exodus to America and South Africa. The loss of so many able-bodied men and women, for it was largely the younger, more energetic element that left, caused the standard of living to sink, and the islands became more isolated than ever.

When the Hebrides are not shrouded in fog the sun reveals bursts of sudden and unexpected beauty. In solitary and savage grandeur the cliffs and mountains rise sheer from the sea. The basalt combines every tint of warm red, brown and rich maroon, and blends prettily with a Maxfield Parrish sky. Some of the islands are low and rolling, lonely moorlands carpeted with rock-strewn grass. Nearly all are pierced with wild and romantic arms of the sea, such as are found elsewhere along the Scottish coast.

Although the islands have a combined area of 640 square miles, about one-quarter of that of the State of Delaware, only about one-ninth of this area is under cultivation. Only a fifth of the 500 odd islands that comprise the archipelago are inhabited. Potatoes, turnips, barley and oats are the staple crops, but in a few places the natives make a frugal living by sheep and cattle raising, fishing, distilling, and the making of tweeds, tartans and other woolen cloths.

Stone Shrines of Ancient

Rude old stone structures, religious symbols of a pre-Christian era, abound; and, until comparatively recently, the Christian islanders conducted certain ceremonies about them. Iona, one of the smaller of the Inner Hebrides, was the Blessed Isle of early Christian days in the British Isles, and the scene of frequent pilgrimages. Kings of Scotland, Ireland, and Scandinavia were brought to be buried in the soil of this sacred island.

KEEP THE BEACON BURNING

(Written for the Winchester Star)

Keep the lamp blazing when the storm rages high
And the ship-wrecked soul is gazing
To the clouds that are crossing
All the star-guides in the sky:
Though the tempest and the terror,
And the darkness and the horror,
Flash the glory from their mirror.
If our beacon is gleaming brightly
Where perilous breakers beat, Little then should men be needing
All our arguing and pleading
With that life-light Godward leading

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The eighth regular meeting of the Fortnightly will be held on Monday in the Town Hall at 2:30 p. m. The business session of the meeting will be presided over by Mrs. Helen B. Emerson our president, after which the program will be in charge of Mrs. Pearl H. Winship. Through the courtesy of Filene's of Boston advanced spring styles will be displayed, and Mrs. Winship has chosen members of our club to act as models. Miss Ainsworth of Filene's will be with us and talk on "Personality in Dress."

Thursday morning at 10 o'clock the Parliamentary Law Class will meet in the Fortnightly Room.

Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock will be the auction bridge under the direction of the Social Committee. Mrs. C. A. Batchelder, chairman.

Friday morning join the "Fortnightly Hikers." Phone Mrs. E. M. Messenger, tel. 0121-M.

Friday evening Feb. 12, will be the recital by Dai Buell, concert pianist, in the Town Hall at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Mavis G. Peterson, chairman, tel. 1713.

Literature Committee

In spite of the unfavorable weather of Monday afternoon, a group of 30 or more gathered at the home of Mrs. C. H. Dodge, 9 Lakeview terrace, for the February meeting of the Literature Committee. The snow and a dearth of taxis made travel difficult, but for those who succeeded in arriving, the varied excellence of the program more than made up for previous difficulties. The first hour was devoted to Robert Frost, realistic interpreter of New England life. Miss Mary L. Hodge presented a sympathetic study of the poet, with illustrative readings from his dramatic and lyric work. In this she was assisted by Mrs. H. H. Ambler and Miss Winifred H. Bent. Mrs. W. C. Sache followed with selections from Sara Teasdale's exquisite lyrics of nature, love and beauty. The last speaker was Mr. George A. Kuyper, head of the English department in the High School, who discussed recent books in the field of non-fiction. After commenting on the excessively laudatory style of some of our present literary criticism, he passed to a discussion of the new style of biography and from that to a consideration of a number of the season's most thought provoking books, among them, Dr. Gordon's "My Education and Religion," "The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page," "Wandell and Minnigerode's 'Aaron Burr,' Goldberger's "The Man Menckens," Penell's "Adventures of an Illustrator," and Neihardt's poetry. Mr. Kuyper's humor and straight-forward criticism made this talk particularly entertaining and stimulating. Refreshments served by the hostess brought the afternoon to a pleasant close.

Please bear in mind that owing to the holiday there will be but one week between the meetings in February. The second meeting will be held on Monday, Feb. 15, and is to be one of the finest programs of the club year.

METHODIST YOUNG PEOPLE IN PLAYLET

A very pleasant evening's enjoyment was provided those Winchesterites, as well as visiting friends from the neighboring towns, who attended the entertainment given at the Methodist Church on last Friday evening, Jan. 30, when the young people of the Epworth League of the Church presented the play entitled, "Doris Comes to Town." Wallie Larkin, a bookkeeper in the employ of the Brewster Cheese Company has been regaling his sweetheart, Doris, a country lass, with stories of his wonderful success as a Napoleon of Finance and Captain of Industry resulting in his attaining the position of president of the cheese company. The play portrays the difficulties and ludicrous situations in which he finds himself upon Doris' visiting him on the very day when, because of his carelessness in preparing some posters, he is summarily dismissed from the company's employment. With the help of his friend, Bob Brewster, a son of the president of the company but not connected with it, Wallie formulates a scheme designed to enable him to meet Doris in the high capacity in which he has led her to believe he stands without disclosing his duplicity, but as usual they fail to reckon with the natural shrewdness and intuition of the opposite sex, and plot being met with counterplot, many a hearty laugh is provided for both the actors and the audience. The production was presented in quite pleasing style and much credit is due Mr. Walter Fancie under whose direction the play was staged. Miss Lorna Nichols acted as assistant coach.

Following is the cast as they appeared:

Act I—Morning, Early in September.
Act II—The Following Morning.
Act III—Two Days Later.

Saturday afternoon at 5:25 o'clock as Harry Williams of 19 Thompson street was driving a Ford truck, the property of Maurice Kahn of 587 Main street, north along Church street, he was in collision with a Studebaker sedan coming out of Oxford street, owned by J. Edmund Vincent of 30 Glen road. Both cars were slightly damaged.

Social drive whist at K. of C. Hall, Feb. 10. Good prizes.

The Winchester Police received a call from the night operator at the local telephone exchange at 1:25 Sunday morning reporting that the signal light was showing on a three party line on the West Side of the town yet no answer could be obtained from her call. As usual the officers found the receiver had been left off the hook.

ST. MARY'S CATHOLIC SOCIETY

Despite the blizzard last Monday night a large and happy gathering of members listened one hour to their Director and organizer, Fr. Fitzgibbons, in the School Music Room as he pointed out the interesting activities that will interest the boys of Winchester during the year.

First of all—Basketball has the stage now and a splendid season brightens the hearts of the boys. Then, following Easter, the Society will stage one of Fr. Fitzgibbons' seven shows which is a scream and written by the Reverend Director for boys only. It calls for 75 in the cast and elaborate stage settings. If all goes well it will be produced after Easter, the proceeds to purchase uniform for the Fire and Drum Corps and Baseball equipment for the baseball team the Society will put on the diamond this summer.

Although it is rather early to talk baseball it may interest the fans to know that the Society is to sport the best team of its history. Francis Tansey and Francis Melly of High School fame, the leading battery of scholastic ranks last year, will take care of the service section with Tom Dolan, Chamberland, Jomima Dolan, Halwartz, Dooley, McNeil, Fitzgerald, Flaherty, O'Connor, Quigley, Johnson, McGrath, McCauley and a host of others trying for positions.

A pleasing feature after Fr. Fitzgibbons' talk was the election to the Presidency for another year, one whom the Reverend Director termed, "the truest type of American manhood, a gentleman of ability and character," Thomas Dolan.

The Vice Presidency went to the energetic and capable James A. Cullen of Technology, and the secretary's book and business passed into the hands of Clarence Chamberland. After speeches by the successful candidates and enthusiastic remarks from half the members present the meeting adjourned until Feb. 15, the next regular meeting in the school.

AMERICAN LEGION CONTEST

A national essay contest is now being carried on by the American Legion. The purpose of the contest is to secure a "Patriotic Flag Creed" for use in schools and all patriotic occasions. The "Creed" must not contain more than 125 words.

The contest is open to any boy or girl between the ages of 12 and 19 years and all papers must be at the American Legion Headquarters, Indianapolis, Ind., by noon, March 16.

The Legion offers three cash prizes, namely: $750, $500, $250, which are to be used for college scholarships. It also offers three additional prizes, a silver medal, a bronze medal and a certificate of merit.

These splendid prizes are worth trying for and as it is a nation-wide contest any boy or girl in Winchester has as good a chance of winning as his brother or sister across the Continent.

For further particulars see your school principal or call Dr. Quinn or Legion Headquarters.

Tickets for Suzanne Keener and the 18th Century Candlelight Orchestra may be secured from Mrs. C. H. Symmes, 230 Main street. Phone 0881.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

That the American people are slowly and surely breaking away from the drinking customs of former days is plainly apparent from the newspaper accounts of conditions in all sections of the country, during the holiday season that terminated the old year. New records in law observance are being set. Reports from Chicago, New York, Washington and San Francisco, indicated the New Year's celebrations in those cities to be orderly; in Chicago prohibition authorities stated there was less drinking than on any other such occasion in the history of the city, and a New York dispatch reported orderliness there. Prohibition Chief Yellowley, of the Chicago district, declared that drinking on New Year's Eve was greatly reduced and that cabaret owners, who reported to him they had made more money than on any previous New Year's Eve, attributed this to the increased consumption of soft drinks. Only two arrests were made by dry officers, and only 35 were arrested in the business district for disorderly conduct. New York also reported few arrests for disorderly conduct.

Other cities noted a record holiday season for law observance, the chief of police in Nashville, Tenn., started that Christmas Day in that city had been the quietest he had seen in his 35 years of service as a police officer. "There was less drinking, less disorder, and less noise," he asserted.

"The greatest and most peaceful celebration in the history of Pocatello," was the unanimous verdict of the sheriff's force of Pocatello, Idaho. Not a single arrest was made by county officers, and only one person was in the city jail as a result of a "wet" Christmas. It was pointed out this was not due to laxity, as the sheriff's office on Christmas Eve had begun a patrol of the entire county in order to insure a peaceful holiday season.

The sheriff of Dallas, Texas, declared that Christmas, 1925 was "the greatest Christmas he had seen in Dallas."

THE TREND OF EDUCATION

Tuesday Evening, Feb. 16 at 8 O'clock

Tuesday evening, Feb. 16 at 8 o'clock the Winchester High School Parent-Teacher Association will hold its third meeting in the High School Assembly Hall.

Mr. James J. Quinn, Superintendent of our public schools will speak on the "Present Trend of Education and its Costs." His discussion on this subject will bring out also an explanation of the School Budget for the present year.

In view of the fact that our Annual Town Meeting will be held within a very short time, this discussion on education leading up to and including an explanation of the School Budget for 1926 is most timely. Every voter of the Town as well as every parent should attend this meeting.

The High School Orchestra will play.

In March this Association will hold a "Commercial Course Night." A departure is to be made from this usual custom of holding the meeting in the High School. The new Lincoln School will be the place of meeting.

United States Senator Frederick H. Gillett from Massachusetts told an audience in Springfield on Dec. 28, that "There is not a chance of the Eighteenth Amendment being changed in my lifetime or yours."

To the query as to whether Congress would seriously consider the wet bills before it he replied in a decided negative. "The present Congress is overwhelmingly dry and it will not give the wet measures any attention," was his declaration. He gave as his opinion that many of the public efforts of the wets are nothing more than "a good way for them to gain prominence."

OFFICIAL DATA ON NEW POST OFFICE

Mr. George F. Arnold, President
Winchester Chamber of Commerce
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Mr. Arnold:

I have yours of the 26th instant with reference to the balance available for completion of the new post office building at Winchester. I will do my best to explain this situation as I understand it.

Under the previous authorization in 1913 the sum of $75,000 was allotted to Winchester which was to include the site and building. The site was purchased at a sum of $19,500, leaving a balance of $55,500 for the building. The estimate has now been increased to $94,500, which represents the total cost of the site and building, therefore, the sum of $19,500 for the site, plus the balance of $55,500 left over from the previous authorization together with the increased estimate in the present bill of $19,500 makes a total of $94,500.

In addition to the above there is a sufficient fund to take care of any slight increases in the total appropriation where it is necessary in the judgment of the Department.

Trusting the above makes the matter entirely clear to you, and with kindest regards, I am

Very truly yours,

Harry I. Thayer

TOWN LIGHTS

(Written for the Winchester Star)
Looking out across the fields of snow:
I see one of my adored sights,
I see a myriad of mottled lights,
Gleaming cheerily through north wind's blow.
These sparkling gems I love to look upon,
I like to think of what they stand before,
I like to think who by them reading lore,
And watch until with twinkling they are gone.
But then from darkness they do reappear!
And cast their ever twinkling colored light,
Unto the driving wind that blows so drear,
That it may be carried 'way, so bright,
To places far. Also to disappear
From the dark'ning horizon of night!

AMERICAN CAMELS—LIMITED

Escape of a circus elephant 50 miles west of San Antonio, Texas, and his efforts to get back to nature by tearing up fences and striking across ranches and farms recall the strange project to establish a government-owned camel colony in the same region, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Egypt and Asia Minor were the main sources of supply for the Federal Government, says the bulletin. Two shipments of camels were brought over in 1856 and 1857 for use in the great American desert, believed in those days to be a sort of a Sahara of the Western Hemisphere. There were then no transcontinental railways or highways, and hundreds of thousands of square miles of the West were totally unknown. The few trails across the continent were difficult and the lives of those using them were in constant danger from hostile Indians. It was believed that communication across the continent could be greatly facilitated by the use of camels who could carry much heavier loads than mules and horses, cover greater distances, and go longer without water. The most enthusiastic supporters of the scheme also visualized a full fledged Camel Corps, U. S. Army, a devastating cavalry of the desert that would sweep over the barren regions of the West and keep the Indians in subjection.

The project was in charge of the War Department, and Jefferson Davis, then Secretary of War, was its most ardent advocate. The strange beasts—75 of them in all—were landed at Indianola about midway of the coast of Texas and marched westward overland. Sixty miles west of San Antonio at Camp Verde the government's camel station was established, and for some years the test marches of the camels gave the countryside the appearance of Asia or Africa.

No Sympathy from Muleteers
Uncle Sam's camel experiment was a failure, not because the beasts could not live in America, but chiefly because of the human factor. After the first year of the venture, when the sicklier animals died, certain breeds became acclimated and increased in numbers. But the Army muleteers detailed to the camel station declared a feud against the strange creatures from the first; only the few Greek and Turkish camel drivers brought from Syria had any patience with them. The ranchmen and other residents of the country shared the feelings of the muleteers, for whenever a camel appeared horses and mules bolted in terror.

Tests showed that the camels were well fitted to work in the Southwest. On one expedition they crossed Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona to the Colorado River and their successful performance was highly commended by the Army officer in charge. Perhaps even the prejudice of their attendants might have been overcome and the camel might have taken an important economic place in the Southwest as he has in central Australia. The coming of the Civil War, however, put an end to the experiment. Some of the camels were sold to circuses, some to individuals, and some were turned loose in the rough, uninhabited country of Arizona.

A few crumbling camel stables at the old camp west of San Antonio are the only surviving evidences of Uncle Sam's fling at camel raising. For many years camels—grown wild—were seen occasionally in the mountains of Arizona, the last report of the sort being in 1909. There is a belief among some Arizonians that the creatures still wander about in the uninhabited wastes of that State and that there is a herd not far from the delta of the Colorado in Mexico.

FIREMEN'S BALL ATTRACTS MANY

Annual Entertainment Up to Usual High Standard

Another capacity crowd filled the Town Hall on last Friday evening for the annual Concert and Ball of the Winchester Firemen's Benefit Association. Despite the fact that the going throughout the town was decidedly rugged both the large and small halls as well as the balconies were filled to the limit, every seat being taken some little time before the show was scheduled to begin. Doubtless many were prevented from attending by the heavy snow and the difficulty of getting to and from the hall. If so, they were by no means missed. There were plenty there without them.

The customary concert program preceded the dancing, and this year's entertainment was fully up to the high standard set in previous efforts. The stage was tastefully decorated with ferns and potted plants, greatly enhancing the appearance of the hall.

Only one cancellation had to be announced. The DeHaven sisters, billed as offering something new in dancing, were unable to be present, but their substitutes a "singing fool" and a dancing girl kept anyone from feeling the least bit of regret. In fact, the latter pair were one of the big hits of the bill and gave a very nifty exhibition of their specialties which brought forth much applause.

The show was opened by Louis Cheeney, introduced as "New England's Greatest Pianist," in a program of instrumental selections which ranged all the way from highbrow to the other extremity. Mr. Cheeney also acted as accompanist for both Harry McGowan, a rapid fire songster who put over several snappy up-to-the-minute numbers, and for Grace Chadwick, a dainty Miss, appearing in "Moments of Melody." Following their appearances alone, Miss Chadwick, Mr. Cheeney and Mr. McGowan came on as a trio which closed their sketch.

Next on the bill was Dick Gould in "Reading the Announcements." This was a screamingly funny skit. Mr. Gould appearing as a typical country minister in the pulpit, giving out the weekly announcements. Both as to make-up and repartee the actor left little to be desired and his efforts brought down the house.

He was followed by the Lambert Brothers, members of the orchestra which bears that name, who appeared in a musical hodge-podge calling for some clever doubling on banjos, piano and violin. Then came Page and Shaw, billed as two dancing Chocolate Drops and late of the famous colored show, "Shuffle Along," who put across some intricate soft shoe and clog dancing and Dolly Varney, a diminutive vocalist who exhibited a pleasing voice in old time and modern melodies.

The bill closed with the appearance of "The Three of Us," three melody maids, two warblers and a pianist, who got a big hand when they came on decked out in real sure-nuff firemen's hats.

Though not included upon the formal program, Leo Daly's Orchestra favored the gathering with three instrumental selections which were very warmly applauded, especially one featuring an exhibition of the Charleston by Mr. Daly, himself. Mr. Crossen of the Boston firm of Crossen & Moynihan, which house furnished the entertainers for the evening, acted as announcer.

At the conclusion of the concert program the hall was cleared for dancing which was much enjoyed by a large crowd, the syncopated strains of Leo Daly's Orchestra being among the best dance music heard in town for many a day or rather evening. The melody was featured by the singing of the band which was repeatedly encored.

During the entire evening the firemen kept open house at the Central Station for their friends including town officials and visiting firemen. The new pieces of apparatus were exhibited and their workings explained by the local experts who had a busy time pointing out their advantages to out-of-town fire-fighters and local citizens. Refreshments were served to an almost unbelievable number between the hours of eight and one.

It is expected that a substantial amount will be realized from the Ball which will be utilized by the benefit association for its relief work. Following is the entertainment program:

Louis Cheeney—New England's Greatest Pianist
Grace Chadwick—In "Moments of Melody"
Dick Gould—"Reading the Announcements"
Harry McGowan—Vaudeville's Rapid-Fire Songster
"The Singing Fool" and a "Dancing Girl"
Lambert Brothers—Versatile Instrumentalists (Of the famous orchestra which bears their name)
Page and Shaw—Two Dancing Chocolate Drops (Late of Colored Show, "Shuffle Along") Dolly Varney—A Clever Girl Singing Clever Songs

"The Three of Us"—Melody-Syncopation—Harmony
Pianist, Miss Helen Driscoll

THEODORE H. BARTLETT

Served Hovey Company 45 Years—Stricken in Storm

Funeral services for Theodore H. Bartlett, 65, of this town, for many years head of the accounting department of C. F. Hovey Company, who died suddenly Thursday night at the home of Ernest Nutman at 401 Beacon street, where he had gone for the night, being unable to reach his home, were held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at his late home on Everett road.

Mr. Bartlett was a native of Portsmouth, N. H., born Nov. 17, 1863, and the son of John H. Bartlett and Angeline A. (Mendum) Bartlett, also of the same city. He was educated at the Salem High School, and at an early age entered the employ of C. F. Hovey & Co., as it then was known, beginning as an office boy, and advancing by stages until he became head of the accounting department. His business career with this one house covered a period of more than 45 years.

On June 16, 1886, Mr. Bartlett married Frances Augusta Glidden of Beverly, and thereafter the family home was at Everett until about two months ago when Mr. Bartlett moved into a new house which he had erected here on Everett road. The only organization to which he belonged was the Boston City Club. Of late Mr. Bartlett had an office at 17 Milk street.

Besides his wife, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Hubert W. Godfrey of Winchester and Miss Pauline Bartlett, who lives at the family home.

IN HONOR OF DR. ALICE HAMILTON

The Winchester League of Women Voters holds a luncheon-conference at the Country Club, Thursday, Feb. 18, at 1 o'clock. Dr. Hamilton's subject will be "Russia." An opportunity will be given for questions and discussion.

Alice Hamilton, M. D., now associate professor of industrial medicine at the Public Health School, Harvard University, has the honor to be the first woman member of the Harvard faculty. Dr. Hamilton is a distinguished bacteriologist, her special field having been the investigation of industrial poisons. This she did in the Department of Labor in 1920 and 1921.

Dr. Hamilton is also a traveler and observer of social conditions in many parts of the world. Since the war she has been more than once in Russia investigating health conditions there as a part of her work in the health section in the League of Nations.

She is a sympathetic speaker, humanizing her subject and making it clear that while she is a woman of science, to her its value lies in what science can do to ameliorate the conditions of organized society and human life.

"EIGHT ROADS TO CHRIST"

Dr. Chidley Begins a Series of Eight Sunday Morning Sermons Next Sunday Morning

Dr. Chidley of the First Congregational Church will preach the following series of sermons, under the general title of "Eight Roads to Christ."

"Eight Roads to Christ"
Feb. 7—"The Road of Forgiveness of Others" 14—"The Road of the Good Samaritan"
21—"The Road of Equality"
28—"The Road of Honesty"
March 7—"The Road of the Talents"
14—"The Road of Faith"
21—"The Road of Habit"
28—"The Road of Worship"
April 4—Easter Sunday

COMMUTERS

Are you taking advantage of the Boston Elevated "Shuttle Bus" which is running between the North and South Stations? The route is the same as that which the electric took for many years. The fare is only six cents if five tickets are purchased at once. You will find this bus convenient if you are short of time to catch a train going north or south; also in stormy and extremely cold weather. The bus stands in front of the North Station opposite Portland street on Causeway. The service is splendid, a bus leaving every six minutes from this point.

MEN'S FORUM TO DISCUSS PROHIBITION

Are you for national prohibition or against it? Would you like an opportunity to express your views and hear others express theirs? If so, the Men's Club of the First Congregational Church invites you to attend the meeting of the Men's Forum, to be held by Dr. Gilroy, Editor of "The Congregationalist," to meet at the close of morning worship next Sunday.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL ALUMNAE NOTES

In accordance with the vote of the Alumnae at the January, 1925 meeting that a yearly report be issued of the activities and accomplishments of the Alumnae Association, we have as follows:

At the meeting in January, 1925 the following officers were elected: President, Miss Louise Dempsey; Vice President, Mrs. Daniel Bourgeois; Treasurer, Miss Marion Francheu; Secretary, Miss Jennie Johnson; Councillor, Mrs. William MacGlaughlin.

At the meeting in April, the President, Miss Dempsey, appointed the Board of Directors: Mrs. Charles Meek, Miss Kathleen Morse, Miss Phyllis Glidden and Mrs. Mabel Ross. The sick committee is to consist of Miss Alice Brine and Miss Martha Devlin.

In April, the Alumnae held a dance in Waterfield Hall and cleared $62.14. In May a whist and sale was conducted in Waterfield Hall and cleared $30.60.

After June, no meetings were held until October.

In November, a dance was given in White's Hall, and cleared $22.

The treasurer's report at the January 1926 meeting proved very interesting, and showed an increase of $156.16 over the year 1924.

Respectfully submitted, Jennie W. Johnson, R.N., Secretary

In view of the fact that the financial conditions of the association have been bettered in the past year, it is obvious that a little more co-operation on the part of both members and townspeople would benefit our association considerably. This can be done by attending the sales and dances conducted by the members of the Alumnae. The chief aim of the Alumnae at present is to establish and maintain a room at the hospital. However, this ambition cannot be realized until we are situated better financially. Therefore it is hoped that within the next few years enough money can be raised so that this can be accomplished and with proper support from our members and townspeople, it undoubtedly will be done.

The officers for the year 1926 are as follows:
President—Mrs. Daniel Bourgeois
Vice President—Miss Marion Franklin
Treasurer—Miss Kathleen Morse
Secretary—Miss Jennie Johnson
Councillor—Mrs. Fred Corbin
Board of Directors—Miss Genevieve Haley, Miss Martha Devlin, Mrs. James O'Connor, Mrs. Charles Meek
Sick Committee—Miss Frances Chick, Miss Genevieve Haley

I am glad to report that the condition of Miss Marguerite Pike, one of our members who is ill at Rutland Sanatorium, is slightly improved. Undoubtedly she will be a patient at the institution for some months. Therefore persons interested in her condition might like to forward books, magazines, fruit, candy, etc., in order that the long, wearisome hours may be somewhat lessened. For information call Win. 1267-J or Back Bay 8483.

SARAH J. FRETCH

Miss Sarah J. Fretch, a former resident of Winchester died last Friday night at her home, 10 Bow street, Stoneham, following many years of ill health.

Miss Fretch was born in Charlestown 87 years ago and was the daughter of William S. and Cynthia (Briggs) Fretch. Up to removing to Stoneham three years ago she had lived for many years in this town, making her home on Walnut street. She is survived only by two nieces, the Misses Martin of Beacon street, Boston.

Funeral services were held on Monday morning at 11:30 in the First Baptist Church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Clifton H. Walcott. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

"BEWARE OF BARGAIN SEEDS"

Says the Middlesex County Extension Service

The farmer who grows vegetables for a living is called a market gardener. If the market gardener ever bought seeds advertised as bargains his living would soon cease, for the so-called "bargain seeds" are usually unsatisfactory. Why, then, should anybody else be deceived into buying cheap garden seeds?

Good seeds such as your home merchant will be glad to sell you cost a lot of money to grow. Highly trained, well paid men are required to supervise the work of breeding, roguing and selecting. New varieties of merit which are developed by private individuals, are sold to seedsmen for large sums. And there are a dozen other reasons why there cannot possibly be a bargain in seeds.

ST. MARY'S TO PLAY MALDEN CLUB THURSDAY

Next Thursday evening in the High School gymnasium the fast St. Mary's C. C. basketball team will play the Sacred Hearts' five of Malden. St. Mary's is traveling at high speed right now and expect to win their second home game. The Malden outfit boasts a strong lineup and will extend the local club to the limit. It is expected that a large crowd will turn out to see the home quintet in action as its lineup included several popular stars who formerly worked for the high school. A early arrival will insure a seat. Game will start at 7:30 p. m.

Miss Brenda Bond, formerly of this town, is playing in "Rainbow Riley" at the Washington street Olympia this week.

WEDNESDAY'S STORM

This Section Now Completely Snow-bound

The second big snowstorm of this month and within a week of the first, arrived after much heralding on Wednesday. Scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, it failed to materialize until Wednesday, and when it did appear it made up for its delay by its intensity. It may safely be said that this section is now snowbound, and any who desire winter sports have no excuse for going any farther than their own door yards.

Starting early Wednesday morning, with the temperature about 19 above zero and a howling gale, the snow fell in record quantity. Driven by the gale, it was almost impossible to face the flying, stinging particles, while the icy wind cut through the heaviest clothing.

Unlike the storm of the previous Thursday, the snow was very light, and transportation, while badly crippled, was not brought to a standstill at any time. Trains were late and ran at varying intervals, while the electric cars ran about as often as a plow could be sent over the lines. Boston business houses and department stores closed at noon, the steam roads putting through trains and causing expresses to make extra stops to care for the unusual traffic.

Winchester, as usual, came out of the storm in excellent condition. Our main highways were kept open and were easily passable. The side streets only were not broken out by Thursday morning, and not a great number of these were without some kind of a path. The drifts were the most discouraging feature of the storm, the wind piling up the snow on the east and west side hills in great mounds. Large gangs of shovelers, however, kept these bad places open.

With so much snow now on the ground it appears that nothing but a protracted thaw will restore anything like normal conditions and when it comes, look out for floods!

MRS. HARRIET F. DUTTON

Mrs. Harriet F. Dutton, widow of Lewis H. Dutton, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 87 Church street as the result of a shock. She was 73 years of age and had made her home in Winchester for the past 30 years.

Mrs. Dutton came from an old line of Nantucket ancestry, both her father, Freeman Parker, and her mother, Elizabeth Macy, being born on that island, which was also her own birthplace. She leaves two daughters residing in this town, Mrs. A. Miles Holbrook and Mrs. George F. Edgett, also one son, Mr. Herbert M. Dutton of Detroit.

The funeral services will be held this Saturday afternoon at 2:45 at the Church of the Epiphany, Rev. Allen Evans, Jr., officiating.

ARLINGTON GIRLS OUTCLASS WINCHESTER

Winchester High School girls' basketball team proved no match for the Interscholastic League pace setting Arlington High girls yesterday afternoon in the high school gymnasium, being defeated 32 to 13 in an interesting game.

Arlington has yet to lose a game this season and its all around exhibition was better than anything the local girls could show. At that Winchester has no reason to be ashamed of the battle it gave the league leaders.

The visitors played a whale of a defensive game, and the local forwards were unable to get on very intimate terms with the hoop during much of the matinee. Anna Burns at right forward for Arlington was the game's high scorer with 10 goals from the floor and one from a free try. "Kay" Carlisle and Capt. "Dot" Bond starred for Winchester.

The score:

ST. MARY'S WINS

St. Mary's easily defeated Medford Independents in the High School gym Thursday night. Tansey starred for St. Mary's and Duke for Medford. St. Mary's second team beat the Hi-Y of Woburn 29 to 21.

SUZANNE KEENER

CONCERT FEB. 22

Legion Show Will Be Great Holiday Attraction

The concert to be given by Winchester Post, No. 97, American Legion, in the Town Hall on the evening of Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22, promises to be the banner attraction of the season. The program contains an array of artists seldom if ever seen out of the largest cities, and their appearance in Winchester will undoubtedly draw a record attendance of our townspeople.

When Winchester folks can hear in their own town such stars as Suzanne Keener of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, former star of the popular and widely known musical comedy "Peg O' My Dreams," together with the Eighteenth Century Candlelight Orchestra of ten pieces, their interest in the affair can not be questioned.

The Winchester Circle, Florence Crittenton League is assisting the Post in its presentation of this concert, and the tickets are placed on sale at popular prices ranging from $1.50 to $2.50. Tickets may be obtained of Mrs. S. H. Taylor, Tel. 0670; Mrs. C. H. Symmes, Tel. 0881; Mrs. George Goddu, Tel. 0325-W; Mrs. R. K. Miller, Tel. 0536-R; Mrs. W. H. Pierce, Tel. 0308-W; Mrs. Nathan Thumlin, Tel. 1479; American Legion Home, Tel. 1270 and at the Winchester News Company, Tel. 0350.

MRS. GEORGIANA BANGS

Mrs. Georgianna Bangs, widow of E. D. Bangs and daughter of the late D. N. Skillings of Winchester, passed away very suddenly Tuesday night.

Her death was due to injuries received in a fall at her home on Central street about 9:30 Tuesday morning. Mrs. Bangs slipped upon some ice and fell striking her head on the sharp corner of a flight of steps. A call for assistance was sent in to police headquarters by Mrs. D. C. Lincolnton, a neighbor, and officers James F. Donaghey and James Farrell responded with Dr. F. R. Brown. Following the arrival of the physician she was removed to the Winchester Hospital where it was found that she had sustained a fracture of the skull. She died without regaining consciousness.

Mrs. Bangs was born in Boston, was in her 81st year and had lived in Winchester most of her life. She leaves a brother, James W. Skillings of Winchester, and three grand children, Mrs. Joe Billingsley, Miss Leslie Brown of Winchester, and Mary Brown, a student at Vassar.

Private funeral services were held this Friday afternoon.

FREDERICK S. CHASE FOUND DEAD

Frederick S. Chase, aged 52, was found dead at his home, 163 Forest street, shortly before 7:45 this morning. A jet of illuminating gas was discovered turned on and the theory is that he had committed suicide. The Winchester police were notified and Sergt. Rogers and officer Donaghey responded with the department's lung motor. Drs. R. W. Sheehy of this town and Sheehan of Stoneham were summoned, but all efforts to revive Mr. Chase proved unavailing. Medical Examiner Vernon C. Stewart of Woburn was notified and viewed the body. The dead man made his home with his mother on Forest street and had been a resident of the town about 11 years.

POLITICS QUIET

Nothing much of an exciting nature has cropped up in the local political situation during the past week. While one hears rumors of many new candidates daily these rumors are hard to confirm, and in most instances when run to earth amount to nothing. Apparently there are to be contests for the Board of Selectmen, the Board of Public Welfare and for Collector of Taxes. Most of the interest is likely to center in the fight for the first and last named offices. This week has seen the announcement of the candidacy of Mr. Robert F. Whitney for reelection to the Board of Selectmen, and Mr. J. Leslie Johnston, son of Mr. James W. Johnston, the builder, has decided to become a candidate for the Collector's chair, opposing the present incumbent, Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols.

WINCHESTER KNIGHTS PRESENT COMEDY-DRAMA

"The Whole Town's Talking" Pleases Good Sized Audience

Players from Woburn Council, 77, K of C, presented the three act comedy-drama, "The Whole Town's Talking," by John Emerson and Anita Loos, last evening in the Town Hall under the auspices of their brother Knights of Winchester Council. The audience which was of good size included many from Woburn who had seen the previous presentation by the same cast in that city.

"The Whole Town's Talking," is considered by many as one of the best productions of Miss Loos and Mr. Emerson, nationally known as among the very best of the scenario writers for the cinema.

The plot is one of those swift moving affairs which holds the attention of everyone until the final curtain. It has to do with the efforts of one Henry Simmons, a wealthy paint manufacturer, to make of his partner, "Club" Benney, a man of the world.

Ethel Simmons comes home from a period of study in Chicago with Roger Shields, a self-complacent chap whose only appeal consists in his having spent "most of his life abroad." Simmons takes an instant disliking to Shields, but Mr. Simmons is quite taken with the latter. The unsuspecting victim of Chet's love affair is Letty Lythe, a famous movie queen and the plans of the conspirators are apparently headed for a successful culmination when Letty arrives in Saudusky (where the action of the comedy takes place) with her fiancé, Donald Swift, an ex-pugilist.

When Swift comes to the Simmons home to demand an explanation, Simmons and Binney in consternation plead with him for forgiveness for both Chet and Letty and on Simmons insistence "as a Brother Elk" Swift surrenders.

But Shields, knowing the conspirator's plans, arouses Swift to a point of fury and he vows to kill Binney.

The third act shows his attempt to do so, and the play ends in a whirlwind of rapid action which leaves everyone happy, if a bit breathless.

Last evening's production was a good one, and in keeping with other high class shows sponsored by the local council.

The cast which clearly showed the advantage of much work together follows:

Ethel Simmons Helen Sheeran
Roger Shields Edward Gilman
Harriet Simmons, Ethel's Mother Kathryn McKittick
Henry Simmons, her father and a wealthy paint manufacturer Leo McKinnon Letty Lythe, a motion picture star Eleanor McKittick
Donald Swift, her lover an ex-pugilist J. Edward Delaney Ethel's Friends Mollie Regan

Marion McMahon, Helen Mulcahy
Anna's Simmons' Maid Alice Gilman
A Taxi Driver William Carpenter

Following the performance dancing was enjoyed until a late hour to the excellent music of Joyce and Cullen's Orchestra. Terrence P. Cullen, G. K. of Winchester Council headed the committee of local Knights in charge of arrangements.

Mr. Eustis Brigham, formerly of this town, has been visiting Mrs. G. W. Graves of Wedge Pond road the past week.

MONEY IS NEEDED

Five thousand dollars more are needed by the Southern Middlesex Health Association to carry out their program for 1926. Persons who received Christmas Seals and have not made returns should do so as soon as possible. To date the returns from Winchester which is in the Southern Middlesex district are as follows: $776.85. During the past week follow-up cards have been sent out by the Association. Mary C. Hoisington, R. N., Executive Secretary, reports that thus far this year only $10,000 has been received. This is considerably less than last year's total. If the balance is not forthcoming, the Association's work for 1926 will be seriously handicapped. Persons in all the towns in Southern Middlesex County are requested to send in returns immediately to 1015 Little Building, Boston.

FIDELIS CLUB VALENTINE DANCE

On Monday evening, Feb. 15, the Fidelis Club will hold a dance in Waterfield Hall. The girls of the Club, encouraged by the enthusiastic demand for tickets, anticipate a large attendance at their final pre-Lenten social. The Valentine atmosphere will prevail and the music will be furnished by Joyce's Orchestra under the direction of the popular Thomas Gigliotti. Miss Mary Norton is chairman of the following committee: Mary Boyle, Mildred Barrett, Isabel Mackenzie, Mary Monahan and Evelyn O'Connell.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

The next meeting of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League will be held Thursday, Feb. 18, at the home of Mrs. Rufus Clark, corner Bacon street and Ravenscroft road, at 2:30 p. m. The speakers for the afternoon will be Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott, former President of the Winchester Circle, and Miss Mary C. Hyde, superintendent of the home in Boston. Tea will be served. This should prove a very interesting meeting and a large attendance is desired.

"Weed" Made Useful

BLUE BOOK OF WINCHESTER

The canvass for a new Blue Book is about to commence. Mr. Everett M. Brooks is representative. This is the third issue of the book published by Mr. Horace F. Jones, also publisher of Cape Cod and South Shore, Newton, Cambridge, Brookline and other publications of this sort. There have been many changes of residents, removals, new families to be listed, etc. Included this year will be maiden names of married ladies, summer residences, club membership, theatre diagrams, lists of churches, clubs and societies, street directory, and other features not listed before. The publisher asks the co-operation of those who are interested in having a correct and up-to-date Blue Book which assistance has always been afforded in the past. Any Winchester residents who wish to be listed in Cape Cod book may furnish representatives with information when they call for names, data, etc., for 1926 issue of this book.

Price of Winchester Blue Book three dollars if paid in advance, or three dollars and fifty cents at publication. It is hoped that many will send in subscriptions with checks and data, thus saving time and expense as has been done in years past.

POLICE RECOVER STOLEN CAR

Chief William R. McIntosh and Officer James P. Donaghy of the Winchester Police recovered a 7-passenger Cadillac sedan Tuesday morning at Fellsdale off Highland avenue near the residence of Mr. E. R. Wai'e.

The machine had been jacked up and stripped of its rear tires as well as two spare tires, motor meter and radiator cover before being abandoned. Investigation disclosed that the car was the property of Wm. A. Driscoll of Central avenue, Medford, and had been stolen Monday evening at Bowdoin Square, Boston.

The local authorities kept an eye on the sedan until its owner came for it Tuesday night. It was valued at about $2000.

Freak Duck's Egg

A duck's egg found at Pickleden lodge, Ireland, had inside another egg perfectly formed and shelled.

DATILLO—MARSELLA

Miss Maria Marsella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marsella of North Maple street, North Woburn, and Joseph Datillo of this town were married last Saturday morning in St. Thomas' rectory, Wilmington, by the Rev. Fr. Richard Boland.

The bride wore a wedding gown of white satin with a veil of lace caught up with lilies of the valley and carried a bridal bouquet of lilies of the valley and white roses. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Lena Marsella, as maid of honor. Her gown was of pink crepe de chine with a large picture hat to match and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. Two little nieces of the bride were flower girls and wore dainty little frocks of pale blue and yellow respectively and carried baskets of rosebuds. Mr. Thomas Gigliotti of Winchester was groomsmen.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where a wedding breakfast was served. At its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Datillo left on an extended wedding tour.

COLIN M. STUART

Colin Murchie Stuart, aged 83 years, late of Bangor, Me., died at the Winchester Hospital on Wednesday night as the result of an accident on last Friday, when he slipped and fell on the pavement in front of his residence at 16 Lawson road. Mr. Stuart, since the death of his wife has made his home in Winchester.

During his active years he was engaged in the manufacture of lumber with mills at Stark, N. H., and later associated with the J. E. Henry & Sons Co. at Lincoln, N. H. He was a member of the Second Congregational Church in Winchester. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. S. J. Rogers and Mrs. T. A. Bagley, and several nieces and nephews, all of Winchester. Farewell services will be held at the residence of his niece, Mrs. Bertha Henry of 16 Lawson road, on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

1 BROWNING DRAKE FOR SALE $50.00TOWN STILL SNOWBOUND

Winchester is still snowbound after last week's big storm. The melting weather and the short rain of Sunday hardened up the snow so much that it has been an impossibility for the Highway Department to plow out all the sidewalks about town, and only on the main streets and in the centre are pedestrians afforded this luxury. Elsewhere they are obliged to use the streets.

This town, however, is much better off than any neighboring community. We have excellently plowed streets, and all sections can be reached for delivery purposes. Not only are our streets open, but the roadways are in good condition. Those of us who have been obliged to visit outside cities thoroughly appreciate local conditions.

The storm was reported as the worst in 30 years in this vicinity, and it evidently centered directly over this section. Fortunately for traffic, it subsided shortly after it reached its greatest intensity, and street car and train traffic has been maintained about as usual. The damage occasioned by the big snow has been negligible in Winchester, amounting only to such personal inconvenience as might be expected.

Judging from present conditions we will have considerable snow with us for some time to come, for it appears that an extended thaw will be necessary to cut down the big drifts and melt the accumulation of ice. Meanwhile it behoves everyone, either automobile drivers or pedestrians using the streets, to use their natural inborn courtesy in showing consideration for others and avoid accidents. The car driver who rolls along without slackened speed when the street is dotted with pedestrians is no worse than the street walker who occupies the centre of the roadway and makes no effort to draw to one side and allow a car to pass, and if the folks ahead of you are walking on the left side, it is an act of courtesy to cross over also, even though you prefer the right. Likewise it might be mentioned to all parents that the streets are a mighty dangerous place for Bobby or Susie to coast. It is very easy for an automobile to skid this weather, and the high banks of snow on each side of the road absolutely prohibit any sudden turning of a car to avoid a sled.

BRIDGE PARTY POSTPONED

The ladies' afternoon bridge party at the Calumet Club to have been held on Wednesday was postponed to Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 24, owing to the big storm.

The party is in charge of Mrs. Henry Crowley, Mrs. S. W. H. Taylor and Mrs. A. W. Pitman.

ST. MARY'S TO TAKE ON WEST END HOUSE

St. Mary's newly organized Catholic Club basketball team will go after big game Saturday evening when it will journey to Boston to take on the Senior club of the boys' West End House. St. Mary's has been traveling along nicely and expects to give the West Enders a real argument. Naturally its big star is Captain Francis Tansey and the Boston quintette will have an interesting evening keeping this speedy little sharpshooter in check. The locals have been greatly strengthened by the addition of Frank Melly who last year played such a strong game for "Ernie" Roberts crack high school five. The following players will make the trip for the local club: Captain Tansey, "Tom" Dolan, "Jomma" Dolan, "Flats" Flaherty, Frank Melly, "Joe" Quigley and "Roy" McGrath with manager "Joe" Callahan and assistant manager Paul Quigley.

ST. MARY'S CATHOLIC SOCIETY

Close to 100 girls of St. Mary's Catholic Society assembled in their school music room last Monday night for their bi-weekly meeting. Plans were discussed by the Reverend Director, Fr. Fitzgibbons and election of officers held.

Miss Catherine Donnelly won the Presidency after a spirited contest for the honor with Miss Ruth Cleary. Miss Genevieve O'Connell gained the Vice-President's chair closely followed by Kathleen Vallely in numbers of votes obtained, and Miss Anna Coss was given the Secretaryship over Helen Fleming. A manager of basketball was appointed, Miss Anastasia Dooley receiving the appointment with Miss Pauline Farrell as her assistant. Miss Ruth Cleary heads a committee of Ways and Means and has six live-wire co-workers who will also act at the vigilance committee working in conjunction with their advisor, Fr. Fitzgibbons. A sleigh-ride will be held in the very near future.

LOCAL MINISTER TO DROP LAST NAME

Rev. Lisle Burroughs Swenson of 14 Park road, for the past two years assistant to the Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, has been granted permission by the Middlesex Probate Court to drop his last name and to be known in the future as the Rev. Lisle Burroughs. In petitioning to make the change Mr. Burroughs said that both he and his parents had been born in this country, that he desired to serve an English-speaking church of the Congregational denomination and that continued use of the name, Swenson, would bar him from that fellowship. His petition was allowed by Judge Leggat.

Don't Forget That

MANCHESTER TOO GOOD FOR WINCHESTER

Winchester High School's basketball team hopped the rattler's last Friday evening for Manchester, N. H., where it lost to the high school team of that city, 28-9. Off hand, the score would lead one to suppose that the game was rather too one-sided to be very interesting. Such was not the case. The local club gave the Manchester boys a good game, in fact, according to habitual followers of the city five, the best game they have had played against them this year.

Manchester has yet to lose a game this season, and its wins include those over Nashua, Lowell and Gardner High Schools. Since Gardner has already beaten Brockton, which in turn is just about the ranking club of the Suburban League it is easy to see that Winchester's opponents last Friday were anything but a shabby outfit.

The game was fast with Manchester showing a particularly speedy combination. It employed a five man defense against the locals throughout and prevented Coach Mansfield's boys from getting on very intimate terms with the basket. Captain "Wop" Rolli was the only local player to succeed in caging a goal from the floor which shows just how well the North-erners' guards were working.

Much of Manchester's success against Winchester was due to the ability of its players to intercept the locals' passing game. Coach Mansfield's lads just weren't able to work the ball into scoring position, the gymnasium, good in the main, having too low a ceiling for long shooting.

"Nicky" Fitzgerald scored the first point of the game on a free try, and Winchester added another point in the same manner before Manchester got started. The score at the end of the first quarter, however, stood 6-2 in favor of the home club, and it had run this to a 19-4 rating at the half. The locals did their best work in the third quarter, but were never able to get anywhere near on even terms with their opponents. Bozek at right forward played the best game for Manchester with "Wop" Rolli and Frank McCauley showing the way for Winchester.

"Cuddy" Murphy, old Hebron and Dartmouth all around athlete, refereed the pastime, and if he missed any fouls they really weren't worth recording.

The score:

MANCHESTER	WINCHESTER
Bozek, rf.	lg. Johnson
McCauley, rf.	lg. Rendon
Moock, lf.	lg. Cassidy
Shaw, lf.	lg. McCauley

Score—Manchester 28, Winchester 9. Goals from the floor, Bozek 3, Moock 2, Pailson 2, Dugan, Kennedy, Rolli. Goals from free tries, Bozek 3, Dugan 2, Moock 2, Pailson 2, Smith, Fitzgerald 2, Kendrick 2, McCauley 2, Smith. Referee, Murphy. Time, four eight minute periods.

FIFTH CONFERENCE OF OLDER BOYS

To the Editor of the Star:
We are all prepared for the Fifth Conference of Older Boys of the Mystic Valley at the First Congregational Church, Woburn, Feb. 13, and I am sure that everyone of the leaders in work with boys is concerned to make it a real success.

We have added to the program Joseph R. Hilyard, Captain Elect of the M. A. C. (Amherst) football team for 1926 and all-around athlete of that school. Hilyard is a former Beverly High School athlete where he distinguished himself and was also president of the H. Y.

Other speakers of note include: Mr. H. W. Gibson, State Boys' Secretary of the Y. M. C. A.'s of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, nationally known as a speaker to boys and a leader of adult conferences on Boys' Work. He is the author of "Boyology"—"Camping for Boys"—"Camp Management" and "Hymns of Worship." Mr. Gibson will take charge of the forum for Sunday School teachers, Boy Scout and Boys' Club leaders and will give the closing address.

Rev. Wilbur D. Grose, Pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Newton Highlands is the son of Bishop George R. Grose formerly President of De Pau University. Wilbur Grose is a graduate of Wilbraham Academy, De Pau and Boston Universities.

Rev. George H. Phillips of the Robinson M. E. Church, Malden, who will give the opening address is one of the most popular speakers to youth in this section of the state and very much in demand.

The discussion groups on "Life Questions of Older Boys" will be led by Mr. L. A. Price, Young Men's Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Cambridge; Rev. Lisle B. Swenson, Assistant Minister, First Congregational Church Winchester; Mr. S. F. Bumpus, Mr. George R. Merriam and Mr. Roy E. Coombs of the State Executive Committee of the Y. M. C. A.

A great fellowship banquet is planned for the evening where cheers, yells and songs will be exchanged by the different delegations. The music will be provided by the orchestra of the First Methodist Church of Stoneham in charge of Rev. M. M. Thornburg.

Every church school in the Valley should be well represented. Last year 241 attended and this year plans are made to entertain 300.

Registrations must be sent to the undersigned at the Y. M. C. A., Woburn, by Wednesday, Feb. 10.

Make sure your Sunday School is there strong. Your work with boys will be greatly stimulated by this gathering.

Sincerely yours,

G. H. Merrill,
Chairman of Promotion Committee

TWO YEARS FOR FATAL SHOOTING

Francesco A. Ferraro, 30, of 19 Olive street was arranged in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge last Friday morning on the charge of the murder on Sunday, Jan. 3, in Winchester of Antonio Seraco, 33, of 35 Oak street.

The charge grew out of a brawl which took place at the corner of Harvard and Chester streets early on the evening of Jan. 3 and in which Ferraro, the dead man and one Giovanni Ieradi, 31 of 50 Irving street were involved.

It is alleged that the three had been guests at the home of Antonio Cefali on Washington street and had started for home when the altercation took place. Seraco was said to have attacked and stabbed Ieradi with a knife, Ferraro shooting the former when his friend called to him for assistance.

Seraco and Ieradi were found upon the ground by the police and taken to the Winchester Hospital where the former was found to be dead and the latter in a critical condition with several knife wounds in the abdomen.

Ferraro was arrested the next morning by the police and charged with murder. From the first he pleaded "not guilty" to this charge, claiming that he fired in self defense as Seraco had threatened his life after knifing Ieradi.

Despairing of fastening the murder charge upon him, Ferraro was allowed to plead guilty to the charge of manslaughter, and was sentenced to a two year term in the House of Correction. He has already begun the serving of his sentence.

DO YOU VOTE?

You say that taxes are too high,
But do you vote?
About extravagance you sigh,
But do you vote?
"How long," you wail, "must we endure
This state of things that keep us poor?"
How long? I do not know, I'm sure!
But do you vote?
The lights are bad, the streets a mess,
But do you vote?
Your indignation you express,
But do you vote?
You say that bosses rule the show,
That graft is reaching high and low,
And doubtless, all you say is so,
But do you vote?
You growl at rotten politics,
But do you vote?
You howl at bosses and their tricks,
But do you vote?
You say, Oh, Decent Citizens
(We've heard you time and time again)
"We want things run by business men,"
But do you vote?
Unless you do (I wonder, do you?)
You've got just what is coming to you.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN THE LOG CABIN BOY

Log cabin boy,
Trudging miles for books,
No lofty station
Nor magnetic looks
Bind you to men

Log cabin boy,
Huddled on the straw,

Toward the dream you saw
And captured
Make your name sublime.

I'M WONDERING

What will the poor birds do
That have come home too soon?
They could not know this mighty storm
Would break the promise of an early Spring.
Do their hearts sing
Beneath a shivering wing?
I hope some mother tree
With heart laid bare
Has taken them to nest
Within her breast
Or that some lonely barn
Has lent its hungry arms
To foster them.

Is shelter offered in a storm like this
To little feathered things
That preen their dainty wings
And sing at Spring?
We who are housed and warm
When cold winds blow,
And biting whips the falling sleet and snow,
Await, content, the sure return of Spring,
But if it came without the birds that sing
Would it so much of wonder bring?
I'm wondering.

THE LADIES' FRIENDLY

A very interesting talk was given by Rev. Fred R. Lewis, of Peabody, at the meeting of the Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church, on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Lewis spoke of the "Church and the Ministry."

Mrs. Annette Symmes Hughes sang three songs, with violin obligato by Miss Mabel Wingate. Mrs. F. C. Alexander accompanied at the piano. Tea was served by the committee, Mrs. I. E. Gammage and Mrs. E. B. Haynes, chairmen.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Know thyself and as much else as possible.
Success doesn't come. It has to be gone after.

The best way to strengthen one's judgment is to exercise it.
Three fourths of the mistakes men make, are made because they didn't know as much as they thought they did.

About half of the very busy people we know are just nervous.

No man should expect a wise answer to a foolish question.

A woman bobs her hair from choice while a man loses his by fate.

Of course you have been one of the many who have helped the Town out by shovelling your own sidewalk during these snow-bound days.

And remember that all of us who walk in the street are your friends and not purposely obstructing the roadway. Don't race by the kiddies and scare them with your new horn; they have got to walk somewhere and go to school. Make it your business to look out for them.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

Sister Nora O'Melia was pleasantly surprised last Monday evening when the members of the court called at her home and presented her with a purse containing $50 in gold, which was cleverly concealed in a five-pound box of candy. The presentation speech was made by Grand Regent Annie F. Vayo, after which Mrs. O'Melia gave a very fitting response. Mrs. O'Melia is one of the court's most faithful members and also one of its most conscientious workers. She has been an officer and chairman of the sick committee for many years. Beside the purse of gold, Mrs. O'Melia was the recipient of a beautiful bouquet of flowers presented as a token of friendship from Mrs. Mary Kelley of Hill street. A dainty collation was then enjoyed, after which the talented members of the court furnished the entertainment for the remainder of the evening. Miss Mabel Coty and Miss Julia Meskill alternated at the piano. Songs by Mrs. Mary McGrath, Miss Mabel Coty and Mrs. Minnie O'Connor were sung. At a late hour the guests departed wishing Mrs. O'Melia many more years of success. A group of captains have been appointed to help raise money for the charity fund of the court.

Mrs. Mary Smith of Main street is captain of team number one. The assistants are Mesdames Hannah Rafter, B. Brown, Catherine Lynch, Besie Dineen, Catherine Keane, Anastasia Skerry, Margaret Donovan and Miss Sarah Quigley. Mrs. Nellie McCarthy and Mrs. Nora O'Melia will take charge of the first party, date to be announced later. Sister Elizabeth MacDonald who has been on the sick list for the past week is up and around again. Many of the members attended the minstrel show presented by the Woburn Grange under the capable direction of Miss Mary Jane Kelley who is a popular member of the court. Congratulations of the court are extended to Sister Catherine Milne of Pickering street on the arrival of a baby girl born at the Winchester Hospital last week.

Sisters Mary McGrath and Mabel Coty were the soloists at a banquet given by the C. D. of A. at K. of C. Hall, Stoneham this week, to welcome the new pastor, the Rev. Fr. Knapp of St. Patrick's Church, Stoneham. All members make a special effort to be present at the next regular meeting which will be held at Lyceum Hall, Thursday evening, Feb. 18, at 7:30 o'clock.

THE FASHION SHOW

Once again Miss Ainsworth of the Wm. Filene Co. delighted the ladies of the Fortnightly on Monday afternoon, with an interesting and instructive talk and demonstration of the personality of dress.

Mesdames Charles F. Winship, William H. Gilpatrick, B. L. Gale, John H. Powers, Harris Richardson, L. L. G. DeRochemont, F. C. Sargent, John Taylor, Herbert T. West and Miss Barbara Wentworth were very attractive models in expressing the personality of dress.

Personality is what a person really is, but personality of dress is the result of careful study. Miss Ainsworth says that every woman has a complex that she must carefully avoid concentrating upon or emphasizing. Legie is a great help, also the knowledge of perspective, line and color. A quotation which Miss Ainsworth gave was "Don't be what you ain't but what you is."

Before making final decisions it is well to study some of the authentic fashion books as Harpers Bazaar and Vogue and avoid extremes, that within a short time are not in vogue.

The silhouettes for spring and summer are: hats plainly tailored with mannish blocked crowns higher and broader than the winter style. The larger hats have very short backs. The dresses have well fitted shoulders real princess lines with a decided flare at the bottom. The sleeves are long, tight at the upper part but very full gathered into the cuff. The shoes and stockings harmonize with the color of the dress. For evening gold or silver slippers are worn with the light dresses but for tea dancing or for garden frocks the slippers and stockings are dyed to match the frock.

The woolen dress materials are very light in weight and tend toward the old fabrics of English mixtures, tweeds, mannish cloth and repp in various designs. The tones of rose and grey are especially popular.

Cape coats with fur trimming are very smart. The sport coats were generally of a non-sagging material, sometimes trimmed with a plied worsted trimming that imitates fur.

The afternoon frocks were of a soft clinging material, as georgette, crepe de chine and chiffon and some taffeta. The tunic and bolero were most attractively fashioned in two tones of a color, the lighter color forming the main part of the dress and the darker tone the trimming. The separate scarf of the same material and colorings in the dress gave a very smart ensemble effect. In these dresses, too, the tones of rose, the love bird green, tans, lighter blues and grey are very popular, of the darker colors navy blue is first choice with grey or black second.

For warmer weather the geometric prints, especially in the black and white are the favorites, while the plaid rayon with short sleeves and low neck is delightfully cool in summer.

The two-piece sport dresses had plaid crepe de chine skirts with a wool jersey waist trimmed with the crepe. The V neck is emphasized in the evening gowns. There is a return of the fine lace as a trimming and much bead trimming. Yellow and orchid are very popular colors but black is also being received with much favor for evening. The slippers are gold or silver.

For the high school or college girl dresses with princess lines of cassia cloth are attractive. Their afternoon frocks are georgette crepe or taffeta, navy blue being very popular.

The frocks for the afternoon or garden party are in the lighter colors of georgette trimmed with velvet, the shoes and stockings being dyed to match. For evening the simple frock embellished in beads and finished with the scalloped skirt is very smart.

Even though this spring's styles resemble last year's there is a decided difference as this year's follow the real rincee lines, the neck is V or high, the shoulders are well fitted, skirts have a decided flare gained by inverted plaits or circular godets, waistline tends toward the normal, sleeves long close at ton, flared or puffed at wrist. Colors generally are in the pastels.

WINCHESTER HIGH SWAMPS STONEHAM

Winchester High had no difficulty in defeating Stoneham in a Middlesex League basketball game on the local court Wednesday afternoon, 43-18. The inclement weather kept the crowd down to a small gathering even for an indoor attraction.

The boys from up North were never in the running for honors and had it not been for the splendid work of the center, Captain Clark, who caged five floor goals, they would have been literally swamped by Coach Mansfield's boys. "Nicky" Fitzgerald and Captain "Wop" Rollie were the stars for the locals, both tossing in 7 goals from the floor with the "Wop" adding one from a free try.

Between the halves the Winchester second team defeated the Stoneham seconds, 50-3 with Ross scoring an even 26 of the local points.

The summary of the first team game is as follows: WINCHESTER: Griffin, Rollie, Chamberland, if, Kendrick, if, Fitzgerald, if, McCauley, c, Van Deyll, Cassidy, r, Metcher, taylor, Foul goals, Rollie, Griffin 2, Referee, Morrill, Timer, Murphy, Scorer, Drohan. Time, four eight minute periods.

WINCHESTER PLAYS BELMONT TONIGHT

Winchester High School and Belmont play one of those "crooshal" basketball games when their respective teams mingle tonight in the high school gymnasium. A win for the locals will put them either in undisputed possession of first place in the Middlesex League or at the worst in a top tie for the ranking position with Reading, a team which they have already defeated.

Belmont won a hotly contested game from Coach Mansfield's boys early in the season and the defeat has rankled the Winchester players considerably. They have never felt that Belmont sports a better outfit than themselves and are out to back their opinion tonight.

Winchester is a much better outfit than when it met Belmont before and if its players will hustle from the opening gong should have enough to pull out on top. Its lineup is probenational, but it likely will include Capt. Rollie and "Nicky" Fitzgerald at the forward berths, Frank McCauley at center and "Charlie" Cassidy and "Fat" Johnson in the back court. "Sport" Kendrick, Smith, "Nip" Chamberland and "Heinnie" Knowlton are others who will probably see service. The return of "Charlie" Cassidy has greatly strengthened the team's defense as the big boy is a veteran and has a good eye for the net.

ST. DENIS, FRANCE'S WESTMINSTER ABBEY

Rising waters of the Seine recently washed into the grist mill of the day's news the name of St. Denis, a little French city just outside the northern gates of Paris. Residents of the island of St. Denis, which is in the river opposite the city of St. Denis, and those along the river bank, were forced to flee to higher ground, some of them taking refuge in the city barracks.

Outwardly St. Denis is one of the least attractive of Paris' neighbors, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Most travelers on the Nord Railway from England or Belgium, who catch only a fleeting glimpse of its smoking chimneys and railroad yards from the car windows, are content to let a glance suffice.

Mother of Gothic Style

St. Denis, however, merits more of the world's attention, the bulletin continues. Paradoxically this busy little industrial center of today is one of the mother cities of art, as well as the final resting place of most of the royalty of France. Although little visited in comparison to Versailles, Fontainebleau or the chateau country, St. Denis has a church that was among the first churches to embrace the Gothic style of architecture; considered by some critics the greatest single advance in temple building since Greek and Roman days.

Within the church, or, more properly, the Basilica of St. Denis, is a veritable museum of French sculpture, marble effigies of 30 generations of kings, and queens, and other nobility of France. In fact, from the tombs of St. Denis the names for an almost complete "Who's Who" of ancient and medieval France could be copied. Marie Antoinette, Duc de Berry, Catherine de Medici, Louis XIV, Louis XVI, Louis XII, and a host of other Louis, Anne of Brittany, Marie Terresse, Henri II, and scores of others sleep their last sleep here in obscurity, but a few miles from the scenes of their former power and grandeur.

Legend of St. Denis

It is into the well of legendary lore that one must dip to find anything of the city's early history. According to legend St. Denis, the first bishop of Paris, suffered martyrdom on Montmartre in Paris about the year 270, and walked with his head in his hands to the site of the present Basilica of St. Denis. On the initiative of St. Genevieve the clergy of Paris built a chapel over his grave two centuries later.

The place soon became a Mecca for religious pilgrims from all parts of France. St. Denis witnessed deluges of people in the Middle Ages, which caused her far more concern than those of water today. In the 12th century Abbe Suger reports that he saw worshippers crushed to death by the crowds pressing in behind them. It was obvious that the small chapel first erected was inadequate. When Suger came into power he enlarged the church and above it built a choir, with tall slender columns supporting the intersecting arches of the vault.

Gothic Style Spreads

Although the new style of building was not invented at St. Denis, it had never been very seriously considered by former builders because it was not believed possible to support heavy roofs without heavy, massive walls. Pilgrim reports of the success of the venture at St. Denis resulted, for a time, in wholesale transformations of churches from sturdy Romanesque into airy Gothic. The Gothic style is being employed today in the new cathedral at Washington and at New York.

Many personages and highlights of world history have been intimately associated with the Basilica of St. Denis. One of the Popes, Stephen III, took refuge here from the Lombards. Charlemagne, founder of the Holy Roman Empire, was anointed by the same Pope during his residency at St. Denis. Joan of Arc dedicated her armor on its altar. Here Napoleon was married to Archduchess Marie Louise. Once it was sacked by the English. During the French Revolution, however, it suffered most. Tombs were rifled and the Basilica itself, deprived of its leaden roof, was used as a granary. Since 1895 it has been a simple parish church.

Mark Twain's Impressions

Mark Twain found the sculpture of St. Denis particularly impressive, so impressive, in fact, that he placed Charlemagne's tomb here, although the saint is really buried at Aix. It seemed curious, he wrote, to be standing face to face, as it were, with the old Dagobert I, and Clovis, and Charlemagne, those vague colossal heroes, those shadows, those myths Greek Church and the city's largest hospital, and issued a newspaper in Russian, another in Chinese, and a monthly magazine. Since the World War there has been some curtailing of the powers of the railway company in Harbin's affairs but it is still the most important factor.

The Harbin of today still proclaims its mushroom growth. It has had little chance during the hectic years of war to take on an established aspect. The most important buildings are those concerned with the railway company: a huge central station, administrative buildings, shops, hospitals, banks, etc. The city has four parts. Old Harbin, two miles from the river, grew up before the railway into southern Manchuria was projected. New Harbin, the important European center, is on high ground a half mile from the stream; while Pristan, the wharf district, fills in the space between New Harbin and the river. Down stream from Pristan, and outside the reservation, is the Chinese town, called Fu-chai-tien. The four communities have an aggregate population of about 104,000.

De Lux Russia Baths
There are reasonably good hotels in Harbin, both Russian and Japanese. The visitor will be impressed at the former by the preponderance of meat dishes and their greasiness, as well as by the vast quantities of tea consumed. One important factor in contributing

Delhi's Mystery Pillar

Among the chemical wonders of the world is the famous iron pillar of Delhi, which was erected about A. D. 300. The pillar, which weighs about six tons and is over 23 feet high, presents one of the conundrums of metallurgical science. As there were no steam hammers or suitable forging presses at the time of its erection, it is not known how such a wonderful object could have been produced.

Lumbering 700 Years

A Swedish lumber company recently celebrated its seven hundredth anniversary. It is said to be the oldest lumber concern in existence. Because of its scientific methods its forests, cut on a continuous-yield basis, are in better condition today than ever before. Every seventy or eighty years the loggers turn to the same timber tract for cutting. The cut-over land problem does not exist.

Spots on the Sun

If a spot of the sun is as large as 27,000 miles in diameter it can be seen without a telescope as a very minute black speck. Occasionally spots are even larger than this, and 50,000 miles is a size not unknown. The largest sun spot on record was observed in 1858; it was nearly 150,000 miles in breadth and covered about 1-35 of the whole surface of the sun.

Salt Injures Soil

The bureau of soils says that the application of rock salt upon driveway will injure the soil for a radius of about three feet. If the roots of a neighbor's trees or shrubs extend under the driveway, rock salt will be poison to them. Otherwise, it will not hurt the property unless the person washing the substance over onto his land.

Happy Endings Win

Patrons of motion pictures in Australia greatly prefer American films to the home product. The happy ending seems to get the money all the world around. Though the unhappy ending may be logical and artistic, most human beings seeking in places of amusement a refuge from the harsh realities of every day do not care for them.

White and Black Alkali

White alkali soil contains salt, while the black alkali contains sodium carbonate, which is stronger than salt. White alkali does not interfere with crops, while black alkali does. An inexperienced person could not tell the difference, as it requires special instruments for making this test.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at the home of Mrs. George Arnold, 7 Dix terrace on Friday, Feb. 19 at 3 p. m. Miss Laura A. Jones, State Corresponding Secretary will be the speaker.

On Feb. 3 the mid-winter Convention and Institute of Middlesex County, W. C. T. U., was held at State headquarters, 541 Massachusetts avenue. County President Mrs. Grace M. Hamilton presiding. The Convention was well attended, 17 towns in the county being represented by delegates.

The following ladies led in the discussion of various departments: State President, Mrs. Alice G. Ropes; "The Department of Medical Temperance," Mrs. M. Ella Kieger, State Director of "Child Welfare," Mrs. Laura A. Jones, State Corresponding Secretary, "Membership," Mrs. A. D. Gordon, County Director, "Christian Citizenship," Mrs. Ella A. Gleason, state director of "Parliamentary Usage" held a very lively and interesting as well as instructive drill. Mr. Harold Caverly gave a very forceful address his subject being, "The Prospect." He urged the ladies to work as never before to elect and keep in office men whom they know would enforce the laws. There was a record breaking attendance at the Forum held in the First Congregational Church, West Roxbury last Sunday evening to listen to a debate on the question, "Resolved that the 18th Amendment has done more harm than good." Mr. Julian Codman of the Constitutional Liberty League speaking in the affirmative and Mrs. Ella A. Gleason, Honorary State President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in the negative. Mr. Codman did not give any statistics to prove his points simply dealing in generalities.

He said, "Anyone can see for themselves the condition of affairs today brought on by prohibition. During the question period he admitted that he had always opposed the 18th Amendment. He could not find language strong enough to denounce the 'Volstead Act,' and seemed to feel that a modification of the act with the return of light wine and beer would be the solution of all our National ills. He is opposed to the return of the open saloon, but when pressed by more questioning thought wine and beer might be sold through our grocery stores.

He hoped the time would come when each state would have the right to have its own definition of "intoxicating liquor."

Mrs. Gleason's arguments were strong and forceful. She said the 18th Amendment was not responsible for crime and all disrespect for law. She proved very clearly that these things together with illicit manufacturing of liquor existed long before we had prohibition. She gave statistics from banks, schools, churches and colleges to prove that more young people are entering these institutions of learning and religion than ever before. She also pointed out the long array of insurance policy holders and gave bankers statements of the large increase of small depositors.

She proved to the satisfaction of her audience that the working man's home was never more comfortable, many homes and automobiles being bought with money which formerly found its way into the saloon. She closed by saying "Any man has a right to work for the repeal of any law, but no man has any right to violate any law while it remains upon the statute book."

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Arthur C. Pillsbury will lecture before the Fortnightly on Monday in the Town Hall at 2:30 o'clock. His talk will be illustrated by motion pictures. "Wild flowers are like people—they have their births, their loves, their deaths, their moments of triumph, their inevitable tragedies. To watch a Mariposa Lily or an Evening Primrose struggle into being, live its life and pass on, is as poignant and beautiful a spectacle as anything ever produced by the greatest dramatists." So says Mr. Pillsbury, official photographer at Yosemite National Park in California, who has devoted years to the study of wild flowers and the invention of a method by which he films them in all stages of their development. He says, "When you see a bowl of yellow daisies you doubtless harbor the illusion that you are looking upon peace and serenity. It is far from that, excepting where the older ones are concerned. The young ones are twisting and turning and doing everything in their power to attract the honey bee, their dainty little mate. The bold little creatures look so demure until we watch them on the sly and then we know they are no better than the rest of us."

Mr. Pillsbury's lectures have been given all over the country and he has appeared before the National Geographic Society and the National Museum in Washington. The club is most fortunate in being able to secure Mr. Pillsbury and a delightful and most entertaining afternoon is anticipated.

Parliamentary law class will meet as usual on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

Miss S. Agnes Donham will lecture on Friday, the 19th, at 2:30 p. m. in the Fortnightly Hall. This is the first of a series of lectures on home economics under the direction of Mrs. F. C. Sargent, Chairman. Miss Donham's subject for the lecture on Friday will be "The Family Affair."

Late in London

In London it is impossible to ignore the fact that you are late. The self-righteous hands of clocks point out your guilt whichever way you look. Your eye and your ear are accused on every side. You long for the courteous clocklessness of the country; there, mercifully, the sun neither ticks nor strikes, nor cavils at the minutes. —Stella Benson, in "This Is the End."

NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY

Distribution of the new telephone directory for Metropolitan Boston begins in Winchester the week of Feb. 7. The edition is over 450,000 copies. There are 186,205 changes, including added, removed, and revised listings. This makes it especially desirable that everyone should consult the new directory before making calls.

A complete rearrangement of the Classified business section includes new type-face, new set-up, and new page layout, resulting in much more effective typography and largely increased reference value.

The new book includes 311,000 general listings and 67,500 business listings, a total of 378,500. There are 636 pages in the general section and 584 pages in the classified business section, a total of 1,220, and a gain of 220 over the previous book. The book weighs 4½ pounds.

With the issue of the new book over 5500 telephones are transferred from manual switching offices to machine switching offices, 1740 from Roxbury to Highlands, 3093 from Back Bay and Copley to Kenmore, and 880 from Main, Beach and Congress to Liberty. There are now in Metropolitan Boston eight machine switching offices serving over 60,000 telephones. Liberty is now the largest machine switching office in New England, with over 17,000 telephones.

To John Fitzpatrick, Nathaniel J. Merritt, Kate Foley, George H. Kelley, Edward J. Dinneen, Elizabeth B. Dinneen and Delia McCue, of Winchester, and G. C. Carpenter of Melford, in the County of Middlesex, Executors of the will of John Fitzpatrick, late of Winchester, Commonwealth, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by James Peter McCue, late of Winchester, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

Two certain parcels of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded and described as follows:

First parcel: Northwesterly by Sheridan Circle, 190.00 feet; Northwesterly by land now or formerly of Edward J. Dinneen et al, 94.93 feet; Southwesterly by land now or formerly of Kate Foley, and Nathaniel J. Merritt, 190.00 feet; and Southwesterly by land now or formerly of John Fitzpatrick, 93.20 feet.

Second parcel: Northwesterly by Main Street, 11.24 feet; Southwesterly, Northwesterly and Southwesterly again by land now or formerly of George H. Kelley, 84.11 feet, 30.00 feet and 40.00 feet; respectively; and Southwesterly by land now or formerly of Edward J. Dinneen, et al, 95.00 feet.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the first day of March A. D. 1926, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, CHARLES THORNTON DAVIS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-sixth day of January in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-six.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

There are times when the mere man will arrest himself. In a certain Winchester sick room the nurse holds that eternal vigilance is "the price of sanitation." She now and then objects that the patient does not exercise sufficient care in eating. He sometimes obeys all her rules with conscientiousness and at times he has his own way. "Now," remarked the nurse, "you must have been careless; you are taking cold. I heard you sneeze." The Spectator marveled at this Winchesterite's self-will, but in a defiant manner he answered, "I am entitled to sneeze once a day." Sometimes the worm will turn.

M. E. Flynn, burgess of Milesburg, Pa., is a burgess after the Spectator's own heart. He has just issued a proclamation to all whom it may concern, the stranger within the gates as well as the resident population, that the period for foolishness or abuse of liberty in any way in Milesburg has passed. He talks on the one hand as a kindly father and on the other as a Dutch uncle. After the usual injunction to drivers of motor cars to observe the traffic laws, we find these bits of wholesome advice that would not be very bad advice to post in and around Winchester:

No loafing on corners or along the streets; no cursing or making of remarks about ladies while passing. Show your respect.

Children, take notice: We do not want a curfew, because it would be you too hard. But do not take much advantage of this after 8:30 p. m., or you might establish a curfew.

Bootleggers: I am not saying much about any one in the business around or in our burg. I am going to make a general cleanup if I get wise.

I am giving everyone a chance, and let everyone obey the law of our burg. Every decent minded citizen here in Winchester will take his hat off to the burgess. Long live Burgess Flynn!

Dr. Floyd Tomlin recently said that the Volstead law is better enforced than the laws against theft. A Winchesterite who read this statement pondered, and questioned, but within a week two of his acquaintances had their automobiles stolen.

How different are the paths to human happiness. A Winchester lady was much vexed because the baker had not called. "If he is sure of payment," she observed, "he often fails to call on folks who expect him." Several individuals had treated her in this manner and the sums laid by ran up into substantial figures, whereas she would have preferred to settle up every week and clean the slate. Different were the annoyances of a Winchester woman we will call Mrs. I. O. U., who purchased several articles, and was not always, if ever, ready to meet the collector. The collector would call and ring perhaps 10 or a dozen times, not satisfied that failure to reply meant absence from the premises. Then would he beat upon the door. Loudly would he express his opinion concerning backward payers. At times his comments were such that they would not be suitable for publication in the Star. The neighbors, on warm afternoons, had their naps broken by the warmth—aye the torridness of his remarks. The lady mentioned at the outset of this paragraph would have been better pleased had the collector called more frequently. Mrs. I. O. U. would have been happier had they called on someone else. The Spectator has heard several persons like the ladies first mentioned complain of the tardiness of collectors, and the Spectator has heard the other type to discreetly avoid the subject of business.

Dr. Hornell Hart, of Bryn Mawr College, has predicted that the average length of life of persons born in 2000 A. D. will be at least 100 years and that many will live more than 200 years. His conclusions were based on mathematical findings and on studies made into the distant past. Back about the time Shakespeare was born, Dr. Hart pointed out, the average expectation of life was about 21 years, but this expectation had advanced to 50 years by 1919. He figured out to a nicety the growth of the average span, decade after decade, since 1850, and hit upon the average gain of three and two-tenths years—a rate he thought would be maintained and even accelerated. If this calculation is correct, the world, then, is approaching the age span common in Biblical narrative and men will again live to be as old as Methuselah.

We believe it would be perfectly safe to say that one out of every two persons in Winchester today is insured. Counting five to the average family, that means that more than two members of every family are insured; and, put in more concrete terms, it means that every family averages to have an estate of nearly $3000 in hand and immediately convertible into cash on the death of the insured. Here we find the most notable and the most frequently ignored fact to offset the other fact not long ago deplored by a Winchester writer, that "the people are tending to become propertyless." It is true that the ownership of houses, farms, lands and other forms of real property is downward. But the explanation is that saving is more and more taking the form of insurance. But insurance is not a propertyless affair. The first fact of insurance is security, and the second fact is that insurance buys an estate in cash, an estate that is liquidated and turned into dollars and cents at the moment of need. Hence it has become almost in a lifetime the biggest system of co-operative saving and investment the world has ever known.

MOON RAYS

(Written for the Winchester Star)

A diamond sparkling 'mid new fallen snow.
Can it be so?
Can it be so?
A fairy land light?
I know not, but lo!

A diamond sparkling 'mid new fallen snow.
Pretty light and sweet light!
Colored light and gay light!
Ah! it is the moon, and lo!
A diamond sparkling 'mid new fallen snow!

HEALTHY HAPPENINGS

My body must have iron
To make it straight and strong
I don't depend on iron pills
Because I know that's wrong.

The taste of liver thrills
I find that carrots brace me up
And "iron out" my ills.

A COMBINATION

All the charm that goes with an old-fashioned house—white wainscoting, windows that run down to the floor, open fire-places, beautiful stairway; and all the comforts of a new house—splendid hot water heater, gas range, mostly hardwood floors. Nine rooms and bath. The location is ideal—splendid neighborhood, quiet street, five minutes to Wedgemere. Corner lot containing nearly 10,000 sq. ft. Many fine shrubs, fruit and shade trees. Single garage. Price $13,500. Terms.

WEST SIDE

Nearly new house of Colonial design. It contains on the first floor: large living room with open fireplace, generous sized sun porch on South side, open porch on north side, dining room and kitchen with breakfast nook. Second floor: three large chambers, one small one and two closets. Third floor: maid's room and storage. About 10,000 sq. ft. of land. Perennial garden laid out last Fall. Two-car garage. Price $21,000.

WEDGEMERE BARGAIN

Unforeseen circumstances require the immediate sale of an eight-room house in this fine section. Substantial house about 14 years old. Single garage. Price cut from $12,500 to $10,500.

The coldest temperature thus far encountered this winter came on Tuesday morning, when the glass registered from 4 to 10 below. In the center it was 10 below, while on the hill it did not go much below 4. Few people suspected that the weather was so cold, however, until they went out of doors, the absence of wind tending to keep the houses warm. The day opened with a beautiful winter morning, clouding during the afternoon for Wednesday's snow.

PALOS: STARTING POINT FOR COLUMBUS' AND RECENT TRANS-ATLANTIC FLYER

Conflicting ideas of the place from which Columbus put off in his historic voyage of discovery to the New World have been raised by press dispatches in regard to the Spain-Argentina flight of Spanish airmen. They announced that they would begin their trans-Atlantic hop from the exact spot from which Columbus' flag ship put to sea. These dispatches have been dated from both Huelva and Palos, Spain. The region from which Columbus sailed is the subject of a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Port Dwindled to Insignificance

Fate selected Palos to be the starting point for one of the most momentous and significant journeys ever taken by land or sea, says the bulletin. But then, as though more than enough had been done for one place, she soon turned her back upon it. The centuries that have passed since Columbus' day have not been kind to Palos. When the Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Nina put boldly out from Palos it was a reasonably important port, just far enough within the common, forked estuary of the Rio Tinto and the Rio Odiel to be protected from the swell of the Atlantic. But long ago the harbor became silted up, and now that which bears the name "Palos" is only a tiny, insignificant fishing village.

Palos is situated on the Rio Tinto arm of the estuary about 10 miles from the sea. At about the same distance up the Odiel arm is Huelva, the rival which became the dominant port of the estuaries. As Palos went down, Huelva went up. A channel is kept open to its quays, and because of the great quantities of copper and sulphur ores that are shipped from it, it is surpassed in tonnage handled by only a few Spanish ports. In the neighborhood, on the two rivers, are the largest mines in Spain.

Rival Ran Away With Date Lines

Since Huelva is of the bustling present with its hotels and telegraph offices, while Palos is of the past, those participating in the recent airplane flight gathered at Huelva, although the start was actually made off Palos. Because of this situation, Huelva ran away with most of the date lines in the stories of the beginning of the flight.

There are other reminders of Columbus in this region than what is left of Palos. Opposite the junction point of the Odiel and the Tinto is La Rabida Monastery, partly in ruins, where Columbus received the first encouragement for his "wild" plans. The prior of the monastery, formerly the confessor to Queen Isabella, induced her to finance the voyage. On the river bank, near the monastery, stands a colossal statue of Columbus, looking off toward the ocean which he conquered.

Made Great by Difficulty

The greatest men have been those who have cut their way to success through difficulties.—Robertson.

Canaries Once Green

Canaries in their wild state were green and had louder and clearer voices than the domestic variety. They were first brought to Europe in the sixteenth century.

TOWN WARRANTS OUT THIS WEEK

Requested Appropriations Total $802.341.54—Few Articles Likely to Produce Fireworks

The annual warrant for Town Election to be held on Monday, March 1, opening with the usual election of officers commencing at 6:45 o'clock, in the morning shows 38 articles for the consideration of the electorate. The customary report and recommendations of the Finance Committee is appended. Last year's meeting found the voters in the main very prone to follow the lead of this committee and with but few articles appearing in this year's warrant which are likely to arouse a wide divergence of opinion, it is entirely probable that similar procedure may again transpire.

This year's Town election bids fair to arouse rather more interest than that of last year when but one contest took place for the office of Collector of Taxes, the candidates being Nathaniel M. Nichols and David N. Somes. This office is to be contested for again this year; Mr. Nichols last year's successful candidate, being opposed by Mr. J. Leslie Johnston.

Other contests will be on the cards for the Board of Selectmen, the Board of Public Welfare and the School Committee.

For the first named there are seven candidates for the five positions including last year's Board comprising Messrs. Walter H. Dutton, J. Harper Blaisdell, Robert F. Whitney, John H. Powers and William P. Callahan with the addition of Thomas F. Fallon and Alfred D. Radley. Mrs. Alice L. Martin and Terence J. Cullen are candidates for the existing vacancy on the Public Welfare Board while a three-cornered fight for the two positions on the School Committee finds Mr. John A. Maddocks, Mrs. Elsie B. Tompkins and Mrs. Elizabeth C. McDonald in the field, the first two as candidates for re-election.

While most of the articles appearing in the warrant seem at first face value uninteresting, there nevertheless are several which may be productive of some joint debate with its attendant oratory and vocal pyrotechnics.

There are two Articles, 11 and 15, inserted by the Collector of Taxes, the first relating to the release and sale of all land or interests held by the Town for the non-payment of taxes, and the second making water rates a lien on real estate.

Article 14, inserted to see whether the Town will authorize the purchase or seizure by eminent domain of land adjoining the Lincoln School for school purposes may prove interesting as may also Article 19 of the Public Library Committee which seeks to know the Town's pleasure relative to purchasing or taking by eminent domain the land at the Northwesterly corner of the Parkway and Washington street as the site of a public library. The Finance Committee favors Articles 11 and 14 and recommends unfavorable action on the others named.

Article 16, inserted by the Fortnightly and referring to a survey of conditions relative to mosquitoes with recommendations for their "suppression or extermination" does not find the favor with the Financiers which might be the case were the question to come up for settlement during a muggy evening in August. Article 35, asking that $250 be appropriated as a salary for a Town dog catcher, to be appointed, is also frowned upon.

Article 22 asking for an increase in the wages of Town laborers from $4.50 to $5 per day may arouse more than passing interest. Once more the Finance Committee fails to approve.

Article 12 has to do with the acceptance by the Town of Section 23, Chapter 39, of General Laws, as amended by Section 7 of Chapter 427 of the Acts of 1922, in effect to see whether the Town will authorize the election of Town officers either seven days before or after the meeting held for the transaction of other business, and whether license shall be granted for the sale of certain non-intoxicating liquors in Town. Just how the amendment by Section 7 of Chapter 417 of the Acts of 1922 can modify the above is problematical. This section deals with the selling of liquor on prescription by druggists, while Chapter 33 of the Acts of 1925 dispenses with the vote at City and Town elections on the question of granting licenses for the sale of certain non-intoxicating beverages and would seem to apply more closely to said Section 23 of Chapter 39 which the Town is to consider. At all events the Finance Committee favors the acceptance of Article 12.

In submitting its report, the Finance Committee states that the acceptance of its recommendations, based on the estimated increase of $750,000 in the total valuation of real and personal property figured by the Board of Assessors, would require a tax rate of something like $25.25 plus. This rate is based solely on appropriations recommended by the Finance Committee and does not include any provision for such further expenditures as may be voted in connection with the various other articles to be acted upon at the Town Meeting. If these other articles in the warrant recommended by the Finance Committee and calling for the expenditure of money are voted the tax rate will be increased to about $24.28.

The total amount of money expended in 1925 was $791,731.93. The recommended amount for 1926 totals $802,341.54. The recommended amount for the current year is $711,399.76.

James "Fireman" Cullen of this town, wrestling in the 115-pound class, won his bout from Chibas of Harvard in a dual meet between the two colleges on Wednesday night. Incidentally "Fireman" helped Tech to give Harvard its first set-back of the season.

GEORGE W. DEARBORN DEAD IN FLORIDA

George W. Dearborn, long a resident of Winchester, passed away last Sunday evening at St. Petersburg, Fla., where he had been spending the winter with Mrs. Dearborn. He was 82 years of age.

Mr. Dearborn was a native of Campton N. H., and attended the public schools at that place. He came to East Cambridge as a young man and entered a grocery store run by his father-in-law, a store of which he ultimately became the owner and which he spent the greater part of his life in developing. He had been retired from active business for some years and had for some time spent his winters in Florida where he had built a home. For many years Mr. Dearborn had been vice president of the Lechmere National Bank of East Cambridge and was at the time of his death a member of its board of directors.

Surviving, besides his wife, is a daughter, Mrs. George A. Taber of Reading. Funeral services will be held at St. Petersburg today. The interment will be in Wildwood cemetery, Winchester.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED AT TEA

The engagement of Miss Barbara Goddard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Goddard of 12 Wolcott road to Mr. Craven H. Coulter of Clinton, was announced at a tea given by her mother last Saturday.

Miss Goddard attended Wykeham Rise School at Washington, Conn., and is a graduate of Miss McClintock's School in Boston. Mr. Coulter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Craven Coulter of Chestnut street, Clinton, and is a graduate of Dartmouth, class of 1923.

Miss Peggy Abercrombie, of Brookline, was a most charming feature of the tea, dressed as a miniature Valentine and carrying a basket of sweet peas, which contained also the announcement cards.

Those pouring and assisting were Mrs. Clarence Coulter of Clinton, Mrs. Edward A. Tucker, Mrs. W. F. Edlison of Winchester, Mrs. Zenas Bliss of Providence, Mrs. Josiah Teel of West Medford, Mrs. Irving Jennings of Winchester, Mrs. Helen Blagdon of Brookline, and the Misses Elizabeth Loveland of Newton, Martha Cowles of Jamaica Plain, Betty Bird of Brookline, Priscilla Lombard of Hingham, Betty Tucker and Janet Goddard.

The house was profusely decorated with beautiful flowers, the gifts of many friends and Miss Goddard carried an exquisite formal bouquet.

ENTERTAINED WITH PARTY ON SIXTH BIRTHDAY

Little Miss Harriet Quimby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Quimby of Maxwell road entertained several of her little friends on Tuesday afternoon at her home, the occasion being her 6th birthday. It was a real valentine party, games appropriate to the season being enjoyed while dainty refreshments consisting of heart shaped sandwiches with ice cream and cake were served from a table gay with red and white decorations. The favors were valentines, little heart-shaped boxes of candy and colored paper hats. The guests of the little hostess including Jane Gerrish, Priscilla Jones, Mary Meadling and Jean Wilson of Winchester and Marjorie Bailey of Woburn.

ARTHUR WARREN MUDGE

Arthur Warren Mudge, secretary of the Forbes Lithograph Co. with which concern he had been associated for the past 37 years, died Thursday morning at his home, 7 Wedgemere avenue. He was 57 years old.

Mr. Mudge was born in Boston, the son of George Warren, and Abbie (Leach) Mudge. He was a direct descendant of the famous revolutionary hero, General Warren, who fell at Bunker Hill. He attended the public schools of Jamaica Plain at which place he made his home until coming to Winchester in 1917. He was a member of the Boston City Club, the Algonquin Club, the Salmagundi Club of New York and the New York City Club as well as of the Baptist Church of Jamaica Plain.

Surviving are his wife who was Miss Alice Green of Jamaica Plain, two sons, Arthur W., Jr. of Winchester and William F. Mudge of Manchester, N. H., and a sister, Miss Cora Mudge of this town.

Funeral services will be held this Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the late residence and will be conducted by the Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church.

DAI BUELL Charm Winchester in Popular Program

If a cordial reception of every number rendered is evidence that a program and a player is popular, then the popular program played by Dai Buell at the Town Hall on last Friday evening was assuredly a complete success.

Miss Buell, herself, makes a charming and irresistible personality with a critical, intellectual and wholly sincere, mental attitude, and in frank speech talks of the mythical and historical background of her numbers with a sort of intimate friendliness, which binds her audience to her in a united spirit of human sympathy and intelligent appreciation. The lay-public grasps an understanding, hence, an enjoyment of a program which otherwise would be merely a "concord of sweet sounds" with no particular underlying meaning. Thru her interpretation remarks, it is much as though she had set the stage for the enactment of a charming group of little musical scenes, each revealing its own emotional content.

There is no conscious break between the discussion of a composition and its performance for speech and song seem to merge harmoniously one into the other. Her program was delightfully unconventional, unusual and refined. She chose her numbers from those which had made greatest appeal to audiences in Europe and America and in consequence gave something refreshingly new and unhackneyed. She began with a Locata by Paradies and then played Six Variations in "Nel cor piu non mi sento" by Beethoven, following it with Schumann's "Papillons." Miss Buell has given to the musical world the benefit of a real discovery concerning the "Papillons." From Otto Dorn, the son of Heinrich Dorn, famous teacher of Schumann, she learned that the "butterflies" were not mere fluttering radiant insects, but gay human dancers in a masked carnival.

This knowledge happily reconciles to a hitherto puzzled audience the reason for the tones of a striking clock and the pedantic rhythm of masculine steps distinctly recognizable in the composition. "A lass unto herself" in her Chopin group, yet with no infringement upon the composer's purposes, she literally merges her rare nature into the various moods of the versatile composer and produces a Chopin at once surprising, compelling and intensely satisfying. Her masterful sweep of the whole garment of human emotions as portrayed in the Ballade in A Flat Major and her infinitely tender conception of the Berceuse, alone will accord Miss Buell a unique and distinctive place among Chopin artists.

With exquisite finesse she painted her little group of miniatures, first a sturdy theme, from a German Forest by McDowell, then a dainty bit of humor, Brer Rabbit by McDowell, also, Greigs' Puck and At the Cradle, a whim, a lullaby and a romantic poem in the Etude of D flat by Liszt, each presented a bit of colorful harmony accurately portrayed.

In a very climax of joyousness she played Hark, Hark, the Lark by Schubert-Liszt and scarcely losing the spirit of "the bird on wing in the azure blue" she swept into her concluding number, the familiar, but much loved Blue Danube Waltzes, playing with singular brilliancy and virtuosity, the paraphrase arranged by Schultz-Erler.

Miss Buell's performance was interesting, unusual and impressive and her unequalled success was no more than her mete.

CONGREGATIONAL YOUNG PEOPLE ENJOY SLEIGH RIDE

Twenty-two members of the Young People's Society of the First Congregational Church took advantage of the splendid winter weather prevailing to conduct a most successful sleighing party on last Friday evening. Chaperoned by the Rev. and Mrs. Lisle Burroughs, the party, after a ride through the surrounding country, arrived at the Glendale Farm Inn, Woburn, where refreshments were served and an impromptu entertainment enjoyed. The young people returned to Winchester about midnight, voting the evening well spent.

WINCHESTER GIRL IN CAST AT FINE ARTS THEATRE

Miss Carolyn Drisko of this town, daughter of Professor and Mrs. W. J. Drisko of Lloyd street, was a member of the cast which produced a Harvard Prize Play, "You and I," at the Fine Arts Theatre in Boston on Thursday and Saturday evenings of last week under the auspices of the Young Peoples' Religious Union. Miss Drisko's work came in for much favorable comment from those who saw the production. It might be added that her costumes were designed and made by the young lady herself.

ELKS GO TO NEWTON

Winchester Lodge of Elks will perform the initiatory work at Newton Lodge on Thursday evening, Feb. 25. Members of the local lodge who desire to attend the exercises in company with the Winchester officers, are requested to notify the Secretary at once, so that necessary transportation may be provided.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CANDLELIGHT ORCHESTRA

EVENT OF HOLIDAY

Legion Show Great Attraction For 22nd

The American Legion show in the Town Hall will be the big attraction for Washington's Birthday. Not only will this production, starring Suzanne Keener, Metropolitan Opera star and former leading lady in "Peg O' My Heart," and the famous Twentieth Century Candlelight Orchestra, prove an acceptable entertainment for the holiday, but it will give Winchester people some of the best music heard here in years.

There are still a few good seats available, notwithstanding the large sale of tickets which has already taken place. Those late-comers desiring to attend, should communicate with the following: Mrs. S. H. Taylor, Tel. 0670; Mrs. C. H. Symmes, Tel. 0381; Mrs. George Goddard, Tel. 0325-W; Mrs. R. K. Miller, Tel. 0536-R; Mrs. W. H. Pierce, Tel. 0308-W; Mrs. Nathan Thumlin, Tel. 1479; American Legion Home, Tel. 1270 and at the Winchester News Company, Tel. 0350.

RUN OVER BY TRUCK, NOT SERIOUSLY HURT

William T. Carleton, 7 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard T. Carleton of 52 Church street, had a narrow escape from serious injury when he was run over by a Ford one ton truck on Church street at the junction of Northwood street at 8:40 Tuesday morning.

According to the police account of the affair the truck, the property of Jere A. Downs of Arlington road and operated by Michael McNeil of Westley street, was proceeding slowly in a westerly direction along Church street. The little boy was evidently running beside the truck holding on to the vehicle when he suddenly slipped on the ice and fell in such a manner as to allow the rear wheels to pass over him.

He was picked up and taken to his home by Mr. Charles A. Lane of Glen road. Dr. D. C. Dennett was summoned and after an examination announced that he had sustained no serious injury.

ST. MARY'S TO PLAY MELROSE FIVE

St. Mary's C. C. Basketball team will oppose the East Side Neighborhood Club of Melrose next Thursday evening, Feb. 25 in the High School gymnasium. The game will start promptly at 8 o'clock.

The locals are by no means cast down at their defeat by the strong West End House senior five, as they played with a makeshift lineup which did not include their big "Ace" Francis Tansey, around whom their scoring game is built.

It is expected that the full strength of the club will be available for the game against Melrose which means an interesting evening for the visitors. Down early if you want a seat.

JUDGE FREDERICK W. FOSDICK TO SPEAK TONIGHT

At Meeting of the Men's Club of the First Congregational Church

Judge Frederick W. Fosdick of the Superior Court will speak on "The Judge and His Job." The talk will be concerned almost wholly with the criminal work of the Court. This should be a most interesting and illuminating address, as there has been so much criticism of Court procedure and of judges recently. Refreshments will be served after the meeting. All men are invited.

WHAT ABOUT THE AMERICAN HOME?

Forum Discussion Sunday

Is the American home improving or deteriorating? This is the subject which will be discussed at the Men's Forum Sunday morning after worship, under the leadership of Dr. Gilroy, Editor of "The Congregationalist."

There was a lively discussion on Prohibition last Sunday and this subject should prove to be equally interesting. The women are invited to take part in the discussion next Sunday.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Parlett of Clark street are the parents of a daughter born Feb. 5, at the Winchester Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Wild of Everett avenue are the parents of a daughter, Joan, born Feb. 8, at the Winchester Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleridge Mullins of Harvard street are the parents of a son, Coleridge Springer, born Feb. 9, at the Winchester Hospital.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WELFARE

We, the undersigned, believe that the best interests of Winchester will be served by the election of Mrs. Alice L. Martin as a member of the Board of Public Welfare. Mrs. Martin is a woman of sound judgment and practical experience in this field. She has successfully served as head of the Winchester Catholic Daughters of America for many years.

EDWARD KIRK JUDKINS

Edward Kirk Judkins, who will be remembered by older residents of the town as a former Winchester boy, passed away the first of this week at Midvale, N. J.

Mr. Judkins was born in this town Dec. 10, 1867, and was the son of the late Jerome B. Judkins. He was one of a large family who were prominently identified with Town affairs in the late eighties. The Judkins' home stood upon the present site of St. Mary's rectory and is now used as a convent for the Sisters who teach in the Parochial School. Judkins Pond took its name from a member of Mr. Judkins' family. The deceased was a graduate of the Winchester High School in the class of 1886 and formerly for some years had engaged in the electrical supply business. He had been away from Winchester for many years.

Funeral services were held at Keene, N. H., on Wednesday, and the interment was at that place.

MARTHA C. GERRY

Miss Martha C. Gerry, aged 79, passed away Saturday morning at the convalescent home of Miss Clara O. Purdy on Forest street. She had been in poor health for some time and had been a resident of Winchester for about two years.

Miss Gerry was born in Charlestown, the daughter of Samuel L. and Martha (Jennett) Gerry. Practically the whole of her life was spent in Roxbury where she had made her home before coming here. She leaves a sister, Mrs. Sarah P. Duncan of Summit, N. J. and several nieces and nephews, among them, Mrs. H. E. Worcester of this town.

Funeral services were conducted on Monday in the chapel at Forest Hills Cemetery by the Rev. Albert Everett of Roxbury. Interment was at Forest Hills.

EDWARD WOOLASTON COMFORT

Edward Woolaston Comfort, a prominent resident of the Highlands district died suddenly of a cerebral hemorrhage in the cellar of his home at 87 Highland avenue at noontime Thursday. He was a mechanical engineer and was at work upon some inventions he was perfecting when stricken. Dr. Arthur L. Brown was summoned, but found Mr. Comfort dead upon his arrival.

The deceased was a native of Tecumseh, Mich., the son of Woolston and Elizabeth (Satterthwaite) Comfort. He was 62 years of age and had made his home in Winchester since 1910, taking a prominent part in the affairs of the town and two years ago standing for election to the School Committee.

Surviving are his wife who was Miss Mary Vesta Shepherd and one son, Robert Comfort of this town.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon at the late residence and will be conducted by the Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church. Interment will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

"MY KINGDOM FOR A HORSE!"

O horse, you are a wonderful thing; no buttons to push, no horns to honk, you start yourself, no clutch to slip; no snark to miss, no gears to strip; no license-buying every year with plates to screw on front and rear; no gas bills climbing up each day; stealing the joy of life away; no speeding cops chugging in your rear, yelling summons in your ear. Your inner tubes are all O. K., and, thank the Lord, they stay that way; your spark plugs never miss and fuss; your motor never makes us fuss. Your frame is good for many a mile, your body never changes style; your wants are few and easy met; you've something on the auto yet.

NOVELTY SHOWER

A novelty shower was tendered Miss Mary A. Fallon of Forest circle this town last Friday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. Catherine F. Goggins, 22 Highland avenue.

Miss Fallon received many handsome and beautiful gifts. A very dainty collation was served by Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson and Mrs. Catherine Goggins, both sisters of Miss Fallon during which vocal and instrumental selections were rendered.

Miss Fallon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Fallon of Forest circle. She is to be married Easter week to Mr. William Baranuk of Boston.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL X-RAY DEPARTMENT

Thanks to the generosity of Mr. B. R. Houghton of Stoneham, the Winchester Hospital was presented with a complete X-ray equipment, something over a year ago. It is needless to say that this gift was greatly appreciated by all concerned in the welfare of our hospital work.

Among all the great contributions in recent years to medicine and surgery, the X-ray probably ranks first and foremost. Insulin is a recent discovery of great note, radium is another, applicable to the treatment of cancer, and in late years several marvellous local anaesthetics have been formulated; but basically, more important than these is the X-ray, because of its use in diagnosis.

No hospital today is complete, as a unit to care for the sick and the injured without an X-ray room. Indeed the research departments of our great life insurance companies have often referred to the advent of X-ray, as a most important factor in the work of prolonging the average age of human life. Readers of the Star may be interested, therefore, to learn of some of the uses of the equipment given to us by Mr. Houghton for the hospital.

The X-ray department is carried on under the direction of Dr. Robert G. Vance, Roentgenologist to the Huntington Memorial Hospital in Boston, who interprets the plates for the doctors.

From Nov. 1, 1924 to Jan. 1, 1926, there have been 418 patients cared for with the X-ray. Three hundred and three of these were patients in the hospital and 145 were out-patients. A list of the kinds of work done includes X-ray treatment, gastro-intestinal series, spine, ankle, elbow, femur, chest, teeth, skull, ribs—in fact all parts of the anatomy.

The sum of $4179.50 has been received from X-ray work in the 14 months. This sum has paid for the installing of the Victor machine, the proportion due the Roentgenologist, the cost of plates, type, etc., the cost of the technician who is also the record clerk, and still leaves a small balance for the hospital. As the work increases, since this does not make great increase in the overhead, this balance will become a real help toward the hospital expenses.

Mr. Edwin R. Waite of Fellsdale has been named as the architect for the new $75,000 building to be erected by the Somerville Trust Company.

OLD FASHIONED DANCING PARTY WELL ATTENDED

More than 100 couples attended the old fashioned dancing party held last Friday evening under the auspices of the Winchester Laundries Mutual Benefit Association in Waterfield Hall. The decorations were in keeping with the season being suggestive of Valentine's Day.

While old fashioned dances were the order of the evening those so minded had plenty of opportunity to enjoy the more modern steps to the tune of "Ned" Perry's Orchestra. The feature prize was won by Miss Gladys Chapman of Medford and Mr. Raymond Young of the Laundries' Financial Department. Both were presented with $2.50 gold pieces for their skill.

It is expected that a substantial sum will be realized from the party which will be utilized in the work of the Mutual Benefit Association.

Mrs. Helen DeWar headed the committee in charge of the arrangements with the following assistants: Miss Helen Lynch, Miss Hazel Chisholm, Miss Elizabeth O'Melia, Mr. Hartley Greenleaf and Mr. Leo Finnegan.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Cards are out this week announcing the engagement of Miss Madeleine Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Robinson of 155 Forest street to Mr. Durwin Rudyard Lake of Belmont. Miss Robinson is a graduate of Winchester High School, Class of 1922, and a member of the Eta Kappa Sorority. No date has been set for the wedding.

ENGAGEMENT

The engagement has been announced of Miss Marjorie Bramhall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Bramhall of Lexington, to Clark L. Baker of Albany, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Baker of this town. Miss Bramhall was a member of the class of 1924 at Boston University. No date has been set for the wedding.

"Art" French, competing for the Harvard freshmen last Saturday, won the 40-yard dash and the standing broad jump in their indoor track meet with the Phillips Academy team at Andover. French last year was captain of the track team at Worcester Academy, and this fall led the Crimson cubs on the gridiron.

HIGH SCHOOL JUNIORS HAVE THEIR PROM

The Junior Class of the Winchester High School held its prom and reception to the seniors last Saturday evening in the school assembly hall. About 40 couples attended and thoroughly enjoyed dancing to the strains produced by "Dave" Isen and his orchestra. The hall was gay with valentine decorations of red and white streamers combined with large and small hearts.

There were several novelty dances including an elimination dance, a spot dance and a favor dance. During the favor dance the girls were given whistles and the boys colored streamers while streamers and confetti were thrown upon the dancers from the sky-light in the center of the hall. The elimination dance was won by Miss Elizabeth Wyman of Arlington and her partner. The spot dance was won by Miss Marjorie Mobbs and Carl Weiss. During intermission refreshments were served.

In the receiving line were Miss Kathleen Cassidy, president of the Junior Class; her father, Mr. John P. Cassidy, Superintendent of Schools and Mrs. J. J. Quinn, Principal of the High School and Mrs. Wade L. Grindle, Miss Mary V. Perham, Mrs. W. Holbrook Lowell and Chairman Robert M. Stone of the School Committee.

The committee was headed by W. Holbrook Lowell and included Sally Brooks, Eleanor Healey, Dorothy Bond, George Bartlett, Robert Breen and Charles O'Donnell.

NORTH END ASSOCIATION ELECTS

The North End Improvement Association held its election of officers for the ensuing year on last Sunday afternoon in the Noonan School Hall. Reports of various officers and committees were also listened to.

The following officers were elected: President—Raymond Fenton; Vice President—James H. Powers; Secretary—Mrs. Elizabeth C. McDonald; Executive Committee—Peter Coss, Luke P. Glendon, James J. Fitzgerald, Albert Robinson, Mrs. Alice Martin, William E. McDonald, Frank E. Rogers, John McCarron, John F. Cassidy, John Lynch, William Guy, M. J. Foley, Mrs. Elizabeth C. McDonald and Mrs. Nora O'Melia.

GREATEST JOHN HANCOCK YEAR

That the year 1925 was the greatest year in the history of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston, whose ramifications extend the country over, was brought out in the annual report of the board of directors as presented by its president, Walton L. Crocker.

The company's history now spans a period of 63 years, and its remarkable growth has continued until it now has a total of more than 3,500,000 policies outstanding, its insurance in force aggregating nearly two and one-quarter billions of dollars. Twenty years ago the John Hancock, as it is familiarly known, had approximately $400,000,000 of insurance in force, with assets of approximately $37,000,000. The company's assets now total $368,818,072 and its insurance in force $2,232,076,863.

Last year the company paid out in death claims nearly $18,000,000 and nearly $9,000,000 in dividends to its policy holders. These figures raise the payments on policy holders' account since organization, plus existing reserve, to the sum of $709,895,386. The new life insurance paid for during the year amounted to $333,335,035, or an increase of 13.6 per cent over the year preceding.

An increasing percentage of the funds of its policy holders, administered by the John Hancock for their protection, were last year invested in city mortgages. The total amount of new money invested during the year in all classes of high-grade securities aggregated over $60,000,000.

According to classification by States, Massachusetts ranks second in both payments made to policy holders and in insurance in force, the State of New York being the only State whose citizens received more money from the John Hancock Mutual Life and the only State in which there is more of the company's insurance in force than is now in force in Massachusetts.

During the year just passed the company issued two new kinds of life insurance, "wholesale" and "salary deduction." These are outgrowths of the group insurance idea adopted by the company and extensively practiced in the life insurance world. These new plans will further add to the service rendered by the company to the insuring public, the company now writing practically every form of life insurance.

WINCHESTER WINS FROM BELMONT

Winchester High reversed a decision which had stood against it since early season when its basketball team defeated Belmont High School last Friday evening in the local gymnasium 17-14. Between the halves the Belmont seconds defeated the Winchester seconds, 21-8.

The main battle of the evening was a thriller all the way. Coach Mansfield's charges had never felt that the Belmont boys were their masters and last Friday's meeting seemed to indicate that their hunch wasn't such a bad one to play. While the game was close the locals had the edge and held it despite the best efforts of their opponents to pull onto even terms.

The locals went right out from the start and ran the count for the first half to 9-2 in their favor. Right after intermission the visitors made a determined spurt and all but evened the score, only to see Winchester come back in the final period and obtain a commanding lead.

Winchester's defense against Belmont was about the best which the home club has shown this season, both "Fat" Johnson and "Charlie" Cassidy covering their men like tents. Only five goals were made from the floor by the visitors and when it is remembered that Belmont has been one of the ranking clubs on the circuit throughout the year, the work of the local back court men stands out even more strongly.

"Nicky" Fitzgerald and "Long Frank" McCauley were Winchester's aces. The former was the game's high scorer with 4 pretty goals from the floor while the elongated center court man was a big factor in keeping the ball in Winchester's possession by eternally getting that old tap.

The game as a whole was just about the best seen on the local floor this season, and it surely saw the nicest all around exhibition which Coach Mansfield's charges have shown to date. The boys showed a big improvement in both pass work and teaming while there was a whole lot less loose shooting than heretofore. It now looks like Winchester will be the team which will have to be beaten before anyone can win the Middlesex League championship.

The summary: WINCHESTER 17, Belmont 14. Goals from the floor, Fitzgerald 4, Cassidy 2, McCauley, Rollo, O'Toole 3, Childs, DeStefano, Foul goals, McCauley, Weatherbe, DeStefano, Larson, Childs. Referee, Davis. Timer, R. Murphy. Scorer, Drohan. Time, four eight minute periods.

WINCHESTER GIRLS TAKE BELMONT

Winchester High School girls' basketball team made it two straight from the Belmont girls Tuesday afternoon in the high school gymnasium winning 30-21 in an interesting game which was particularly free from rough work.

While the contest did not count as a league game, Belmont not being a member of the interscholastic circuit, it was by no means a party for the local girls. The score at the half was 16-8 but the visitors proved that they had a kick in the third period when they ran the count to 19-18 before Winchester opened up a last quarter lead which proved too much for them to overcome. "Kay" Valleley and "Vin" Rollo each caged 7 goals from the floor.

The score: WINCHESTER 30, Belmont 21. Floor goals, Valleley 7, Rollo 7, Anderson 6, Lock 4, Foul goals, Valleley, Rollo, Anderson, Referee, Lynch and Verol. Timer, C. de Coriolis. Scorer, L. Hamm. Time, four eight minute periods.

SCOUTS ENJOYED SLEIGH RIDE

Seventy eight Winchester Girl Scouts enjoyed a sleigh ride last Friday afternoon. After a most enjoyable trip over the well packed back roads in this neighborhood, they returned to the Congregational Church and enjoyed a hot supper which was greatly appreciated.

Nine girls of Troop 3 received merit badges at the following meeting. They were Edna Rosely, Mary McAuley, Muriel Carr, Marie Dusser, Ruth Dusser, Virginia Wadsworth, Helen Claffin, Caroline Nichols, Janet Nichols.

Mrs. Louis Snyder, Mrs. Walter Wadsworth and Mrs. Nichols were in charge of the affair.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR FRED-ERICK S. CHASE

Private funeral services for Fred-erick S. Chase, aged 51, who was found dead of gas poisoning in the kitchen of his home at 163 Forest street last Friday morning, were held on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 14, at the late residence and were conducted by the Rev. Allen Evans, Jr., rector of the Church of the Epiphany. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Mr. Chase was born in Lynn, the son of Ellen Safford and the late George T. Chase. His father was a veteran of the Civil War. For the past five years the deceased had been in poor health and had at one time undergone treatment for a nervous disorder at a sanitarium. At the time of his death he was making his home with his mother on Forest street, raising poultry on a small scale. He had been a resident of Winchester for about 11 years. Surviving besides his mother is a sister, Mrs. Emmalyn Rogers of this town.

Deputy Chief John Gorman and Firman Everett Kimball were called upon Wednesday morning to rescue a pet cat which had climbed to the top of a 60 foot tree on Nelson street.

WEST END HOUSE BEATS ST. MARY'S

The West End House senior basketball team was hard pressed to defeat St. Mary's basketball team of Winchester last Saturday evening in Lancers Hall, Boston, the score being 29 to 23.

St. Mary's did not present its strongest front for the contest being without the services of Capt. Francis Tansey and Frank Melly, two of its best players. Had they been in the lineup it is entirely within the bounds of reason that the local quintet might have been returned a winner.

As it was the West Enders, a clever combination, were given stern opposition, though they were well out in front at the half which ended 15 to 4 in their favor. After intermission the Winchester boys seemed to find themselves and while never quite able to pull up onto even terms with their opponents, nevertheless, made the going decidedly torrid. Sulkin, Boland and Shapiro starred for West End House with "Jomma" Dolan, McNeil and "Ray" Halwartz doing the best work for St. Mary's.

The summary: WEST END HOUSE 29, ST. MARY'S 23. Sulkin, r. f. lb, Quikley Boland (Kaplan), l. f. rb, R. Halwartz Gidowidge (Marcus), c c, McGrath Isaacson, rb lf (McNeil), J. Dolan Shapiro, lb rf, T. Dolan

SMOKER AND DANCE AT CALUMET

The "Father and Sons' Night" at the Calumet Club Saturday evening drew the largest attendance of the season and the hard going failed to prevent the "Old Man" and the boys from going over and enjoying the most popular entertainment of the winter. Mr. Ernest Dudley Chase of Lakeview terrace, a well known member of the club, was headliner on the program of entertainment, he giving a talk illustrated by some very beautiful pictures on his recent trip through Alaska. A short vaudeville sketch followed. All-in-all the evening was most enjoyable, and both fathers and sons were well entertained.

On Tuesday evening an old fashioned dance was held at the club, a most delightful party being enjoyed by about 60 couples. Most of the dances were "on the square," the music being furnished by a "Hick" Orchestra of unusual ability. The party was informal, and a feature of the evening was the refreshments which were served in Valentine form of novel creation.

Members will be pleased to know that the entertainment committee has made arrangements for a repetition of this party to be held some time during March, and also that the same orchestra has been secured for the music.

This Saturday evening witnesses the "Old Timers' Night," the details of which are to be announced. It is, however, stated that some snappy vaudeville acts will be staged and that the feature of the affair will be a talk by a well known writer on one of Boston's popular newspapers.

On Monday the club will hold open house throughout the day with a special bowling contest. The bowling will be unique in that each man who enters the contest will be required to provide a prize.

The afternoon from 2 to 5 the usual Washington's Birthday party will be held for the children with a suitable entertainment and refreshments. The customary dancing party for the Juniors will be held at the club in the evening. Both parties will be informal.

The ladies' afternoon bridge party which was postponed last week on account of the storm, is to be held on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 24, at the same hour—2 o'clock.

Next Friday evening there is to be an old fashioned military whist at the club. This will be for the members and their ladies.

"THE BIG PARADE"

Sensational Film Success Now Breaking All Records at Majestic Theatre, Boston

Hailed by critics and public as one of the greatest motion pictures ever made, "The Big Parade," King Vidor's tremendous epic of the World War, continues to play to packed houses twice daily at the Majestic Theatre in Boston. It is now in its fifth record-breaking week, with the end of its run not yet in sight.

This screen sensation is the talk of Boston, for on every side is heard the question, "Have you seen 'The Big Parade'?" Governor Alvan T. Fuller viewed the picture shortly after it opened in Boston, and on January 21st wrote the following letter to the Shuberts, the managers of the Majestic Theatre:

"Please allow me to say that I enjoyed 'The Big Parade' immensely. I wish every man and woman in the Commonwealth could see it. They would find it more interesting than any movie they have ever witnessed; especially interesting and romantic because of the love story that is part and parcel of it.

"It is a marvellous picture and, as far as I could observe, it held every one's attention every minute of the performance. Repeatedly it seemed to me that the high order and intense action of the piece could hardly continue to be maintained. However it was to the very end. It is the finest picture I ever saw."

Yours very truly,
(Signed) Alvan T. Fuller
It is almost needless to say that stronger praise could not be given, yet Governor Fuller is but one of thousands who have endorsed "The Big Parade" as the greatest cinema production ever made.

Performances are given twice daily, at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m., excepting Sundays. Every seat in the theatre is reserved and tickets are on sale two weeks in advance. A large symphony orchestra adds measurably to the screen presentation.

Rev. Lisle Burroughs of this town, assistant pastor of the First Congregational Church, was one of the speakers at the afternoon session of the fifth annual conference of the Older Boys of the Mystic Valley, held last Saturday in the First Congregational Church, Woburn. Mr. Edward H. Merrill, also of this town, was the toastmaster at the banquet in the evening. About 150 boys were present from Arlington, Medford, Reading, Stoneham, Woburn and Winchester.

TRAGEDY OF THE LOST DOG

The following letter was addressed to each of the editors of the Boston daily newspapers and was published by them in December:

I wonder if you will be kind enough once more to insert the following, which means a great deal in the course of the year to a multitude of unfortunate dogs:

The Lost Dog
Cruel as it is to inflict physical suffering on the dog, it is equally cruel to let him loose upon the street with nothing upon his collar to identify him in case he is lost.

We are repeatedly having dogs brought to us or are called to come and get them—fine dogs, dogs evidently cut of good homes, which are without a collar or with a collar on which there is no trace of the owner's name or address, or even a license number.

Few objects are more worthy of pity than the lost dog with the appealing look of anxiety and alarm in his eyes as he darts here and there vainly searching for his master or for the way home.

FIDELIS CLUB PARTY POSTPONED

Out of respect to its founder, Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons, who recently suffered the death of his father, the Fidelis Club, composed of young ladies of St. Mary's parish, has indefinitely postponed its Valentine Party and Dance, originally scheduled for last Monday evening in Waterfield Hall.

MRS. FANNIE C. BOONE

Mrs. Fannie C. Boone, widow of Alan Foster Boone, and daughter of the late George H. and Roxana Chapman, died Monday after an illness of several months. Mrs. Boone was born in Chelsea, March 29, 1843, and moved to Winchester in 1888, where she lived in the family home on Grove street practically all of her life. In earlier years she took an active interest in the work of the Winchester First Congregational Church, of which she was a member for 65 years.

Mrs. Boone was also identified with the musical life of Boston, through her singing in the Peace Jubilee under Patrick Gilmore and Carl Zerkahn, and later by her active membership for 10 or 12 years in the Boylston Club, later the Boston Singers' Society under the leadership of the late George L. Osgood.

Mrs. Boone is survived by a sister, Mrs. Louis I. Smith of Philadelphia; two sons, Allan E. and Robert C. Boone and two grandchildren, all of Winchester.

Simple funeral services were held at the residence on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, officiating.

Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons of St. Mary's parish has the sympathy not only of his parishioners but also of his many friends throughout the town upon the loss of his father, Mr. Patrick Fitzgibbons, who passed away last Saturday, Feb. 13. Funeral services were held at the late residence, 424 Meridian street, East Boston, on Tuesday at 9 in the morning, followed by a Solemn High Mass of Requiem in the Church of the Most Holy Redeemer at 10 o'clock.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

In getting to the bottom of things, one usually finds how to get to the top.

Hitch your wagon to a star, but it is a good stunt to pad your trousers.

Keeping everlastingly at it will quite likely bring nervous prostration.

A sock in the shoe is worth two in the eye.

People who expect to pick roses must not be afraid of thorns.

There are lots of go-getters who never come back.

There's no surer road to destruction than prosperity without character.

Well, there's some encouragement in the old rhyme:

"If February gives much snow,
A fine summer it doth foreshow."

Thoroughly in accord with our local Postoffice in its endeavor to follow President Coolidge's economy budget, a subscriber asks whether or not such practice may be carried too far. He realizes, he says, that it's "the little things that count," but why no broom nor shovel? He feels that while economy may be effected in favor of the Federal Government in allowing the Town to shovel the sidewalk and sweep the steps, it's no immediate money in his pocket. Possibly the budget does not allow funds for a cleaning department! In that case, says he, "let George do it."

How times have changed! In the days of our youth, when we caught onto the back of a team and failed to let go when the driver told us to, he stopped and chased us, and if we were caught we got just what we deserved
—a good licking. If we were bold enough to whine over it at home we usually got another. Now-a-days the kids deliberately step in front of fast moving automobiles just to watch the antics of the driver in his endeavor to escape hitting them. Should he so far lose his temper as to swear at them a report of his misdemeanor carried to the parents results immediately in a suit for damages; and if the affair gets as far as the court—a substantial fine.

Possibly we might carry our just (?) and complex laws a bit farther and license automobile drivers to administer proper punishment to children who defy life and limb by deliberately inviting accident in our streets, but undoubtedly should we do so the examining board, civil service commission and courts would find that few drivers were properly qualified for the commission.

Yes—in our opinion there are not any of them with hands heavy enough to give the proper and necessary touch. The simple old days when a good licking properly administered at the right time was in vogue, appear to be gone forever.

THE MEANING OF LENT

Lent does not mean a sort of spiritual house-cleaning, by which we hope to repair the neglect of the past or to save ourselves the trouble of religious exercise for the future. No season of special religious devotion can atone for periods of neglect. It would be just as foolish to expect to make up for past under-nourishment of body or future famine by present over-eating. Our spiritual nourishment must come to us day by day, as the Manna which fed the Jews of old.
What is Lent then? It is a season of re-consecration to the ideals of our faith. It is a season of stock-taking. We pause in the face of the looming Cross to ask what our spiritual gains and losses have been in the past year, and to soberly question ourselves whether we are bound.

Lent is not best kept by fasts or the giving up of delights. It is best kept by giving serious attention to spiritual things, by taking time from the vanities of life to commune with our Lord and to remember our dear dead, and in memory of Him and them to highly resolve that for six weeks at least we will live "In re-

To this high consecration the churches call their people, once again this year.

The Easter joy will be the measure of your response.

WATERTOWN GIRLS OUTCLASS WINCHESTER

Watertown High School, contenders for top honors in the girls' interscholastic basketball league, proved too strong for Winchester Wednesday afternoon, winning on their home floor, 56-15. While it is hard to compare a team losing by such a score with its victor, it is only fair to say that there was by no means the difference between the two clubs which the figures would seem to indicate.

The same conditions which made the local boys' quintette look bad when it played at Watertown bothered the girls and prevented them from showing their best game. The Watertown gym is very large, in fact one of the largest in this section, and the glass backboards make shooting for those unaccustomed to them a particularly difficult accomplishment.

The home team played a strong game, and its right forward, Miss O'Neil, with 16 goals from the floor, was the star of the matinee. "Kay" Valley with four goals from the floor and three from free tries was Winchester's high scorer while the work of Wilhelmina Simmons at side center also stood out.

The score:

WATERTOWN	WINCHESTER

WINCHESTER DEFEATS LEXING- TON AND LEADS LEAGUE

Winchester High went into first place in the Middlesex Basketball League when its team defeated Lexington High at Lexington Wednesday afternoon by the score of 22-14.

The minutemen were ahead for a few minutes at the very start as a result of a goal from the floor by Napoli and a foul goal by Murphy.
Winchester soon overcame this lead
"Nicky" Fitzgerald personally rolling up enough points to wipe off the books when he shot 3 goals in a row.
The score at the half stood 14-4 in favor of Coach Mansfield's charges, and a team of substitutes went in after intermission remaining in until late in the last quarter. Fitzgerald and "Fat" Johnson starred for the locals with Sweeney showing best for Lexington.

Between the halves the Winchester seconds defeated the Lexington seconds, 27-11.

Score of the main game:

WINCHESTER	LEXINGTON

WINCHESTER AT READING TONIGHT

Winchester High School's basketball team, sitting atop the Middlesex League by virtue of wins over Belmont and Lexington while Reading with whom it had been tied for that honor remained idle will step over to that town this evening for a muss with Reading High which will go a long way toward deciding the ultimate winner of the league title. Both clubs have lost a game. A previous meeting between the two teams at Winchester resulted in a win for Coach Mansfield's combination and if the boys have been displaying they should be returned winners. The club is a much improved organization over its early season form and while the same early season form of Reading still is also have been showing a better all around game lately, than their rivals from the north. The little delegation of local rooters will make the trip to Reading with the team.

MODERN TREND OF EDUCATION AND ITS SUPPORT

Eighty to one hundred persons attended the meeting held on Tuesday of this week of the High School Parent-Teacher Association. It was unfortunate that conditions of travel were such as to cause the small attendance for the address of Mr.
Quinn, our Superintendent of Schools was both timely and most illuminating. The High School Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Cusick of the teaching staff of the school played a number of selections with a skill which reflects great credit upon themselves and their leader, Mr.
Robert F. Guild, president of the association, presided.

A number of those present who were not members of the High School Parent-Teacher Association joined this organization. Undoubtedly many others will become members when the important work which this organization is doing is fully appreciated.

Following is an extract from Mr.
Quinn's address:

"During the last 20 or 25 years great progress has been made in the scientific study of education. Although teaching is an art, it is also a science and science has brought to the field of education a most noteworthy contribution. The contrast between the present day education and that of the past is a very marked one.
It should be understood, however, that much of the old is still good and is still used in our schools. The attitude of many of our educators is that expressed by President Coolidge at one time when he said 'We should be as old fashioned as the multiplication table and as progressive as science itself.'"

In the old type of education the presentation of information with rather a parrot-like return of that information on the part of the pupil to the teacher was a common procedure. Information or the obtaining of knowledge is, of course, a part of education now and always will be. Now, however, the endeavor is rightly placed upon the child and his growth and development. The interest is not to take down from a cold storage shelf of knowledge a mass of knowledge and pour it into the child, it is rather how may we surround the child with those experiences of the race which will help the particular child to grow and to develop to his full powers as a member of civilized society.
As an illustration I might take the field of English. This project is just a sample of projects or activities which may be selected within the experience of children to develop them according to the way in which they should go.

The Department conceived the idea that Winchester being in such close proximity to Boston, a city having many cultural advantages, that the department should seize the opportunities for education which Boston offers. We felt that the Art Museum, for instance, might well be visited by our pupils so that their work in the study of European History as a background for their own country's history might be more closely correlated with their study of Art. The pupils visited the Museum and upon their return used both oral and written expression to express their natural feelings as a result of that trip. Letter writing is one of the commonest forms of writing for us all. The pupils naturally wrote letters thanking those people who had provided means of transportation from here to Boston and thanking some of the Museum authorities who had given them the instruction while at the Museum.

They likewise told orally to pupils who had not gone to Boston their impressions of their visit. In other words, they had used such an activity as a stimulant and as a motive to natural written and oral expression.
The teacher in place of using some make believe situation requiring a letter, used as a natural life situation as a means for letter writing and for oral expression. Most of us in adult life, if not all of us, do not write or speak unless we feel that we have something worth while writing or saying.
There is a definite motive which makes us speak or write. This is one of the chief interests then of modern education—to go into interest children that they will naturally desire to do the thing which the teacher knows is worth while.

There is nothing in the above which urges softness in school work.
The fact that a child under pressure or a sense of fear may have done a task set by the teacher is no guarantee whatsoever that the task has become a part of the child. The chances are very good that when the pressure was taken away that the educational value disappeared. Education by no means indicates that school work must be disagreeable, that it must be extra difficult. The situations and life experiences which the teacher selects as means to develop children will call for plenty of hard work. The most permanent educational results, however, will be effected when the work in such activities on the part of children is motivated and when the child's interest has been aroused to achieve and also when he gets satisfaction from accomplishing something worth doing. Modern education distinctly tends to think of the child and his growth and how this may be most effectively attained rather than how much encyclopedic knowledge it can store into the child's mind. To effectively teach children in the modern way demands an artist and a scientist in the teacher's chair. To do this thing successfully requires one of the finest abilities which can be commanded.

Much is heard about the great cost of education which is rather natural when that it is true of about everything in these days. When one considers, however, the very great wealth of this country and the importance of education in civilization, he need not apologize for the cost of public school education. The following facts are of interest:

Accumulated wealth of the United States, 1922, $320,800,000,000.
Nation's Average Annual Income Approximately, $65,000,000,000.
Cost of Education is, $1,799,000,000.

For every $5000 worth of income enjoyed $138.50 is expended for the support of public education.

Savings Deposits in the United States, 1924, $25,873,000,000.

One person in every three had a savings account in 1924.

The per capita savings account in the United States has gone from $111.00 in 1918 to $186.00 in 1924.

Six per cent of the National Income is paid yearly for insurance.

Two and eight-tenths per cent of the National Income is paid yearly for education.

Estimated cost for passenger automobiles, 1920-1924, inclusive, $17,075,000,000.

Estimated cost of all public education
$20-24, $8,727,680,735.

50,000,000 people now go to the movies each week and pay $50,000,000 annually for this pleasure.

We are now spending well over $10,- 000,000,000 each year for luxuries.

The fact exists that we are not only able to make generous provision for things essential to our economic stability, but in addition are able to find billions for the non-essentials of life. The present cost of education could be doubled without encroaching upon any of the nation's basic and economic needs. Such an increase could be met by making a reduction of less than one-fifth in our luxury expenditures.

I am glad to say that Winchester has not forgotten its schools and their importance to the Town and State and Nation. It ranks well in the amount of money appropriated per child to be educated. It ranks well in the amount of taxable wealth per child to be educated and as would be expected, it meets its obligations.
Our per pupil cost has been lowered in the last few years and we believe without impairment to our work.
The per pupil cost is now less than $100. I doubt, however, whether we can continue the educational program which we now maintain if we are to further reduce the cost per pupil in our community.

The next meeting of this Association will be held some time in March at the Lincoln School.

DEATH'S BLESSED MISSION

(Written for The Winchester Star)

Death! Immortal conqueror of mortal strife!
Who to human vision loomest far away
Beside the door of Heaven's eternal life,
And Hope's own boundless, everlasting day,
Thine imperious silence we fear,
On thy dark form men dream with speechless dread!

Most awful to our shrinking thoughts appear
The soundless slumbers of thy gentle dead,
And yet our faith should teach in otherwise—
Should make thy peaceful presence star-like shine.

'Mid sorrows might most radiant unto eyes
Wearied with watching for the Light Divine,
O dumb and mighty messenger of God!
Thou holdest His deep secrets in hand:
Whom to have known is to have found the road.

To heights of knowledge Time cannot command.
We love thee not; and yet we do not know
If thou art not a veiled, familiar friend;
We may not feel thee strange when thou dost show.

How blessed is thy mission in the end,
Eugene Bertram Willard

ALL BECAUSE OF YOU

To Dai Buell

Last night I went a kyspying,
Lured by your magic notes,
I traveled Fancy's highways,
And sailed in Fancy's boats.

Broad, stately road, and hidden paths,
Wee boats, and galleons bold;
I sailed on clouds of amythist
And dreamed in mist of gold.

I was a courtly gentleman
And danced with ladies, fair;
The breath of many flowers
Was tangled in their hair.

With Pan, I skipped the forest,
And the dim tree aisles,
I played his pipes, enchanted
By nymphs and druids smiles.

I rode a golden silver moon,
And into the Land of Dawn,
And showered pearls, from treasure clouds,
Upon the drowsy lawn.

The lark and I soared high above
The poplars on the hill;
He taught me his sweet, lyric, notes,
Each cadence, lilt and trill.

Last night I went a kyspying
Into the Land of Blue,
And now I'm swinging from a star,
All because of you!

INTER-SCHOOL GAMES FOR THE GIRLS HELD TOO EXCITING

At a largely attended meeting of Massachusetts directors and instructors in physical education held last week-end at the Normal Art School in Boston Miss Eleanor H. Quinlan of Boston Teachers' College stated that the excitement attendant upon interscholastic games for girls "puts the spirit of good sportsmanship to a severe test" and results in "the entire loss of the recreational value of the games." The opinion of the other educators, mostly women, called together by the State Department of Education, was overwhelmingly in favor of the thought expressed by Miss Quinlan, and at the evening session resolutions were adopted opposing interscholastic leagues for girls and recommending a sharp limitation of interschool games, if any such are to be played. A broadly developed system of intramural sports was offered as a substitute. The great nerve tension resulting from games between rival schools was particularly stressed. Payson Smith, Commissioner of Education said that "no other activity in our educational system needed overhauling so badly as interscholastic athletics." Chairman Carl L. Shraeder, State supervisor of physical education, said that it was "an open question whether all interscholastic games should be abolished."

Other speakers were supervisors from Adams and Arlington, Principal E. H. Whitehill of Watertown High School, Prof. George E. Johnson of the Harvard Graduate School, Dr. George H. Bigelow, Commissioner of Public Health; Dr. F. W. Maronev, Physical Director in the Public Schools of Atlantic City, N. J.; and Miss Emily R. Andrews of the Central School of Hygiene and Physical Education in New York City.

Of particular local interest was the statement by Principal E. H. Whitehill of the Watertown High School that the present season would be the last in which the girls of his institu-

Whether or not other schools will follow Watertown's lead, providing of course the authorities of that town go through with Principal Whitehill's idea, is a question. The Star has received no intimation that Winchester is considering the curtailment of its athletic program for the local high school girls.

Not to Be Thrown Away

A man is not a wall, whose stones are crushed upon the road, or a pipe, whose fragments are thrown away at a street corner. The fragments of an intellect are always good.—George Sand.

Otters Travel Far

The biological survey says that otters are comparatively rare animals, but, being extensive travelers, are likely to appear now and then in any of the larger bodies of water, as fish is their natural food. They move about in the daytime and thus may be seen either fishing or at play. In the wilder regions they resort to steep banks of streams, down which they slide in play, plunging into the water below.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The ninth regular meeting of the Fortnightly was held at the Town Hall on Monday. Following the business session Miss Dorothy Fraleigh, the cellist of the Savoir Trio, accompanied by Mrs. Laura W. Watkins at the piano most pleasingly rendered "The Gavotte"—Popper, and "Arioso"—Bach, with encores.

Mr. Arthur C. Pillsbury a native of Medford, who has lived in California 46 years, and made a study of the habits of wild flowers and animals was the entertainer for the afternoon. He brought to us a great pleasure in his unusual motion pictures, "Life Secrets of Plants and Animals," was the topic. This was introduced by wonderful views of Yosemite National Park which is greater in area than the State of New Jersey. It starts at an elevation of 2000 feet and reaches 13,000 feet. Wild life in the National Park is now tame. Bears and deer eat out of the hand without fear of biting.

Scenic beauties of the Park were then shown. The Yosemite Falls, the highest in the world with a drop of 2600 feet and a swimming pool at the base; the Silver Apron; Bridal veil Falls and Nevada Falls. The Nevada Falls are best liked and show the most power. The immensity of precipices and gigantic rocks loomed up before us.

El Capitan rises 6000 feet. Below we have a river making a plunge of 700 feet and on the overhanging rocks of the high Sierras on which very life-like was shown a girl in Indian costume conducting the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner." With the famous Sierra Club we beheld the wildest water in the world making whirls of 75 feet in diameter. To these natural wonders are added the big trees. Three groves of them, 1600 trees to 30 feet in diameter. Among the individual trees, "General Sherman" was shown—the largest and oldest living thing in the world, 36 feet in diameter.

From trees we turned to plant life, of which Mr. Pillsbury has made a special study. Through his wonderful films the secrets and habits of the flowers are shown. Wild grasses grow in the morning between five and nine o'clock. Azalia takes three days to open. The Western Iris opening at 5 p. m. lives one day. The tulip lives four days.

A most telling example of the evil of bootleg and the virtue of water was shown by a picture of the California Poppy cut and placed in jars of water and whiskey. The bootleg poppy shriveled and died almost immediately while the one in water had a natural life. The orchid takes two weeks to open, the dandelion three hours. The thistle always opens on a windy day and the pollen is blown many miles. The California poppy is open from 9 to 3 o'clock and has most regular habits and lives three days.

Most dramatic was the film of poppies and wild roses showing the life and death of these friends which seem almost human. Especially pleasing were pictures of native flowers: the Languid Lady, Trillium; the Washington or Sierra lilies, which grow 10 or 12 feet high.

Mr. Pillsbury gave us a rare glimpse into the flower world enjoyed by young or old adding much to our appreciation of nature.

Home Economics Committee
Miss S. Agnes Donham will lecture on "Children's Income" next Friday at 2:30 p. m. in the Fortnightly Hall. This is the second of her talks on home economics. Mrs. F. C. Sargent, chairman.

A luncheon-bridge party with entertainment will be given on Friday, March 5, at 1 o'clock in the Fortnightly Hall, sponsored by the Parliamentary Law Class. Proceeds from the luncheon will be used to purchase table covers for the Fortnightly Hall. Members and non-members cordially invited. Phone Mrs. Ashley K. Hayden, Win. 0864-W.

Soldier and Sailor Welfare Committee
The gratitude of the Soldier and Sailor Welfare Committee of the Fortnightly, and of its members, is extended to Mrs. Addie Weeks of 119 Washington street, mother of Mrs. Ednah F. Miller, for her untiring efforts in behalf of the disabled veterans. Mrs. Weeks has spent hours at the telephone soliciting yarn to be made into afghans to be used as bed coverlets for those veterans who are forced to sleep in beds with too scant a supply of coverings. Through Mrs. Weeks' endeavors 18 afghans have been completed. Eight have been sent to the U. S. Veterans Hospital at West Roxbury and eight to Rutland. Mrs. Weeks has personally knit many of the squares from which these afghans have been made and her tireless fingers have put the squares together. Those who have visited the hospital at West Roxbury know the comfort and joy which is derived from these coverlets. Their gay colorings lend a warmth to the pale cheeks of the boys and their is a fascination about them which lures the mind from its self thinking. They are more than just a covering to the boys, they are something of a caress, to think about and talk about. To her who has made it possible for this great gift to be bestowed in the name of the Fortnightly we extend our grateful thanks.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

NOT SO EASY, IS IT?

In a recent movie comedy—perhaps you saw it—a smart young husband wonders what his wife does around the house all day long, and offers to show her how to run things. "Gimme two hours," he boasts, "and I'll have the whole day's work done!"

When friend wife returns at four o'clock in the afternoon—she gave him that long to make a good job of it—she finds the house a wreck, with the basements flooded and the roof smouldering!

If you stayed home for a few days and saw how much hard physical labor housework required you'd understand why womenfolk want more gas appliances. The all-gas kitchen is as nearly work-free as any kitchen invented to date, and perhaps the kitchen in your home only lacks two or three appliances of reaching this ideal. Why not find out what they are? Perhaps you can buy them all ring 1926.

Group Insurance, special forms and amounts on Sub-Standard Lives, Annuities, and Total Permanent Disability.

Summary of the Sixty-Third Annual Report

To the Massachusetts Insurance Department as of December 31, 1925

In general, this statement shows that the Company is now stronger financially than at any period in its history; also that it is writing more new business and paying larger dividends to policyholders.

The Company now carries Insurance on the paid-for basis amounting to $2,232,076,863

In policies on the lives of some 3,600,000 persons.

To insure the fulfillment of these contracts the Company maintains assets amounting to $368,818,073

Of this the Policyholders' Reserves, on the exacting Massachusetts Standard, amount to $316,383,808

In addition to the Reserves there are liabilities for future payments to policyholders and others, aggregating $21,922,459

Including $11,250,000 for policyholders' dividends payable in 1926.

After providing for these liabilities, totalling $338,306,267

The Company has Contingent Surplus Assets, or Emergency Fund, of $30,511,806

The New Insurance issued (an increase of 13.62% over 1924), was $383,335,035

The Gross Income (an increase of 10.63% over 1924), was $94,562,318

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Children between the ages of 7 and 14 are asked to meet in the Baptist Church vestry on Sunday, Feb. 21, at 3 p. m. Mrs. M. Ella Ricker, State director of Children's work will be with us again. We trust we may have present, all the young people who enjoyed Mrs. Ricker's teaching at our last meeting. Parents are urged to co-operate in this educational work by urging their children to attend this meeting.

Mrs. Anna Gordon at the National W. C. T. U. Convention held in Chicago in 1924 laid it upon the hearts of the women to enlist in a campaign to provide an extensive public education which will result in a national widespread desire for law observance and law enforcement. And just as we trained the youth of our land in the principals of total abstinence and prohibition, through the teaching of scientific temperance in our public schools, through medal contests, essay writing, and bands of children gathered together in loyal temperance legions. So must we train them now for law observance and law enforcement through the same methods. Teachers and parents are urged to assist in putting across this great educational program.

Last year 248,000 essays were written in our public schools. Nine thousand medal contests were held in one state alone.

One million children enlisted as National Prohibition guards and 209,000 young people signed the patriotic temperance rolls.

The Winchester Police received a complaint from two irate motorists last Friday night who claimed that their machines had become stuck on Grove street due to the fact that the snow-plows had only gone as far as the dwellings extended along the roadway. They had been obliged to dig their cars out of the snow and were not in a particularly happy frame of mind about the matter.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The Town Highway Department was obliged to close Florence and Irving streets, last Saturday night, owing to the dangerous condition of the roadway.

A Ford sedan owned and operated by Edmond McLaughlin of 53 Warren avenue, Woburn, and a Dodge sedan owned by Arthur Smith of Mystic Valley Parkway, Winchester and driven by his son, Arthur Smith, Jr., were in collision on Woodside road last Saturday at 1.30 in the afternoon. The cars, which were going in opposite directions, were somewhat damaged. No one was injured.

St. Mary's Holy Name Society indefinitely postponed its entertainment scheduled for Tuesday evening in White's Hall out of respect to its spiritual director Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons, who suffered the death of his father on last Saturday.

THE GIRL SCOUT

This is a song of praise for the Girl Scout. She is about the best phase of the growth of womanhood since Susan B. Anthony announced that women were people. From now on they are going to be a finer and more competent people, for they have found their legs and their arms and the freedom of the outdoors in which to swing them.

There was a time, not so long ago but what it is clear to my memory, when a girl thought that if she was strong enough to step over a curb stone, it were better to disguise that ugly fact and cling daintily and with fragile fingers to the sturdy right arm of her escort. If she had a good appetite she hid it, and if she could run fast enough to catch up to what she wanted, nobody had ever seen her do it. She had to hide her fitness to live and do her work in the world if she were to be happy in it. Those were the stupid days.

Now there are Girl Scouts and things are different. A girl is no longer handicapped by the idea that she must hide the truth about herself. She is free to keep step and stride with her mate and beat him to the goal if she can. She can stretch her arms and legs and back and grow in real grace and beauty without fear of losing caste. Health is no longer disgraceful. It is even nosing out the old standards of beauty. A beautiful girl of today is one with windswept cheeks, sun-kissed, rain-washed; one in whose eyes shines the light of a disciplined and ripened consciousness; one who looks straight out on the world without blinkers and knows it for what it is, a mixture of smiles and tears, of bitterness and honeydew, of homely, wistful life. Thrice armed, body, mind and spirit, the Girl Scout goes out blithely to bear a hand in the scuffle. More power, more honor to her. She is the heart's blood of America.

"I can't see why my daughter should join any such organization. She gets all the training she needs at school and at home. We are real companions to our children. There's something just a little public about girls marching along in squads and camping out and doing all sorts of things like that. I can't see it for my girl."

Well, your girl is being cheated out of something vital to her growth and complete usefulness. The day of the cistered woman is past. She can no longer function in this scurrying day. Her home and her children, her work and her play, her experience and her education are all touched with this something that you call a "little public." We have all become a bit more conscious of each other and each other's happiness and need, and it is that public consciousness from which you shrink and toward which I would push you. The home has gone out into the market place, and if the woman is to keep a home she will have to be heard and felt and seen in the councils of the fathers and mothers. Girls do not grow into qualified women over night. They must serve through the apprenticeship of adolescence, the most trying and least understood phase of a girl's growth. She is beset by moods and feelings and sensations and urges and desires for which she has no ready response. She is ignorant of the meaning of much of what she has been taught. Experience alone can enlighten the matter of living, and time must bring that gradually, sparingly, grudgingly. During those trying years she must have the opportunity to build a seasoned body and a tempered soul. That process is best fostered in the open air among her own kind. "Twas a wise woman who led the way along the trail to the campfire and the balm-bod. 'Twas someone who knew the spiritual reward of the mountain climb, and the comforting weariness of the evening swim, who led the girls to the hills.

A scout is one who goes ahead to look out and bring back word of what lies ahead. I never see a group of the earth-colored girl scouts swarming alone in their earth-colored uniforms without wondering what it is they see ahead on the road. What good news do they gather? The light in their eyes, and joy in their liting stride sends a responsive glow to my heart. The girl has come into her kingdom, and she opens the way to a new birth of freedom and the peoples of the world.

The Girl Scout is the symbol of the coming generation, free, strong, competent and clean. We of the older day salute her. May her squads increase! —[Angelo Patri in the Trail Maker, Dec. 1925.]

Legion Concert in Keeping With Holiday Spirit

The concert presented by Winchester Post, American Legion, assisted by the Winchester Auxiliary, A. L., and the Winchester Circle, Florence Crittenton League, proved one of the best entertainments of the season. Given in the Town Hall on the evening of Washington's Birthday, it was very appropriate in its features, with the celebrated Candelight Orchestra in colonial costume playing old minuets and sixteenth century airs, and Miss Suzanne Keener, Metropolitan Opera star, likewise in colonial dress, giving a selection of songs of long ago.

Miss Keener endeared herself to the audience at first sight, and her hearers could not refrain from their endeavors to hold her on the stage even after she had responded to repeated encores. Her pleasing personality and daintiness added to her marvelous voice, and her selection of songs was especially happy. With but one exception she confined her numbers to old English airs and ballads, interspersed with a few little French numbers, all of which delighted her audience.

The Candelight Orchestra gave an equally pleasing program with Raffaele Martino conductor, and the audience marvelled at the sweetness and beauty of its rendition.

There was an attendance of about 250, and it was a source of regret to the Legion that more of its Winchester friends were not able to attend and enjoy its production.

The concert was staged under the direction of Commander of the Post, Nathan Thumim. The "usherettes," all dressed in quaint colonial costume, were as follows: Miss Mary Reebbenacker, Miss Alice Hanlon, Miss Nellie Dyson, Miss Marion Dyson, Miss Helen Brownell, Miss Josephine Mullen, Miss Hazel Chisolm, Mrs. Ruth Nelson, Mrs. Harry Dyson, Mrs. Margaret Hanlon, Mrs. Teresa Roach, Mrs. Eleanor Lawson.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WELFARE

We, the undersigned, believe that the best interests of Winchester will be served by the election of Mrs. Alice L. Martin as a member of the Board of Public Welfare. Mrs. Martin is a woman of sound judgment and practical experience in this field. She has successfully served as head of the Winchester Catholic Daughters of America for many years.

Many Winchester residents of long standing were interested to read of the arrival this week on the Cunard liner, Caronia from Liverpool by the way of Queenstown of Mrs. Pauline Bumphrey, noted as a hunter of big game, who is here to visit her mother in Brookline. Mrs. Bumphrey is the daughter of the late William Firth who formerly for many years made his home here and will be remembered as the owner and developer of the Glengarry section of the town.

TAX COMMISSIONER COMMENDS OUR COLLECTOR

Feb. 24, 1926
Nathaniel M. Nichols, Esq.,
Collector of Taxes,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Mr. Nichols:
I am taking this manner of expressing my appreciation of the excellent work you have done as Collector of Taxes of the Town of Winchester since you took office in March, 1925. At that time there was committed to you a considerable amount of uncollected taxes of the years 1923 and 1924, and these by diligent work you have entirely cleaned up, so that the town has received the money due from these delinquent taxpayers.

The poll taxes of 1925 committed to you at an early date by the Board of Assessors pursuant to the provisions of Sections 4 and 5, Chapter 60, General Laws, you proceeded to collect forthwith, as required by this statute, and I understand the entire list, with the exception of possibly eight or ten poll taxes, have been collected and paid into the treasury. Of the taxes of 1925 there was committed to you personal taxes in the sum of $90,990 and I understand you have succeeded in collecting all but about $6000. The real estate taxes of 1925 committed to you amounted to $643,990 and I believe that less than 25 per cent of these remain unpaid at the present time.

I am also much pleased with the work you have done for the Town of Winchester in liquidating the tax titles held by the town and closing up the tax title accounts, so that the town may now receive taxes with respect to these properties.

I have found you always anxious to obtain advice from this department on doubtful questions and always willing to act on such advice when received. I think that your work as Collector of Taxes of the Town of Winchester is entitled to commendation and that the town has benefited by it.

Yours truly,
Henry F. Long, Commissioner

FOUR CONTESTS IN LOCAL ELECTION

On the eve of the annual Town Meeting and election of officers, while interest is by no means at a fever pitch, it seems probable that a larger turn-out of voters will go to the polls on the coming Monday than was the case a year ago.

Last year but one contest marked the election, that for the office of tax collector which again this year finds two candidates in the field. In addition there are to be contests for the Board of Selectmen, the Board of Public Welfare and the School Committee.

For the first named the present tax collector, Nathaniel M. Nichols is being opposed by J. Leslie Johnston. The contest for Selectmen finds the old board composed of Walter H. Doten, J. Harper Blaisdell, Robert F. Whitney, John H. Powers and William P. Callahan standing for re-election with the addition of Thomas F. Fallon and Alfred D. Radley as new candidates. Alice L. Martin and Terence D. Cullen are the candidates for the existing vacancy on the Board of Public Welfare, while the two vacancies on the School Committee find John A. Maddocks, Elsie B. Tompkins and Elizabeth C. McDonald in the field, the first two named as candidates for re-election.

Apparently most of the local interest seems to center in the fights for the Board of Selectmen and the office of tax collector. It is more than likely, however, that more than passing attention will be given to the contest for the School Committee by many voters.

At all events the fact that in four different places upon the ballot there is an opportunity for the voter to express a preference is a good thing for Town politics and the only regret is that there are not more candidates in the field.

CALUMET

SUCCESSFUL BRIDGE

Wednesday's afternoon bridge for the ladies of the Calumet Club, postponed from an earlier date owing to the big snow storm, brought forth the record attendance of the season for an afternoon affair, there being 23 tables of cards. The affair was in charge of a committee of ladies composed of Mrs. Henry E. Crowley, Mrs. S. W. H. Taylor and Mrs. Arthur W. Pitman. The club hall was decorated in colors and design appropriate to the season, and the refreshments and refreshments were also in keeping. The list of prize winners included Mrs. W. F. Folant, Mrs. G. J. Beake, Mrs. H. A. Peterson, Mrs. W. S. Davis and Mrs. R. C. Orpin.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY AT CALUMET

The Calumet Club held open house on Washington's Birthday, entertaining with special bowling matches, a children's entertainment and a dance for the junior members of the families. The bowling was productive of the largest turn-out of the winter, the alleys being in constant use throughout the day. The feature of the bowling was the requirement that every entrant furnish a prize, and some very attractive trophies were presented. Owing to the large entry and the varied list of prizes, the committee in charge has not yet been able to compute all the winners, and their names will be announced next week.

During the afternoon about 200 children were entertained by an attractive program of vaudeville stunts by a midget, music and refreshments, and in the evening a large number of the "older younger" members enjoyed the dancing until a late hour.

FAVORS NO ONE

To the Editor of the Star:
Many rumors have reached my ears that I am politically interested in favor of one of the candidates for the Board of Public Welfare. These rumors are entirely without foundation. I shall do my duty as I see it with whom so ever is elected to the Board and have no interest in the department of Public Welfare other than that.

To The Voters

We, the undersigned, heartily endorse the candidacy of

MR. J. LESLIE JOHNSTON

FOR THE OFFICE OF

COLLECTOR OF TAXES

Mr. Johnston is well equipped for the position, having a Winchester High School education, Bryant & Stratton Commercial College, and nine years' splendid business training, besides two years military service with the A. E. F. overseas.

In connection with the foregoing the fact that Mr. Johnston has pledged himself not to be a candidate for any other office in Town appeals to us.

His character is that of an honest, open, straight-forward, intelligent, young man, and we therefore take great pleasure in thus testifying to his worth.

Mosquitoes here in clustering armies fly,
And man and beast are poisoned by their sting;
We need your vote to help make clean or dry
The marsh and pool from whence the pest takes wing.

THE MOSQUITO MUST GO!

Citizens of Winchester:

Will you help to suppress the activities of mosquitoes in this Town by voting in favor of Article sixteen in the Town Warrant which asks that a committee be appointed to make a survey of conditions relating to mosquitoes and report recommendations for their extermination, and that a small sum of money be appropriated to defray the expenses of such a committee?

We have at least a dozen kinds of mosquitoes.

They all breed in water.

They like dirty and polluted water better than clean water.

This makes them a menace to health in addition to the discomfort they cause.

The malaria bearing mosquito is included in the varieties which infest this locality.

Science has found a way to subdue them and we should be ready to take the first step in this fight.

MUSIC GARDEN

The Garden made its first public appearance at the First Congregational Church for the benefit of the Parish House, Thursday evening, Feb. 18. The Garden has given a concert twice at the Home for the Aged and groups have gone out and furnished music for the Mothers' Association, for the prisoners in the Charlestown jail, the Veterans' Hospital in Roxbury and the Sanitarium in Melrose. Our home concerts are very profitable as well as social, but it gives us pleasure also, to go outside occasionally and put a bit of sunshine and cheer in other's lives, or assist in some good work. The Garden therefore considers it has been a privilege to accept the invitation to add a mite to the Parish House fund.

The program was as follows:

Piano Trio—"The Witches' Flight"..... Russell
Frank Knight, Christine Clarke, Minnette Knight
Soprano Solo—"April Morn"..... Balten
M. Smith
"March (March at piano)"..... Marshall
"March (March at piano)"..... Marshall

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

The February meeting of the Florence Crittenton League was held at the home of Mrs. Rufus Clark on Bacon street and was a very pleasant and enjoyable meeting. After the routine business, Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott spoke very interestingly of her work as chairman of the Case Committee and outlined the various phases of the work of the Florence Crittenton League. She was followed by Miss Mary C. Hyde, Superintendent of the Home, who emphasized the pleasure of being in the new Home and spoke especially of the many uses of the reception room which the Winchester Circle has furnished.

Mrs. Annette Hughes, accompanied by Mrs. F. C. Alexander, sang delightfully the following numbers:
An Open Secret..... Woodman
To You..... Oley Speaks
At the close of the program tea was served by the hostess, assisted by the Social Committee, Mrs. E. B. Haynes and Mrs. Herbert Goff poured.

MRS. ALICE L. MARTIN

To the Voters of Winchester:

Mrs. Alice L. Martin is a candidate this year for the Board of Public Welfare.

I have known her many years and believe her to be a woman of wise judgment and sound common sense. If elected to the board, I know she will faithfully and impartially serve all sections of the town.

I feel that the policy of the board will be considerably helped through the results of her long experience in local charitable work.

A vote for Mrs. Martin will benefit the town as a whole.

SERVICES FOR GEORGE W. DEARBORN HELD LAST FRIDAY

Prayers were held at the Wilhelm Chapel, St. Petersburg, Fla., on last Friday for George W. Dearborn of this town who passed away the previous Sunday, Feb. 14, at his winter home, 733 Ingleside avenue, in that city. Following the service the body was placed in a receiving vault from which it will be brought in the spring to Winchester for burial.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

In spite of inclement weather and bad walking a large number of ladies attended the monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. held at the home of Mrs. George Arnold, Friday, Feb. 19.

The following recommendations of the executive committee were accepted. That we observe the 50th anniversary of the local union by inviting Middlesex County Spring Convention to meet in Winchester on May 25. That a rummage sale be held on March 25 to raise money to carry on our educational work.

Mrs. Laura Jones, State Corresponding Secretary was the speaker of the afternoon. She urged the women to learn and tell the true facts in regard to the benefits derived from the prohibitory law, in order to counteract the insidious propaganda which is being circulated throughout the state. She asked that letters be sent to our representative, Mr. Thomas Bateman and our Senator Mr. C. A. Warren, asking them to use their influence and vote for the three following principles, all embodied in bills before our Legislature, at the present time:

(a) Sterner penalties; jail sentences for habitual offenders in liquor law violations.

(b) Opening to inspection by all police of incorporated clubs, organized for social purposes.

(c) The right of the Public Safety Commissioner to revoke licenses of road houses, dance halls, etc., wherever necessary.

LOCAL GIRLS AS PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERSSchool Committee States Its Attitude

To the Editor of the Star:

Reports have recently reached us that a few citizens have been criticizing the School Committee because of our failure to elect a greater number of local girls to teaching positions and we would like to clearly explain our policy, as we know of nothing more important than the careful selection of our teachers.

Some pressure has been exerted to have the superintendent recommend to the committee (a duty required of him by State law) persons who, he has felt, were unfit at the time.

In some cases the candidates were inexperienced but will be considered again later. Others were people of only fair or poor scholastic records or unsuccessful experience.

A certain element in every community is perpetually looking for a "job." We do not intend that our teaching force shall be regarded as a place for merely a "job."

The schools exist for the education of our boys and girls and they are entitled to the best teachers our money can procure for them. That is distinctly the policy of the School Committee and of Mr. Quinn.

On the other hand, local girls with the necessary education, personality and successful experience will always receive preference and we look forward to eventually having a greater number of these on our teaching staff, even than at present.

School Committee.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

That there is perhaps a no more interesting place in the world today than Russia which is emerging from the blackness of night into the grayness of a possible dawn, was the verdict of those who heard Dr. Alice Hamilton last Thursday at the Country Club.

While her discussion of Russia was made on the basis of two recent visits undertaken in the interests of the Public Health Commission of the League of Nations and observations taken on the second visit showed a decided improvement over those of the first, yet what she said could not be construed in any sense as propaganda for the Soviet form of government.

Nevertheless, a few features were pointed out which demonstrated the fact that the Soviet is actuated by some worthy and altruistic motives. The role of anarchy was no government. The Soviet is all government. While active Communists are more or less in evidence, the vast majority, men and women live on terms of equality in the most literal sense. Those who were formerly well-to-do have gradually adjusted themselves to the situation, have donned the workers' uniform and working shoulder to shoulder with the peasant are

One of the things that the girls who sell Clara Catherine Candies don't like to hear is a customer's request, made because of the customer's experience with other candies, "Oh, don't give me many orange, lemon and raspberry creams."

There are plenty of nuts, fruits, caramels, cordials, et cetera, but there are absolutely no artificial-fruit-flavored creams. That's why customers who know our assortment keep coming back for more.

WINCHESTER'S NEW SCHOOL

HIGHLAND DISTRICT SCHOOL

Bids have been received for the new Highland District School, to be erected on Highland avenue, between Reservoir street and Appalachian road, but the contracts have not yet been awarded.

The building embodies the same general features of the other four elementary schools recently completed, having brick exterior walls, wood trim, and slate roof. The architectural treatment of the building gives it a domestic feeling, rather than that of the ordinary school house.

The central two-story portion which is about 87 feet long and 65 feet wide, contains a central corridor and seven class rooms (one being at present a spare room), accommodations for the principal and teachers, the towers at each end containing the stairways and separate toilets for the boys and girls on each floor. The first and second grade rooms are adjacent and separated by large folding doors, so that they can be thrown together into one large room. The octagonal auditorium, about 51 feet in diameter, located on the northerly end of the building, near Reservoir street will seat 300 persons. On the southerly end of the building where it will have a bright sunny exposure is the one-story kindergarten, with an outside chimney and a large fireplace. In the basement, which will be only partially excavated, are the boiler room and coal pocket, janitor's room, and space for bicycles.

Particular attention has been paid to the location of the building on the lot, so that at some time during the day each room will have direct sunlight, and yet at no time will the sun shine directly into the children's eyes. The building will be placed toward the northerly end of the lot, leaving the southerly and easterly part of the lot free for playground space.

The Building Committee has endeavored to keep down the first cost, consistent with good building practice, but to make the building as nearly fireproof as the appropriation would allow. The walls in the corridors and other places with which pupils or others come into close contact are to be constructed of such materials that decayment will be avoided. In general the building has been so designed as to keep the cost of maintenance at a minimum.

Derby and Robinson are the architects and have been assisted in the layout of the heating and ventilating system by Mr. Frank W. Howard of this town.

MR. JACKSON'S OPINION

To the Editor of the Star:
Just a few words of endorsement of Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols' work as Tax Collector. We believe he has made a record not equaled in this or any other town of the same size. We should re-elect him with a large and appreciative vote for the wonderful work done by him for the town.

Also being a member of the Board of Welfare, better known as Overseers of the Poor, Mr. Nichols has done a most valuable work in helping the poor people, especially the children. His connection with the public schools for nearly 20 years brought him in close contact with the poor people.

We hope Mr. Terence D. Cullen will be elected as a member of the Board of Welfare so that the chairman may have better co-operation than he has had during the past two or three years.

LARGELY ATTENDED FUNERAL SERVICES FOR ARTHUR WARREN MUDGE

Largely attended funeral services for Arthur Warren Mudge, who passed away last week Thursday at his home on Wedgemere avenue were held at the late residence on last Saturday afternoon and were conducted by the Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church. A delegation including the department heads and many workers at the Chelsea plant of the Forbes Lithograph Company, with which concern Mr. Mudge had been associated for the past 37 years and of which at the time of his death he was secretary, was present at the services. President F. J. Blaney of the same firm also attended. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Following the services the body was placed in the receiving vault at Wildwood Cemetery to await interment.

ELECT MR. CULLEN

Feb. 25, 1926

To the Editor of the Star:

Among the contests which confront the voters at the coming town election is that which involves the candidacy of Terence D. Cullen for a place on the board of public welfare. Though generally accepted as a minor office in towns the size of Winchester, I am sure and I believe you will agree with me, it is one of paramount importance in any community today.

Statistics gathered throughout the commonwealth during the past year, as well as in this town, clearly show that the board of public welfare is an all important part of town government. The expenditures of this board, the methods used in their distribution and the tact necessary in reviewing cases that come before the board demand that its personnel consist of discreet, well-informed and qualified members.

It is my opinion as well as the opinion of a large group of voters that Terence D. Cullen is well equipped for the office. He is young, energetic, trained in business methods and of a temperament that fits him admirably for the position.

Terence D. Cullen has had excellent opportunity to learn through his associations with the public what is necessary to fill the position to which he aspires. His every day contact with home life in this town has given him an exceptional insight into the needs of those who may come before him as a member of the board of public welfare.

His popularity as attested by his position in fraternal and civic organizations has afforded him opportunity to gain the confidence of the people. The attention of the public of this town has been focused upon him in the last few years because of his civic activities and in each instance he has acquitted himself in a commendable manner.

The voters of the town will do well I believe to give him their support at the polls and in so doing they will also give to the town an official who will consider and decide all cases with a humane spirit of tact as well as economy.

REGISTRAR GOODWIN SPEAKS HERE

Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Frank A. Goodwin, is to be the guest and speaker at the coming dinner of the Men's Club of the Church of the Epiphany. As Mr. Goodwin is a forceful speaker and always has something of interest to say, a large attendance is looked for on the evening of Monday, March 8. The dinner will open at 6:45 o'clock, and will be held at the parish house.

MRS. SARAH V. ALBEE

On Sunday afternoon, Feb. 21, Mrs. Sarah V. Albee passed on at the home of her son, Arthur S. Kelley. Although not a resident of Winchester, she had made her home here much of the time during the past 10 years. She was past matron of Glendale Chapter, O. E. S., and actively interested in the work of Resolute Chapter of the Rebekahs. Two sons, Dr. George L. Kelley of Philadelphia and Arthur S. Kelley of Winchester, survive her; also a brother, Maurice G. Willey of Braintree.

MRS. ANNA FOWLER

Mrs. Anna Fowler, widow of Joseph Fowler, died Monday night after a brief illness at the home of her sister, Mrs. Mary Wallace, on Middlesex street. She was 76 years old and a native of Newfoundland, the daughter of William and Las (James) Wells. She had been a resident of Winchester for only one year. Surviving besides her sister, Mrs. Wallace, is one brother, William Collins of Stoneham. Funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon at the funeral parlor of Kelley & Hawes Co. and were conducted by the Rev. Allen Evans, Jr., rector of the Church of the Epiphany. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

By means of headphones and a special microphone, a famous American surgeon claims to have heard the sounds made by worms gnawing in apples.

Nature's Orderliness

There are about 200 blades of grass to a square inch. If you reckon up the number of blades of grass on earth you will be surprised to know that it is about the same as the number of atoms in a thimbleful of water. They have all a law and order and structure of their own, never seen, but inferred by the mind.—Sir Oliver Lodge.

One on the Sergeant

A group of many rookies were being put through their paces by a "hard-boiled" drill sergeant. "Mark time!" he roared. "Shall I mark time with my feet?" asked one recruit in a small voice. "Of course, you fool," yelled the sergeant, "did you ever hear of marking time with your hands?" "Yes," was the reply. "Clocks do it."

Trace Term "Mugwump" to Algonquin Indians

The first general use of the term "mugwump," as applied to a deserter from a political party, was during the Presidential campaign of 1854.

On June 15 of that year a newspaper in New York referred to the independent Republicans who had deserted Blaine as "mugwumps," and the word was immediately taken up all over the United States as a fit appellation for the disaffected Republicans calling themselves "Independents."

The word is supposed to be of Algonquin origin and was used by the Connecticut Indians as a synonym for captain, leader or superior person. In the modern political meaning it is applied satirically to those who consider themselves superior to their former partisan associates.

The word was incorporated into the American language long before it obtained its modern political significance, being often used in New England and the Middle West as a synonym for dude, pharisee, etc.—Chicago Journal.

Cautious in Choice of Life Companion

Many were the famous characters produced on the circuits of early days—men fearless in danger, unwearied in labor, enduring in privation, powerful in exhortation.

Among the most interesting of them was Lorenzo Dow, a roving preacher whose work was not confined to the mountains or the frontier; for although he labored from the high peaks of North Carolina to the banks of the Mississippi and from Georgia to Canada, he was well known also along the Atlantic coast, and even in England and Ireland. Restless and eager, he continually traveled; nor would he marry until he had found a young woman who would promise that she would spare him from home twelve months out of thirteen.

His proposal of marriage, a letter that is thought unique in the deliberation and caution with which it approaches the subject, ran as follows:

"If I am preserved, about a year and a half from now I am in hopes of seeing this northern country again; and if during this time you live and remain single, and find no one that you like better than you do me, and would be willing to give me up twelve months out of thirteen, or three years out of four, to travel, and that in foreign lands, and never say, 'Do not go to your appointment,' etc.—for if you should stand in the way I should pray God to remove you, which I believe He would answer—and if I find no one that I like better than I do you, perhaps something further may be said on the subject."

Removing Grease Stains

Grease stains on leather may be removed by applying benzine or pure turpentine. Wash the spots afterward with well-beaten white of an egg or a good leather restorer.

Learn to Help Yourself

The man who helps himself will never ask for a crutch to lean on. Sometimes we hurt people by helping them—"Give a man a crutch and make him a cripple."

Coloring Lobsters

Lobsters may be colored to any hue desired to suit the particular scheme of dinner decoration simply by putting coloring matter in their food, according to a well-known German scientist. He discovered that they turn red after they are boiled because of the action of the heat upon a chemical in their shells.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Dispute Over Atolls

The scientific controversy regarding the origin of atolls is an old and famous one, and is not yet fully settled. Darwin held that the rings of coral, which sometimes rise from depths far below the limit at which reef-building polyps can live, are the result of the gradual wearing away or subsidence of a central land mass, accompanied by the equally slow growth of the girdling reef. According to this view, each atoll is in effect the barrier reef of an island which has vanished, or of a submarine mound which approaches the surface of the sea. More crudely stated, the atoll is the crown of a sinking volcano. Sir John Murray, the biologist Guppy and Prof. Alexander Agassiz combated this theory and showed that reefs exist in parts of the Pacific where there is no evidence of subsidence, but where, on the contrary, there has been uplift.

Imagine the Shock to Butler's Dignity!

Little Roy, on the occasion of his eighth birthday, received an invitation to his rich aunt's house. As he would stay a few days and had never been before, his mother carefully primed him before hand.

Special reference was made to his conduct at meal times, for in his own home Roy consumed his food in more or less the same way that the lower animals do.

"Now, Roy," said his mother, "be sure you behave nicely, and don't bolt your food. Remember that auntie keeps a butler who will attend to all your wants, but there is no need to be frightened of him."

"Right-ho!" said Roy in the modern child's way, and he departed forthwith.

It was at dinner that the tragedy occurred. Seeing the imposing old butler hovering near the table, young Roy clicked his fingers and beckoned in a truly imperial manner.

"What do you want, dear?" asked his aunt, from the top of the table, whilst all eyes were centered on the delighted boy.

"I was going to ask the man," said Roy, indicating the butler with his spoon, "to blow my soup for me—it's too hot!"

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

It is not always the square men that move in the best circles.

Many a man has aspired to become an A. M. but who in later years was satisfied to become a village P. M.

Nine-tenths of the worry in this world comes from anticipating supposed troubles that never occurred.

Few women ever become new women, until they are old women.

The seed that is sown is the seed that will be harvested, don't forget this—you will be no exception.

THE STAR ENDORSES

Nathaniel M. Nichols as Collector of Taxes because he is a reputable citizen of good standing in our community. He has collected our taxes for the past year and receives high commendation from the State Tax Commissioner (as may be noted by the Commissioner's letter in this issue). His job has been to collect taxes. He cannot please everyone—even as you and I, but the Star fails to approve a change in his office.

It endorses Thomas F. Fallon for Selectman. Mr. Fallon is likewise a reputable citizen of good standing, and has long been a well-known business man of our town. The Star knows that his judgment in town affairs will be impartial and for the best interests of all. It has no hesitancy in recommending him as a good public official.

It endorses our present chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Walter H. Dotson, who has performed excellent work for the town, giving his personal attention to our public affairs, and having a knowledge of the town's business which makes him a valuable citizen to retain on this important board.

Likewise this paper gives its endorsement to the candidacy of Dr. J. Harper Blaisdell, Robert F. Whitney and John H. Powers, all present members of our Board of Selectmen. Their work and efforts on behalf of good town government and the conduct of our affairs deserve recognition and commendation.

If you are a voter of the Town of Winchester, visit the polls on Monday and cast your ballot and signify your choice in the selection of the town's officers.

GOOD POSTURE AN AID TO DIGESTION

Good posture helps digestion, says the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. The stomach is poised in the body by a loose attachment at the back. There is no strain on the stomach in erect posture. When a person "slumps" there is a strain on the stomach which interferes with its functioning. Circulation is poor. There is pressure on the intestines.

A good exercise to correct posture is to lie flat on the back with the hands clasped over the head. Without bending knees, raise the legs up to right angles with the body. This and other exercises for good posture will often cure constipation and other digestive ills.

HEALTHY HAPPENINGS

There's one thing I have noticed

(It's called psychology)

If I am nice to people

Why, they are good to me.

If I go round a-smiling

My troubles seem so small

I really can't help wondering

If they exist at all.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL

Affiliated Schools and Class A Hospitals

The Winchester Hospital School of Nursing was established the same year that the hospital started in 1912. The Massachusetts State Board for the Registration of Nurses must inspect and approve any hospital before it is allowed to carry on a training school. If the hospital fulfils the requirements of the board, then its graduates are eligible to take the State examinations.

Such a school, or the institution of which it is a department, must be incorporated. There must be classrooms, etc., as prescribed in the bulletin issued by the Commonwealth regarding the curriculum for nurses. In order to supplement its teaching and fulfil the requirements of the State Board, the smaller hospitals must affiliate with larger hospitals for experience for their nurses in medicine and pediatrics. In the Star of Dec. 18, 1925, there was an article telling about the course of study required.

Winchester has established affiliation with the Worcester City Hospital. There the nurses will get their medicine and pediatrics.

As a temporary help, the Montreal General and Children's Shriners of Montreal have taken three Winchester nurses during this past year. These nurses have been very fortunate in having this experience in the Montreal General, ranking as it does with the Massachusetts General in standing.

Winchester expects, soon, to become a Class A hospital. The requirements for a Class A hospital are established by the American College of Physicians and Surgeons, with headquarters at Chicago. This is an entirely different body from the Massachusetts State Board of the Registration for Nurses and has no connection with it.

The minimum standard for Class A hospitals requires the following:

1. That physicians and surgeons privileged to practice in the hospital be organized as a definite group or staff. Such organization has nothing to do with the question as to whether the hospital is "open" or "closed," nor need it affect the various existing types of staff organization. The word Staff is here defined as the group of doctors who practice in the hospital inclusive of all groups such as the "regular staff," "the visiting staff," and the "associate staff."

2. That membership upon the staff be restricted to physicians and surgeons who are (a) full graduates of medicine is good standing and legally licensed to practice in their respective states or provinces; (b) competent in their respective fields and (c) worthy in character and in matters of professional ethics; that in this latter connection the practice of the division of fees, under any guise whatever, be prohibited.

3. That the staff initiate and, with the approval of the governing board of the hospital, adopt rules, regulations and policies governing the professional work of the hospital; that these rules, regulations, and policies specifically provide:

- (a) That staff meetings be held at least once each month. (In large hospitals the departments may choose to meet separately.)

- (b) That the staff review and analyze at regular intervals their clinical experience in the various departments of the hospital, such as medicine, surgery, obstetrics, and the other specialties; the clinical records of patients, free and pay, to be the basis for such review and analyses.

4. That accurate and complete records be written for all patients and filed in an accessible manner in the hospital—a complete case record being one which includes identification data; complaint; personal and family history; history of present illness; physical examination; special examinations, such as consultations, clinical laboratory, X-ray and other examinations; provisional or working diagnosis; medical or surgical treatment; gross and microscopic pathological findings; progress notes, final diagnosis; condition on discharge; follow-up and, in case of death, autopsy findings.

5. That diagnostic and therapeutic facilities under competent supervision be available for the study, diagnosis, and treatment of patients, these to include, at least (a) a clinical laboratory providing chemical, bacteriological, serological, and pathological services; (b) an X-ray department providing radiographic and fluoroscopic services.

The Staff organization at Winchester is nearly complete, the records are being kept, the X-ray department is over a year old and the laboratory, which is the final step, is due with the addition to the hospital. Then Winchester will join the ranks of the Class A hospitals in Massachusetts.

Bronze, the only tool metal known 8,000 years ago, was invented independently in the Near East and by the Peruvian Indians.

Colored Diamonds

Of blue diamonds the most notable are the "Hope" and the "Bismarck." These, by some authorities, are held to be, indeed, the only known specimens of the "true blue diamond." Dark blue diamonds, resembling the sapphire, but displaying the same beautiful play of colors peculiar to the diamond, are handsome gems.

Most of the gold in mining propositions is on the stock certificates.

People make money in mining, of course.

But my friend, the mines that are really mines seldom go to the public with any offer of stock.

Investing in mining stock is no business for ordinary mortals.

If you happen to know a lot of people who put in a little money and get out a lot, all right. If you don't personally know of such cases, better forget the whole matter.

ST. MARY'S C. C. LOSE HARD FIGHT GAME

St. Mary's C. C. basketball team lost one of the most thrilling games yet seen on the local court this year to the Houghtons of Cambridge, 18-17. The Houghtons are one of the strongest clubs around greater Boston, having won 17 and lost only 2 games this season. The game was played under professional rules, this being St. Mary's first game under these rules and considering this fact, did well.

The score stood 11-5 in favor of the Houghtons at the half and after intermission the locals overcame this lead to make it 14-14, by some brilliant shooting by Captain Francis Tansey. As the game drew to a close the score stood 17-17 when St. Mary's were guilty of a foul which spelled their defeat, 18-17.

Captain Tansey was easily the outstanding player on the court, caging 4 goals from the floor and 1 on a free try for a total of 9 points. Cassidy and Melley also played well for the locals. St. Mary's were without the services of one of their star players in “Flats” Flaherty and with his presence it might have been a different story.

Donovan and Bulger played well for the winners. A return game is being sought in the near future and it is bound to be a thriller. St. Mary's Juniors defeated Co. G. seconds of Woburn 18-17. Halwartz starring for the locals and Cummings for Co. G.

Not Hard to Please

A prisoner was in the dock on a serious charge of theft, and the case having been presented to the court by the prosecuting counsel, he was ordered to stand up.

“Have you a lawyer?” asked the magistrate.

“No, sir.”

“Do you want a lawyer to defend your case, then?”

“Not particularly, sir.”

“Well, in those circumstances, what do you propose to do about the case?”

“I’ll take the next ferry.”

“We’ll let the prisoner, yawning extravagantly as if wearied by the whole performance, “I’m willing to drop the case, but I’m concerned.”

She Knew the Breed

Little Marlon and her next-door neighbor, Donald, were engaged in an absorbing conversation. “What are anarchists?” asked Little Marlon.

“Then Donald swelled with wisdom. “They want everything anyone else has got and they never wash themselves,” he replied.

“Oh, yes!” cried little Marlon, with enthusiasm. “I see—they are just little boys grown up!”—Gulf Coast Lumberman.

Dance Disperses Loneliness

Life on the loneliest island of the British empire, Tristan da Cunha, is a strange affair. Dancing is the chief amusement, but men dance with men and women with women, save on very special occasions.

Measured Dead Sea

William F. Lynch, an American explorer in 1848 conducted an expedition, equipped by the United States government, to the Jordan and Dead sea. He claimed to be the first to examine the shores and to sound the depths of the sea.

Collapsible Umbrellas

From the patent office records it appears that a large number of inventors have had a hand in the organization and development of the folding umbrella. At least three or four hundred patents have been granted for various improvements thereon in the United States and foreign countries. The folding idea is partly worked out in the French patent to Gordon of 1829. The earliest United States patent that has come to our attention is that to Richardson, Morris & Pevey, No. 11561, dated August 22, 1854.

Real Estate Bargains

Peter Minuit's bargain lot of real estate—Manhattan island—purchased from the Indians for a value of less than $24, has a parallel in another colonial real estate transaction brought to the attention of the National Association of Real Estate boards by the board of realtors of the Oranges and Maplewood, N. J. The territory now embraced in the cities of Orange and East Orange, the town of West Orange, the village of South Orange, and the township of Maplewood, estimated to contain the homes of one-tenth of the population of the United States, was bought from the Winackop and Shenackto Indians in 1678. The consideration, according to David Lawrence Pierson, historian of the locality, was “thirteen kams of rum, three coats and two guns.”

MODELTOWN

Dr. Mary T. Maynard of Church street is chairman of the General Ticket Committee for the Modeltown Exhibit which the Massachusetts League of Women Voters is to stage at Horticultural Hall, Boston, April 1 to 15, both days included but Sunday omitted.

This unique exposition will portray vividly a model New England town and its interesting daily activities, reproducing in miniature an attractive town hall, church, library and railroad station, a charming residential section and a community center where philanthropic and civic organizations may carry on their work. Modeltown, however, will be a good thing to see as well as a thing which is good for one to see. For while all types of businesses (one of a kind) and of philanthropic, civic and educational organizations will be represented against this conception of what a New England town should be, according to scientific town planning, there are to be many picturesque amusement features as well, such as a village green where, during some parts of the day, folk dancing will be shown while at other times the old fashioned square dances which Henry Ford is helping to popularize will be reproduced. Now and then a Punch and Judy show will be given on the green as in a European market place for the delight of the children. Again old world songs rendered by foreign groups in native costume and Mannequins strolling about as part of a Spring fashion parade will here appear.

About 100 men and women of distinction, including the Governor of Massachusetts and the Mayor of Boston have interested themselves, as patrons and patronesses, in helping to make this affair a success. The Boston Society of Landscape Architects is co-operating in providing and promoting the best possible architectural setting for the exhibit and arrangements are already underway for a series of special nights with music and patriotic demonstrations. So you'll make no mistake in "taking tickets" from the sale of which the local work for civics, as well as the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, will benefit, when Mrs. Bertram Bernard and Mrs. D. C. Dennett, who are assisting Dr. Maynard in the advance sale here, ask your support for this interesting affair.

$50 FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

It cost John E. McDonald of Boston an even $50 for attempting to drive his automobile over the Winchester highways last Sunday evening while under the influence of intoxicants. The arrest was made by trooper John P. Dempsey of the State Patrol whose home is on upper Main street.

Trooper Dempsey was on the way to his home in his own car when he came upon the machine of the Boston man apparently stalled in the middle of the roadway on Swanton street. The other driver's attempts to start his car aroused the officer's suspicions and upon getting out to question him found the man was in no condition to drive.

McDonald resisted strenuously when Dempsey placed him under arrest and attempted to remove him from his machine, but finally the State Trooper succeeded in getting his man out onto the ground. Here another tussle took place, news of which was telephoned to police headquarters where Lieutenant Harold dispatched officer John Noonan to Dempsey's assistance in the department's Ford.

With his brother officer's help Dempsey soon got McDonald into the police car and the latter was subsequently locked up at the local station house where he was booked on the charges of drunkenness and driving while under the influence of liquor. In the District Court at Woburn Tuesday morning he was found guilty on both counts and was fined $50 by Judge Morton.

MRS. ELIZABETH C. McDONALD

To the Voters of Winchester: Mrs. Elizabeth C. McDonald is a candidate for one of the positions on the Winchester School Board this year.

As Miss Elizabeth Cullen she gave 12 years of efficient service as a teacher in the local schools. This practical experience would, I am sure, be of great benefit in the conduct of our school affairs.

Mrs. McDonald has two children in the public schools and is herself a native of Winchester, a graduate of our public schools and of the Lowell Normal School.

If elected, I am confident that she will give excellent service to our town.

THE LADIES' FRIENDLY

The annual supper of the Ladies' Friendly was held in Metcalf Hall on Thursday evening, Feb. 18. It was in charge of Mrs. C. P. Nutting and Mrs. D. B. Hill. There was a large attendance, and a delicious supper was served. After the supper, informal singing was indulged in by those present, and a charming little play by Zona Gale, entitled "The Neighbors" was given. Mrs. Harold Meyers was in charge of this part of the entertainment.

The following people took part in the play: Mrs. Orpin, Mrs. Goddard, Mrs. J. Willis, Mrs. Cooper, Miss Helen Bove, Kenneth Pratt and Dean Symmes. Informal dancing followed. On Tuesday, Feb. 23, an all-day sewing meeting was held in the church parlors. Sewing was done for the Visiting Nurse Association.

WINCHESTER LOST AT READING

Winchester High School lost a chance to win undisputed possession of first place in the Middlesex Basketball League last Friday evening when its team was defeated by Reading High at Reading, 23-17.

The locals entered the contest with a one game advantage over Reading having been on the winning end of six battles, while losing one game. Reading had a standing of five wins and one loss, and as a result of its win is tied with the local outfit for first place. Reading, however, has one more game to play with Belmont High at Belmont on next Monday, and another win will give them a one point margin over Winchester for the title. In the event of a Belmont win, Winchester and Reading will again be deadlocked with six wins and two reverses, while if Belmont wins its remaining three games, it also will figure in the top tie.

Things look rather dubious for the locals' chances since Reading has already defeated Belmont and the latter club will be without the services of two of its best performers when the clubs clash again. However, anything is possible in the realm of sports and the fact that Belmont will be playing on its home court may offset somewhat its weakened lineup.

Last Friday's game at Reading was a thriller with the home team leading all the way. Winchester was never out of the running and had its players been able to capitalize its chances at the foul line might have pulled out a winner. Only three of its 17 free tries were made good by Winchester which is a rather sorry showing.

The score at the end of the first half stood 15-9 in favor of Reading, but following intermission Coach Mansfield's boys braced up and cut down their opponents' lead to a single basket at the end of the third quarter, the score reading 19-17 in favor of the home team.

The big crowd from Winchester began to live up and it looked like the locals were going to at least tie things up, but Reading would not be denied and its defense frustrated every attempt of the Winchester players to get near the hoop. Neither club was able to score until just before the end of the game when with the stands in an uproar Spear and Zwicker of Reading succeeded in caging goals to sew up the battle.

Reading deserved to win. It played the better game and has been consistently successful on its home court both this and last season, not having lost a game at home in that time. Its gymnasium is very small and many a good team has been made to look bad while playing on its floor. The locals are not trying to alibi their defeat of last Friday but it is only safe to say that their game was effected by the conditions under which they played. Zwicker and Cutcliffe starred for the winning team, Fitzgerald and Rolli showing the way for the locals.

Between the halves the Winchester seconds were defeated by the Reading seconds, 17-11. The summary of the varsity game follows:

WINCHESTER
Fitzgerald, 15; Rolli, 12; Spear, 10; Cutcliffe, 8; Zwicker, 7; Gray, 6; Cassidy, 5; Kendrick, 4; Referee, Erickson, 3; Scorer, Dohan, 2; Timer, Murphy, 1. Four eight minute periods.

PURIFYING MAN'S WANDERING THOUGHT

(Written for the Winchester Star)

The Almighty's hand hath wrought
Nothing displeasing, but in all hath sought
The highest good of man, and every seeming ill
From His kind hand, comes only to fulfill
Some wise design and bless man in the end;
God is indeed our Father and our Friend,
'Twas God who formed the human mind; and woke To varied action all its powers. He spoke
And life creative, bade the dust arise
And gaze around, in Thought's unnumbered eyes
Visions of bliss, like floods of wild delight
Now poured their brilliant glories on his sight:
To grasp the whole—alas! he sinned and died!
So perish all! Be Wisdom then thy guide.
And yet—directed full on things above—
On all the Almighty's works, His wisdom and His love:
Each grovelling wish retire and leaves the heart
Possessed of all that Virtue can impart.
Then be it ours as Happiness is sought—
To purify our every wandering thought—
Then shall we reach the Rest which God hath given Replete with joy—quite like that of Heaven.

THE HARVARD INSTRUMENTAL CLUBS HERE MARCH 5

Winchester will have an opportunity to listen to and enjoy music flavored with the inimitable tang of the college campus on the evening of March 5, when the local chapter of the Gamma Eta Kappa fraternity will bring the widely known Harvard University Instrumental Clubs here for a concert in the town hall.

This organization, as popular in its own field as is its more serious brother, the Harvard Glee Club, comprises banjo and mandolin clubs, a vocal club of 40 voices and a specialty department which includes the "Gold Coast Orchestra," a student band which has aroused much favorable comment.

The Harvard Instrumental Clubs have been in existence since 1886 and, recently reorganized, have made the present their best season. One of the organization's most successful trips was held during the Christmas recess just past, a trip which included in its itinerary stops and concerts at the Hotel DuPont, Wilmington, Del.; the Hotel Mayflower, Washington, D. C.; the Opera House, Fredericksburg, Va.; the Carolina Theatre, Pinehurst, N. C.; the Academy of Music, Wilmington, N. C., and several other colleges and schools, with a final concert at the Hotel Benjamin Franklin, Philadelphia, Pa.

Everywhere the clubs were cordially received, their programs being well balanced and interesting from start to finish. The Vocal Club is singing the traditional "Australia," "Schneider's Band" and "Johnny Harvard" while the Banjo and Mandolin Clubs are playing instrumental selections which include Sousa marches, Harvard football songs, the subtitled "Canzone Amorosa" by Nevin and the famous "Thousand and One Nights" waltz of Strauss. The Specialty Department this year is sponsoring some clever eccentric dancing, ventriloquist stunts and sleight-of-hand performances interspersed with pianologues and vocal and instrumental solos of a high order. "The Gold Coast Orchestra" renders instrumental selections which emulate the Whitman ideal of popular music and has achieved sufficient proficiency to have two of its numbers recorded by the Columbia Phonograph Co.

The local committee for the concert on March 5, includes Hubert Bernard, P. H. Bartlett, Jerome Foster, Herbert Miller and Austin Noyes. Dancing will follow the performance and the committee announces that a part of the proceeds will be donated to the Winchester Hospital.

EARLY MORNING BLAZE CONFINED TO CELLAR

The Winchester Fire Department was called out Tuesday morning at 3:30 to extinguish a fire in the basement of Mrs. Winifred D. Hart's residence at 11 Glengarry. The blaze which was discovered by Mrs. Hart started from some unknown cause in a waste barrel and had communicated to a wooden partition of the cellar. Upon the arrival of the department it was rapidly spreading toward the first floor of the house. The flames were checked in the basement by the firemen but the smoke damage throughout the house was considerable.

WINCHESTER ELKS FINISHED SECOND

The final standing of the various lodges which competed in the Elks' ritualistic contest for the Nicholson Cup at Brookline on Sunday, Feb. 14, shows Winchester in second place with an average of 96.44 per cent. Northampton Lodge was declared the winner, but it took the judges some time before they were able to give it preference over the local team whose work came in for high praise.

THE VICTORY OF TRUTH

(Written for the Winchester Star)

Who will believe it? Sterling Truth
And firm integrity,
Are golden props to active youth,
And make him truly free:
With these he cannot grovel long—
He is erect, and firm, and strong.
Forth with majestic step he goes
To battle valiantly on through life—
And grappling with malignant foes,
He conquers in the strife.
No barrier is too high for him—
Strong is his soul and stout his limb.
The old world may look—admire or hate
Or censure or approve:
It can bless or seal his fate,
And so he scorns its love:
Within his heart the power is there,
To lead him on above despair.
His aim is lofty—no low desire Prompts him to choose the right.
His acts pass through Detraction's fire
Unscathed—without a blight:
He cannot suffer—for within
There is no curse from practiced sin.
It is Truth that burns upon his brow—
The index of the soul.
Before which might and talents bow
As one before control:
It is Truth that makes him in all eyes
A prodigy—born of the skies.
Believe ye who in Life's career
No chilling blasts have seen—
And let integrity appear,
With Truth meek and serene.
Where'er ye go—what'er ye do
And over earth you will triumph, too.
—Eugene Bertram Willard

AMSTERDAM, THE NEW YORK OF HOLLAND

Relief measures for the flood-stricken portions of Holland, which are being conducted from Amsterdam, direct attention to this commercial and military capital of one of Europe's smallest countries.

Audacious though it may seem to compare Amsterdam to New York, when it is considered that the latter was once a namesake of the Dutch City, nearly every experience in the bustling, bustling Amsterdam of today is reminiscent to Americans of the metropolis of the New World, says a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Heredity is here apparently backtracking, for the father is every day becoming more like the son, and less like its picturesque Dutch neighbors.

Much in Common

New York and Amsterdam have much in common. Each is the largest and most populous city in its respective country. Neither is the political capital of the country, but each is the undisputed commercial dictator and the key-point of military defense. Each is a seaport, although here the analogy does not follow as closely. Rotterdam's commerce exceeds that of Amsterdam. Amsterdam, however, has the headquarters of all the large shipping companies, just as has New York. Like New York Amsterdam is also an important industrial center, with shipbuilding plants, refineries, machine shops, many small factories, diamond polishing mills, etc.

Geography prevents carrying the parallel much further. While New York towers above sea level on a foundation of solid rock, Amsterdam is a city perched on wooden piles. No permanent structures can be erected on the upper stratum of loam and loose sand, hence the necessity for driving supports 15 to 60 feet below the level of the ground, and hence, probably, the jest of Erasmus of Rotterdam, who said the natives of Amsterdam live on the tops of trees like romks.

The Threat of Water

Disastrous effects of heavy rains in nearby regions emphasize the constant battle that the city and the country must wage against the eternal enemy—water. Both to the sea and the sky Holland must ever present a strong arm. Amsterdam, itself, is shut off from tidal fluctuations by dikes and hocks, but the water in its many canals is constantly changed by inflows from rivers and a canal connecting it direct with the North Sea. The water in its huge harbor and street canals is kept at what is known as the Amsterdam level, which may be considered a mean of high and low tide.

The city of Amsterdam lies in the southwest corner of the great inland body of water known as the Zuyder Zee, at the influx of the Amstel and Y Rivers. Like Venice it is built on a number of islands, but with much more regularity than the Queen of the Adriatic. Roughly, the city plan looks like the profile of a half wheel, with numerous water spokes and inner rims in regular succession. These rims or successive encircling canals indicate zones of expansion in the past, and, flanked with avenues of elms and tall narrow brick houses with the gables turned toward the street, give a handsome and picturesque effect to the residential sections.

Not a Windmill in Sight

Americans who start their tour of Holland in Amsterdam are likely to be disillusioned. Not a windmill can be seen in the downtown section and the hurrying throngs who jostle one on the streets are dressed very much like other Europeans. Steam engines are replacing the characteristic waving arms of the Dutch windmill throughout the kingdom. Only in the remote rural sections, and at tourist attractions such as the Isle of Marken, can one find the bloomers, lace caps and wooden shoes of the old geography book pictures. Amsterdam's shops resemble America's finest, both in quality and in price, while the Bank of the Netherlands is one of the leading financial establishments of Europe.

Amsterdam might be said to be the first setting of nearly every diamond. Its diamond polishing and cutting mills have been famous since the 16th century, when the art was introduced by Portuguese Jews after the sack of Antwerp. At the present time there are nearly a hundred mills, employing several thousand persons. Most of the raw diamonds come from South Africa, although Brazil and the Far East are other sources of supply.

The Dutch are great lovers of mottoes, signs and inscriptions. On some of the houses of Amsterdam can still be found printed legends, such as: "This is my pleasure and my life," "The place for song," etc. Public buildings are special targets throughout the country for the inscription painter. The Scriptures are so freely drawn upon, one writer claims, that were the Bible otherwise lost to man it could be replaced almost intact from the inscriptions on Dutch town-gates and municipal halls. A sign which draws the most attention from American tourists, however, and a rush for a baggage label, is that which swings outside the door of a modest little hostelry near the station—"The Dam Hotel." Dam in Dutch, however, means city.

Holland's "Dead Cities"

Near Amsterdam are the "dead cities" of Holland. The term is misleading, for most of the cities still exist. Through the silting up of the Zuyder Zee in the last two centuries many former prosperous seaports have lost their shipping. Houses have fallen in a disrepair, harbors have been abandoned, trade has withered and disappeared. They are not exactly dead, they have just ceased to live.

Monnikendam, Hoorn, Edam, Stavoren, Kampen and others are examples of once powerful and prosperous cities, with fleets of vessels which brought to their wharves the silks and spices of China and the Indies, which today are nothing more than quiet little rural centers. Prosaic cheese have supplanted more exotic cargoes from the Orient. Peaceful, pipe-smoking burgers today swing their feet from molding wharves, whose boards once resounded to the heavy tread of more adventurous ancestors; bold seafarers whose fleet vessels worried even the mighty armadas of Spain.

Few Blackthorns Now

The blackthorn stick, beloved of Erin's sons, is vanishing. An importer could only find a dozen to bring over for American trade.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

Too few Winchesterites have any idea of the value of walking as a method of "keeping fit." There lives within the confines of our fair community a gentleman who will never see 70 winters again. As a part of his recent birthday celebration this wise Winchesterite enjoyed a tramp from Winchester to Revere and return—quite a stunt for a gentleman of his age without any previous training. More and more medical men are advising that everyone undergo a rigid physical examination once a year as a means of detecting insidious diseases that otherwise might escape notice until they have reached a virulent form. A middle aged professional gentleman of the Spectator's acquaintance has made it a point to walk on every birthday as many miles as he is years old. Of course he has to do considerable walking between birthdays to be able to put the feat across. In addition to the real satisfaction that he gets from the knowledge that his body is in such condition that it can stand exertion which would exhaust many a younger Winchesterite, he derives a great deal of pleasure from the "hikes" by his own powers of observation and his interest in the varied things that he sees. He has made himself an authority on birds, for one thing. For private circulation among his friends he has written narratives of some of his long walking trips, and no one sensible of the charm of nature or appreciative of the entertainment and edification that are often to be found in roadside conversations with those casually encountered on a tramp in the country can read these accounts of his "hikes" without feeling moved to go and do likewise. In the days to come let us see Winchesterites taking "birthday hikes."

A printed statement that So-and-so died at the age of 95 years does not tell us anything concerning the mental capacity of the deceased. Every year has two lists—the list of survivors and the list of "connecting links." There are men and women whose bodily frames long outlast their mental powers. Apparently they dream, or pass their latter years in a semi-stupor. They do not throw light on the past. If they speak of it they so jumble together dates, names and facts that little can be learned from them. As the years go by their memories grow steadily, or even rapidly weaker. Like the old woman in the poem of Thompson they confound the generations of the family or forget the names of their nearest kin. The signs of decay were mentioned long ago by the Roman poet, Horace. At times one is startled by the powerful memory of the aged. Eighty or 90 years have gone, and yet the old man or woman is alert. A description of the landscape of 60 years ago is clear enough to delight an artist. A narrative of a campaign or a chapter in town history suggests a diary. In many a community there is somebody who is, in his circle, what Josiah Quincy was in Boston. Such an individual is a connecting link between the two generations. In a quiet room the Spectator saw a woman who had listened to John Quincy Adams talking to a man who had dined with Zachary Taylor, and both were in full vigor of intellect. Swift, dreading his own mental decay, pictured the enfeebled minds of some who reach great age. Humboldt and Leo XIII are illustrations of the mind that links a line of decades.

There is one Winchester gentleman to whom the red man is a study of absorbing interest. This Winchesterite is as fond of Indian legends and languages as some of his clerical brethren here in Winchester are of Latin or Greek. When we consider now much of Jefferson's life had to be given to affairs of State and to society, the amount of time he gave to the aborigines is surprising. DeWitt Clinton made Indian life a hobby. Albert Gallatin was a storehouse of information on Indian matters. Lewis Carr was never tired of collecting data on this line. Henry R. Schoolcraft, with an Indian princess for a wife, had unusually good opportunities and well did he use them. When Senator Quay was not up to his neck in politics, he was the most enthusiastic type of bookworm and anything bearing on Indian life charmed him. John T. Morgan, with law, public business, foreign affairs, and the Isthmian canal, led a busy life, yet he talked of Indians as charmingly as John Burroughs could talk of bird life. In parts of our South and West it is not at all unusual to meet a lawyer or a physician, a clergyman or a teacher, an editor or a business man who has Indian blood in his veins. A woman of the Cherokee tribe unveiled the statue of Sequoyah who gave his people an alphabet. A United States Senator and two Congressmen were introduced as Cherokee Indians. The continuities of life are as striking as its breaks. Aztec civilization is gone. Peruvian art is something of the past. But Indians are now making laws and interpreting them. The bond purchaser of the Indians in the World War surprised every banker. The Six Nations have pleaded in our highest court. It may be that an Indian will some day make notes on Cooper and Parkman. Here are two Indian names. Andrew Jackson, who broke down the Creek host, was "The long knife." William M. Beauchamp, who loved Indian traditions, was "The beautiful rainbow."

A Winchester man with a mechanical bent of mind discusses "automatic civilization." Says he: "The report of investigators who studied a recent bad train wreck down in New Jersey forces just one more link in the elimination of human power and human frailty from practical civilization. The probers urge the installation of an automatic train control system which will render it impossible for engineer to overrun a signal. What with adding machines, prepared breakfast foods, and all the rest, we'll all have to earn our living as artists or poets before long."

It will not be long now before the snow is off the ground and once more the highways of Winchester will be filled with fast moving automobiles. And in this connection the Spectator does not believe it is too early to stress a campaign against reckless driving and it might be well to arrest attention to a campaign inaugurated in a small Massachusetts city last fall in which the classification of reckless drivers was begun. It is very significant, perhaps, that the temptation to speed is a factor in most of the seven classes enumerated by the campaigners. There is more to be said after such cataloging is completed later in the year, and the same applies here in Winchester quite as much as it does in the community where the corrective move has begun. Among those whom the promoter holds up to public view as reckless is the driver who ignores all speed limits. Then comes his first cousin who overloads a car and then roars over heavily traveled roads at excessive speed. The motorist who speeds past schoolhouses is classified, rightfully, among the reckless. And the others include the youth who is prone to drive with one hand while paying most of his attention to one or more passengers in his car, the motorist who "cuts in" too close when passing another car, the one who disregards traffic signals, and the fool who likes to "show off." These classifications of recklessness are based on results rather than on cause. For recklessness primarily is a state of mind and the Spectator doubts that it is often intentional. Even the careful driver takes big chances once in a while, and when he gets away with an occasional gamble in traffic he is encouraged to do it again. In other words, he gains a false confidence in his ability. If they will be honest with themselves most drivers will admit that they commit one or more of the sins aforementioned once in a while. They do it, they hasten to explain, because the other fellow does it or because they have done it before and nothing happened. They are thus lulled into a false sense of security. The cure for reckless auto driving begins right at home like charity and other virtues. When Winchesterites recognize their own responsibilities in such matters Winchester will come closer to solving its own growing motor problem.

Winchesterites may have heard the story of the wanderer who approached a residence in the outskirts of a certain town and asked the good housewife if he might use her kitchen range to prepare some soup from his soup stone. All he wanted was a small kettle in which to boil the stone. The housewife complied with the request, curious to know how soup could be made from a stone. The wayfarer showed her. After boiling the stone for a few moments he asked for an onion to give flavor to the soup. Then he wanted a couple of potatoes to thicken it. If she had a bit of cabbage it would help some. A small bit of meat would also add to the flavor. Then a little salt and pepper, if you please. The good housewife supplied all the extras requested, and soon the soup stone was ready and the wayfarer ate heartily and departed with thanks. This story was told to The Spectator a long time ago, when he was a small boy, and he had forgotten all about it until he read not long ago of a new fad that had been started. It is that of "synthetic beefsteak" following. The Spectator supposes the synthetic cow, with which Henry Ford proposed to put a crimp in the business of the dairyman and the milkman. This synthetic beefsteak, it seems to be made of cottonseed oil, mixed with several other condiments and served like hamburger or hash. It is probable that the inventor works on the same principle employed by the "soup stone" genius. The condiments of the cottonseed oil, it reasonably may be supposed, will consist of meal, a few onions, a few potatoes, a little seasoning and a few other trifles, and then we have a "beefsteak" quite ready for consumption.

Every now and then The Spectator sees an article in the papers inveighing against the bobbed-haired girl, and only the other day he read a long scientific discussion of the subject which said that if this thing kept up, it would result in a few generations hence in a race of bearded women, whose bodies also would be covered with hair, thereby depriving the female sex of the peculiar beauty and charm that have always been an attraction to men. The Spectator takes the stand that this is all piffle. Also he ventures to call attention to the fact that all this talk against bobbed hair proves again that "there is nothing new under the sun." Solomon said that, did he not? Anyway, as far back as 250 years ago John Chamberlain, of London, wrote a letter very much on the order of those which occasionally are seen nowadays. The women of Britain went on such a short-hair debauch as to reduce "their men folks, and even royalty," to a state that was "almost frantic." Indeed, the indignant and outraged King of England ordered the Bishop of London to call his clergy together, "to inveigh vehemently against the insolencies of our women, and their wearing of broad-brimmed hats, pointed dublets, their hair cut short or shorn." In addition and significantly, the King gave it out straight that, "if pulpit admonitions will not reform them, I will proceed by another course." Mr. Chamberlain was so badly impressed by the conduct of the clipped women that he closed his lugubrious letter with this comment on the situation and the King's order: "The truth is, the world is very much out of order, but whether this will mend it God knows." That, good Winchesterites, was 250 years ago—in 1680 to be exact—and here we are again and with no King to interfere.

Club's Good Work
More than one million road maps are distributed each month to motorists by the touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

ROME: TO WHICH PILGRIM ROADS LEAD

To the Holy Year pilgrims, as well as to many thousands of American tourists all roads again lead to Rome, the eternal city, which is the subject of a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Rome, the cradle of our civilization, offers more to the sight-seer, the religious devotee, the archaeologist, the historian or the aesthete, than any other city, and perhaps, more than all of them together, the bulletin states. Like its inception, Rome cannot be seen or learned in a day. The remark of the French historian, Ampere, who said that a superficial knowledge of Rome could be acquired in a ten years' visit, gives an idea of the vast number and variety of its attractions.

A Modern City Today
Even the casual or hurried tourist and pilgrims, however, cannot fail to be impressed with what little they see or learn of the mother city of our languages, laws, religions and many of our customs. Rome links us with all other cities. In its prime the long arms of the Empire stretched far to the east and west and brought the highest civilization of the time to the rude tribes beyond the Alps and the Mediterranean, and, through them, to the rest of the known world. But the Rome of today is not this Rome. At first it is very disappointing, with its conventional, smooth paved, trolley streets, monotonous houses, trolley cars, electric lights and hotels, all of them very much like those of other modern cities. There is little trace of the famed seven hills or the temples and ruins of the history books.

This is because the visitor enters the city at its newest side. A great, busy modern city has been built over a greater ancient one, and the latter is exposed only in a few places. To get a romantic picture of Rome one must walk by the Colosseum in the moonlight, or loiter on the Bridge of Angels when the star-reflections dimple the sullen Tiber, or sit by a fountain in a rose-scented garden when the nightingales are singing.

Seven Hills Shaved Off
Perhaps the most vivid first-hand impressions of Rome today are of the modernness of its hotels and business houses, the number of its churches and the beauty of its many fountains. No one expects the latter, but no one forgets them once seen. Their rushing waters is one of the few characteristics of the ancient city that has been carried into the modern one. The flash and glitter of their high-tossed spray, and the rush and plunge of their heavy streams is a refreshing note in a city which knows no half-tones. For in Rome everything is bare to the pitiless glare of the sun or cowers in the deepest shade.

The seven hills are still there, but the intervening centuries have greatly modified them. The modern city is rolling, for the ancient hills have been largely shaved off and the valleys filled in to suit the exigencies of the trolley car and automobile.

Ruins Tell of Ancient Grandeur
Palatine Hill, with its ruins and cypress trees is visible; as is the Capitoline Hill, which rises somewhat abruptly from the center of the city, crowned with churches and other nothings, and the Monte Quirinal, with its royal palace and the Trajan column. But the Monte Celio or Caelius, which was never high, has hardly any slope and would be indistinguishable but for the church of San Giovanni in Laterano. The Esquiline Hill shows the two domes of Santa Maria Maggiore; the Aventine Hill, the home of the opposition since Romulus fled there from his brother, drops off rather sharply toward the river but is smooth and rolling in the other directions. There is nothing today to distinguish the Monte Viminal, near the railroad station.

It is only in the Roman and Trajan forums, and in such isolated buildings as the Castle of St. Angelo, which Trajan's successor, Hadrian, erected as a suitable mausoleum for himself; the Colosseum; the Baths of Caracalla, etc., mutilated, defaced, robbed, and scorned, that one is able to get some conception of the grandeur of Rome in the days when the will of its ruler was law for the known world.

Largest Series of Buildings
Rome today is a city of 664,000 people and the capital of united Italy. But a united Italy is such a comparatively recent phenomenon that, in the minds of most people, the city still stands for two things—the remains of antiquity and the seat of Catholicism. In St. Peter's and the adjoining Vatican, Rome has the largest continuous series of buildings in the world. The Vatican, residence of the Pope, contains about 7000 rooms, though some say 11,000, 20 courts and more than 200 staircases.

In addition there are scores of other churches throughout the city, embracing every religion and every type of service. The five Patriarchal churches of the Catholic faith, to which congregations all Christians throughout the world were once accredited, are also located in Rome. They are magnificent edifices, and, in their exquisite paintings, mosaics and other works of art, reveal the splendor of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance, when Pope and patrician rivaled each other in adorning their city.

But aside from the railroad terminal and several up-to-date hotels, Rome today has only a single contribution to its former glory—the massive monument to Victor Emmanuel II, uniting of modern Italy. Before it is the tomb of Italy's Unknown Soldier. However, in its Palazzo delle Finanze, the treasury of the country, modern Rome has a building covering 30,000 square yards, the largest treasury building in Europe.

Backgrounds for Furniture
Sturdy pieces of furniture take rough plastered walls, stippled effects or wallpaper with peasant or quaint designs. Delicate slender-line furniture requires walls of smooth plaster finished in soft shades or wallpaper with more refined patterns.

Prize Diamond Collection

In the Museum of Vienna there is a wonderful collection of diamonds of many colors. They are in the form of a bouquet, the natural colors of the flowers being represented by diamonds of the same hues. These stones were collected by a Tyrolean, Virgin von Helmreich, who passed many years in the diamond mines of South Africa and Brazil, buying many of his finds from the mine owners.

Rare Gems

Very rare are diamonds of the black and rose-colored varieties. The green diamond is much more common. The "grass-green" variety, however, is scarce, but when it does occur is generally of a brilliancy exceeding that of the emerald. The Museum of Natural History at Paris possesses a collection of green-tinted diamonds that is held to be of the finest, but at the museum in Dresden is to be seen the most perfect specimen of this color.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

HOW DIFFERENT FROM EUROPE!

An American business man went abroad to live five years ago. He has just made his first return trip and writes his impressions of progress here at home in an interesting article in Printers' Ink Monthly. He visits the apartment of a friend and marvels at the equipment in the kitchen, especially "the ingenious contrivances above and around the gas range." He spends a week-end with another friend and comments on the appointments in the bathroom—the luxuriousness of the hot and cold shower. "Historians may some day point out that the greatness of America was based upon two institutions—the convenient bathroom and the sanitary kitchen," says this traveler. And we're proud of the part that gas service plays in making bathrooms convenient and kitchens clean, cool and efficient.

Human Traits Evolvedby Young Chimpanzees

Remarkable human characteristics have been discovered in apes by Prof. W. Kohler, a German scientist. He captured and kept nine young chimpanzees in his jungle home on Tenerife, off the African coast, studying his peculiar family for six years.

The apes knew and loved him, growing livelier in their games when he joined in. His personal appearance was well known, and when he appeared in riding breeches the apes puzzled and studied the breeches minutely. They would take off his sunglasses and try them on their own noses; and when the professor shaved off his beard there was a great commotion, the apes stroking his face, neck and chin, and even poking down his collar to find the vanished hair.

Chimpanzees have a sense of humor, show great affection, and know when they have misbehaved and deserve punishment, being highly indignant with an offender who has been caught.

Bacon's High Praiseof Biblical Writer

Sir Francis Bacon, one of the world's greatest thinkers, had great admiration for the Book of Job. "That excellent book of Job," he called it. And then he suggested that, if it be carefully studied, it will be found to contain a wonderful knowledge of natural philosophy, writes Bruno Lessing.

The reference to the minerals in the earth, Bacon thought, proved that Job was a great mineralogist. There is really something plausible in this thought. Of course Job could have known nothing of the present theory of geology, namely, that the earth was built up by one layer piling upon another layer. But his familiarity with minerals and metals and his reference to wheat crops and his belief that there was heat underneath the earth's crust, fit in so well with what we know today that it must be admitted Job at the very least, was a clear-thinking man.

A COMBINATION

All the charm that goes with an old-fashioned house—white wainscoting, windows that run down to the floor, open fire-places, beautiful stairway; and all the comforts of a new house—splendid hot water heater, gas range, mostly hardwood floors. Nine rooms and bath. The location is ideal:—splendid neighborhood, quiet street, five minutes to Wedgemere. Corner lot containing nearly 10,000 sq. ft. Many fine shrubs, fruit and shade trees. Single garage. Price $13,500. Terms.

WEST SIDE

Nearly new house of Colonial design. It contains on the first floor: large living room with open fireplace, generous sized sun porch on South side, open porch on north side, dining room and kitchen with breakfast nook. Second floor: three large chambers, one small one and two tiled baths. Third floor: maid's room and storage. About 10,000 sq. ft. of land. Perennial garden laid out last Fall. Two-car garage. Price $21,000.

WEDGEMERE BARGAIN

Unforeseen circumstances require the immediate sale of an eight-room house in this fine section. Substantial house about 14 years old. Single garage. Price cut from $12,500 to $10,500.

TOWN ELECTION BROUGHT FEW CHANGES440 More Votes Cast This Year Than Last—Old Board of Selectmen In

The annual town election was held on Monday, and once again Winchester's electorate evinced scant interest in the balloting. Despite the fact that there were four contests on this year's ballot as opposed to a single one a year ago, but 440 more votes were registered, the total being 2546 against the 2106 of last year.

It was expected that the contest for the vacancies upon the school committee would bring out the feminine voters in large numbers, yet even as last year the ladies were outnumbered by the men, 1373 to 1173.

Much of the interest in this year's election was centered in the contests for the Board of Selectmen and for the office of Collector of Taxes. In neither did the new candidates succeed in ousting the present incumbents who stood for re-election.

The contest for the office of Collector of Taxes produced the closest fight of any on the ballot. This found the present collector, Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols, a candidate for re-election, opposed by Mr. J. Leslie Johnston, a World War veteran. Mr. Nichols finally was returned a winner by the narrow margin of 35 votes, his figures being 1232 to Mr. Johnston's 1197.

The entire Board of Selectmen for the year just past were returned by the voters to another year of service. To Mr. Robert F. Whitney went the honor of polling the highest number of votes in this contest, his total being 1649 or 61 more than the 1588 which Mr. Walter H. Dotten got for second place. Of the new candidates, Mr. Thomas Fallon polled 1045 votes with Mr. Alfred D. Radley having 881.

The three-cornered fight for the two existing vacancies upon the School Committee resulted in returning the two members standing for re-election to their former positions. Mr. John A. Maddocks received the greatest number of votes in this contest with a total of 1669.

The contest for the vacancy upon the Board of Public Welfare resulted in a rather easy victory for Mrs. Alice L. Martin who had a total of 1424 votes as opposed to 898 for Mr. Terence D. Cullen, the other candidate. This contest was the only one in which a former officer was not returned to office for another term, both Mrs. Martin and Mr. Cullen being new candidates for the Board.

The honor of receiving the highest number of votes cast at the election went to Mr. Charles E. Kendall who received 1920 votes while running unopposed as a candidate for re-election to the Water and Sewer Board.

WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The League will hold a Round Table meeting at the home of Mrs. C. A. Batchelder, 387 Main street, corner Black Horse terrace on Wednesday, March 10 at 2:30 p.m. Mrs. Roland M. Baker, our State Child Welfare Chairman will talk on the Child Labor Amendment and the bill to extend School Requirements and Opportunities. All League members are urged to attend this meeting.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

An engagement of local interest has been announced, being that of Alice F. Blake and Walter L. Day. Miss Blake is a former resident of Winchester, Mr. Day residing at 25 Ridgely road. Mr. Day is a former resident of Arlington, having business interests in several shoe stores there at the present.

ROBERT F. WHITNEY Newly Elected Chairman of the Board of SelectmenSECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Plans are complete for a fitting celebration of the Twentieth Anniversary of the founding of the Second Congregational Church in the Highlands district which is to be observed from March 12 to March 14 inclusive.

The festivities will start with the 20th anniversary supper and roll call scheduled for Friday evening, March 1. At this meeting letters will be read from non-resident members of the parish and other friends with brief addresses by several invited guests.

Saturday evening from 7:30 to 9:30 there is to be a reception and social at the chapel in charge of the Ladies' Bethany Society of the church. A special feature will be the presentation of the anniversary birthday cake. On Sunday morning at 10:30 a historic review of the church will be presented by Clerk A. A. Belville and the pastor, Rev. John E. Whitley, with an address by the superintendent of the church school, Miss Laura B. Tolman. Exercises by the Sunday School will mark the conclusion of the service.

At the evening services greetings will be brought from the other churches of Winchester by appointed representatives and there will be an address of special interest by Rev. D. Caulkins, D.D., of Cambridge whose father was moderator of the council which organized the church on March 13, 1906. Special music for the occasion will be rendered by the Lenten choir.

MR. PACKER TO SPEAK

The Wyman Mothers' Association is privileged to announce as the speaker at their next meeting Mr. William S. Packer, who has chosen for his subject, "The Girls of Today." This meeting will be held on Wednesday, March 10, at 10:30, in the Wyman School Hall. Please note that this is to be a morning meeting, and that the day has been changed from Tuesday, as announced last week, to Wednesday.

All Winchester mothers are cordially invited to hear Mr. Packer, who, as a member of the Parks and Playgrounds Committee, has done so much for the children of Winchester. Recognizing the value to the boys and girls of directing their energy and enthusiasm to wholesome outdoor sports, he has advocated additional playgrounds in different parts of the town. Palmer Field with its tennis courts is a result of his vision. Furthermore, he has stimulated the boys and girls to such a keen interest in tennis that the courts have been in almost constant use, and some players have become proficient enough to enter the Junior Tournament at Longwood.

THANKS TO VOTERS

To the Editor of the Star:
May I, through your paper, thank all those good friends who so loyally helped me in my campaign for election to the Board of Public Welfare?

I wish to mention especially Mrs. Elizabeth C. McDonald who sacrificed her chances of being elected to the School Board in order to choose the right side in our district controversy over the Board of Welfare contest, which thinking people considered the vital issue of this year's election. Mrs. McDonald, with her usual fearless stand for the principle that is right, lost votes but gained friends.

Again I thank the splendid workers who rose above self and selfish interests. And I assure our community that while I am a member of the Welfare Board I shall stand all-ways for the best interest of all concerned.

Alice L. Martin

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

Following is the list of contagious diseases reported to the Board of Health for the week ending Thursday, March 4:

Scarlet Fever	2
Mumps	6
Measles	1

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the Woburn Home for Aged Women for Mrs. Janet M. Stevens, widow of Charles H. Stevens of this town. Mrs. Stevens was born in Paisley, Scotland and was 86 years of age. She had made her home in Woburn for the past four years, but will be remembered by the older residents of Winchester as having formerly for some years made her home in town. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery, Winchester.

POLITICAL SCRAMBLE NOT ACTIVITY OF NORTH END IMPROVEMENT AS-SOCIATION

Organization Not a Political Unit

To the Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir:
The following is a copy of a letter addressed by the writer to the Editor of the Woburn Times in answer to paragraphs in the March 2 issue of the Woburn Daily Times and which will no doubt be of interest to Star readers:

"The writer was certainly surprised at statements contained in your publication of March 2, wherein you led the Voters in the Town of Winchester to believe that the election pertaining to the Board of Public Welfare had caused a split, so-called, in the North End Improvement Association. It is, however, possible to excuse this false expression of opinion, coming from one who is apparently misinformed regarding the status of this Association. The Association can not, never will and has never held itself out to either produce or back any political candidates. With this fact in mind, I believe you will be able to understand that there has been no 'hard feelings' created, but that the Association, functioning for and under its original by-laws, is as ever influenced by a sincere and amicable feeling toward all affairs of general interest and has not suffered by any split, so-called, as one would be led to believe by reading the publication referred to above.

"I cannot conceive how the election of one candidate, more than any other, would place the Board of Public Welfare in politics and for your information and the guidance of your readers, the scramble for position (salaries) of agent of said Board occurred last year and not this year and was caused by the same people who created the mix-up on the various slates in this year's election. But, even this, cannot be referred to as 'activities of the North End Improvement Association' for surely the personal affairs of any of its members are not Association Affairs.

"The above statements are issued at this time in order that the writer, as President of the North End Improvement Association, may uphold the purpose for which this Association was organized and defend any illusions which may be current about its having become a political unit in the Town of Winchester, for that, most emphatically, is not one of the branches of public interest in which it wishes to become associated."

(Signed) Raymond F. Fenton
(President North End Improvement Association)

CHANCEL CHOIR TO RENDER
BRAHMS' REQUIEMFirst Congregational Church, Sunday
At 4 P. M.

The Chancel Choir of the First Congregational Church will render eight choruses from Brahms' Requiem Mass, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The choir will be assisted by Elizabeth Worcester, Soprano and James R. Haughton, Baritone.

The Harvard Glee Club is giving the Mass in Symphony Hall on Psalm Sunday, and the tickets were sold out as soon as they were put on sale, so that the program will be repeated the Monday following.

The people of Winchester, however, will have an opportunity to hear the choruses at the First Congregational Church next Sunday.

The program is as follows:

Prelude—Pavane in G Major, Op. 10, No. 3, Bach
Processional Hymn 464—For All the Saints
Who from Their Labors Rest
Call to Worship and Sanctus
Invocation
The Requiem I—Chorus—Blessed are they that mourn for they shall have comfort
Scripture Lesson
The Requiem II—Chorus
Behold, all flesh is as the grass
Offering and Offertory—Sonata in G Major, Op. 10, No. 3, Bach
The Requiem V—Soprano Solo and Chorus
You are now as I am
The Requiem VI—Baritone Solo and Chorus
Who are these like Stars Appearing Benediction and Choral Amen
Postlude—Prelude and Fugue in B Flat

FORMER WINCHESTER GIRL MARRIED

Announcement was made this week of the marriage at Tampa, Fla., of Miss Alice Freeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin M. Freeman of Wellesley, formerly of this town, to John Charles Daniels of that place.

The bride is well known here, having spent all of her life in Winchester previous to entering the Government service some three years ago. She is a graduate of the Winchester High School in the class of 1919 and also of the Boston School of Physical Education. Following her graduation from the latter institution she engaged in reconstruction work for the United States Government at its hospitals in Washington, D. C., Denver, Col., and San Francisco, Cal. She is a member of the En Ka Sorority of this town.

APPRECIATION TO VOTERS

To the Editor of the Star:

Although I was an unsuccessful candidate at the town election, I wish, nevertheless, to express my thanks and appreciation to the many friends who supported me and voted for me.

Thomas F. Fallon,
14 Highland Avenue

Among the coming marriages is that of Miss Gertrude Frances Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin E. Barnes of Fenwick road to Roger Milton Tolman of Rochester, N. H.

FIRST TOWN MEETING QUIET

Additional Appropriations Under Article
4—All Night Lighting Passed

The opening session of the annual Town Meeting held on Tuesday evening in the Town Hall failed to provide much excitement for the 478 voters who gathered to pass upon the various articles presented in the warrant for their consideration.

In general the meeting may be said to have followed the recommendations of the Town's Finance Committee with regards to appropriations such as was the case a year ago. To be sure $27,000 was voted under four items of Article 4 over and above the totals recommended by that committee, but taken by and large the citizens seemed entirely satisfied to accept its figures.

As a matter of fact the $3000 increase which was voted under the heading of Highways and Bridges is not an increase at all since this amount was simply shifted from its original place under the account of the School Department. Thus the increase is only $24,000 which in view of the necessity for a greatly increased appropriation for snow and ice removal can not be considered excessive. Of course things are not as yet over but indications are that any additional appropriations will not be of the reckless order.

Following the opening of the meeting the retiring Moderator, Mr. F. M. Ives announced the result of the previous day's balloting for the various Town offices and swore in the newly elected incumbents, among them the new Moderator, Mr. George B. Hayward. Upon accepting the gavel from Mr. Ives Mr. Hayward expressed on behalf of the Town the universal appreciation of the splendid service rendered by the former during his 15 years in office. Mr. Ives replied graciously and hoped that his successor might derive as much pleasure from his term as Moderator as he had been the case in his own instance.

This done, the meeting settled down to business with the taking up of Article 2 on the Warrant dealing with the hearing and accepting of the reports of the Town officers and Finance Committee. Under this head a supplemental report was made by the Library Trustees recommending that $2000, the gift of Miss Alice Joy in compliance with the request of the late Fred Joy to be used by the Town as a fund to buy books, be accepted. The question was put and the motion carried as recommended as was the one made under Article 3 providing for the raising of money by taxation to meet the payment of Town bonds and notes becoming due in the current financial year.

Previous to deliberating upon Article 4 Town Counsel Pike presented a motion providing that the various items appearing thereunder be taken up in the order in which they appear upon the Warrant. While many could see little necessity for such a motion it was seconded and passed without incident.

The various appropriations against the items appearing under Article 4 were accepted as recommended by the Finance Committee, with the exception of a $100 addition to that for the Collector of Taxes Department, until the meeting had progressed through the $16,000 for the Board of Health.

Here Chairman Carlton of the Finance Committee asked that the meeting consider Article 32 inserted in the Warrant to see whether the Town would vote to raise the wages of Town laborers from $4.50 to $5 per day. Mr. Carlton explained that it was wise to consider the same before taking up the item, Highways and Bridges, since such a raise would materially effect the amount of money necessary under this head.

It was voted to take up the article in question whereupon it became apparent that the proponents of the 50-cent raise had failed to frame any motion upon the matter. After an awkward pause Mr. Dotten moved that the article be indefinitely postponed and meanwhile Mr. Snyder moved that the increased be granted. Since there was a motion before the house the second motion was not sustained, and upon consideration of Mr. Dotten's motion the meeting voted not to postpone its action. Mr. Foley then presented a motion providing for the $5 a day wage which upon being put was lost, 182 to 218.

Then came the item on Highways and Bridges for which the Finance Committee recommended that $93,290 be appropriated. When the motion was made the amount was read as $96,290 and Mr. Snyder wished to know the why of the $3000 increase. Mr. Carlton of the Finance Committee explained that the increase was to provide for a gravel sidewalk on Highland avenue extending along the left hand side northwesterly to the new Highland School building. Mr. Carlton said that the $3000 had originally been charged to the School Department whereas it had been felt that it rightfully came under the Highway Department's account. His explanation seemed satisfactory and the motion providing for the increased appropriation was quickly passed.

This ended the debate until the appropriation for Parks and Playgrounds was reached. Here Mr. Davidson wished to be informed why the $1400 which the Park Department had requested for improvements at the Loring avenue playground had been omitted. He offered an amendment to the motion that the Town appropriate $11,850 for Parks and Playgrounds to include the additional figure. Mr. Worthen of the Finance Committee in answer felt that it was poor business to spend money upon land to which the Town as yet did not have a strictly clear title, and Mr. Davidson's amendment was lost.

Under the item pertaining to Sewer Construction due to the way in which the Finance Committee had provided

FACTS INCIDENTAL TO ELECTION

To the Editor of the Star:

The writer grants it is several days since election and that the votes have all been counted and the successful candidates installed and that the quiet little town of Winchester has once more gone about its ordinary routine, with the whirl of election all past.

But the tardiness of the writer in referring to election has been caused by his having only just become aware of some facts incidental to the election. In common with many other of our citizens, I assume that from time to time it so happens that some position is left to be filled by candidates who are not known to the voters personally and when a voter knows neither of the candidates for any particular office, he cannot intelligently cast his vote, for it is at most a hit or miss affair or perchance a one-sided decision and this is what I find I did at the polls recently. The vacancy on one of our boards was to be filled by one of two candidates, both of whom were unknown to me personally and when someone approached me and presented facts concerning one candidate, I let my decision rest there and cast my vote accordingly. It is now I see my injustice to my co-voters. In fairness to the ideals of voting, I should have informed myself or become acquainted with facts concerning both voters and then made my choice, but I fear I am like many others, ready to jump at the first offer presented, which may be the proper decision at times, but when it is, it is only by a whim of fate or chance. What has caused my lament against one-sided voting, is that at this late date it has come to my attention, that while statements which were made to me were probably correct they were flavored and colored and so well seasoned that they took on a slanderous attitude toward the opponent of the candidate mentioned and referred to me. Surely our quiet little community, where we should all be brothers one to another, is not going to—as late as 1926—stoop so low that it cannot produce candidates who will stand on their own merits and not have to resort to tactics which involve their opponent and by references which lead one to believe he or she is not what they really are. Why can't we all be exponents of the true ideals set down by our forefathers when instituting our present system of polling? Why can't we produce candidates, who are exceptionally fitted for the office and select them for that reason and that alone. Why do we have to make our polling the medium for healing or slashing at old scores or personal dislikes or whatever else may be the underlying theory of some of the facts which have come to light, at least have come to the attention of some of us. To those who have not seen under the crust of the recent election, it was a pure, clean and wholesome affair—but to the others of us, who have heard all its ins and outs, straight and crooked alike—it is deplorable and hypocritical. Let our voters who have come to understand as I have, inflict upon themselves a duty with their conscience to hereafter and forever make it their policy to never cast a vote until they have heard the pleas of all our candidates and then make their deductions accordingly and by so doing carry out their voting privilege as it is intended for the best interest of your community. Better to cast no vote for an office upon which you lack complete information than to cast a vote upon misinformation—and sad to relate that is what happened at our recent election. Too many of our voters, comparing the honesty of everyone else with their own frankness, were misled and unconsciously misinformed. Let us all come back to and apply the ever new, yet old, maxim "Do unto your neighbor, as you would do unto you" or "Do unto your candidates, as you would do unto you if you were a candidate." Be exponents of fair play at the polls as any other game demands.

Wake up voters—see if your conscience won't dictate as I have and let 1927 bring us through with a good clear sheet for honesty, integrity and fair play among our candidates and their proponents and ultimately allow the voters to fulfill their privilege and duty with greater aptness.

Submitted by a voter, who for obvious reasons does not disclose his name.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Miss Rebecca Barrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Barrett and a student at Wellesley, addressed the students of Howard Seminary last week on the "Honor System." It is reported that her talk aroused so much enthusiasm that her entire audience signed pledges to give the honor system a trial. Miss Barrett spoke as a delegate from the Wellesley College House of Representatives.

At Tuesday afternoon's whist of St. Dominic's Circle held at the home of Mrs. Frank Milne of Pickering street, Mrs. Ella Flemming, president of the circle, presented to Mrs. Alice L. Martin a beautiful bouquet of carnations in honor of the latter's 58th birthday and her election to the Board of Public Welfare. A delightful luncheon was served.

Mr. Charles E. Moore, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Etheridge of Lloyd street, who has been General Manager of the Roanoke Water Works Company of Roanoke, Va., has been elected Vice President of the Company. Mr. Moore is a graduate of Tufts College, Class of 1915, and is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Miss Bernice Brown of 8 Sheffield road entertained 20 of her friends last Saturday at her home in honor of her birthday.

NUMEROUS AFFAIRS AT CALUMET CLUB

March is to be an active month in the social activities at the Calumet Club, and in accordance with several dates already announced by the committee in charge, the members will find their interest well centered at the club. The calendar for the month will be issued within a few days with a complete list of events.

It is announced already, however, that on Wednesday, March 10, there is to be another of the popular afternoon bridge parties for the ladies. This will be held at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of a committee of ladies. In view of the cordial reception and large attendance at previous parties, this will be one of the important afternoon socials.

On Saturday evening, March 13, there is to be a smoker for the men at 8 o'clock. Moving pictures are said to be the attraction.

A regular old-fashioned poverty party is scheduled for Friday evening the 19th, with the popular orchestra which created such comment at the recent dance furnishing the music.

An informal ladies' night will be held on Friday evening, March 26, a musical program now being arranged for the evening.

The last informal afternoon of bowling for the ladies is to be held on Wednesday, April 7. These parties have been immensely popular, and the announcement of another afternoon will undoubtedly be welcomed by a large number of the lady bowlers.

CENTER TO WITNESS MANY CHANGES IS REPORT

According to reports current about the square this week Winchester is soon to see some sweeping changes in the industrial section of the Town. Some of the reports have been hard to verify but those "in the know" believe that there is considerable foundation for the rumors.

It is known that the Ginter Company is to extend its present quarters in Lyceum Building to include those which for more than 25 years have been occupied by the "Corner Shoe Store" of Mr. James McLaughlin, one of Winchester's real veteran merchants. On the Mt. Vernon street side of the same building the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company is also to enlarge its floor space to include the store occupied by E. C. Sanderson, electrician.

Mr. Sanderson is to tear down the first house on the Westerly side of Thompson street at the square and erect upon the land a block of stores, one of which he will occupy himself.

A rumor which is current and which will not be downed is that which says the ownership of the block of stores extending from Thompson street along Main street to the drinking fountain in the square and at present occupied by the Winchester News Company, B. F. Mathews, Shaw and Campbell and others has changed hands and is to be torn down. Inquiry among some of the tenants revealed no definite information in the matter and the next move is being awaited with much interest.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage Intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk by Antonio Marzagoglio of 47 Oak street and Santa Raetana of 106 Swanton street and by George W. Purrington of 153 Cambridge street and Mabel Fanchion Chase of 170 Brookline avenue, Brookline.

Officer William Cassidy reported a broken grating over a water conduit on Cambridge street near Glen road while patrolling his beat Wednesday night. The grating was between the tracks of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company and constituted a distinct menace. Lanterns were placed to warn the public of the danger.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The World League against alcoholism held district conventions during the past week in the cities of Lowell, Springfield, Worcester and Boston. Many notable speakers were upon the programs, all taking an optimistic view of the prohibition question at the present time. Dr. E. H. Channing, president of the league, replying to the charge that prohibition was "put over by a few fanatics" said that 70 per cent of the population and 95 per cent of the land area, were under prohibition before we had the national law. He reminded his audience that 46 of the 48 States ratified the 18th amendment. Mr. William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson a veteran leader of the prohibition forces, was the chief speaker at the Boston conference. "It has been claimed" he said that people abroad think America has made a laughing stock of herself by her attitude on prohibition. I want to say that I have never heard that sort of thing outside America. From six years of intimate association with peoples of other religious nationalities and colors I know that, instead of America being looked upon as a laughing stock, she is looked upon as the supreme hope of the world. Mrs. Ella A. Gleason, honorary State president and Mrs. Grace M. Hamilton, president of Middlesex County, represented the W. C. T. U. on the program at Boston and Lowell.

WINCHESTER BOY PRESIDENT OF HARVARD FRESHMEN

Arthur B. French of this town, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. French of Highland avenue, has been elected president of the first year class at Harvard, his election being announced just before the hockey game between the Harvard and Yale freshmen teams last Friday evening. It is his second big honor since matriculating at Cambridge, he having been chosen to captain his class football team last fall. He is at present a member of the frosh track team and is already hailed as the best broad jump prospect in college. Recently in the inter-class indoor meet he defeated the best of the varsity leapers with a hop of better than 21 feet. "Art" will be remembered to all local sports followers as a star halfback on "Rufe" Bond's unbeaten high school football team of 1922.

THREE MIDDLESEX COUNTY YOUNG PEOPLE NAMED COUNTY CHAMPIONS

The Junior Extension Service Department of the Massachusetts Agricultural College announces that Mildred A. Benson of Winchester has been selected as State Canning Champion; Costas Caragianis of Dracut, State Garden Champion; and Henry Benfien of Bedford, State Potato Champion for their splendid accomplishments during the past year.

County Club Agent George E. Erickson of the Middlesex County Extension Service says that not only have these young folks done great things in a direct way but they have done even bigger things in an indirect way through their leadership in helping 4-H Club members in their towns to accomplish results that might not be achieved otherwise.

Miss Benson, who is but 16 years of age, canned and sold during the past year 1678 cans of fruits and vegetables; Costas Caragianis during the past year made a profit of $293.88 from an acre of land that he bought and cultivated besides making $130 through other work that was an indirect outcome of his garden work. Henry Benfien made a profit of $541.95 on one acre of potatoes during this same season.

This is only a brief statement of some of the things accomplished by these young people but it is sufficient evidence that 4-H Clubs provide training, develop initiative and leadership in many young men and women which benefits the young people who join and indirectly benefits the community in which they live, says Extension Service Agents.

REGISTRAR GOODWIN TO ADDRESS EPIPHANY MEN

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin is to be the speaker next Monday evening at the meeting and dinner of the Epiphany Men's Club to be held in the parish house of the Epiphany Church. Mr. Goodwin, by his vigorous handling of the court's methods of treating with criminals and especially with those seeking to evade the motor vehicle laws, has aroused a widespread interest throughout the State and it is expected that a big crowd will be present at Monday's meeting to get his views at first hand. The dinner will precede Mr. Goodwin's remarks.

LENTEN SERMON TOPICS AT THE SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The following is the list of topics for the Lenten sermons to be preached at the Second Congregational Church by the pastor, Rev. John E. Whitley, beginning with Sunday, March 7, through Easter Sunday, April 4.

March 7, A. M. Communion with address. P. M. Challenge of Christ to Men.
March 10, Wednesday—Led by the Spirit.
March 12, Friday—20th Anniversary Supper and Roll Call.

March 14, Anniversary Sunday—Special Services. A. M. Anniversary address by Pastor. P. M. Outside speakers. Greetings from Churches.

March 17, Wednesday—Meeting the Un-expected.
March 21—Building Fund Campaign Sunday. A. M. Community Service. Speaker to be announced. P. M. A Bible Play, The Dream of Queen Esther.

March 24, Wednesday—Blessings in Disguise.

LET THE LIGHT SHINE

To the Editor of the Star:

With all due respect to the Finance Committee, who undoubtedly have sacrificed home ties and rendered valuable service to the town gratis in making up the annual town budget, I for one grasp this opportunity to most heartily thank through the columns of the Star that group of economists who were perhaps never stung by a mosquito or were required to stay awake on a hot summer's night listening in on the jazz music of the dinky small pests who are nothing more than static. I trust the electorate assembled in town meeting will vote in favor of Article 16 in the Town Warrent.

Why? Because I believe that any movement that has a tendency to promote health, education and happiness requires the united support of every man and woman who is interested in the future destiny of Winchester, the Athens of America. We take great pride in pointing out to visitors our three wonderful reservoirs, magnificent schools, parks, playgrounds, etc., and last, but not least, the railroad men's shanty, the switchman's shanty, the police watch tower and the white posts in front of the Lyceum Building in the center of our Town.

Now Mr. Editor, we have appropriated a sum of money annually for a number of years to help eradicate the gypsy and brown tail moths that were so numerous in this vicinity a few years past. The result of that annual appropriation is that it is a difficult matter at the present time to locate one of these scavengers that made our trees look like the Argonne forest.

Some folks evidently are unconscious of the fact that there are several unsightly places in Winchester where the mosquitoes, black flies, midges, bullfrogs, hawks and cat-ninetails thrive. We all recall that some of the great nations of the earth undertook the construction of the Panama Canal. Due to the fact that its methods of sanitation and extermination of the mosquito were inadequate, the result was that nations most collapsed so to speak. Uncle Sam went down to Panama, eradicated the mosquitoes, constructed the canal and performed one of the most wonderful feats of engineering that was ever achieved in ancient or modern times. Your humble servant is well qualified to dwell on this subject for some time, but space forbids. Perhaps the ideal place to discuss this important proposition is on the floor of that spacious auditorium, the Town Hall, next Monday night and I trust that the marvelous orator from the hill section will be present and lend a hand now that he has witnessed the light.

Very truly yours,

Patrick H. Craughwell

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Regular meeting of the Fortnightly will be held in the Town Hall on Monday at 2.30 p. m.

"Please Stand By"—The Dramatics Committee presents "Please Stand By," a radiolette written and directed by Carolyn Draper Gilpatrick, chairman of Dramatics. Come and see your club members perform!

Signing Off.
Carolyn Draper Gilpatrick
Literature Committee

Members of the Literature Group and club members who braved the handicap of travel and went last Monday to the home of Mrs. Marion Perham Gale on Yale street, were amply rewarded by enjoying one of the most interesting programs of the year. Mrs. Gale was entertainer as well as hostess, and read a delightful little group of poems written by herself. Her reading gave to them just the charm needed for their most vivid interpretation so that each one seemed a little gem sparkling in its own beauty.

Among the topics of current literary interest, Miss Marjorie N. Weeks drew particular attention to the awarding of the C. Henry prize for the best short story; the first prize of $500 being divided between Julian Street for his story, "Mr. Bisbee's Princess," and Wilbur Steele, who tied Mr. Street for first place with "The Man Who Saw Through Heaven." The "Papago Wedding," by Mary Austin, winning the third prize is said to be the most perfect thing of its kind and was adjudged the best of the brief Short Stories.

As briefly retold by Miss Weeks, Mr. Street's story of "Mr. Bisbee's Princess," was most entertaining.

The program of the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. A. J. Wallace reviewing the life and works of Ellen Glasgow and Mrs. C. H. Dodge giving an outline of Willa Cather's works. Mrs. Wallace characterized Miss Douglas as one of the new women of the south. Her novel, "The Decendant," was written at the age of 18 and her story of "Virginia" is a classic of the South. Her book, "The Deliverance," a story of hate and greed, of devotion and love triumphant was vividly retold by Miss Mary Hodge.

In reviewing Miss Glasgow's latest work, "Barren Ground," a story of all that the name implies, Mrs. Minnie C. Ely skillfully brought out the high lights of the book—the courage, faith and endurance that pervaded its pages and with bright touches of her own humor relieved the somberness of the book's stark realism.

Mrs. Dodge outlined a brief study of Willa Cather and her novels, pointing out that Miss Cather was happiest in her delineation of characters. Her latest and best work of literature, "The Professor's House," was clearly retold by Mrs. Carlisle.

Following the program a pleasant social hour was spent around the tea table.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY OF THE METHODIST CHURCH PRE- SENTED CONCERT AND PLAY

The concert and play presented on Feb. 26 by "The Winter Group" of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience.

The Social Hall of the church was crowded to capacity to hear a program of songs by Mrs. Helen Edleffson Barr and readings by Miss Winifred Bent. Following this, a comedy, "Fun at Five Point School" was presented by a cast composed of members of the group and their friends. Mrs. Barr sang in her usual charming manner and delighted the large audience with her presentation of the following program:
The Prelude from "The Cycle of Life"
"You'll Get Lots of Lickins"
"The Song of India"
"Only A Rose"

Miss Bent was most pleasing in the manner in which she presented her selections, the first of which was "The Stranger Within the Gates." For her second number she gave a group of short selections, these were also most enthusiastically received.

The play depicted an old fashioned country school with pupils ranging in ages from 5 to 16 years and a spinster teacher in love with the school committeeman, who had no desire to enter matrimony but who was finally captured by "teacher."

During the development of the plot the pupils went through the usual routine familiar to those who have received their earlier education at the red school houses recently made famous by Henry Ford. The action opened with singing by the entire school followed by class recitations all of which were filled with laugh provoking incidents.

The committee in charge of the affair, Mrs. Oscar Billings and Mrs. Vincent Clarke were untiring in their efforts and great credit is due the coach, Mrs. Oscar Billings.

The cast follows:
Miss Angelina Murray—The Teacher,
Mrs. Vincent Clarke
Keturah Perkins, Keziah Perkins—The Twins,
Mrs. B. F. Miner and Mrs. J. Walter Moran
Mehitable Allen Mrs. H. W. Hook
Jane Johnson Mrs. George Kuyper

Despite the very poor walking a well attended meeting was held on last Monday evening. A nominating committee was appointed to bring in names at the next regular meeting. Action was taken on a substantial donation to the Home of the Little Sisters of the Poor in Somerville. All sisters should bear in mind that election of officers will take place at our next meeting which will be held in K. of C. Hall Thursday evening, March 11.

JUNIOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION

The Junior Christian Endeavors of Sagamore Union held a splendid convention Monday afternoon, Feb. 22 at the Woburn First Congregational Church. There were 96 present.

The Song Service was very inspiring and was in charge of Mr. Edmund Stockwell of West Medford. The Devotional Service was on the "Parable of the Sower" and was in charge of the Rev. John S. Franklin, Pastoral Counselor for the Christian Endeavor Union.

Special music was furnished by the Woburn First Baptist Juniors. The speaker was Mrs. Chester Cotton of Newtonville, and she told many interesting stories.

Roll Call showed that eight societies were represented. The eight best essays turned in for the essay contest were read by the Juniors who wrote them. The essays were on "What Junior Christian Endeavor has taught me."

The judges were Mrs. Cotton, Mr. Franklin, Mr. Stockwell and Mr. Trull. They awarded first prize to Dean Duncan, Winchester Second Congregational Church; second prize, Elizabeth Duncan, Winchester Second Congregational Church; third prize, Marjorie Kendrick, Winchester Second Congregational Church; 4th prize, Marion Thurnquist, West Medford Baptist Church.

A Song and Cheer period followed led by Miss Althea Fogg of Winchester. Many new Junior songs and cheers were introduced and judging by the sound everyone thoroughly enjoyed this part of the program.

Then the convention divided into three conferences on Junior Christian Endeavor work.

A prayer meeting conference led by Mr. Nathaniel Trull, President of Lowell Christian Endeavor Union. A "Sunshine Conference" led by Miss C. Beatrix Wienhold of West Medford.

A "Junior Superintendents' Conference" led by Miss Althea Fogg of Winchester, the Junior Superintendents for Sagamore Christian Endeavor Union.

The Union Shield which is awarded for attendance and mileage was given to the Winchester Second Congregational Juniors at 114.8 per cent.

The Convention closed with a song and the Benediction.

Winchester surely ought to be proud of the Juniors at the Second Congregational Church.

The two prizes for the best posters advertising the convention were also awarded to Winchester. The first prize going to Marjorie Kendrick and the second to Harry Saunders.

ST. MARY'S TO MEET SACRED HEARTS OF LOWELL

Winchester basketball fans should witness a real thriller next Thursday evening when the St. Mary's C. C. quintet will oppose the strong Sacred Hearts team of Lowell in the High School gymnasium.

The local five surely is picking no soft assignment when it takes on the Lowell Club as the latter outfit has been playing very consistent basketball all season and has been on the losing end of very few of its engagements. St. Mary's has not won all its starts, but has done well to date in view of the teams it has met. When at its full strength it musters a team which is no set-up for any amateur five in this district, and the Sacred Hearts will have to travel in high all the way to register a win next Thursday.

It is expected that there will be an added attraction in addition to the main game with the opener called at 8 o'clock.

MRS. CHARLES F. DUTCH DEEP- LY MISSED

It is difficult to realize at once the loss to a community when a good woman is taken from it. Mrs. Dutch possessed qualities rarely combined in one person; qualities not alone valued by those who knew her best but of signal worth to the community. While her greatest interest was in her family she gave much of her time and strength to matters of public interest especially to do with education to which she brought a broad experience and sympathetic mind. To those who knew her she radiated friendship and understanding and to the many who sought her companionship she gave rare uplift. Her quiet contribution to the common good will be greatly missed.

UNITARIAN MEN HAVE LOCAL SPEAKER

Tonight's meeting and supper of the Unitarian Men's Club promises to be one of the most interesting of the season. The speaker is to be Mr. Thomas Dreier of this town, well known as an advertising man, publisher and speaker. His subject is just such a one as might be expected from a man who apparently gets plenty of fun out of his job. He is to speak on "A Belief in Fairies as an Asset in Business," and those who have listened to his recent radio talks are anticipating a rare treat. Supper will be served promptly at 6:45 and it is expected that a large turnout will be present.

LADIES WIN AT BOWLING

There was a big attendance at the afternoon bowling part for the ladies at the Calumet Club on Wednesday, all six alleys being occupied during the afternoon. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Chester F. Wolfe and Mrs. Arthur W. Pitman, and prizes were awarded as follows:
High single flat—Mrs. Fred W. Aseltine, 94.
High single with handicap—Mrs. Thomas A. Barnard, 100.
High two strings flat—Mrs. Arthur W. Pitman, 170.
High two strings with handicap—Mrs. John Hart Taylor, 182.
Consolation—Mrs. Percy Bugbee.
During the afternoon tea was served, the ladies on the committee being assisted informally by a group of the club ladies.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE DANCE

Whether the current frenzy called the Charleston is destined to be a permanent addition to the art of dancing, or whether it shuffles out of the spotlight of popular fancy after the turkey trot, the bunny hug, the camel walk, the shimmy, and other high-pressure steps of the past, discussion of it has revived interest in characteristic national and folk dances in many parts of the world, says bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

America has no generally recognized national dance, the bulletin continues. There is the moribund Virginia Reel, at present the subject of earnest efforts at resuscitation by old-time dance revivalists. In many of the more remote rural sections of the country the Virginia Reel flourishes, more or less, despite the growing scarcity of capable figure callers, but the younger generation of most of the country today knows little about it.

The Dances of the Nations
In the case of some steps it is necessary only to name the dance, and its birthplace flashes to mind, so thoroughly have the country and the name of its most characteristic dance become linked. The jig—Ireland; the hula-hula—Hawaii; the tango—Argentina; the polka—Bohemia (now Czechoslovakia); the nauch, India; the minuet, Old France. These are only a few samples of dances which automatically furnish their own places and date lines.

Egypt's Star Dances
The most ancient dances are believed to be astronomical dances of the early Egyptians. The object of these dances was to inspire a feeling of harmony among the planets, and to so influence them that their effect on life might not be harmful. The Greeks took the star dances from the Egyptians and found a place for them as the chorus, or background, of their tragedies. The Romans, as in other arts, produced few original dances, but they developed their heritage from the Egyptians and Greeks.

In the more primitive civilizations dancing and religion were almost synonymous. As for the lower strata of humanity: A savage does not preach his religion, he dances it. Livingstone wrote from Africa. For all solemn occasions there are dances—primitive peoples there are dances—for weddings, for funerals, for seed-time and for harvest, for war and for peace. Where today we find people praying in church for rain, or for the restoration of friends to health, ancient men danced for these things.

Derivishes Whirl No More
One of the liveliest of the world's dances is the tarantella, the diversion of Naples. It is executed with tambourines and was formerly supposed to cure the bite of the tarantula, a large venomous spider. Another version of the origin of the dance says that it is based on the theme of la morra, a game consisting in guessing at the number of fingers suddenly held out by an opponent. Until recently visitors to Asia Minor were delighted and mystified with the gyrations of the famous Turkish whirling derivishes. Originally of religious significance, the art of the derivishes had degenerated so that not long ago the new Turkish Republic prohibited the dance.

Perhaps the only original contribution that England has made in the last four centuries is the sailor's hornpipe. The neighboring island of Ireland, however, boasts of the jig, the reel, and the horn-pipe clog-and-shuffle dances. Britain's colonies offer colorful and diverting steps, most of them symbolic or religious, such as the devil dance of Ceylon.

Earliest Turkey Trot
Environment and the imitative impulse doubtless have played large parts in molding many of the more picturesque and exotic steps of savage peoples. Of great interest to the student of animal life are such mi-

Japan's Gentle Way

In Japan, when a police officer takes a man into custody, he ties a bit of string around the arrested man's wrist and then leads him by the loose end of the frail tether to the police station. So strong is the Japanese respect for the law that the piece of string holds the prisoner as securely as though he were manacled by steel.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

A swelled head never becomes chronic until a man has climbed as high as he is going.

A faint heart never won a fair lady, but otherwise it has no particular advantage.

It takes three generations to make a gentleman, and just about that many drunks to spoil the effect.

It is better to try hard at something and fail, than to beautifully succeed at doing nothing.

The optimist makes his own heaven and enjoys it as he goes, a pessimist makes his own hell and suffers as he goes.

THE BUBBLE BURSTS

The Star publishes in this issue an interesting letter from Mr. Raymond F. Fenton, president of the North End Improvement Association. The primary subject matter of the communication is a denial of the report which has been freely circulated about town of a "split" in its membership, but the interesting portion to the voters at large is the denial that this Association is a "political unit" in the Town of Winchester.

We quote from Mr. Fenton's letter: "The above statements are issued at his time in order that the writer, as president of the North End Improvement Association, may uphold the purpose for which this association was organized and defend any illusions which may be current about its having become a political unit in the Town of Winchester, for that, most emphatically, is not one of the branches of public interest in which it wishes to become associated."

This is indeed an interesting disclosure, for since its inception up to the present time, the Star, in common with others, had supposed the organization to be a political unit solely and wholly. That it is not, comes as a surprise, for not only have we had it held up as the one important factor to be reckoned with in every town since its formation.

We have been led to believe that in one candidate for political office, he advocated his cause before its members in regular meeting assembled.

President Fenton is wise in his assertion of correction. It will undoubtedly do much to clear the air in future elections. It is to be regretted that the aims and standing of the organization were not made clear at an earlier date, but as the old saying has it, "better late than never." From now on our political candidates may pursue their way and collect their votes without further discussion of the bubblebar so constantly dragged across the horizon of their political aspirations.

In view of President Fenton's statement, any talk of a "split" in its ranks is of course absurd, and this may be regarded with no more attention than the absurd belief of its standing as a "political unit."

ALL CHILDREN IMITATORS

Children are natural imitators. The child likes to do what his mother and father does. His habits are usually a rejection of the grown-ups' habits. Mothers and fathers can be a big inspiration to children because of this strong tendency to imitation. The child who sees his mother draw or play a violin and his father play tennis or build a boat model will have a desire to do these things. It is small wonder, then, that parents who fuss about their food have a fussy child; parents who quarrel and show anger have a sulky, tempery child; parents who are happy have a happy child.

That Kind of a Mind

Mark Twain hated to have his work edited. On one occasion he sat down to write to a man who had criticized his work. He was first inclined to think, "The idea! This long-earred animal, literary kangaroo, this illiterate booby, with his skull full of axle grease, etc., but restrained himself and pointed out to the man his errors "in gentleness and in the unworldly language of persuasion." "It is discouraging to try to penetrate a mind like yours," he finally wrote. "You ought to get it out and dance on it. That would take some of the rigidity out of it. And you ought to use it sometimes. That would help. If you had done this every now and then through life, it wouldn't have petrified."—Paraphrased.

Remarkable Growth

In 1820 the real estate on Fifth Avenue, New York, from the Washington arch to Thirteenth street, was valued at the small sum of $14,000. In 1924 this same land was estimated at $8,128,000.

THOMPSON'S BLOCK, OLD POSTOFFICE AND STORES

The building at the left, formerly the old postoffice, is now undergoing extensive remodeling. A new front is being built, and the second story is being partitioned off into two apartments. The stores at the right are occupied by the Fells Market, and formerly housed the Middlesex County National Bank, now the Winchester Trust Company.

for the financing of the proposition action was postponed for one week. The Finance Committee has recommended that $11,562.33 of the $89,800 requested for 1926 shall be raised by revenue but the final disposition of the matter will not be made until the next meeting as the matter of the revenue accruing to the Town from the sale of the school buildings and lots is entering more or less into the affair. $5000, however, was appropriated to cover "house connections, and other work incidental to extending the water and sewer system."

The increase in the appropriation for snow and ice, raising the amount from $14,000 to $35,000, came in for no opposition when it was announced that the addition would include money for the purchase of a caterpillar tractor to be used in clearing the streets of snow. Recent unpleasant experiences were too fresh in everyone's minds to work up much objection to anything which may better conditions.

Under the proposition of street lights the old question of all night lighting again came up for consideration, a motion to raise the appropriation from $15,000 to $18,400 to include this feature being introduced by Mr. Vinson. There was as in the past considerable debate upon the advisability of such procedure with special reference to all night lighting as a deterrent to crime. Mr. Cotten, Mrs. Woodside and Mr. Richmond headed the party in favor of the nocturnal illumination with Mr. Larned and Mr. Green of the Finance Committee opposing. The motion asking for the increased appropriation was finally passed, 206 to 153.

Following the acceptance of the appropriation for the Town Clerk's department it was moved and seconded to take up Article 33 providing for Town building lines on Water street. Mr. Ramsdell wanted action upon the matter postponed as there were amendments to the layout as proposed by the Town which he felt should be made. Mr. Foley also favored a postponement, but Mr. Pike pointed out that no amendment could be made to the layout as provided by the Town and after some debate the matter was put to vote, resulting in a tie. The deciding vote to take up the article was cast by Miss Stinson, the Town Clerk, and the article providing for the Town layout was accepted by an aye and nay vote.

At the request of the Finance Committee Article 36 was next considered. This was inserted to provide for an additional appropriation to the $145,000 raised last year for the new Highlands' district school. A motion was made calling for an additional appropriation of $17,000, and after remarks by Mr. Main in favor of the proposition, was passed without incident.

This concluded the debate for the evening as the appropriation of $52,885.44 for the payment of the Town debt was quickly passed. The meeting was then adjourned until next Monday evening at 7:45 in the Town Hall.

THE THAMES: A LITTLE RIVER OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

The Thames, one of the best known streams in the world, went on a ramble recently and gave the residents of the usually peaceful valley sights familiar to those who live along such old hands at flooding as the Mississippi, the Seine and the Yellow River of China. Chicken coops and dog kennels, garden furniture and even bungalows swirled along where England's holiday crowds normally play on a gentle little river.

What the Thames is like ordinarily is told in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The Thames seldom has very destructive floods, says the bulletin. It has no mountains in its basin, only gentle hills and the run-off is usually slow. It is rather a small river as rivers go, only 161 miles long with a drainage basin of about 5000 square miles. The Danube is ten times, the Mississippi 15 times and the Rhine more than four times as long. Beside the million and a quarter square miles drained by the Mississippi, or even the 75,000 square miles drained by the Rhine, the Thames basin seems almost insignificant.

Grows Quickly
The birthplace of the Thames is only about 20 miles short of the sea on the western side of England, northeast of Bristol and Bath. A small spring formerly gushed up at what is known as Thames Head and trickled in a lazy little rill down a meadow. The outflow of this head spring is now piped away to furnish water for the Thames and Severn Canal. But springs abound in this region, and about half a mile down the meadow the infant Thames is to be seen in the shape of a little rill fully two feet wide. Another half mile, and the Thames is a really respectable brook. Soon its first mill appears, one of the many that dot its banks. By the time Oxford it reached thanks to many little affluents, the stream is 150 feet wide, well deserving the name, river.

The Thames flows through a country rich in historic associations and beautiful rural scenery. The oldest bridge across the stream, 15 miles above Oxford, was built in the 13th century by monks of a near-by abbey. Paradoxically, it is named Newbridge. Already some four centuries old, this structure was the scene of a skirmish in 1644 between Cromwell's forces and those of the Royalists. Not far below Newbridge is the only surviving rope-ferry on the Thames.

Oxford On Banks of Thames

At Oxford, still about 60 miles above London, one comes upon a little town known throughout the world, because of the men of note who have come from there to shape the destinies of Great Britain. This has been England's great university town since the 12th century. Traditions are cherished in Oxford, and equally so is architecture. Oxford's old but carefully preserved buildings give it a marked flavor of medievalism. The waters of the Thames, nearly doubled in size at Oxford by the inflow of the Cherwell, have long been the scene of inter-collegiate rowing contests.

The Thames has a series of a score and a half of locks, and though a rather small stream, except near London, carries a considerable traffic on barges. By use of the Thames and Severn Canal it is possible for barges to go through to the west coast of England.

Flows Through English Playground

From Oxford to London, and especially between Reading and Windsor, the Thames flows through some of the most beautiful country in England. This is to London what Long Island and Westchester are to New York. Mansions, palaces, country estates, parks, colleges and quaint little towns are strung along for mile after mile; while the river itself, here about 200 feet wide, adds, with its numerous bends and lazy flow, a beauty and dignity of its own. At Windsor, 25 miles above London, is the show palace of British royalty; and almost in sight of it down stream is the modest little meadow—Runnymede—where the limited status of the British monarchy was fixed for all time when the Barons forced King John to sign Magna Carta.

At 10 or 15 miles above London the Thames begins to be colored by the great city. Factories have crept into the little towns along the stream; the delightful rural spell which has held sway all along is broken. Tidewater comes to Teddington, 18 miles above London Bridge, but the stream does not take on the appearance of an estuary until the muddy banks are reached at the upper edge of London.

Lower Thames Bustles With Commerce

Old London Bridge, because of its narrow arches and wide piers, was almost a dam. It retarded the flow of the tide and made the river at London in old days a dirty eye-sore. The present London Bridge and the dozen or more others do not obstruct the flow badly and the river is much cleaner. The appearance of the Thames in the city, too, has been greatly improved in recent decades by the building of extensive quays which have replaced the mud banks that were exposed when the tide was low.

The estuary character of the Thames is apparent: at London Bridge where the stream is 750 feet wide. Its grows rapidly wider below London and at Sheerness, 30 miles down, generally taken as the mouth, it is six miles wide. From London to its mouth the Thames is one of the world's greatest shipping centers. Quays line the shores and into both banks great basins and docks have been carved, where ships are crisscrossed and unloaded. There is hardly a flag flown that cannot be seen at the masthead of some ship in a casual trip along the lower Thames.

MADRID: HUB OF MODERN SPAIN

A bloodless revolution in Spain! Madrid has just witnessed the passing of the military dictatorship of the last two years, its replacement by the civilian government and all with the calmness and dispatch of an American business concern recovering from a receivership.

Madrid is, however, a thoroughly modern city, with very little of the traditional flavor of old Spain and with nearly all the luxuries and conveniences of other European and American capitals, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. With a background of fine buildings, wide streets, theaters, educational and scientific institutions, and with automobile roads and railways reaching to every part of the kingdom, it is easier to understand why Madrid should today follow a moderate course in governmental procedure.

Subways and Boulevards

Visitors who go by the fast direct trains from Paris to Madrid, and expect to see the colorful costumes and striking architecture one usually associates with the life of the country, are disappointed in Spain's capital city. Madrid's streets swarm with motor trucks and pleasure cars. Underground are two systems of speedy subways, connecting the railroad stations and the principal suburbs of the city. Its boulevards resemble those of Paris and Berlin, with their bordering trees and imposing hotels, public buildings, shops and monuments.

In place of the poncho and sombrero the visitor will find the tailored suit and straw hat of a hustling business man of the New York stamp. The latest Paris creations make it difficult to distinguish the Spanish senora and senorita from their Latin sisters in Paris, Rome, Havana and Buenos Aires. The languorous strumming of the guitar and the click of the castanets, if they could be found off the stage in Madrid, would today be drowned by the incessant whank, whank of its importunate taxis.

Madrid is the youngest of the great cities of Spain. It owes its present importance to political creation. Until the middle of the 16th century it was an obscure little village of sun-baked adobe houses, clustering around the former Moorish outpost called Madrit. Philip II, seeking at this time a capital for his newly united Spain, rejected one by one the Aragonese city of Saragossa, the Castilian Burgos, the Visigothic Toledo and the Moorish Cordova and Seville. Madrit was in the almost exact geographic center of the kingdom, it had no sectional ties, so Philip declared it the Unica Corte, or Royal Residence, Castilianizing its name to Madrid.

Early Growth Slow

With hardly any of the natural advantages that contribute to rapid growth, Madrid's early days as a capital were as troublous and uncertain as those of our own national Capital. Excepting its central location Madrid was denied by nature of almost every suitable condition for a metropolis. It perches on an elevated steppe in the midst of a vast rolling plateau, bleak and treeless, about a half mile above sea level. Two hundred feet below it winds the insignificant river Manzanares, while the surrounding districts are unproductive, except for small quantities of corn.

Another element to be reckoned with in Madrid is the climate. Sudden changes of weather often bring great extremes of temperature within a short time. In summer the heat is almost unbearable. People keep in the shade (bullfight tickets cost twice as much on the shady side of the ring), for the sun's rays hit the skin like little red-hot needles. The air is then so keen and subtle that, according to a popular couplet, it will kill a man, while it will not blow out a candle.

The city grew slowly but steadily, stimulated by royal encouragement and subsidy, and gradually began to take a significant part in the life of Spain outside the realm of governmental activities. Madrid's real prosperity and national importance, however, dates from the construction of Spain's railroad systems. It is now the greatest railroad center in the country, and would probably figure as a greater international crossroad if the Spanish lines had the same gauges as those of the rest of Eur-

Spain's Largest City

Wealth, industries, and population have come in the wake of the railroads. Madrid, with more than 800,000 residents, is the largest city in Spain. Fine parks have been laid out over barren hills, wide tree-lined streets have pushed into the suburbs to take care of additional homes and buildings. They have done a great deal to take away the impression of barrenness. Some say they have even mitigated the heat of summer.

From the Puerta del Sol, the Broadway and 42nd Street of Madrid, ten streets radiate, carrying a network of surface and subway lines to every part of the city. Less than half a

BASKETBALL NEWS

It was rumored in sporting circles last night that Winchester's high school basketball team was still in the hunt for the Middlesex League title.

The report was current that some of Readings' players were ineligible to compete this season which fact, if true, would have thrown all the games won by that team into the discard.

A statement given out at the high school this morning proved the rumor without foundation.

The local authorities had been in communication with Reading and found their team in good standing.

This gives Winchester out an outside chance to tie for the championship.

Winchester started its baseball work this week Wednesday when the high school battery men reported for indoor pre-liminary practice.

Marvelous Memories

Some years ago a well-known pianist gave an exhibition of his marvelous powers of memory by playing without a pause 400 pieces of music without a page of notes before him, and another eclipsed even this feat by similarly playing 1,500 separate compositions during a continuous sitting of 40 hours.

As an enemy of the little auk, however, he seems to be best prepared. The glaucous gull arrives at Etah a week or so ahead of the little auk army and makes his home on some inaccessible point of rock high above the little auk niche nests. Although he hesitates to attack them when they are in numbers, he can catch an individual bird in midair, swallow it whole, digest its meat in his lower throat and disgorge the head, feet, and feathers and wings.

On a ridge to the north of Brother Glacier parent birds of several families of glaucous gulls inhabit the top of a rock pinnacle, which juts up in a wild gorge close to a thin water fall. As the visitor approaches the birds set up a hue and cry, scolding in a way that no true-spirited burgomaster would do.

The adult bird is an admirable aviator and when the Navy planes scared the thousands of little auks into the air and made them restless for hours on end, the burgomaster gulls watched the whole proceedings with a supercilious stare, contemptuous both of the doves and of the slow take-off and heaviness in flight of the mechanical birds.

The glaucous gull can make headway into the wind without seeming to move a muscle, stop dead as though equipped with four-wheel brakes, and bank a turn with the best acrobats of the air. While the more common tern bounces a with each wing stroke the glaucous gull of the Arctic has steady and grace that is unexcelled.

The young gull is a prize boob. He squawks like an ill-mannered child, gabbles about him with an air of buccolic wonder and seems to be afflicted with vertigo whenever he looks off the lofty pinnacle which his parents have chosen as his jumping off place in life. When full feathered and ready for flight, even the young gulls are so stupid and slow that repeatedly we have photographed them at arm's length.

JEFF DAVIS

Our Honored President of the Southern Confederacy

A paper recently given by Mrs. Ellen Douglas Bradford Fariss, daughter of 1812 and honorary vice president of the United Daughters of the Confederacy of Dallas, Tex., before the U. D. C. The paper is so beautifully done, the thought so consistent and remarkable for one of her years that it seems quite worthwhile in sending it forth to the general public.

Mrs. Fariss is 87 years old and still remains active in the life of the present generation. Her brain is tireless. She writes and edits delightful little talks on modern women and does it all with a keen sense of humor and perfect fairness.

She is the mother of Mary Grey Robinson and H. H. Fariss. Mrs. Robinson being a writer of verse and child lore and Mr. Fariss an eminent poet. Mrs. Fariss is also the grandmother of Mrs. Robert F. Guild of Winchester and it is through her that the following paper is published.

While scanning the life of the first and only president of the Confederacy, we have been more than usually impressed with the charm and dignity of his mind and manners from childhood, early boyhood and young manhood. He became a pupil of the University of Transylvania and several others of the highest grade.

Young Davis was considered by the faculty and by his fellow students, as the first scholar, head of all his classes, bravest and handsomest of all the college boys. How far away seemed the golden days of his Southern childhood.

He had a peculiarly sweet voice and a very winning manner. Nothing daunted or broke the silver threads of his argument. Such was the polish of his great mind, that it seemed the flash of the keen Damascus blade, that laid bare any false sophistry or clashing of wit. He was a great man, a good man, a kindly one in person, mind and heart, always leading his party to brilliant victory.

During the war (Mexican) an officer who slept by the side of the then Col. Davis, told his comrades that he never awoke at night that he did not find him reading when he was off duty.

He had the innate refinement that distinguished him through life. He was a gentleman in the highest sense of the word. True statesmanship is the art of changing a nation from what it is to what it ought to be. The figures in the first century of the American Republic will ever be Washington, Lee and Davis.

If there was one man in this country who has attracted public notice more than another during the past decade it has been the gifted statesman, brave soldier and beloved citizen, Jefferson Davis.

"Out of his eyes a soul looked forth, unafraid, upon God's world." He was a Senator, a model of courtesy, the ideas emanating from his brain were as much his own as the honey dripping like nectar from the ambrosial leaf. His nature and mind seemed to be a heavenly lyre capable of sounding every note in the gamut of joy and sympathy. His appearance was prepossessing and dignified. His figure was tall, thin and slightly bent, but marked by an air of high breeding, flowing from refinement of character.

It has been said of him: "If Webster is the Michael Angelo of American oratory, Jeff Davis is the Raphael."

He was chiefly recognized as a brilliant orator. He delighted in making the friends of his children his own friends. He was a great lover of nature in her simplest forms and thrilled to hear the rustling of leaves, the tap of the woodpecker, the dropping of nuts and the whirr of the partridge. "Like blessed isles of rest in the sea of time." He breathed a hundred brews, his own remained uncrowned save with the love of his country, and the admiration of the world. When men predicted disaster he would smile as tho' his listening ear caught the strains of "Music in every bell that tolls."

Mr. Davis in his balmy days was invited to speak in the celebrated Faneuil Hall in Boston. He did so and was glad of the opportunity to plead with the men of Massachusetts in behalf of Southern rights.

Senator Caleb Cushing welcomed Mr. Davis saying: "Sir, we welcome you to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. You may not find here the ardent skies of your own sunny South, but you will find as ardent hearts, as warm, generous hands to welcome you. We will appreciate a statesman eminent among the most eminent of the Southern States, whose eloquence has thrilled the hearts of his hearers as if a pointed sword had passed through while addressing the people of Boston."

We know how well Mr. Davis guided the ship of state in the dark days of the Civil conflict, and how through the malice of enemies, he was manacled with the chains of fate.

His beautiful home "Beauvoir" became known far and wide for its hospitality; people of all sorts were entertained there.

But the sky was fast growing dark with danger. The storm was now gathering heavy overhead, the first angry peals of thunder were shaking the land. It was the beginning of the end.

As hope died out of our brave Spartans, the President's courage rose, altho' the gloom had grown almost impenetrable. He ruled millions, and was put in chains; he created a nation and followed its bier, and died—a disfranchised citizen.

He conquered himself and forgave his enemies, but he bent to none but God.

He frequently said: "There is an unseen hand that guides me." His prison life became almost beyond human endurance.

The story of the cruelties and indignities to which he was subjected, is too well known to need repetition. Especially the consciousness of being forever watched.

"The most beautiful belief of religion is the knowledge that the Omniscient Eye watches us in every situation, so lovingly, and so constantly. But to have a human eye forever riveted upon you, waking or sleeping, is the most refined torture ever dreamed of. The human eye, forever fixed upon you, is the eye of the spy gloat in the pain and humiliation it creates." These were the exact words wrung from Mr. Davis' tortured brain. He was now in a very critical condition, both of mind and body. The Psalms were his favorite portions of the Bible. They had always been so, giving him much solace and comfort in his darkest hours.

He seemed nearing the end, when friends had him removed from prison to better and healthier apartments, where he rapidly improved. Several journeys to well known places seemed to renew his strength greatly. The people of grand old Alabama invited Mr. Davis, the next year, to visit them. He did so—all classes came to do him honor. His daughter Winnie, accompanied him. Governor Gordon presented Winnie to an enthusiastic crowd as the "Daughter of the Confederacy." She was adopted, then by the rank and file of our veterans, and she valued this honor more than anything else in the world. Mr. Davis was deeply touched, but the strong heart that had not quailed under danger or imprisonment, sank beneath his people's love, as he was stricken with heart failure when returning home from a pleasant trip. He was awakened near dawn by a severe congestive chill, the beginning of the end, which came in three hours.

Floral offerings were sent from all parts of the country. The Governors of nine states came to bear him to his eternal rest. The Washington Artillery, now grey-haired men, were the guard of honor at his bier. Many thousands passed weeping by his last earthly couch, where he lay in state in his suit of Confederate grey, guarded by the men who had fought for the cause he loved. The strains of "Rock of Ages" bore up a great soul in its flight to Him who sustained; bore up a great spirit and took it again to Himself. A great soul had passed away. One more glorious form had flown to happier heights and found the anthem of—"Farewell to Earth! All Hail to Blessed Beulah Land!"

Adam's Suit?

Little Roger, spending a holiday on his grandfather's farm, was permitted to beguile the hours of a wet day by turning over the leaves of the family Bible.

Suddenly he looked up from the faded pages and quaint pictures, and called out:

"See what I've found, granma!" In his hand he held a leaf, old and dry, and after a few moment's reflection, he added:

"Do you think it belonged to Adam and Eve, granma?"

Giant Ocean Fish

Well out of sight, but probably in the twilight zone, where food is most abundant and conditions are practically the same in all the oceans except the extreme north and south, live giant squids and cuttles of several kinds, the largest reaching a total length of at least 55 feet, with the body 20 feet long and 12 feet in circumference, and the eye opening 7 by 9 inches.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

FIFTY YEARS ON EXHIBITION

At the Centennial Exhibit, fifty years ago, your grandmother, in shawl and bonnet, crowded up to the booth of one of the baking powder companies to get a glimpse of the new stoves in which cakes were being baked. These stoves required no coal or wood—the fuel came in through a pipe. There were no ashes to remove and no soot or black to smudge a clean apron. Grandmother was interested in the cakes, of course—she was somewhat of a cake baker herself—but the gas cooking stoves were the real source of her wonderment. Would they ever be practical? Would women really be able to have them in their home kitchens?

Now, fifty years later, gas ranges appear at another exhibition. The National Apple Show was on in Spokane, Washington. The apple growers wanted to demonstrate new apple dishes, so they put a battery of gas ranges along the way, with a young woman in charge of each range. The apple dishes were prepared and served over a counter as samples.

Nobody paid much attention to the gas ranges. They were such a commonplace at

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

Has the average voter of this day and generation seen a harpsichord? A Winchester lady with pride proudly told how she had seen one in an old farm house in Middlesex County. She will not, however, vouch that it is in good condition now, for it is years since she beheld it. Would some Winchesterites recognize one if they looked upon it? The Spectator had vaguely supposed that harpsichords vanished with the 18th century, but this was an absurd delusion. The mere fact that an object becomes rare leads some individuals to cherish their heirlooms. If there is one house somebody who is hurt, or being the first resident of a community to introduce a radio outfit, there may be in the dwelling across the way one whose father was the last man in his country to discontinue the use of flint and steel. She who saw the harpsichord remembers living in an old fashioned house, fairly comfortable, but where candles were the only illumination. It is sometimes hastily said that old-fashioned arrangements were inconvenient, that is as compared with later devices. This is, in some cases, true, and in others the reverse. In the Andes there are small villages that may not 50 years hence be any larger than they are now. A railroad would not pay—the inhabitants are too poor to buy motors, and in craggy places the motors would not be available—the sure footed burro meets the requirements of the little freight traffic as well now as in the by-gone years.

It never pays to hastily pronounce old stories wholly fabulous. There have been printed essays which hold it absolutely absurd to suppose that Orpheus charmed animals by music. But a young woman here in Winchester who spent last summer up in Vermont saw a young man walking down a lane playing a mouth organ while four cows followed him. Possibly some persons if they had never seen a dog come to a whistle would believe such an incident was imaginary. There may be as much foolish incredulity as there is stupid credulity.

Recently a man of the Spectator's own age told us that he could not trust his memory for names and dates, but that it had rarely failed him as to places or faces. It would make a long chronicle were one to put down what different Winchesterites say about their memories, and to bring out the fact that nearly everyone has a power of holding something in a mental grasp. For centuries the human mind has tried to explain this varied faculty—now so powerful, now so weak, and the explanations amount to very little. A business man told the Spectator that many of the complaints of poor memory were in his judgment due to the non-use of it. An actor's memory hardly decays until his faculties decay, because he has to learn one part after another. But the merchant spoke of himself as an example—he was to meet somebody on Monday morning, a buyer would call on Monday at 1:30, he was to place a contract at 3 p. m., a long list of appointments had to receive attention, and he put them all down on paper. During 20 years he had never trusted his memory as to the time to go anywhere, the time to receive a caller, the time to send in or to pay a bill. All that was down in black and white, hence he did not wonder that he had no special power of recollecting such matters.

A Winchesterite who went to sea when a small boy spoke of what might be called the training in the school of necessity. The average child is sent on errands, suppose seven articles are to be purchased at a grocery, and one is forgotten—it may not be of importance enough to warrant a second journey—it goes over until the morning. But at sea failure to look out for a cloud or a change in the wind may mean shipwreck and the loss of all on board. He said that no landsman, unless it be one in some specially hazardous occupation, develops the memory of a sailor. The alternatives, life and death, are always before him. If necessity is the mother of invention, she is also the trainer of memory.

Strength of Wood

Wood is one of the strongest substances in the world, but its strength lies in one direction only. A thin strip of wood cut with the grain will withstand about three times as heavy a pull as steel wire of equal weight.

BOSTON, ONLY N. E. CITY TO SEE "THE BIG PARADE" THIS SEASON

Those who are impatient to view "The Big Parade," the most talked-about screen production in recent years, must do so at the Majestic Theatre, Boston. According to an announcement recently made by the management for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the owners of this huge success, the King Vidor film will not be shown in any other New England city before September, 1926, and possibly not before a much later date.

Realizing that tens of thousands of out-of-town patrons will wish to view "The Big Parade" when they come to Boston, the management of the Majestic Theatre has inaugurated a special mail order department to care for visitors. So large is the demand for tickets—particularly for the performances at the end of the week—that it is advisable to secure seats ahead of time.

Those living outside Boston can do so by sending check or money order, to the Manager, Majestic Theatre, covering the cost of tickets. The night prices are 50c, 75c, $1, $1.50 and $2; Saturday matinee prices run from 50c to $1.50; while the Monday to Friday matinees are 50c to $1. Ten per cent should be added to the above prices to cover the government amusement tax. Every seat in the theatre is reserved. There are but two performances daily, at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m. No performances are given on Sunday.

Those who view "The Big Parade" while it is at the Majestic Theatre, will see it exactly as presented at the Astor Theatre in New York, where it is now in its fourth month. A large symphony orchestra adds greatly to the presentation.

No motion picture since the days of "The Birth of a Nation" has received the measures of praise accorded this epic of the World War. In the current issue of the Literary Digest, practically four pages are devoted to praise of this King Vidor triumph.

It is the one picture that all should see, according to the film critics of the country. Mr. W. B. Wood of Highland avenue is reported as having been on the sick list this week.

After an inactive week-end the Winchester Fire Department answered a call in the midst of Tuesday's rain-storm at 10:35 in the forenoon to rescue a child who had become locked in the bathroom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Mauldin on the Parkway. Deputy Chief John Gorman with driver Harry Brown and fireman James Callahan responded in the department's Reo.

In response to a telephone call on Monday evening to the effect that a gang of boys were disturbing a meeting of the Boys Scouts being held at the Congregational Church officer John Noonan took a little run thither with the intention of pointing out to said gang the error of its way. He found that the boys in question had not awaited his coming.

Among the members of the cast of the operetta presented at Whittier School, Merrimac, on last Saturday evening was Miss Carolyn McKenzie of this town.

On last Sunday Chief of Police William R. McIntosh with Sgt. Cassidy and officers Donaghey and Farrell conducted a liquor raid at the residence of Vincenzo Grete on Harvard street where a quantity of alleged intoxicants was seized. Grete was summoned to court at Woburn Tuesday morning and was charged with keeping and exposing liquor upon his premises. He was found guilty by Judge Morton and fined $50.

The Ford coupe, owned by Miss Mary Leahy of 34 Grove street, which was reported stolen last week Thursday evening in Boston was discovered Sunday afternoon in Braintree opposite the Plain street Cemetery by patrolman John P. Shay of the local police. He investigated with patrolman Christopher Garland and found that the car had been stripped of all its tires. Later the same day five tires were discovered buried in the snow near where the machine had been found by Thomas O'Brien of South Braintree. They were taken to police headquarters and later her property was returned to Miss Leahy.

The Winchester Fire Department was called out at 8:40 Tuesday morning by an alarm from Box 31 for a fire at the residence of Mr. Adna Smalley at the corner of Park avenue and Washington street. The blaze started in the cellar and had advanced along the wall partition to the first floor before the arrival of the apparatus. Though considerably hampered by the heavy smoke the firemen succeeded in confining the flames to the cellar of the dwelling with the exception of one place where the fire ate through in a closet. It is not thought that the damage will prove extensive.

Just before 10:30 last Saturday night a motorist procured two gallons of gasoline in a can and a funnel at the Central Garage on Winchester place. He returned neither the can nor funnel and the police were notified of the theft.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The Winchester police had two family altercations to straighten out last Saturday evening. At 8 o'clock officer Archie O'Connell quelled a disturbance at a Swanton street dwelling and at 11:25 in response to a phone call officers Regan, Horrold and Hogan returned to the same locality and quelled another rumble.

Shortly after 9:30 on Monday morning a Mack truck, owned by Adaline Smith of 47 Harvard street and operated by Charles S. Smith of the same address, was in collision with a Ford touring car, owned and operated by Ralph A. Muse of 8 Emerson street, Wakefield, on Mt. Vernon street just east of the railroad crossing in the square. Both cars were going west on Mt. Vernon street at the time of the accident, and as might be expected the Ford got the worst of the meeting.

Miss E. S. Downs of Arlington street sailed last Saturday on the United Fruit Company's steamer "Pastores" for Havana and the tropics.

Miss Ruth Poland of Canal street has been appointed a teacher in the commercial department of the Stoneham High School. She starts upon her new duties Monday.

Mr. Kenneth McLeod of this town was a soloist at station WNAO last Saturday evening, giving much pleasure to a large number of friends who listened in.

Mr. James R. Livingston of Sanborn street notified the police on Saturday that a nine-year-old boy who had been visiting at his home was missing. A subsequent investigation disclosed the fact that the youngster had been given a dime and had boarded a car which took him to his out-of-town home.

Mr. Percival W. Bragdon of High street reported that two of his hens were killed by a dog on Tuesday.

Mr. Horace Ford of Kenwin road, better known as "Hod" Ford, the old Scrimville High and Tufts College baseball star and erstwhile infielder with the Red Sox, Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers, leaves town on Monday for San Antonio and the training camp of the Minneapolis Club of the American Association with which he is to play the coming season. During a fanning bee at the Star office yesterday he told the writer that he expects no recurrence of the leg trouble which so hampered his work last season. He is still under contract with the Brooklyn Club and smart baseball men expect to see him back in "big time" another year. His records show him one of the steadiest infielders in the National League circuit during the past two seasons.

Smithy on Wheels

In olden times the blacksmith's craft was not merely the rough work and shoeing of horses that it is today. Very fine work was done by the old smiths, who were expert at the making of iron gates, ornamental fences, fire-dogs, and so on.

In the hope of reviving this almost forgotten craft a rural development committee in Yorkshire is sending out a blacksmith's demonstration van to tour the villages.

The van is fitted with a lathe, grinding and drilling machinery, a portable forge, an oil engine, and welding plant. The village blacksmith will thus have a chance of seeing modern tools and methods at work.—London Answers.

ADJOURNED TOWN MEETING FAILS TO PRODUCE THRILLS

Mosquitoes To Be Done Away With—Revenue Appropriations Total
$766,627.43

Monday evening's adjourned session of the annual Town Meeting found 509 voters in attendance, a gain of 31 over the turnout on the previous Tuesday night. There was, as had been the case at the first meeting, a noticeable lack of excitement and the entire ballot was passed upon before adjournment.

To those who attended with a view of enjoying several sharp oratorical brushes on the various articles to be considered the session must have been somewhat of a disappointment. There had been much talk previous to the meeting that a spirited contest would be waged over Article 34 relating to the action brought by James Quigley against William H. Rogers, a sergeant on the local police force. But the contest failed to materialize as did the motion which rumor insisted would be made to bring up again the matter of all night street lighting passed at the first meeting.

The remaining items under Article 4 held over from last week and relating to appropriations for Town expenses were gotten out of the way immediately following the opening of the meeting, the various figures represented by the Finance Committee being accepted in each instance. An additional appropriation of $400 was voted for the expenses of the Finance Committee upon the motion of Mr. Carleton of that body.

The appropriation under the heading of Sewer Construction was also finally settled, the $11,562.33 recommended by the Finance Committee to be raised by revenue for this purpose being increased to $12,800, leaving $75,000 to be raised by bonds.

Under the item, Water Construction, Mr. Kendall of the Water and Sewer Board spoke at some length on the purity of the Town's water supply, the quantity available and the need for conservation, ending with an explanation of what is being done at the reservoirs in the matter of reforestation which is, by the way, his pet hobby.

With the taking up of Article 5 of committees, the committee appointed to look into the advisability of getting expert advice in the matter of revaluating Town property reported that after deliberation it felt that this matter was one which could safely be left to the discretion of the Board of Assessors.

A motion was introduced by Mr. Rich of the Library Committee providing for a committee of five to be appointed by the moderator to estimate the probable cost of acquiring the parcels of land on Washington street belonging to the Misses Joy and the Church of Christ, Scientist, as a site for the public library and to obtain estimates of the cost of a new library with power to report and make recommendations at a later Town Meeting. The motion was seconded and passed, the sum of $500 being appropriated for the use of said committee.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET

On Friday evening, March 19, the men and boys of the First Congregational Church and their friends will gather at a "Father and Son Banquet" at 6:15. Arrangements have been completed whereby the evening will be made successful and interesting. A chicken-pie supper will be prepared by the ladies of the church and served by the young women.

Mr. James J. Quinn, the superintendent of schools, will act as toastmaster for the evening introducing Mr. Douglas Horton of the Leyden Congregational Church in Brookline, who will speak on "Through Our Neighborhood With Gun and Camera." A son will respond to a toast to the sons, and a father will speak also. A reader will give interesting and humorous monologues.

Dr. Chidley will bring the greetings of the church to the group. Group singing of the popular community songs will be led by Dr. J. Churchill Hinds. Throughout the evening George Corey's orchestra will play.

It is hoped that all the fathers and sons of the church, and as many others as are interested, will take advantage of this evening which has been planned. Tickets are 75 cents at Parker & Lane's.

MOTORCYCLE OFFICER O'CONNEL CONFINED TO HOME

Motorcycle officer Edward O'Connell is confined to his home on Kirk street with a recurrence of the trouble he had with his foot following his accident of a year ago, when he was thrown from his machine on Cambridge street. Officer O'Connell's foot had been painful him for some little time, and an X-ray examination last Saturday disclosed that a spur of bone had worked loose in the heel and had become infected. It will be necessary for the patrolman to keep off his feet for some weeks before it will be possible to operate and remedy conditions. It may be six weeks before he will be able to return to duty.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. John Abbott of Arlington street have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Joan Abbott to Herman Fay Pike, son of Dr. and Mrs. Forrest Fay Pike of Melrose. Miss Abbott is a graduate of the Walnut Hill School and of Vassar College. Mr. Pike received his degree at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, preparing at Phillips Andover Academy.

Mr. George F. Arnold, the well known florist is reported as on the sick list at his home.

COMMERCIAL NIGHT

Fourth of a Series of Meetings Will be Held by the Winchester High School Parent-Teacher Association in High School Assembly Hall Tuesday, March 16, at 8 P. M.

An excellent opportunity will be given the citizens of Winchester on Tuesday next to see a practical demonstration of the work being carried on by the Commercial Department of our High School.

The meeting at which this demonstration will be given will be the fourth of a series of most interesting meetings held by the Winchester High School Parent-Teacher Association. It was the intention at first to hold this meeting at the new Lincoln School but as this has been found to be not feasible, the meeting will be held instead at the Winchester High School Assembly Hall and will start promptly at 8 p. m.

While these parent-teacher meetings have been well attended, more of our citizens should avail themselves of this opportunity to see and hear first hand about the work of our high school. The fine progressive and constructive work being accomplished by the high school pupils under the able guidance of Mr. Grindle, the principal and his teaching staff is worthy of a more active and a more real interest being shown not only by the parents of the boys and girls in the High School but also by all those who make Winchester their home. Come to this meeting.

Following is the tentative program to be given and exhibits of the work to be displayed:

1. A letter developed by aid of the multigraph—a letter developed by aid of the stencil. Process: A brief letter is to be dictated to two girls—some one in the audience to be chosen as dictator. One girl is to produce a printed letter, and the other girl is to produce a mimeographed letter. 10 minutes.

2. One or two letters to be read by Mr. Grindle. Three five-minute speeches given by graduates who have been placed by the Commercial Department. 15 minutes.

3. Speed test. A five-minute speed test, material not used before. Papers corrected and distributed among the audience. A short explanation as to why test is taken and the results— in charge of Miss Good. 20 minutes.

4. Shorthand. The first part will be devoted to the first lesson in shorthand, and in order to make this more effective, we are going to ask four or five persons from the audience to take up the lesson. The second half of this number to be given to the first year shorthand class. The lesson they are working on at that time to be taken in charge of Miss Bronson. 30 minutes.

5. Exhibits in the corridor of Bookkeeping, material drawn from Commercial Geography, Shorthand and covers developed on the typewriter.

Musical program by the W. H. S. orchestra.

UNITARIAN MEN ENJOY MR. DREIER

There was a good attendance at the dinner and meeting of the Unitarian Men's Club last Friday evening. The speaker was Mr. Thomas Dreier of this town, a nationally known advertising man, writer and publisher, who took as his subject, "A Belief in Fairies as an Asset in Business."

Following the serving of the dinner a brief business meeting of the club was held, Vice President Charles H. Watkins presiding in the absence of the president, Ralph T. Hale, who was unable to be present. During this session the Unitarian Foundation was discussed. This concerns an appeal for funds from all Unitarians and the club membership was unanimous in voting that it should be supported.

Mr. Dreier was introduced by Mr. Watkins and his talk was much enjoyed. The former has already attained quite a reputation as a radio speaker and he held the attention of his hearers while citing instances in his varied business experience where a belief in what the fairies of his childhood had been supposed to stand for had brought him success and advancement in many enterprises as well as the all important happiness. The key note of his entire address was that it always pays to be kind and do that good turn since often the most unlikely good deed may blossom into a real gold mine for the doer.

"FIREMAN" WINS A COUPLE

James "Fireman" Cullen of this town won both his bouts in the 115 lb. class on the recent road trip of the Technology Wrestling Team which included meets with Rensselaer Polytech and Syracuse, the first named resulting in a win for Tech and the second going to the Orange by a narrow margin. Against Rensselaer Cullen defeated Lee in overtime periods with a time advantage of 47 seconds. His bout against Allen of Syracuse also went to an overtime period before the local boy was returned a winner, this time with a time advantage of 2 min. 45 sec. "Fireman's" many Winchester friends will be glad to see his wrestling luck changing.

LADIES' NIGHT AT THE MEN'S CLUB

This evening at 8 o'clock at the First Congregational Church, The Men's Club are having their "Ladies' Night." Illustrated lecture on "Zion National Park," Utah. All men and women of the church are invited. Light refreshments served by the men.

REV. CLIFTON H. WALCOTT

REV. CLIFTON H. WALCOTT Resigns as Head of First Baptist Church to Accept Pastorate at Lincoln, Neb.

The many friends of the Rev. Clifton H. Walcott, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will regret to learn that on last Friday evening at the church's roll call supper he tendered his resignation which is to become effective May 1.

Mr. Walcott is resigning to accept the pastorate of the First Baptist Church at Lincoln, Neb., a large church with a membership of some 800, situated in the capital city of the State diagonally across the street from the new $5,000,000 capital buildings. His new pastorate brings with it tremendous possibilities in the line of work with young people in whom Mr. Walcott has always taken a great interest. The great University of Nebraska, having an enrollment of 12,000 students, is at Lincoln and a part of Mr. Walcott's time will be given to co-operating with the church's student pastor in the latter's activities among the college pupils. An idea of the magnitude of this work may be obtained from the fact that one of the bible classes has 300 enrolled while the opportunities for social service are practically without limit.

On the 11th of April Mr. Walcott will have completed his sixth year in Winchester, coming to his local pastorate from Sharon. He is a graduate of Brown, class of 1910, and was ordained into the Baptist ministry in 1911, having a student pastorate at Ashland. He completed his theological training at Newton Theological Institute in 1913 and among his other extra-pastoral activities he is president of the Baptist Ministers' Conference of Greater Boston. Mr. Walcott is married and has two children: Jane, aged 8, and David, aged 4. During the term of his Winchester pastorate his sincere manner, pleasing personality and willingness to be at all times of service have combined to win him the good will not only of the members of his congregation, but of the town as a whole, and all will regret his going while rejoicing in his splendid advancement in his chosen work.

ANNUAL ROLL CALL DINNER AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

On Friday evening, March 5, the members and friends of the First Baptist Church gathered in large numbers for their annual roll call dinner.

The chapel presented a very attractive appearance where a turkey dinner was served by the Social Committee of the church.

Rev. Clifton H. Walcott, pastor of the church after a few words of welcome introduced as the speaker of the evening, Rev. J. M. Williamson, pastor of the Clarendon Street Baptist Church of Boston.

The committee were very fortunate to be able to secure for their musical program Mr. Carl Bye, bass soloist, and the Daugherty Trio of Boston. Mr. Bye has a voice of rare quality and his solos were much appreciated. The Daugherty Trio is one of the best known in Boston. Mr. Daugherty has been a prominent pianist and teacher in Boston for many years and Miss Sarah Johnson, violinist and Miss Cecilia Pond, cellist, are both artists on their chosen instruments. Their solos and trio selections were thoroughly enjoyed.

The church roll was called by Clerk John L. Lutes and many responded to their names.

After a few remarks by the pastor a successful evening was brought to a close.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Frank W. McLean, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Jerome W. Gates, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Moulton, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard O. Waters, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Furlong, Mrs. Clarence Warren and Mrs. Edward Sargent.

WINCHESTER STILL IN MIDDLE- SEX TITLE HUNT

As a result of Belmont's win from Reading in Wednesday's Middlesex League basketball game at Belmont, Winchester High is in a top tie for titular honors on the circuit with Reading, Belmont also having a chance to work the knot into a three-way proposition.

Previous to Belmont's rather unexpected win Reading had been sitting on top of the league with a rating of six games won and but one reverse. Winchester also had won six games but had lost one more start than the leaders who had one more game to play. Its defeat at the hands of Belmont gives it the same standing as Winchester while Belmont with another game to play is likely to be up there just to make things a bit more interesting.

According to present plans Winchester and Reading will meet next Wednesday afternoon at Stoneham and this game should practically decide the league championship since the consensus of opinions to the effect that both the locals and the boys from the North are stronger than Belmont starts out of four. Of course this is only "dope" and may easily be upset, but we rather feel that next Wednesday's winner will be crowned king.

The previous meetings between these clubs have resulted in a deadlock, each having won on its own floor. Playing the game at Stoneham will work to the advantage of Coach Mansfield's boys since conditions there will be more nearly like those under which they have played than will be the case with Reading which plays its home games in a veritable pill-box gym which always causes its opponents plenty of trouble.

Winchester should win. It defeated Reading at home early in the season and lost on the latter's floor only after a hard fight. It has met stronger clubs than its opponents have included in their schedule during the season and this added experience should help.

The fact that its players have had no real basketball for a couple of weeks will undoubtedly handicap its chances, yet if the boys will tend to their knitting from the opening whistle instead of waiting to make one of those grandstand finishes which so often turn out a bust, they should stand an excellent chance to win a title during their first year of Middlesex competition. We're wishing them luck, not only for their own sakes but also because of their popular mentor, Coach Mansfield.

WINCHESTER INVESTMENT

Henry W. Savage, Inc., reports that title has passed on the estate at 556-66 Main street, Winchester. The property, which consists of a two-story frame building, contains six stores and two apartments, and is considered the key location in the heart of the square. It fronts about 155 feet on the principal business thoroughfare. There are in all 7540 square feet of land, every foot of which may be utilized for business. The town valuation is $24,550 of which $15,050 is on the land. Jonas A. Laraway of Winchester, conveyed title to Solomon H. Rubin of Boston. It is Mr. Rubin's intention to improve the property immediately with a modern business structure.

MAN RUN OVER ON WASHINGTON STREET

Police officials and members of the hospital staff are still wondering why Raymond Carroll, 22, of 10 Lincoln street was neither killed nor badly injured last Wednesday night when he was run over by a Buick coupe, owned by Stanley Dean Porter of 26 Phillips street, Watertown and operated by T. E. Ellis of the same address, while on Washington street near the Jewish Cemetery.

The first which the police knew of the trouble was upon the receipt at headquarters of a telephone call at midnight from Charles Smith of Park avenue that a man had been seen laying in the roadway at the above location.

Sergeant Rogers and officer Noonan hastened to the spot indicated and upon their arrival found the man named Ellis attempting to get another man who was upon the ground to his car which was standing near.

Ellis told the officers that he had been driving his car southerly on Washington street when he suddenly came upon a man laying in one of the icy ruts of the roadway. Although he had seen him he had been unable to bring his car to a stop until it had passed completely over the prostrate form.

The injured man was picked up and taken to the police station where he was identified as Raymond Carroll and attended by Dr. Milton J. Quinn. He was at first thought to have been badly hurt and was ordered by the doctor removed to the Winchester Hospital.

Examination there disclosed the fact that he had not been seriously injured but was suffering from bruises and abrasions about the head and body. He was able to go to his home Wednesday morning.

No connected story could be obtained as to how he happened to be laying in the road, but it is thought that he had been on his way home from East Woburn where he had been with friends earlier in the evening. Whether he was rendered unconscious by a fall or in some other way is not known, but the police are expecting to clear the matter up as soon as he is able to give his side of the story. Ellis was taken to police headquarters but was allowed to go on his own recognizance.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Quite a crowd was attracted on Tuesday to watch the big steam shovel at work digging the foundation for the new block of stores on Water street. The frozen ground offered little opposition to the huge machine.

Mr. F. C. Alexander of this town has been awarded the general contract for the building of the new Baptist Church in Woburn, his bid being $81,542 or $1248 lower than his nearest competitor, Holt, Fairchild Co.

Driver Everett Kimball of the fire department's big ladder truck is confined to his home on White street with a bad attack of grippe. In his absence the truck is being handled by fireman "Ray" Hanscomb.

The local police are evidently acquiring something better than a passing reputation in the matter of trailing the wily and extremely odoriferous polecat to his lair. Last Sunday evening headquarters received a call from Glen road requesting that a patrolman be sent, with full power to act, in the matter of ridding the neighborhood of its unwelcome four-footed guest.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

On Wednesday 37 telephone employees of the Winchester exchange joined with over 30,000 other employees in New England, and more than 300,000 men and women in the Bell System, in wearing a specially designed button marking the 50th anniversary of the telephone.

The button is one inch in diameter. In the center of a blue background is a reproduction of a modern telephone in black, on either side of which are the figures 5 and 0 in white.

In addition to this public observance of the anniversary every telephone employee has received the following message signed by W. S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

To the Men and Women of the Bell System:

On March 10, 1876, the first message was transmitted over the telephone.

Watson, his assistant, in another room on the same floor, "Mr. Watson, come here; I want you."

For 50 years now the telephone has brought into speaking communication countless numbers of people. Each year has seen an ever-increasing record of telephone conversations, increasing business and social co-operation. In time of sorrows and in joy, in time of sickness and in death, the telephone has rendered its priceless service. In truth, it has made neighbors of the people of the nation.

Many of the hundreds of thousands of employees of the Bell System have expressed a desire to participate personally in some observance of the 50th anniversary of the telephone. In order that all may do so, an emblem in the form of a pin has been provided, to be worn by telephone people everywhere upon the 10th of March. In this way and on this particular day, all can join in commemoration of the 50th birthday of the telephone.

MANUFACTURED GAS SALES MAKE NEW RECORD
IN 1925

Official figures which have been made public by the American Gas Association show that the manufactured gas companies of the United States sold 421 billion cubic feet of gas in 1925, a new high record.

This is an increase of 16 billion cubic feet over 1924, and a five year increase of 100 billion cubic feet. Sales of gas have more than doubled in the last ten years.

Steady expansion of plant and distribution facilities during 1925 enabled the 984 gas companies in the country to connect 403,000 new customers to their lines, making a total of 10,600,000 customers as of Dec. 31, 1925. Total population served by gas companies is now 52,000,000.

While both domestic and industrial uses of gas show steady increases, the latter alone has increased 60 per cent during the year.

A large increase has also taken place in the heating of homes by gas, a development that will be largely accelerated if the anthracite strikes continue. The increase in gas fired house heating systems has averaged more than 2000 per cent since 1919. New installations are being made at the rate of 100,000 a year.

Out of more than nine million meters actively in service during 1925, only 3232 were in receivership. Sales of securities by gas companies to their employees and customers in 1925 were 32 per cent over those of the preceding year, while the number of purchasers increased 85 per cent.

MYSTIC VALLEY LODGE TO HOLD LADIES' NIGHT

The Second Annual Ladies' Night of Mystic Valley Lodge, A. F. & A. M., is to be held at the Winchester Country Club Thursday, April 29.

A committee has been appointed to arrange for one of the most interesting dances of the season. If all the various things planned are put into one evening there will be parts of the dance or program for everyone.

RECOUNT FAILED TO CHANGE ELECTION RESULTS

The recount demanded in connection with the recent contest for the office of Collector of Taxes which took place at the annual town election Monday, March 1, was held last Saturday at the Town Hall. As in the case with most recounts, it failed materially to change the previous result. The new count took three votes from the total polled by J. Leslie Johnston while adding two to that of Collector Nathaniel M. Nichols. There was found to be one more blank than heretofore.

The new figures read:

Nathaniel M. Nichols 1234
J. Leslie Johnston 1194
Blanks 118

AT LAST IT'S SETTLED

The animals were discussing who won the war. The horse said, "I won the war, for I dragged the guns, the ammunition, and the transport." "But," said the ox, "surely I won the war. But for me and my bullock the war could never have been won." "Nonsense," chimed in the ass; "I was at the War Office, and I won the war."

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE NOTES

The next meeting of the Florence Crittenton League will be a sewing meeting at the First Congregational Church on Thursday, March 18 at 10 a. m. There will be a box luncheon at 12:30. A large attendance of workers is needed.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

On Monday, March 8, in the Town Hall the Dramatics Committee of the Fortnightly presented "Please Stand by," by Carolyn Draper Gilpatrick.

The players were as follows:

Pa Hawley Marguerite Loftus
Ma Hawley Florence Henry Honeysuckle Blanche Reynolds
Announcer Marguerite Jones

Violinist Jane Hanson
Singer Mary Ghirardini
Dancer Teresa D. Heath
Duncan Sisters Marion Perham Gale, Hazel Thayer Farrington

Singer Annette Symmes Hughes
Candida The Silver Masked Candidate
Krazy Kat Gretchen West

The Announcer was most attractive in her Heraldic costume. The simple old-fashioned characters of Ma and Pa Hawley were capably taken by Mrs. Henry and Mrs. Loftus. Mrs. Reynolds played the part of "Honeysuckle" the colored woman in true Southern fashion and delighted the audience with her dialect and fine acting.

Mrs. Hanson rendered with good effect the following solos:

"Prize Song" By Wagner

"Reverie" By Gottschack

She was followed by Mrs. Ghirardini whose sweet voice was heard in the following:

"A Brown Bird Singing" By Hayden Wood

"In the Garden of Tomorrow" By Jessie L. Deppen

"A Bowl of Roses" By Henley

Mrs. Heath was extremely graceful in her series of short Greek dances.

The Duncan Sisters, Mrs. Gale and Mrs. Purrington in their youthful attire amused all with their singing and dialogue. Mrs. Annette Symmes delightfully rendered "Habanera," from Carmen.

Mrs. W. W. Hill, as Candida, thoroughly convinced the club members that there was every reason why she should be elected President of the Fortnightly, in humorous fashion. Mrs. West as Krazy Kat, played the part of the feline in a natural manner, and her reading of applications for membership in the Krazy Kat Club produced much laughter. The accompanists were Mrs. Mavis Peterson, Mrs. Faye Lefavour and Mrs. Alice Abbott.

To Mrs. Carolyn Gilpatrick author and producer of the play much credit is due. The realistic stage setting and novel ideas introduced will long be remembered by the "visible audience," who "listened in."

A LENTEN PLAY

The people of the Second Congregational Church will present a Lenten play, "The Dream of Queen Esther" on Friday evening, March 19 at 8 o'clock.

The play shows how one man's faith in God and his willingness to serve, saved a race. Special music will be furnished by an eight piece orchestra.

Tickets may be obtained from Miss Althea Fogg, Brookside road. The proceeds will go to the Building Fund.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Round Table

Mrs. Roland M. Baker, state chairman of the Child Welfare Committee of the Massachusetts League cleared up some misunderstanding regarding the Child Labor Amendment at the meeting which was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. A. Batchelder. Speaking of state conditions, she strongly advocated the plan which is being tried in several places whereby minors who must work attend school one week and work one week, alternating with each other on the job. Under this plan the combination of work and study very often brings results which are advantageous to employer and employee. As an illustration of the expediency of employing minors, the president of the Naumkeag Textile Mills which has the finest appointments, is unionized, and pays the highest dividends, has made the statement that children under 16 are not employed for two reasons: they have not attained the necessary degree of intelligence for this work and it would be imprudent to subject such children to the dangers incident to the industry. State child labor laws can not accomplish the results of a federal uniform law because business is nation wide and not confined to states. In this country there are one million families who migrate from state to state following the crops with three million children of these families who are employed in these seasonal occupations. Such children must be deprived of anything that approximates an education. Such children living in Pennsylvania cross over into New Jersey in the early fall to pick cranberries returning to their schools in Pennsylvania sometime after Thanksgiving. We restrict immigration but do we not incur a greater danger in allowing these children to have such an unfair chance in life not to speak of illiteracy and conditions detrimental to health. This Round Table was productive of much food for thought and another session will probably be held in the very near future.

DR. GRENFELL HERE APRIL 9

One of the most interesting events of the season's lecture series will be the appearance of Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, with his wonderfully human story of the Northland and the insurmountable difficulties he overcame in his establishment of hospitals along the coasts of Labrador. This lecture will be given on April 9 at the Town Hall under the auspices of Winchester Council of Boy Scouts of America.

Dr. Grenfell first visited the coasts of Labrador and North Newfoundland in 1892 at the suggestion of Lord Southborough, going in a hospital sailing ship to see if a medical and surgical service could be established. From this simple beginning has grown during the past 30 years one of the great service works of the world. Devoted and loyal helpers from all over the English speaking world have given their services, and now a chain of six hospitals, four nursing stations, two orphanages, some small schools, an industrial work, a large Seaman's Institute at St. John's, Newfoundland, a hospital steamer, and a fleet of auxiliary power junks connected with the various hospital centers, is doing unlimited good for these deep-sea fishermen and their families.

Distinguished honors have been conferred all unsolicited upon Dr. Grenfell for his service to humanity. England conferred upon him the order of Companion of St. Michael and St. George. Oxford gave him the only honorary M. D. which that university has ever bestowed; he was made a Fellow in the American College of Surgeons and Harvard has given him its honorary M. A.

PATHFINDERS HOLD INSTALLATION

The third annual installation of the Pathfinder's Class of the Second Congregational Church on Cross street is to be held on April 16 at the church. Everyone is invited to attend and hear Mr. Gibson, State Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., give a talk for the young men and women present. Many of the boys and young men have already heard Mr. Gibson speak at some of the Mystic Valley Older Boys' Conferences and will therefore realize what an attraction is offered. A lively orchestra will furnish music for the occasion and refreshments will be served afterwards. A large attendance is expected and nobody will regret having heard Mr. Gibson's speech.

MISS MARGUERITE HEATH MARRIED

Mrs. Fitz-Edward Harris Heath of Rochester, N. Y., and formerly of this town, has announced the marriage of her daughter, Marguerite, to Mr. John Kennedy on Feb. 23, 1926.

Mrs. Kennedy is in charge of the record room at the new Strong Memorial Hospital. The hospital and University of Rochester School of Medicine have been endowed by Mr. George Eastman, the Strong's, the Rockefeller Foundation and others. The medical school was opened last fall and the hospital, the first of the year.

Mr. Kennedy served four and one-half years overseas with the Canadians as a member of Princess Pat's battalion. He is located in business in Ohio.

HARVARD MUSICIANS GAVE FINE CONCERT

The Instrumental Clubs of Harvard University comprising the Vocal Club, the Banjo and Mandolin Clubs and the Gold Coast Orchestra gave a concert on last Friday evening in the Town Hall under the auspices of the Eta Zeta Chapter of the Gamma Eta Kappa Fraternity.

The attendance was a disappointment to those having the affair in charge, but the audience more than made up in enthusiasm for what it may have lacked in size and the college boys had no reason to complain of their reception.

There was not a dull moment throughout the entire program which was typical of what one had always associated with the appearance of college glee clubs in the past when the principal aim of such organizations was to give an evening's entertainment rather than to educate their hearers to a proper appreciation of male vocalization.

The high lights of last Friday evening's program, if one were to judge from the applause, were a Hawaiian trio, violin and marimba xylophone solos by Albert Lind, and H. Benfield, G. B., and a specialty number by Kingsley A. Perry, ventriloquist. Other numbers enthusiastically received were "Johnny Harvard" by the Vocal Club, the Harvard Football Medley by the Banjo Club and the always popular finale, "Fair Harvard" by the combined organizations. The selections by the Gold Coast Orchestra and the Mandolin Club were well received and the first named played for the dancing which followed the concert.

Ushers for the evening included R. Stokes Apsey, Benjamin Priest, Allston Noyes, Jerome Foster, Leslie Hartwell, P. H. Bartlett, Hubert Bernard, Harry Roberts, James J. Coffey and Clarence Engles. The committee included H. N. Bernard, Jr., P. H. Bartlett, Jerome Foster, Allston Noyes and Herbert Miller. A part of the proceeds from the entertainment will be donated to the Winchester Hospital.

PUEBLO A. C. DEFEATS HI-Y CLUB OF WOBURN

The Pueblo A. C. defeated the Hi-Y Club at Woburn Y. M. C. A. gym Saturday evening before a huge enthusiastic crowd. The game was one of the fastest played this season by the Pueblos, being hard-fought throughout. The Hi-Y scored first on Johnson's basket from the floor. This margin was quickly wiped out by our own "Fat" Johnson who not to be outdone by his namesake slipped one through the hoop from the floor and foul line. This gave the Pueblos a lead which they never lost throughout the contest. The score at the half time being 9 to 6, due to "Bonesy" Murphy tossing in two from the floor and McGrath one. The score stood 14 to 11 with two minutes to go, when Smith and McGrath caged one from mid-floor and Murphy closed the game with a goal and one from the foul mark. Murphy and McGrath played best for the Pueblos on the offense while Smith and Johnson were towers of strength on the defense. "Jeney" Johnson was the Woburn team's ace.

Taxes Paid in Butterflies

When he faced difficulty in collecting the income tax from natives, the governor of the Belgian Congo in Africa invited the native citizens to bring in specimens of a particularly beautiful butterfly. For four butterflies he gave an income tax receipt. He then sent the butterflies to Europe where they brought as much as 30 francs each. This ingenious method of getting the tax from the natives enabled him to swell the state's coffers without discontent on the part of his people.

MR. GOODWIN ADDRESSED EPIPHANY MEN

State Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin was guest of honor and the principal speaker at the regular monthly meeting and dinner of the Epiphany Men's Club on last Monday evening. A turnout which completely filled the Parish House was present to listen to Mr. Goodwin who is in great demand as a speaker throughout the State, his vigorous handling of the crime situation in the Commonwealth having brought him strongly to the attention of all citizens.

The usual dinner preceding the Registrar's address was served by a group of ladies of the church in charge of Mrs. Thomas I. Freeburn and Mrs. Geoffrey C. Neiley.

During the dinner community singing was enjoyed and vocal selections, including solos and a duet, rendered by Mrs. Cora Phelps and Mr. Edwin Cortell of Brookline, accompanied by Mrs. A. B. Cortell.

President Edward B. Smalley of the Epiphany Club introduced Mr. Goodwin who held the attention of his audience for about an hour and a half with an address which dealt chiefly with the ability of the criminal element to avoid its just punishment at the hands of society. He dwelt at length upon the difficulty of obtaining sentences in the courts and pointed out the futility of officers attempting to do their duty without the backing of the powers higher up. He touched upon the various bills he is introducing into the Legislature to restrict the courts' power to admit to bail, to not press and to place cases on file or on probation.

His remarks were not all calculated to keep his hearers gloomy and apprehensive of the future. He said that he had high hopes that some, at least, of his bills would be accepted by the law makers and that, if so, the legislation thus enacted would go far toward ameliorating conditions. During the course of his remarks Mr. Goodwin read many letters which he had received, some of which were sufficiently humorous to send his audience into gales of laughter.

Following his address opportunity was presented for general questions and many took advantage of the speaker's evident desire to clear up any doubts existing in the minds of his hearers upon points raised in the course of his talk. Others to speak briefly were Rev. Allen Evans, Jr., rector of the Church of the Epiphany and Mr. Marcus May, formerly for many years the church's senior warden. Mr. E. S. Larned, secretary of the club also spoke; thanking Mr. Goodwin and expressing the appreciation of everyone present for the shedding of much light upon a subject of vital interest to all.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Art Committee—The Art Committee will make a trip by automobile to the Boston Art Museum on Tuesday, March 16. Cars will leave the Winchester railroad station at 9:30, weather permitting. It is planned to have luncheon in the museum restaurant, and to return early in the afternoon. A nominal charge will be made for transportation. Those who wish to have places reserved for them for this trip are asked to notify the chairman, Mrs. Charles H. Watkins, tel. Win. 0370, as early as possible.

Social Committee—The auction-bridge party planned by the Social Committee is to be held on Wednesday, March 17, in the Fortnightly Hall at 2 p. m. sharp. The proceeds of this party are to be used to purchase dishes for use in the Fortnightly rooms. A large attendance is anticipated. Members and non-members are cordially invited. Phone Mrs. C. A. Batchelder or any member of the Social Committee.

Please bear in mind that our next meeting is a public meeting. The Boston Chamber Music Club, composed of Symphony Players are to furnish the program and a large attendance of club members and friends are expected. March 22 is the date.

A GLOBE-TROTTERING VIOLET IDENTIFIED

After being brought from the interior of China across the Pacific Ocean to America and then shipped to an expert in Germany, a lonesome little dried violet, collected by the botanist of a National Geographic Society Expedition, has been given official title papers as belonging to an entirely new species, according to a report to the Biological Society of Washington, just made public in that Society's proceedings.

The story of this little violet plant, dug from a hillside in the heart of Asia near the northeastern corner of Tibet, gives an insight into the painstaking care with which science works in testing new facts to be added to her store. The plant was collected in the summer of 1923 by R. C. Ching, a Chinese botanist attached to the staff of F. W. Wulshin who conducted the National Geographic Society's Expedition which employed camel caravans and goat skin rafts in its Kansu Province explorations. Carefully dried and packed, the specimen found its way several months later by coolie-back and mule-back to the Chinese coast and from there was shipped to the United States National Museum in Washington.

Experts at the Museum found that they did not have sufficient data in regard to similar old-world plants to arrive at a decision in regard to the status of the little Chinese violet, so they repacked it and sent it across the Atlantic to a German botanist, Wilhelm Becker, who has specialized in Asiatic plants. After careful study that authority has pronounced the plant a member of a new species which has been named Viola Chingiana in honor of the Chinese botanist who discovered it.

Viola Chingiana has been presented to the world in the pages of the published Proceedings of the Biological Society of Washington in a description couched in pure Latin. The words and phrases seem formidable, but behind them are hidden such homely facts as that the plants of the new species are very smooth, that their leaves are roundish-oblong with saw-tooth edges, and that, like its cousins of America and Europe, Viola Chingiana loves best the moist, grassy slopes.

"Smiths" in England

In England there are 330,000 persons of the name of Smith, and 204,000 of them have "J" for their first initial. The John Smiths number 41,000; the John W. Smiths, 30,000, and the John William Smiths, 5,000. It has been necessary to devise a mark for them to distinguish the products they make or own. A monomark with symbols will designate just which Smith is referred to. It was necessary to include five symbols in the monomark.

Women, read the Household pages in the Boston Daily and Sunday Globe. The Boston Globe's Household Department is the talk of all New England.

BIG BROTHER CLUB

Now a

Daily Transcript Feature

Since March 1, the radio page of the Transcript has had as an additional feature, a special department set aside for the activities of the Boston Edison Big Brother Club, conducted every evening through Station WEEI by Mr. C. R. Emery. In addition to describing the events of each evening's club program, the new feature from time to time will include photographic and other illustrations, as well as items of general interest concerning the club's work.

The club now has a membership of approximately 27,000 boys and girls and numbers among its nightly listeners many "grownups" as well. Its importance has increased to the extent that it may fairly be said to be one of the most popular radio institutions in the country. In giving this service to the club members, the Transcript will work in close co-operation with "Big Brother Bob" Emery, in his creditable ambition to "be somebody's big brother every day."

The Window of Your Dreams

Everyone who has any sentiment in his soul has some Window of Dreams through which he sees a house and a garden with children playing under trees, and birds and butterflies moving among the flowers. That house is his real home to which in fancy, he returns, every night to find rest and comfort and the real wages of his work; and the extent to which he makes his dream come true is no mean measure of his success in life. For beauty is not a mere something that gives pleasure. It helps to build morals and mould character, and thereby sets man above the beasts; and some measure of it is within the reach of all who crave it.

J. Murray Quinby, Incorporated, is enjoying a surprising business growth, primarily because it is meeting a need on the part of home-builders and homemakers for an institution which will give expert service on all of the many phases which enter into the development of a home.

A very few rare souls are born with a gift for "doing things," with draperies, paint and some sticks of furniture, that make their friends gasp.

Most mortals are not so gifted. A knowledge of the principles and practice of interior decoration is therefore the only satisfactory sound basis on which to furnish their own homes with distinction.

The few dollars spent in acquiring such knowledge and the time required will be repaid many fold both in pleasure and in the actual cash economies which are possible when a home is furnished with brains as well as with money.

One graduate of the Quinby course in interior decoration, a young matron, saved twice the tuition cost through a wiser purchase of the materials which have gone into the creation of her lovely little home.

The study of interior decoration offers two possibilities:

1. Training for a career.
2. Acquisition of the principles and the ideas which will make your home distinctive.

The Boston Professional School of Interior Decorating and Design, located in Studios 511, Berkeley Building, 420 Boylston street, is meeting both objectives.

Mr. Quinby, the director of this school, will give a free lecture on home-building and interior decorating on Saturday afternoon, March 13 at 3 o'clock, which will be of vital interest to those who are interested in any of the phases of home-building or interior decorating. The lecture will be repeated on Monday, March 15 at 3 o'clock and at 8 p. m. in the evening of the same day. It will also be given on the following Saturdays and Mondays throughout the month of March.

The Boston Professional School of Interior Decorating will begin their new course in interior decorating and designing Tuesday, March 16. There will be day classes and evening classes for those who have other work during the day.

Waterfalls and Rivers

The greatest and grandest waterfall in the world is the Victoria falls, Rhodesia, the second being Niagara, partly in Canada and partly in the United States. These, however, are far exceeded in height by mountain cataracts in Europe and America, the highest being the Yosemite, in California. In Europe the highest are Norway and the Alps. The water power of some of these is of great commercial value. Some authorities claim that the Mississippi is the longest river in the world, but part of the Missouri river has to be taken in to make the claim correct. Whitaker's Almanack gives the names of the six longest rivers as follows: Amazon, 4,000 miles; Nile, 2,900; Yangtze, 3,400; Yenisei, 3,500; Mississippi, 3,100; Missouri, 3,000.

Beehives of the Ocean

Sponges are the beehives of the sea. This curious discovery has been reported to the United States bureau of fisheries by Dr. Charles J. Fish of the scientific staff of the New York Zoological society's steamer Albatross, just returned from tropical waters. The bees which Doctor Fish found inhabiting the canals of sponges were whole colonies of tiny snapping shrimp alpheids. These gregarious shrimps, he discovered, swim freely about, but always return to the individual sponge which is their hive-like home. One sponge-hive with its homing-shrimps was secured and placed in an aquarium aboard the ship, where the colony continued to flourish. —Grit.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Lawson, 296 Washington street on Friday, March 19, at 3 p. m. Dr. Anna Dorr Bryant, State director of "Social Morality" will be the speaker.

Roger W. Babson in a recent interview said:

"Increased wages are not responsible for this increased purchasing power because higher wages mean higher prices and do not materially affect the volume of goods purchased. When, however, a man takes money formerly thrown away on harmful drink and uses it in buying a home, an automobile or any other merchandise, he is greatly aiding all legitimate industry. This means that at least a billion dollars formerly spent in saloons each year, and from which only the brewers benefited, have gone into new buildings, automobiles and the hundreds of other lines which have expanded so rapidly since prohibition went into effect. Although drinking may have increased among students and the would-be smart set, it has ceased to be a harmful factor in the manufacturing and business world. Blue Mondays no longer exist in our mills and factories, and liquor is taboo in all respectable business men's gatherings. There is probably no one factor which would more quickly bring about a business panic and a period of unemployment as nullification by legislation of prohibition and a return to the saloon with its accompanying poverty and disease.

"The problem today is to create a public sentiment as to the dangers of drinking and importance of temperance. Only as men and women, boys and girls feel this in their hearts can an effective public sentiment for law enforcement be developed. So long as respectable people are willing to drink at social gatherings, they automatically become aligned with the bootleggers and against those who are working for the best interests of the community. On the other hand, the hearts of the people cannot be won or changed by talking merely of the good economic effects of prohibition, and its relations to prosperity. The moral issue at stake must be emphasized. In view of this statement, bankers, business men and investors must be interested in studying the difficulties of the present situation and the real solution of the problem. The solution lies in again renewing the fight to educate our children and the community in general, as to the evils of intemperance and to warn them against the dangers of touching liquor, as parents did before the days of prohibition. This is the only way to have law enforcement and make prohibition efficient. We must get back to discussing the morals of intemperance and help revive the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and various other organizations which carried on the fight in the old educational way.

"I think statistics would show that the present crime wave is not due to prohibition, but to the disrespect for law by those who think it is smart to disregard it."

WINCHESTER BOY WON INDOOR TITLE

John N. "Soapy" Watters of Wildwood street gave Eastern track enthusiasts, including his Winchester admirers, a real thrill when he captured the I. C. A. A. A. indoor mile title at the track games in the 102nd Regiment Armory, New York City, last Saturday evening. "Soapy's" time was 4 minutes 24 1/2 seconds, and he was forced to defeat among others the outdoor intercollegiate champion, Ellsworth "Red" Haggerty, one of his own team mates, who finished second. The local boy was said to have displayed real judgment in the matter of pace, making his bid for victory at just the right time. His many boosters are hoping he will return during the outdoor season to the form he showed two years ago when he was conceded to be one of the country's best half-milers.

JUTE: ANOTHER IMPORTANT BRITISH PRODUCT

The Malay rubber ball having bounced its highest leap in the stock exchange, according to reports, jute, another British product, is making a bid for rubber's place in public attention.

A shortage in the Indian jute crop may have the unfortunate result of requiring America to spend on increased costs of potatoes, cotton shirts, linoleum and rugs, the money it expects to save this spring at the automobile tire agency, says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The emergency probably will bring the word jute into commoner usage in the United States. This immigrant from India has been traveling incognito up and down our land as gunny sack and burlap.

Some "One Place" Products
Jute is more a resource than a product. Nature has put jute in one place almost in the manner she restricted anthracite coal to a tiny pocket of Pennsylvania or cached iron ore worth a European war debt in the Mesaba district of Minnesota. India can no more help being the sole large producer of gunny sacking and burlap than Colombia can help being the world's chief producer of emeralds.

Jute is a plant and not a mineral, but successful production of it seems to be limited to the double delta of the Ganges and the Brahmaputra Rivers. Since the State of Bengal encompasses the delta, it has become famous for jute as well as tigers. In the delta jute enjoys that prodigal type of agriculture, usually associated with Egypt, by which the highlands are annually robbed of their slender store of soil to fertilize flood plains with a new layer of rich dirt. This scraggly annual jute-producing bush also has adapted its constitution to the monsoon schedule of rains. Thus far it has refused to amend either of these habits of life when transplanted to a new environment. Since the Ganges-Brahmaputra delta is the only place in the world where the two factors are brought together, India has a natural monopoly on jute.

Social Register of the Fibers
The native name of the plant from which comes the jute of commerce is pat. It is a valued member of the flax, hemp, sisal (henequin) line of the first fiber families of the world. Flax is the spotless aristocrat; hemp and jute are solid middle-class fibers, each suited to heavy work and honest dirt. Flax says jute is coarse. Hemp overlooks this issue, but whispers the gossip that the real reason that jute is not acceptable in hemp society are its lack of stamina to stand strain and a yellow complexion that bleaching powders cannot whiten. Jute fibers are very long, usually six to ten feet, sometimes attaining 14 or 15 feet.

Although jute is constantly finding new work to do in America, it will never acquire the myriad of uses assigned to it in India. There it is string and rope, a baglike net for carrying wood or hay on bullocks, a stuff for tying cotton and cloth bales, a hammock for the baby, a swinging shelf, rug, brush, underwear, hair-band and stage hair, incense stick, a muzzle for cattle, etc. America is most familiar with it in the guise of gunny sacks for carrying innumerable things to market. The South goes half way around the earth for jute, a fiber, to wrap another fiber, cotton, in bales for market. Jute is the base for linoleum in the kitchen and, very often, the rug in the dining room. It is the foundation of upholstery and auto tops. Much tarpaulin, the heavy waterproof covering, which, incidentally gives us the nickname tar for sailor, is made of jute.

Jute Won Away Our Silver Dollars
Natives sow jute seed in April. The favorite location is an alluvial sand bank. The fate of a flood hangs over the crop in the early stages, but later it can withstand very heavy water. In August plants are cut, tied in bundles and anchored in creeks. Soon the bark is sufficiently rotted and the fibers loosened. Native workers laboring knee-deep in the streams strip each piece with a peculiar swift movement. The dry, shredded fibers go in bales to Calcutta, the main market. Native Indian agriculturists with small holdings farm nearly 3,000,000 acres with jute every year.

Another crisis in India jute back in the war year of 1918 echoed in Congress in Washington, D. C., and sent 200,000,000 American silver dollars to India. At that time all England's problems were not on the war fronts. Britain had been paying out silver rupees in large quantities to her Indian troops and had been buying supplies, notably jute, until she had almost no silver left. Natives never thought of putting silver in a bank where it might continue in circulation; they hammered the rupees into jewelry or hid them. But the fighting forces had to have jute for tarpaulin and sacking. England asked the United States to help her out. An act was hurried through Congress. It ordered the silver dollars that stand back of silver certificates into the melting pot. Treasure ships carried the hoards to India. The dollars that became rupees bought jute and the restless Indian farmer became pacified.

KAUAI: HAVEN FOR THE PN-9.

Kauai, northernmost island of the Hawaiian group, on which the crew of the long lost seaplane PN-9, No. 1 landed, has been the landing place of many other Americans because of its beauty and charm, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. This has well been called the Garden Isle, for except on the northwestern side where high cliffs meet the sea, the whole island seems a gentle cone of luxuriant vegetation. Thousands upon thousands of acres are planted to sugar-cane and pineapples, and there are banana plantations and coconuts groves as well. In many little irrigated valleys, too, one comes upon the characteristic rice paddy fields of the Japanese farmers.

Numerous wealthy land holders on Kauai own great areas, some of the bigger ranches having their own railways, sugar mills and canning plants. There are in addition, however, a considerable number of small farmers and gardeners. The entire population of the island is about 30,000.

Kauai is roughly circular, about 25 miles in greatest length and 22 miles in width. In the center rises Mt. Waialeale, the wettest spot in the world. On the summit of this peak more than 50 feet of water falls annually. The slopes of the huge mountain mass are gashed by many ravines, most of them covered with rank vegetation. Waimea Canyon, on the southwest, however, is a small scale Grand Canyon, 3,000 feet deep in which rocks of wonderful color are exposed. This great gash, the barking sands of the southwest coast, the spouting rocks in which the sea gushes skyward, and the great cliffs and caves of the northeast coast, are some of the island's many special features of interest.

Lihue, to which the rescued flyers were taken, is near the sea on the side of the island closest to Oahu, the island on which Honolulu lies. The plane was anchored in Nawiliwili Bay, the port of Lihue. This anchorage is protected by a breakwater built by the government.

PATIALA: HOME OF A MODERN CROESUS

The richest ruler in the world—or so the Geneva shop-keepers assert—is the Maharajah of Patiala, who has been visiting the city as one of the Indian delegates to the League of Nations assembly.

If one's only previous knowledge of Patiala has been that its ruler is reputed to be fabulously wealthy, he will probably expect to find the state huge and tremendously productive, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The state is a little larger than Connecticut—by no means as extensive as others of the native states of India. It is subject to droughts, and, on their heels, famines. This situation has been bettered in recent years, however, by the construction of irrigation canals by the state, and by the digging of many wells.

The state lies in the eastern plains of the Punjab, and Patiala town, the capital, is within 50 miles of Simla, India's summer capital. One will look in vain on many maps for this state of a modern Croesus. Its identity is lost by being merged into the Phulkian States, of which the other two are, Jind and Nabha. Patiala is the big brother, however, taking up five-sevenths of the combined area.

Patiala is ruled by a Sikh house although these warrior religionists make up barely 22 per cent of the population. The Maharajah's local importance is great since he is the leading Sikh ruler of the Punjab. His ancestors were loyal to the British during the Indian mutiny, and the state's territory has been increased several times since by British cessions.

Operating a government is no sin in Patiala. The country has among its inhabitants certain castes and tribes whose members are professional criminals. Furthermore they are specialists. One tribe will devote itself to cattle rustling, another to housebreaking and a third to highway robbery. The population is backward in education, only 2.4 per cent being literate.

The Planet Mercury

Mercury is the smallest planet and the nearest to the sun, its mean distance being about 36,000,000 miles. It completes a revolution of its orbit in 88 days, and its diameter is about 3,000 miles. Its mass is about one-eighteenth that of the earth, and its density the same as that of the earth. Mercury is difficult to see with the naked eye owing to its proximity to the sun. Tele- scopically it is of little interest. Faint marks can be seen on its surface, but all are indefinite.

Secret of "Bigness"

To know how to fix the mind fully and squarely on the subject presented, involving duty, obligation or responsibility, and be able to act without hesitation or wavering, is an accomplishment that distinguishes the "bigger" man. It's the big men who do the big things in this world.—Grit.

A Price Reduction —and its result

A year ago Packard reduced the price of Packard Six closed cars nearly one thousand dollars.

The result—more than twice as many Packard Six cars were sold in 1925 as in 1924.

Seventy percent of the Packard Six cars sold in 1925 were bought by those who never before had owned a high grade motor car.

Thousands of these new owners bought their cars on the payment plan, the average payment seldom exceeding $150 per month.

If you have a car at present, please let us examine it. If it is marketable we will apply our purchase price against the down payment on a new car.

Many bought Packard Six cars last year without paying out more than $200 in cash at any one time.

And those who bought, and who if necessary made any sacrifices to get their cars, have no payments to make this year—or the next—or the next.

The average Packard Six owner expects to keep his car nearly three times as long as the car he traded in.

And he will. Ninety-eight percent of those who bought Packard Six cars during the past six years have never left the Packard family.

Thousands who wanted Packard cars last spring could not get them. The demand was far greater than the supply.

One sure way to get a Packard Six this spring is to order it now.

May we tell you more about the Packard Six and the financial ease with which you may have one?

The Packard Six five passenger sedan with all necessary accessories including spare tire, with freight and tax paid, sells for $2811 at your door.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

Anybody who observes our public schools closely hear stories of the good or bad record of children, in their studies. Teachers from a large city with an enormous foreign population told a relative of the Spectator's that they had never seen such obedient industry as that of Russian children. If a lesson could be mastered in two hours the young Russian gave three hours, if that was not sufficient another hour, perhaps more was added. There came to mind one of the brightest lads the Spectator ever knew, who seemed to learn everything without effort, and the easy acquirement proved injurious. When, in later years studies that were actually difficult presented themselves he had not the energy and perseverance necessary. Charles A. Dana surprised Carl Schurz by the correctness of his German. He, in return, was surprised by the high quality of English spoken by Schurz. "That is simple enough," said Schurz. "When I was studying English, no matter what I read I always made myself understand it before I tried to read anything else." Whatever trouble he took he was compensated. No foreign-born citizen ever wrote or spoke our tongue better than Carl Schurz, and many native-born citizens envied him.

Here is something on which the Spectator has heard several Winchester comment, but which no one explained. During the World War we did not see a single mimic fort of boyish construction. The Spanish war displayed them on many a vacant lot. But there were many boys and girls, too, who in the World War served their country by selling bonds, and we did not hear of that in the days of our war with Spain.

There are various kinds of homicide in law. If the victim is killed with intent, even though the intent be formed only at the moment the blow is struck or the shot fired, it becomes murder. And if the death is caused while the killer is engaged in an unlawful act it is also murder. Every time the Spectator sees a motorist exceeding the speed limit on Winchester highways he knows that under the foregoing definition if one of these motorists runs down and kills a pedestrian he is a murderer. We have just read in the papers how a motorist in a nearby city ran down and killed a boy. This motorist fled when the deed was done, indicating a callous indifference characteristic only of those with no sense of moral responsibility. If there was not intent to kill at the moment the victim was struck, there certainly was consent to his death. If the motorist had stopped his car and sought to succor his victim, there would have been extenuating circumstances but it would have been murder just the same. Several reckless drivers who have killed people in the street have been sent to prison. But those who have thus far escaped do not seem to have taken the warning to heart. Every motorist who exceeds the speed limit is a potential is not strong for the people who are neither at you. He believes that "He that is not with me is against me." The Spectator is like the fellow who was going along a rocky trail and met a bear. He could not climb because it was too steep, he did not dare run because he knew the bear would get him. So he prayed: "O Lord, be with me and not the bear; but if you are also with the bear and not with me, you're going to see the cross-eyed fight you ever seen in your life." We do not believe that the cause of Prohibition is too just to fight for, but we do believe that our cause is just, and so the Spectator is going to continue to fight for Prohibition. Certain people tell us that there is no such thing as a temperance crank. Temperance as they see it is not indulging in alcoholic liquors at all. The following is a copy of a small red bridge before the Spectator: "Temperance Celebration, Boston Common (picture of the Frog Pond Fountain), June 17, 1865.

"Tis here we pledge perpetual hate To all that can intoxicate."

So it appears that 60 years ago there must have been some of those "awful Prohibitionists running loose." In the Spectator's day he has had bartenders tell him how they were total abstainers and how they often remarked about the "d—d folks who spent their money for liquor." They know better than to drink the stuff they dealt out over the bar.

WINTER AND SPRING

(Written for the Winchester Star)

Trembling she lies, wrapped in a wreath of woe,
Upon her bed of snow.
Frost, her pale sister, doth cold Kisses now
Bestow upon her brow;
While sobbing over, prophetic of her bane,
Proclaim the mother's pain.
Ere Death has laid his hand upon her eyes,
Breaking upon her sighs,
A feeble cry, childish and faint arose
From out that bed of mows.
Love here—and gain: a mother's death did bring Life to the infant Spring.
—Eugene Bertram Willard

"The Cup That Cheers"

On September 25 occurred the two hundred sixty-fifth anniversary of the day when Samuel Pepys had his first "dash of tea."

Only 27 years earlier the very first cup of tea ever drunk in England is recorded as having been prepared at Arlington house, which then occupied the site on which Buckingham palace now stands.

The earl of Arlington bought the tea in Holland and gave 60 shillings a pound for it, a sum which today would be represented by at least 20 pounds.

The drink that was a curiosity less than 800 years ago is now our chief beverage.—London Answers.

COLOGNE: A GERMAN CITY ADVERTISED BY THE FRENCH

Cologne, the Rhineland metropolis now being evacuated by the British Army of Occupation, presents the paradox of a thoroughly German city whose best advertisers are the French, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The toilet water, named for the French translation of Cologne's original Latin name, the bulletin continues, has become a synonym for scented liquids in both French and English. The Germans call their city Köln, and although they sometimes refer to its chief products as Kölnisches Wasser, they, too, have generally adopted the French eau de cologne, as have also the English speaking peoples.

An Outpost of Rome

Cologne, founded in 38 B. C., is one of the most ancient German cities. Rome made it the administrative seat of her holdings in South Germany, surrounding the city with formidable walls and embellishing it with an even more formidable name, Colonia Claudia Ara Agrippinensis. The wear and tear of the centuries, however, made short shrift of both wall and name. As the city expanded far beyond its walls, its name shrank in proportion until only Colonia, meaning colony, was left. Gallicized, this became Cologne which has also been adopted as the English form; Germanized it was contracted to Köln.

In its stately Gothic cathedral, one of the largest in the world, Cologne has perhaps an even greater claim for world consideration than its age-long perfume supremacy. Begun in 1248, this magnificent edifice languished for six centuries and was not completed until 1863. For a long time Cologne was referred to jestingly as the City of the Eternal Cathedral, just as Washington, D. C., was once dubbed the City of Magnificent Distances. As in Washington's case, time has boomeranged the taunt. Those who have beheld the wealth of detail and the harmony of its proportions, despite its immensity, agree there is something memorable about Cologne's cathedral today that can be expressed in no better fashion than with the one-time bandinage.

Cologne's cathedral has often been compared with Milan's. Though the floor area is smaller than that of the Italian city's shrine, the German builders, more at home in the Gothic style, have achieved the Gothic upward sweep to perhaps its greatest perfection in Cologne. The twin spires, each nearly as tall as the Washington Monument, tower over the swift-flowing Rhine like fingers pointing the city to Heaven. The whole enormous mass of grey-stone masonry is enlivened with a profusion of turrets, spires, flying buttresses, gargoyles, galleries, elaborately carved cornices and fluted columns.

The St. Louis of Germany Cologne is Germany's greatest river port and one of its major railroad centers. It is the St. Louis of Germany in this respect. In addition to being a port of registry for the Rhine-to-the-sea traffic, it has also profited through the development, in recent years, of direct lines of small cargo steamers to England, Scandinavia, and the Baltic. Under the graceful, arched Iron Bridge that connects Cologne with the east bank of the Rhine pass incredibly long strings of barges, lumber rafts, barge-steamers, and black and white-funnelled passenger boats.

As a manufacturing center Cologne has given its name, like Venice, to several articles of commerce. In addition to toilet water there is, for instance, Cologne brown, a brown coal, or lignite, used as a pigment in paints, Cologne ware, a plain, hard stone-ware, mottled gray and brown, which is made into ornamental tankards and jugs; Cologne spirit, a rectified liquid containing 96 per cent alcohol; Cologne thread and Cologne blades. The city reflects its commercial prosperity in numerous wide, tree-lined boulevards, fine shops and store and imposing stone mansions. Most of the old, crooked, alleylike thoroughfares of 50 years ago have disappeared, although there are still a few picturesque sections, with ancient gabled house fronts and twisting gas-lighted streets. Of the old city walls only the gate towers remain.

Italian Started Perfume Trade

The toilet water, or eau de cologne, from which the city derives its international fame, is said to have been manufactured first in 1709, by an Italian, Johann Maria Farina. The industry grew slowly but steadily, and in 1819 there were 60 firms engaged in bottling this compound of alcohol and aromatic oils. It was the French, however, who commercialized the product, popularized the French translation of its name, and placed it on the market. Eau de cologne is now manufactured in many other parts of the world.

Although the final evacuation of Cologne by the allied Forces will doubtless bring about a restoration of its original Rhenish flavor, American and British visitors who have been long away from home will have at least one regret. For in Cologne, under British occupation, English was spoken and understood extensively. British Tommies patrolling the streets could direct the hungry Anglo-Saxon to a Church of England Institute where genuine ham and eggs, coffee (large cup) and bread (not rolls) could be had.

Really Great Sixes Bred of the Same Quality

$945 to $1995

f. o. b. Cleveland

TWO great automobiles today stand side by side as outstanding examples of real quality at popular prices.

One is Chandler, the other is Cleveland, both beautiful with all the higher phases of beauty—and both headliners in superb performance.

Each is built in its own great plant, yet both have behind them the same invested money—the same policies of sound progress—the same elevated ideals of modern-day engineering.

The Story of Chandler

The 1926 Chandler goes as far with luxury as luxury can go without turning into extravagance. Yet Chandler prices start as low as $1495 and only range to $1995.

Think of a real 4-door Sedan—of Chandler quality, Chandler beauty, Chandler power and Chandler comfort—priced only $1495! It is the Chandler leader, the new Twentieth Century Sedan.

Progressive body-building built the body. Long years of experience perfected the chassis. Years of tests and actual contests made its championship Pikes Peak Motor what it is today. The whole world knows Chandler for performance.

Chandler now has the push-the-plunger convenience of "One Shot" Chassis Lubrication. You can spend the next three months driving all automobiles and not find one that is easier or pleasanter to handle—and not one near the price that can rival it.

The Story of Cleveland

The new Cleveland Six, ranging from $945 to $1345, gives just about fifteen to twenty cents more value per dollar than the average automobile dollar buys today.

You can figure it out yourself. Just look at the new Model 31 Four-Door Sedan, at $1000. Then look at other cars of similar price, and simply compare size, richness, power. Then look at other cars of similar size, richness and power—and just compare prices!

Here's a car your eyes like to linger on—a car of man-size dimensions—a car with a motor of extraordinary power—a car that has stepped right out and walked away with first honors in many wide-open performance contests.

What's more, it has, as all Cleveland Six models have, the famous "One Shot" Lubrication System. A press of the heel on a plunger and the car's all oiled—as simply as all that. The price, we repeat, is only $1000!

So here they are together, Chandler and Cleveland—your choice of a great choice of models from $945 all the way to $1995. For the sake of good buying, see them.

TRAIN TIME CHANGES MONDAY

New changes on the steam road go into effect Monday. Although this is not a customary season for railroad time changes, it is reported that an effort is being made to speed up the late evening trains and to give some of the more distant places better service.

Winchester will be affected in the change to the extent of seven trains, one afternoon and the rest on the night schedule. The present Boston bound train leaving at 3:31 p. m. will leave Winchester at 3:48, while the present 9:20 train will be set back one hour and leave at 10:20. This will leave a period of over three hours without an inward train—from 7:08 to 10:20. The last train in at night on the present schedule, the 10:39, will be discontinued, while the 10:34 will run in 16 minutes.

Changes in outward trains are as follows: The train leaving Boston at 9:05 p. m. will leave at 9:30, while the 10:30 will be set back nearly an hour to 11:20, leaving no outward train from 9:30 to 11:20 p. m. The present train leaving at 11:35 will also be discontinued, making the 11:20 the last train out at night.

The Sunday trains remain as they now are. New timetables of convenient pocket size may be obtained of the Winchester Trust Co., and Edward T. Harrington Co.

MISS BARNES SHOWERED

Miss Frances Barnes of 2 Fenwick road, was pleasantly surprised on the evening of March 4 by being tendered a shower at the home of her friend, Miss Mildred Hamilton, where she had been invited, supposedly to discuss such important matters as bridesmaids' dresses, etc. She was then skillfully maneuvered into a room where some two dozen friends gleefully awaited her. That the affair was a complete surprise was evident. The shower was of a miscellaneous nature, which greatly added to the suspense and interest of opening each parcel. Dainty refreshments were served, and a delightful evening passed. It is rumored that entertainment of a very popular nature was dispensed by a local expert.

THE OXUS: WHERE RUSSIA HAS HALTED FOR HALF A CENTURY

The world is taking a new interest in the Oxus River which figured in the war news back in the days of Alexander and his conquering generals. Recent dispatches report the seizure by Soviet soldiers of an Afghan post on the river. The region is described in the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

The Oxus River has the distinction of standing longer as a Russian boundary in southwest Asia than any other natural feature, says the bulletin. One of the outstanding bits of empire-building during the nineteenth century was the glacierlike but sure advance of Russia toward India, an advance that profoundly affected British diplomacy and kept British military men constantly on a nervous tension. Khokand was gobbled up in 1863, Bokhara in 1868, and Khiva in 1873. Some people had visions of a great Russian army some day swarming through the Khyber Pass on to the plains of India in an effort to make that peninsula a part of the Muscovite dominions.

Fixed by Russo-British Commission. To combat this possibility Great Britain sought to encourage a strong Afghan state as a buffer. By 1885 she induced Russia to join her in the formation of a Russo-Afghan boundary commission which settled on the Oxus as the boundary between the two countries, for some 680 miles of its length. Since then there have been battles of British and Russian commercial and political agents, each trying to gain the ascendancy in Afghanistan; but the Oxus has remained the physical boundary between Russian and Afghan territory.

The Oxus, or Amu Darya as it is called locally, rises in the lofty Pamirs near the common corner of Russian, Afghan, and Chinese territory. For nearly 500 miles it runs through a narrow, deep gorge. Then the mountainous banks fall back, and it becomes suddenly a river of the plains, a character which it keeps for its remaining 200 miles as the Russo-Afghan border, as well as for the final 500 miles during which it strikes across the Bokharan and Khivan plains to the Sea of Aral.

Valley Irrigated

On the Bokharan side, the Oxus Valley, after the river leaves its gorge, is more fertile than on the Afghan side. Reed swamps border the stream on the latter side. Then comes a strip of willow and tamarisk jungle which extends to the edge of the flood plain where the elevated desert begins. There is much game in this jungle, and even tigers. At places, however, the Afghans have cleared the immediate river valley, have constructed irrigation works, and carefully cultivate the land.

The world has learned few details of happenings in the Oxus Valley in recent years. Afghanistan is a self-elected hermit, a buffer for news as well as for politics; and little information has leaked out through Soviet Russia. Before the World War Russia had built the long Trans-Caspian railway through her southern Asiatic dominions and had run one branch line to the non-Oxus border of Afghanistan near the northeastern corner of Persia.

A second branch was under construction from Bokhara to the Oxus, and for the past few years this road has been shown on maps as completed through Kalif on the Oxus, along the river to Termez, about midway of the northern Afghan border. Recent British information, however, was to the effect that the road would be completed early this year. The report of a Russian-Afghan clash about coincided with the supposed time of completion of the road. The statement that the Afghan post seized was on an island points, too, to the Kalif-Termiz region, where the river's biggest island is situated. It is even asserted that the capture of the island is preliminary to the bridging of the Oxus and the extension of the railway into present Afghan territory. So far the Amir of Afghanistan has stood adamantly against all suggestions that his territory be de-filed with rails.

Queer Horse-Drawn Ferry

At Kalif is the most used Oxus ferry. Horsepower is employed in this ferry in a unique way. From the front of a large flat-boat two poles extend out over the water. A rope is suspended from the end of each pole and tied to a belly-band, passed around a horse. Thus the ferry supports the animals, and they, swimming at ease, tow the loaded boat from bank to bank.

At Kalif the Oxus has hard banks on both sides and the stream maintains a permanent width of about 540 yards. Elsewhere the river varies greatly with the seasons. In flood it is from 1000 yards to a mile wide. Its winter width is much less. River steamers ascend the stream to the Merv-Bokhara railway bridge about 180 miles down stream from the Afghan boundary, and have been an important factor in Russia's transportation system in southwestern Asia.

Retrospect

In looking backward over life I sometimes see much of sadness, and feel life to be a rather sorrowful thing; but far, far oftener it is the laughter that I hear, and it is smiling faces that I look into now. Even men who were late in life, even the memories of merciless drivers, are softened for the reason that time effaces their evil, bringing out more and more whatever of pleasantness they had in them. There were very, very few indeed who meant the evil. At a late time, time shall give them the benefit of the doubt.

Judgment is a poor thing as from man toward man, isn't it? Though I have known human devils, for whom in my heart I can find no respect or love, perhaps the Almighty can. I do not doubt that such is the case, and to Him I will leave the judgments. —Bill Adams in Adventure Magazine.

Mr. Thomas McCormick of Chapin court, a well known employee of Rogers Bake Shop, was host to a large number of his friends on last Sunday evening at his home, the occasion being his 17th birthday. Guests were present from Everett, Woburn and Boston, as well as from Winchester. Refreshments were served and a general good time was enjoyed before the party finally broke up, the guests departing at a late hour wishing the young man many happy birthdays.

WAS MOTHER OF DR. DENNETT

Mrs. Sarah J. Dennett of Portland, Me., who died last Friday, was the mother of Dr. Daniel C. Dennett, well known physician of this town. She was 88 years of age and the widow of Liberty B. Dennett, and had been ill for several months. She was the oldest member of the Professional Women's Club of Portland.

Mrs. Dennett had made her home in Portland for 65 years. She was born in Stratham, N. H., and was a member and past president of the Beecher Club and Metaphysical Club. Her daughter, Miss Abbie G. Dennett, is president of the BPW of Portland at the present time.

Mrs. Dennett was a woman of extraordinary mentality. She had been a frequent contributor to newspapers and magazines, and even within the past year, in spite of her advanced age, has had newspaper articles published expressing her views on important questions. A school teacher in her youth, she had returned to a marked extent the habits of mind of her profession. Her judgment on public affairs was exceedingly sound, her viewpoint always just and impartial, and she had an honesty of outlook that was exceedingly rare. She was a remarkably well informed woman and an authority on a wide range of subjects, which included botany, astronomy, economics and politics.

Her remarkably vigorous mentality had remained unimpaired to the very end, and even within the last few months she had been able to hold her own in informal discussion of public questions.

Mrs. Dennett is survived by two sons, Dr. Daniel C. of this town, and Dr. Charles A. of Sebago, Me., formerly of Arlington, two daughters, Miss Annie and Mrs. Elizabeth I. of Portland; one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth D. Alton of Santa Monica, Cal.; and two brothers, Rev. W. E. Dennett of Providence and Dr. A. G. Dennett of Lowell.

National Guard

The allotment of National Guardsmen given to a state was determined by a general board which convened for the purpose of allocation of those units. The allotment, although primarily based on population, took into consideration other factors as well.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Herbert A. Wilson, police commissioner of Boston, reports a reduction in the number of arrests for drunkenness in that city, during the year 1925. The 1924 figures, 39,536, were reduced to 37,944 in 1925, a decrease of 1592. A nearly fifty per cent decrease has been noted since prohibition became operative, the number of arrests in 1917 having reached 73,393. The fact that the 1924 figure was an increase of 558 over the preceding year, shows in the 1925 total an actual drop of 2150.

Mr. Herbert C. Parsons, Massachusetts probation commissioner, points out that dry violators are not only a segregated minority, but that this very minority is composed of two-thirds repeaters, or those who have been arrested time and again for similar offenses, but who are counted separately on the police blotters. Consequently, the number remaining of liquor addicts represents only a little more than one-third individual persons, which compared with the vast number of law-abiding citizens of the community, leaves only an unimportant minority seeking to defeat the will of the majority. When it is considered that Boston is a city of 800,000 inhabitants, it may readily be understood that its liquor law violators are a very small percentage of the population.

Mothers of children between the ages of seven and 14 are urged to send their children to the patriotic temperance meeting in the Baptist Church vestry on Sunday, March 21, at 8 p. m.

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

The people of the Second Congregational Church celebrated the 20th Anniversary of the founding of their church over the week-end of March 12.

On Friday evening the Annual Roll Call Supper was held. About 120 people were served. After the Roll was called and the members had responded, appropriate greetings were read by the Pastor from many old friends of the church.

Deacon William J. Nutting acted as toastmaster. There were many guests present, including Rev. and Mrs. Adriaance, Rev. Reed, Rev. and Mrs. Hook, Deacon Hale, Mr. Bourne, Mr. Sewall, President of the Home Missionary Society, Rev. A. Merrick Parker, a former Winchester man, who is now a pastor in Plymouth County, Mr. John McLean of Stoneham and Mr. and Mrs. Field. These friends of the church congratulated the people upon what they had accomplished through their faith in God and their co-operation with one another. Music was furnished by the choir.

On Saturday evening an informal reception was held under the auspices of the Bethany Society. The charter members and the officers of the church were in the receiving line.

The speakers of the evening were Miss Grace Lawrence, who has been interested in the church since its organization, and Mrs. Richard Taylor, a former president of the Bethany Society.

Solos were rendered by Miss Jean MacLellan, accompanied by Miss Margaret Copland. At the conclusion of the addresses the guests joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne" after which refreshments were served. The feature of the evening was a large birthday cake decorated with 20 candles.

At the regular Sunday morning service, Miss Laura Tolman, Superintendent of the Sunday School gave an interesting address on the "Relation of the Sunday School to the Church."

Mr. Arthur A. Belville, clerk of the church gave a historic review of the church from 1906 to 1916. The years from 1916 to 1926 were reviewed by the Pastor, Rev. John E. Whitley.

Letters were read from Rev. Charles A. S. Dwight of New York, Rev. William Frying of Connecticut, Rev. Warren Landers of East Milton, Rev. Clarence Dunham of Dorchester, all former pastors of this church, and Rev. D. Augustine Newton of Barre, Vt.

In the evening, representatives from the Winchester churches were present and brought greetings and congratulations from their people.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Raymond Caulkins, D. D., of Cambridge, son of the moderator, who organized the church.

Special music was rendered by the Lenten choir under the direction of

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Isn't it true that sometimes the things our life misses, are more helpful than the things it gets.

Every trial endured and weathered in a right spirit makes a soul nobler and stronger than it was before.

Never forget that you were once for a whole year a 10 year old kid.

The very best way to get cheerful when you feel bad, is to smile. You can always see the sun even if the sky is overcast.

Don't get sorry for yourself,
there are always others for you to feel sorry for.

PRINCIPLES IN PUNISHMENT DISCUSSED

"When shall we punish?" and "how shall we punish?" are two of the questions arising in a group discussion of child training held at the State Department of Public Health recently. It was unanimously agreed that the act committed by a child is not important; that the motive behind the act should be considered. For example a child who breaks a dish in the effort to be helpful by drying the dishes should not be punished for the breaking of the dish.

There was some difference of opinion as to method of punishment, some of the group favoring spanking and others against it. It was agreed, however, that the child should not be scared by threats, that regular mealtime should not be upset, that punishment should follow directly upon the act and not be postponed.

The following rule for child training was offered:

"When you refuse, refuse finally
When you consent, consent gladly
When you punish, punish good-naturedly Praise often,
Scold seldom."

The regular meeting of Winchester Lodge of Elks Tuesday night drew a large crowd, over 275 being present. The initiatory work was performed by Newton Lodge of Elks, some 50 members of that lodge accompanying their officers. A feature of the evening was the showing of a series of colored stereoscopic views by Secretary John Ward of Medford Lodge of Elks. These pictures were taken during his recent trip around the world, and were notably beautiful and interesting, many unusual views being presented. Mrs. Abbie G. Late Fall Flower

The last fall flower is the November blossom of the witch hazel, or, as it is sometimes called, "the frost flower." It looks like an ice crystal in shape and color and can be found low on the ground among the brown stubble. This sturdy blossom is not in the least like the fragile summer flower of the witch hazel. It never grows to more than three inches in height, so must ordinarily be sought for before it is found.—Grit.

ESTHONIA: NEWEST FRIEND OF UNCLE SAM

One of the most recent treaties to be signed by the United States with a foreign country was with the Republic of Estonia, one of the young nations which resulted from the World War. It provides that amity shall exist between the two countries and arrangements for the maintenance of commercial relations.

Estonia is usually lumped by Americans with its sister republics of Latvia and Lithuania as slices of old Russia inhabited by pretty much the same people, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. But each has an individuality of its own and a decidedly non-Russian individuality. The Estonians have nothing in common racially with the peoples to the south, but are close cousins of the Finns, northward across the Gulf of Finland.

America Contributes Gulf Stream and Potatoes

Though situated in northern Europe, Estonia is tempered by the far-faring Gulf Stream, and is an important agricultural country. Another thing of American origin—the potato—has made its deep mark on Estonia, and it has even been called flippantly, the Potato Republic. As a source of alcohol the potato has been most important economically to the country. Every large estate has its own distillery, and before the World War great quantities of the potent liquid were exported.

Russia was reluctant to have Estonia set up housekeeping on its own account. The country, about as large as New Hampshire and Vermont combined, blocks a considerable section of Western Russia, whereas it formed before a natural outlet for the larger country. The Estonian railways have already played an important part in moving produce to and from Russia; and if conditions become stabilized in the latter country, Estonia should regularly collect a tidy sum as a transit agent.

Oppressed for Centuries

The Estonians, like other submerged peoples of Europe have a tragic history. After they settled in their present country and enjoyed independence for a few centuries, they were conquered by German knights who took all the land and made the Estonians serfs. Seldom have a people been subjected to such pitiless oppression. The German barons (they came to be called Balt barons) had the power of life and death over their serfs, and openly bought and sold them as late as the days of the American Revolution. After Estonia passed to Russia in 1710 the Russians left the Balts pretty much in control for a century and a half. Serfdom passed, but the Estonians even at the time of the World War, were for the most part a nation of down-trodden peasants.

Violent readjustments were inevitable. After the Russian Revolution, the Bolshevik coup, and the proclamation of Estonian independence, the new republic set about what its leaders described as righting the wrongs of 700 years. The Estonians, making up 92 per cent of the population, seized the great estates of the Balts (who constitute one and a half per cent of the population) and parceled them out among peasant proprietors. The country's agriculture was thus placed on an entirely new footing, but the most recent statistics seem to show that production is holding its own.

Spire's Record History

Reval, known to the Estonians as Tallin, is Estonia's greatest port and city. It has existed for 700 years. With Helsingfors across the Gulf, it formed Tsarist Russia's gateway and first line of naval defense to Petrograd; but to Estonia, its commercial possibilities seem brightest.

As first seen from shipboard, Reval's skyline is an epitome of the forces that have been at work upon Estonia. On a hill which rises above the town is a citadel wall reminiscent of the Germans who took the country by the sword. On this height too are the homes of many of the Balt nobles who have descended from the German invaders. From the same hill a clump of Gothic steeples pierces the sky, recalling the Swedish invasion and the Lutheran religion which most of the Estonians profess. Within the circle of sharp spires are the queerly shaped, gilded domes of an orthodox Russian church, speaking of the efforts at Russification which never bore much fruit. In the lower town are the homes of the Estonians—the stratum from which the people have literally risen to take over the affairs of their country.

In addition to its agricultural actualities, Estonia has numerous industrial possibilities. Already some of its water-power is harnessed, and at Narva, near the Russian border is one of the largest cotton mills in the world. Much of the land is still covered by forests, and the timber and wood-pulp industries are important. Millions of tons of oil-shale exist in the country, and is made the basis for considerable development. Gas companies in the cities manufacture their product from the shale, fuel oils are distilled from it, and the oily rock itself is burned in some steam plants and even in furnaces to warm buildings.

JAPANESE APARTMENT HOUSES AND SOME OTHERS

Tokyo is to have an American apartment house, the first erected in that city of five million inhabitants and considerable congestion. The Japanese government itself has advanced part of the money for the construction of the building, which is looked upon as an important experiment in adapting to Japan Western methods of meeting housing difficulties.

Japan's turning to the apartment house does not present a strange picture, after all, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society, commenting on this latest building project in Nippon.

Apartment Houses Not New

The apartment house is by no means a new housing device, except in our particular development of it, along lines of comfort, convenience and luxury. In all ages and in many parts of the world, congestion in cities has been a major factor in driving different families to share a common roof. China may be taken as the shining exception which proves this rule, for although the units of her teeming population have been treading on one another's toes for many centuries, few of them have forsaken the individual dwelling.

Babylon has been suggested as the home of the first apartment house or tenement; yet that first world metropolis may have repeated merely the reaction to population pressure shown by other cities, lost beyond the horizon of history. Ancient Rome had two and three-story tenements of brick and stucco, but they disappeared long ago, and some of their sites no doubt support today modern community dwellings. In the ghettos and other sections of medieval European cities, families found it necessary to occupy dwellings jointly just as they do today in London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna and dozens of other cities of the Old World.

U. S. Fertile Field For Apartment Houses

It is in the United States, however, that apartment houses seem to have found their ultimate development in quantity, quality, volume and height. Not only do they line the Fifth Avenue and the Michigan Boulevards of the population centers, but they are springing up as well along the Main streets of countless small towns where congestion has not yet been felt. The American desire to get a thing done efficiently and quickly is another cause for the marked trend toward apartment house life.

Apartment houses early came into existence outside cities as well as in them. The need of association for protection was doubtless the chief reason for the rise of the isolated community dwelling. Probably very early in man's history, in regions where the facilities were suitable, groups of families found it safest to occupy natural or artificial caves in the same cliff face, so that alarms might be spread easily and so that the full man-power of the community might be easily marshaled in times of danger. Such dwellings probably constituted the world's earliest apartment houses.

Early Community Homes In Our Southwest

In America these safety apartments had a somewhat different development at a much later date. The Cliff Dwellings of the Southwest were occupied not by savages, but by a people of considerable culture. Nor were their dwellings mere caves. Structures of excellent masonry were built on the ledges of cliffs under overhanging cornices.

The Pueblos, still occupied today, belong to a second type of American apartment house. These are usually constructed on a flat-topped hill or mesa and consist of a more or less jumbled pile of rooms built of adobe or mud brick. To still another type, most closely resembling the apartment house of today, belonged the great masonry structures such as Pueblo Bonito in Chaco Canyon, New Mexico, which in its heyday, centuries ago, housed 1200 people. The exploration and partial restoration of this great dwelling by the National Geographic Society has disclosed numerous private apartments and public rooms of excellent construction.

Typical Japanese House of Wood and Paper

Tokyo's new American type apartment with its thick concrete walls, sound-proof partitions, plumbing and hot-water heat will be in striking contrast to the usual type of Japanese dwelling. The latter has a sturdier skeleton than our frame houses, and outer walls of boards, but its interior partitions are of the frailest construction. They are, in fact, more properly screens than walls. They usually consist of a number of frames covered with decorated paper. These panels may be slid quickly to one side or entirely removed, making it possible to throw the entire interior of the house into one room or to have a series of apartments. Even the outer walls facing gardens are often removable.

The typical Japanese home has no chimney. Cooking is done on small stoves with charcoal, and one keeps warm by putting on additional padded clothing and by sitting near a small brazier—perhaps an individual one—also using charcoal for fuel.

LIKIN: CHINESE DRAGON THAT AMERICA WOULD KILL

American representatives have laid before the great powers and China a proposal to free China from foreign restrictions on tariff levies in return for abolition of the likin.

The real dragon of modern China, is the likin, in the opinion of foreign traders and many Chinese, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. The abolition of a similar tax by the Constitution of the United States helped save the Union. The Americans at Peking may be doing for China what George Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Franklin and others did for the colonies at Philadelphia in 1787. It was not until 1870 that the likin was abolished within the German Union.

Taxes Levied in Transit
The nearest equivalent which English has for the Chinese word likin is per cent. That is, a tax apportioned according to thousands. It has taken on a different meaning in the course of years until now a likin station is known as a squeeze station. Likin stations are toll posts where taxes are levied on goods in transit. While some of the collections made at the squeeze stations go to the central government, most of the revenue falls into the hands of the provincial governors or the district mandarins.

From Shanghai to Soochow it is 84 miles and goods going from one city to the other have to pass eight likin stations. At the first and last stations all goods are dutiable; at the rest all goods must be examined, and there is scarcely a single article that does not in that transit pay at least three taxes.

If Applied to America

If a parallel system were set up on the New York-Philadelphia highway, all the motor trucks would be compelled to stop at customs stations in New York, Hoboken, Newark, Elizabeth, New Brunswick, Princeton, Trenton and Philadelphia. At each station the entire contents of the truck would be ransacked and the drivers would be compelled to pay a certain sum. Obviously the road run of a few hours would lengthen into a day or two. The expense of tax and time would put a burden on business which would be shifted to the consumer. In the end commerce by truck would be smothered. This cycle is complete in China where foreign goods commonly penetrate only a brief distance from the free treaty ports, and even domestic trade dribbles along in anaemic fashion.

Unlike most Chinese creations, the likin is not old. It was invented about 1850 to raise money for the support of the army suppressing the Taiping rebellion. Its success as a source of cash soon recommended it to governors of various towns and provinces. These officials are always pushed to acquire personal and civic finances. They knew as well as anyone that in the past money which went to Peking stayed in Peking. Likin offered a satisfactory answer. Continued existence of likin recognizes that China is a collection of semi-independent states such as the United States and Germany were when in embryo.

The problem of the likin has been up before international councils before. Agreements have been made that foreign traders could purchase through transit tickets for their goods at the point of departure which free shipments from likin toll. But even in the recent meetings of the conference there have been reports that provincial war lords have ignored these pacts. They were charged with levying double and triple likin to support their armies.

Two boys, eight and eleven, started out of the city to explore the world. Both were barefooted. It is the way of explorers—always forgetting something.—Public Ledger.

CRUSADER TOWNS IN NEWS DISPATCHES

Dispatches from Syria tell of political prisoners being sent to Ruad, and mention other places which emerge into the day's news, after lying in the back waters of world history since the time of the Crusades.

In a communication to the National Geographic Society Maynard Owen Williams tells of a recent trip he made through this historic, but almost forgotten, region.

As one comes up to Tartus from the south, having left the ruins of Marathus behind and drawn a sort of coast circle around the shoreward side of Ruad, the most prominent feature of the landscape is a huge Crusader church bulking large above the town. The interior, when one has entered it, through a small breach in the age-browned wall, color of crumbling newspaper falling away from some treasure it enveloped, or of nut brown mummy wrapping, the interior is pleasing in its grace. Time, however, has worn finger holes in the once rounded columns and it resembles the workshop of a carnival committee or a pageant board because artless battlements, zig-sawed from thin lumber, fill one corner.

Mosque Is Deserted

The Crusader Church stands alone between flat-roofed houses and the fertile plain, edged with spiny cactus. On the right hand forward corner there is a small tower erected where there were plans of making a mosque of this vast barn of a building. But Tartus is small and a mosque, like a cafe, is at its best when embellished with humans compacted together. A great face, high under upturned domes, may need only the complement of a lowly, kneeling figure, to make it a house of worship. The mosque, lacking the Presence, needs a more companionable upholstery of living beings in it. So the church, no longer church, is saved from the desecration of non-Christian worship and abandoned to the desecration of dirt.

In the walled town (the roadway from the south enters a hole hacked in Phoenician masonry coeval with Solomon's temple perhaps) there is a Crusader's Hall, the outside of which runs along one side of the square. But search as I would, no matter how many Moslem women or village boys guided me about, I was not able to see the inside of this hall, now divided among many owners.

A little farther on, its megalithic foundations sloping to the disused moat, there is a former church now a mosque, with a really fine minaret proclaiming its presence. Above the arched doorway a cross has given way to a sort of trefoil which disguises the effacement, and the imam, handsome and commanding in presence, is so cordial a friend that one cannot begrudge him the privilege of instructing the youths in a narrow corridor of a room flanking the main hall.

The student may, if he will, trace the megalithic wall most of the way around the town. But to what purpose? Does counting stones awaken imagination? Or does one huge block, its cheek bulging beyond the carefully cut edges trimmed to a perfect line along the seam, betray the workmanship as akin to that which Hiram did for his Jewish friends on Mount Zion?

When Crusaders Sailed Home

Tartus was the last place on the mainland to be held by the Christians but it was from Ruad that the last of the Crusaders, giving up hope of Christianizing by the sword a land in which they had lived for two centuries, set sail for home. When the twentieth century fighters arrived to fight against the Turks and Germans Ruad was occupied by the French, and today its central castle, dominating the low lying island and in turn dominated by a lighthouse, is the prison of political prisoners.

Ruad stirs the imagination because, quarrying away its tiny coast line to construct a megalithic wall which dropped sheer to the surf, the Aradians shut themselves into a place where, lacking a fleet they would starve, but sailing forth from there they dominated the mainland as far as the Orontes, including the Nesariyeh hills, now inhabited by descendants of several mystic sects and those who gave the word assassin to the world.

Men Are Skilled Mariners

Today the men of Ruad are skillful mariners as of old and in the lee waters between the island and the mainland there are many small ships. These ships are all that turn the balance of trade in favor of the island, enabling it to live, for all the food is imported from the mainland. It is a tiny Britain around which one can row in half an hour and the boatman who ferried me across from Tartus in a heavy boat equipped with four oarsmen and a sail was glad to add a trip around Ruad to the ferry message for the promise of an extra 50 per cent added to the 75-cent fare which was the minimum for a direct crossing.

Tonight I sat in a Tartus cafe full of wuletene in conical felt caps, slouchy and comfortable, and town folks in tarbooshes well pressed and ruddy in the light.

THE WORLD'S MOST HAIR-RAISING KISS

What is the most famous stone in the world? Many patriotic Americans will advance the claims of Plymouth Rock. Englishmen will no doubt insist that it is the Stone of Scone, on which their kings are crowned, and on which tradition says Jacob pillowed his head. Scientists and scholars will vote for the Rosetta Stone, whose parallel columns of inscriptions unlocked the rich records of ancient Egypt.

But importance and fame are not necessarily synonymous. The man in the street will probably carry the vote overwhelmingly for the stone that is so well known that it has created a noun, an adjective, and a verb in the English language: the Blarney Stone.

Tourists Stream to Massive Tower
The owners of the Blarney Stone—and, incidentally, of Blarney Castle and Blarney estate—Sir George Col-

thurst, died recently, and the property has passed to his son of the same name. In connection with this change of ownership in Ireland's greatest tourist magnet, the following bulletin on the stone has been released from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Blarney—village, castle and stone—is geographically a sort of adjunct of the City of Cork, says the bulletin. But when one witnesses the haste of tourists to push on to the castle he is tempted to turn the relationship about and consider Cork as merely the convenient gateway to the romantically famous stone. The traveler bound for Blarney journeys five miles northwest from Cork, then 125 feet up winding stone stairs to the top of the massive castle tower. The latter dimension is far the more important; for in order to kiss the bit of rock one must hang head down, someone holding on to his legs, with nothing between him and the ground but a few feathery, impotent tree-tops, far below. Romantic philanthropists to the contrary notwithstanding, this is probably the world's most hair-raising and goose-flesh producing kiss.

Walls 18 Feet Thick

Blarney Castle was built in the 15th century as a great family fortress, that of the MacCarthys, chieftains of Munster. Homes had to withstand sieges in those days, and the tower of Blarney was built to be siege-proof. The walls are 18 feet thick in places, and the stairway rises between the outer and inner faces. At the top is an overhanging cornice with open spaces in the floor outside the main tower walls. Through these openings the defenders dropped on besiegers who came close enough, stones, hot cinders, burning oil, molten lead, and other discouraging missiles. It is through one of these loop-holes that he who would kiss the Blarney Stone must be lowered.

The stone itself is one of the rectangular building blocks of which the tower is constructed and lies in the outer wall just below the overhanging structure. A noticeable depression has been worn in it by the hundreds of thousands of lips that have been pressed against it since the old legend in regard to it arose. The legend, so potent that it has worn down the old tower steps and has turned countless visitors upside down, is that he who kisses the stone will be endowed with irresistible eloquence—will receive "the gift of blarney."

First "Blarney" Used On English

The origin of the legend is a subject of dispute. One version has it that a MacCarthy, invested by an overwhelming English force, successfully put the English leader off month after month, each time offering a new and plausible excuse for a delay in surrendering the stronghold. Legends, too, have grown up about the origin of the stone. One asserts that it was brought to Ireland by Phoenician colonists, and had previously been a "mighty talisman" in both Syria and Carthage.

Because kissing the Blarney Stone is such a hair-raising experience, many who climb the narrow stairway to the top of the tower do not perform the rite, but their climb is not wholly in vain. From the tower one sees spread out miles of as lovely and peaceful a section of Ireland as is to be found: rolling hills; tiny, sparkling lakes; green woodlands; and here and there a quaint thatched-roofed cottage.

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

UP-TO-DATE MAGIC

A famous magician pours water from one pitcher into many glasses. In one glass the water turns red, in another blue, in another smoking and boiling, and in another to tinkling ice. Then he pours from the same pitcher into an empty flower pot—presto, a plant grows before the eyes. Last he sprinkles a huge vase from which a beautiful woman rises.

Yet no less magic comes daily from a prosaic gas holder—flame, ice, light, hot water, clean linen washed, dried and ironed by gas, and even clear air for city dwellers. The identical gas gives many gifts according to the appliance it goes into.

This, the marvelous magic of today—carried on by thousands of gas company workers, made possible by millions of hard earned dollars invested—eagerly waits to serve whenever you turn on the gas.

Are you enjoying all the service possible from this magic gas? You are welcome to come in any time and inspect the latest modern gas appliances for giving you greater gas service.

THE WHARF PLAYERS

Do the thousands of New Yorkers who journey over the continent know of a quaint fishing village with all the charm of the old world, situated on the tail-end of Cape Cod? It is called Provincetown and for years has been the summertime Mecca of artistic people—celebrities from every field of art. Within its boundaries are groups of young students making sketches of the fishing smacks and of the Portuguese people; solitary artists in crooked lanes painting before houses with gardens in a riot of bloom; novelists and poets dreaming of their chef-d'oeuvres; and musicians seeking new inspiration. The town also boasts of a theatre. It was originally an old fishing house situated on a wharf, and it has been transformed, through the enthusiasm of its president, Mary Bicknell, into a charming little playhouse bearing the delightful title, "The Wharf Players' Theatre." In the quaint narrow streets of this village delectable shops offer wares from all over the world. There one can buy ancient tavern tables from old England, Toile de Jouy screens from France, East Indian silks, imperial Russian robes, even Chinese idols, ugly and authentic. Treasures delightful and tempting! Provincetown is a town that lives, from its town crier to its modern artists' theatre, and yet there still prevails that old world charm. May it never die!—[The Connoisseur.

ADVOCATE CHILD HEALTH PROGRAM

The quarterly meeting of the Southern Middlesex Health Association was held today at the Everett High School in Everett. The Household Economics Department of the school provided a luncheon for the guests.

The plans of the Association for 1926 were discussed, especially the means of raising money for the new summer camp and the methods to be employed in the caring for more children than in previous years. It was motioned to stimulate and assist the State Department of Health in promoting the 10-year child health program.

Miss Anna W. Johnson, educational secretary of the State League spoke of the methods of promoting health education in high schools.

There were 35 representatives from the different towns in the Southern Middlesex district. Among those present were the following: Miss Anna W. Johnson of the State League; Mrs. C. C. White of Reading, Mrs. Margaret Mullaly of Stoneham, Miss Louise Clarke of Watertown, Mrs. Nina Barrows of Wilmington, Mrs. George A. Brown of Everett, Dr. H. A. Gale of Winchester, Mrs. R. R. Perry of Arlington, Mrs. Mary W. Carpenter of Winchester, Mrs. Alice S. Farquhar of Winthrop and Miss Mary C. Hoisington the Executive Secretary of the Southern Middlesex Health Association.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Meeting of the Fortnightly will be held as usual in the Town Hall on Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. This is to be one of the most interesting programs of the year and every music-lover should be present. It is to be a Symphony Concert by the Boston Chamber Music Club with Daniel Kuntz, leader; Julius Theodorowicz, first violin; Joseph Keller, cello; Gustav Gerhardt, bass; Georges Lauret, flute; Louis Speyer, oboe; Herbert Ringwall, piano.

It is to be a public meeting with admission fee for non members.

Thursday, March 25, is the date set for the Colonial Supper to be given in Fortnightly Hall, under the auspices of the Home Economics Committee, Mrs. F. C. Sargent, chairman. Supper will be served at 6 o'clock and followed by a short entertainment. A large attendance of members and friends is hoped for. A fine supper and a good time is anticipated. Come! Are you paying for a Packard —without owning one?

Very likely you are paying the Packard price for motor car transportation while believing you cannot afford a Packard. Thousands do.

Yet while they long for Packard Six comfort, beauty and distinction others own and drive these fine cars at an actual saving in money over the cost of compromise transportation.

You too can own a Packard Six. Before you buy your next motor car, use a pencil and a scratch pad before you use a pen and a check book.

Most of the items of cost in owning a car are the same as between a Packard Six and any car at even half its price.

It costs little more to insure the Packard than the half-price car. No more to garage it—no more to license it—no more for a wash and polish! Interest on your Packard investment will be a few cents a day higher—but less frequent and lower repair charges under Packard's flat rate service plan far offset that item.

Packard Six owners report 14 to 16 miles to a gallon of gasoline, 1,000 miles or more to a gallon of motor oil, 15,000 to 20,000 miles per set of tires. What half-price car does better?

But those items, so strongly stressed by most manufacturers, are relatively unimportant. Depreciation is the really important charge. Depreciation costs many motorists 2 or 3 times as much per mile as they pay for gas, oil and rubber together.

The used car most often turned in last year by Packard Six buyers had been driven an average of only 15,067 miles!

Depreciation cost every one of those owners eight cents a mile! They, none of them, spent a total of over three cents a mile for gasoline, oil and tires.

If you are one of the thousands who buy a half-price car every year or two—every 15,000 to 20,000 miles—you can own and drive a Packard Six for less money.

More than twice as many Packard Six cars were sold last year as in 1924. And 70% of all these sales were made to those who had been buying lower-priced cars frequently.

These Packard Six owners know they can keep their new cars two or three times as long as the cars they turned in—and they intend to do it. On such a basis they drive the car they have always wanted at a lower-per-mile cost than they have ever paid.

It is a fact that 98% of those who have bought Packard Six cars during the past five years are still Packard owners. They are not paying a heavy depreciation toll every year. You need not do so either.

The Packard Six five-passenger sedan with all necessary accessories including spare tire and with freight and tax paid, is delivered at your door for $2811. Thousands have bought Packard Six cars without ever paying out more than $200 in cash at any one time, used car allowance considered; the payments seldom exceeding $150 a month.

Packard cars are now being sold on the basis of the new tax rate

SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The observance of the 20th anniversary March 12 to 14, inclusive, was a great success. The church and community were prepared for it. No more significant event in the Highlands has happened in 20 years. The ladies outdid themselves in decorating the interior of the church, and in the bounteous tables spread over the pulpit platform were the figures in gold-colored paper 1906-1926. The invited guests present were Rev. and Mrs. Adriance, Mr. Arthur W. Hale, Rev. Mr. Hook and wife, Rev. Mr. Reed; Treasurer of Massachusetts Home Missionary Society, Rev. Sewall; Rev. Asa M. Parker of Bridgewater, and Mr. Frank A. Bourne the architect of the new church, and Rev. and Mrs. Field of West Somerville. The addresses of the evening were fine, and the roll call response never better. Letters were read from Pres. McGown of International College of Springfield, Mr. E. Lawrence Barnard, Charles S. Macfarland, general secretary of the Federal Council of the Church of Christ in America, Rev. and Prof. C. A. S. Dwight of Kenka College in New York State, Rev. William Fryling of Waukegan, Conn., Rev. Warren P. Landers of East Milton, Dr. Newton, now of Barre, Vt., Dr. Chidley and Rev. L. Burroughs.

Saturday evening was the birthday party and an unique occasion it was. A reception to the charter members was held and with them standing in the line were the pastor and the officers of the church. Then followed the social hour when Miss Mary E. McElhiney in behalf of the Ladies' Bethany Society presented the church with a delicious birthday cake, illuminated with 20 lighted candles. As invited guests to the Birthday Party were Miss Grace Lawrence, a member of the building committee of the chapel in 1886, and also Mrs. Richard Taylor whose good mother was the first president of the Ladies' Bethany Society, Mrs. M. W. Rice. The addresses of the two guests were well received by the people present.

Sunday morning, the Sunday School and congregation united to hear the historical review of the church from 1906 to 1926, and also the address by the Sunday School superintendent on "The Relation of the Sunday School to the Church."

The closing service of the anniversary came on Sunday evening, when a newly organized choir under the leadership of Mr. J. S. Heywood, a member of the Harvard Glee Club, rendered two fine anthems.

Greetings were brought by Mr. A. Pike from the Church of the Epiphany, Mr. William Kneeland from the First Congregational Church, Mr. Arthur Winn from the Baptist Church, and Rev. Smith from the Hope Church in the Highlands. The speaker was Rev. Raymond Calkins, D.D., of Cambridge, whose father was the moderator of the council that organized the church.

The demand is already heard for the collecting of the addresses delivered and to have them printed in a pamphlet for future use. The observance reveals this fact that the community church of the Highlands is needed and that much more attention will be paid to it. A new era has dawned. Yesterday sneaks to today and the church has caught the vision and is already enlarging its activities.

DR. GRENELL TO COME TO WINCHESTER FOR BOY SCOUTS

Dr. Grenfell will be heard in Winchester Friday evening, April 9, at the Town Hall, under the auspices of the Boy Scout Council of Winchester and the proceeds of the lecture will be credited to the Boy Scout Budget. His subject will be "Midst Ice and Snow in Labrador" and in this lecture one of the epic stories of work and service in wild and inaccessible lands is unfolded.

The bleak and barren coast of Labrador has made life unbelievably hard for its inhabitants. The sturdy descendants of Devon and Dorset, Scotch and Irish fishermen, who came over during the last four centuries, have been practically cut off from contact with civilization. The small permanent resident population is augmented each summer by some 20,000 deep sea fishermen coming from Southern Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and the Maine coast.

Producing their share of the world's wealth these courageous workers, who are of our own race and religion, suffered untold hardships in bleak northlands and waters because the rudimentary accepted perquisites for mind and body were utterly lacking. Not even the simplest forms of medical and surgical aid were available.

In 1892 at the suggestion of Lord Southborough, Dr. Grenfell first visited the coasts of Labrador and North Newfoundland in a hospital sailing ship to see if medical and surgical service could be established. From this simple beginning has grown during the past 30 years one of the great service works of the world. In addition to the hospital service established, reindeer have been introduced into the country in order to utilize eventually the immense barren areas of a country useless for agricultural benefits.

When the winter ice cuts off communication with the outside world and the floating population has departed, boats are laid up and part of the hospitals are closed. Dog teams are then used and long patrols established. Swathed in wind-proof garments the doctors of the International Grenfell Association and their helpers travel over hundreds of miles of wind-swept and icy barrens, or the frozen bays of the North Atlantic.

The press of the English-speaking world for years has eagerly published accounts of Dr. Grenfell's really romantic story. Unsought honors have been bestowed upon him in this country and Europe. He will tell this story here in his kindly manner, illustrating it with moving picture films, and those who hear it will remember it as one of the most interesting events of the winter.

LUNCHEON IN HONOR OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE FORTNIGHTLY

On Monday a very pretty luncheon was served in the Fortnightly Hall, the occasion being a party given by the Advisory Board of the Fortnightly in honor of Mrs. Helen B. Emerson, who retires this year from the presidency of the Club.

Covers were laid for about 40 guests. The decorations were yellow and white, and a spring-like atmosphere filled the room.

The toastmistress, Mrs. Lorraine Woodside had given, previous to the luncheon, the choice of three "stunts" to the guests—either to write an original poem on Spring, to tell a detective story—or to tell a funny story. In each particular line there were many surprises. "Lorraine," who feigned to be the teacher of the village school, called upon the pupils by their first names, and each in turn made her little bow and recited her piece. Much fun was accorded by the original poems and the stories.

The toastmistress expressed for the Board, the great appreciation of the loyalty and faithful enthusiasm of its President, and enclosing—said it with flowers as she presented to Mrs. Emerson a beautiful bouquet of spring blossoms in a blue bowl.

Mrs. Anna Balcke and Mrs. Florence Seales were in charge of the affair and were ably assisted by the Social Committee.

At the close of the luncheon the last regular monthly meeting of the Board was held.

THE MATTERHORN: "LONDON BRIDGE" OF ALPINE PEAKS

Rumors that the famous Matterhorn of Switzerland is "moving" published in Germany recently seem to indicate only that that stony spire is keeping up its age-old habit of sending down rock slides, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

That the Matterhorn (or Mont Cervin, as French-speaking Swiss call it) is slowly wasting away, has been known for a long time, to the sadness of those mountain-lovers who look far into the future, says the bulletin. But there is reassurance in the thought that it will live in its present shape for a few more geologic minutes—that is for several thousand calendar years.

Tons of Rock Fall Daily

The lower slopes of the Matterhorn are of softer rock than its upper portion; and while the higher section yields few fragments to the continual onslaught of weather and gravity, the supporting section is robbed of hundreds, and sometimes thousands of tons of material a day in fine, sunny, thawing weather. The mechanism of destruction is the release of "trigger" rocks by the sinking of moisture into crevices; its freezing and expansion, so forcing the rock fragments from their beds; and the subsequent thawing, which lets the fragments slip down the cliff or rock slope. The "trigger" rock dislodges other pieces of rock, some of them of considerable size, and these in turn may jar loose boulders. Soon the first flying rock has grown into a huge avalanche of stones, ice, and snow, which thunders downward until checked by the flatter slopes, built through the ages by similar slides. All other mountains, of course are undergoing similar changes, although in most cases more slowly.

Now and then, when exceptional weather conditions favor it, an avalanche on the Matterhorn may grow to huge proportions with a momentum which sweeps its flying missiles over the lower slopes and out on to the valley floors used for pasturage. Several such far-wandering slides rolled down the Italian side of the mountain during the past summer, and these are supposed to be responsible for the German rumors of a "moving" Matterhorn.

Climbers Must Dodge Missiles

The falling boulders of the Matterhorn have caused some fatalities and many narrow escapes. Each season some climbers must flatten themselves against the cliffs while small rocks whiz by with the speed and the rasping sound of rifle bullets, or great boulders bound from shoulder to shoulder, sometimes missing the heads of the mountaineers by only a foot or so. Many of the falling fragments are gathered into regular paths by funnel-like depressions in the face of the mountain. One of the most valuable services of the guides is their knowledge of these dangerous couloirs and their additional knowledge of the weather conditions and times of day for safest crossing.

Most Matterhorn ascents are made from the Swiss side with Zermatt the starting point, though the climb from Breuil, in Italy, is rated the greater feat. The Italian-Swiss boundary runs over the crest of the mountain. Zermatt grew from a village to a respectable little town largely because of the rise in popularity of the Matterhorn and the consequent influx of those who wished to look upon it in its various moods, and those who wished to scale it. The town is also the center from which many less difficult climbs are made. On its one main street hotels are almost as numerous as shops. The latter are well stocked with mountaineering outfits. A low stone wall opposite one of the leading hotels is Guides' Row. On it guides out of employment sit until patrons engage their services. Housing, outfitting and guiding climbers are Zermatt's three leading industries.

Long Rated Unattainable

The Matterhorn is one of the most dangerous of the Alpine peaks to climb, and if weather conditions are not right, one of the most difficult. Long after many other famous heights of the Alps were scaled the Matterhorn remained unvanquished, and by 1850 it was rated unattainable. It was first climbed by a party of four Englishmen and three guides on July 14, 1865. It was a tragic attainment. On the way down three of the climbers and one guide, tied together, fell over a 4000-foot precipice to their deaths. Only the breaking of the rope saved the lives of one climber and the two other guides.

Day by day in warm weather the Matterhorn continues to shower down a part of itself. Already the hard upper pyramid hangs over a bit in places where the softer rock below has wasted away. Some day—how many thousands of years hence

Studebaker Big Six 5-Passenger Sedan $1895 freight and war tax extra

THIS is the car that has won a world tribute to One-Profit manufacture; all over the globe, the Big Six Studebaker leads all high-powered cars in sales volume.

It leads because One-Profit manufacturing facilities enable Studebaker to offer a sturdily built quality car, of tremendous excess mileage and of rated horsepower that cannot be equaled except at two to four times its price.

The 5-Passenger Big Six Sedan is powered with the identical engine that carries hundreds of Studebaker busses over some of the most mountainous and difficult-to-travel roads in America—hence we urge you to compare its thrilling performance with that of any eight-cylinder car.

Based on the rating of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and the Society of Automotive Engineers, only seven American cars equal this Big Six Sedan in power. But they sell for two to four times its price.

The Big Six 5-Passenger Sedan is a car built to hold five passengers in real comfort. The body is unusually large and roomy. Seats are luxuriously deep and restful. The chassis and engine are especially designed for the Studebaker-built body.

It is richly upholstered in genuine mohair. Body pillars are of northern white ash—cross-members of hard maple.

It has an automatic spark control, safety lighting switch on the steering wheel, gasoline gauge on the dash. There's also an 8-day clock, automatic windshield cleaner, rear-view mirror, cowl ventilator, stop light, air cleaner, gas and oil filters, inspection light on 10-foot cord.

Ride in it—feel the surge of power from the smooth, silent engine, compare its performance with the very finest "eights" as well as "sixes." Then you will know why the Big Six outsells all other cars of equal or greater rated horsepower.

THE ALICE F. SYMMES SOCIETY PRESENTS "TAKE MY ADVICE"

Those who braved the elements on last Friday evening to attend the entertainment at Metcalf Hall given under the auspices of the Alice F. Symmes Society were highly repaid. The three act play, "Take My Advice," as presented by the young people of Melrose was about the best piece of amateur acting seen in this town for a long time. A more creditable job could hardly have been done by a stock company in Boston or any other large city.

The action of the comedy centered about the character of "Bob" Manning, editor of the Daily News in Eureka, a small town of the more-dead-than-alive variety. The arrival of "Jimmy" Sampson of the Bickley Sloggan Company, a human alarm clock boasting the distinction of having awakened old Rip Van Winkle from his slumbers, livened up Eureka with a vengeance. John Wargrim, the town dominator attempted to suppress the excitement thus caused and the wake-up fight between the two factions involved provided plenty of thrills from the opening to the closing of the sketch.

The producing cast of four young ladies and four young men was very evenly balanced and it would be hard to select any one person's acting which stood out above that of the others. Each one took his or her part splendidly.

The audience was very appreciative and eagerly awaited the rising of the curtain on each successive act or scene. This fine play, as presented, could easily have packed the Town Hall, had it been sponsored by one of the civic organizations of the community.

Dancing followed the performance. A very fair amount was realized for the society's work at the Isle of Sheals as a result of the evening's activities.

RECOVERING FROM FRACTURE

The many friends of Elizabeth H. Powers will be pleased to hear that she is recovering favorably from a bone fracture injury she received while coasting on Swanton street during her school vacation three weeks ago. However, a complete recovery will not be looked forward to for several weeks.

Elizabeth's kind and humorous disposition has made for her a host of friends, whose sympathy and keen interest in her welfare is deeply sensed by the daily amount of cards, flowers, etc., she is receiving.

She is a member of the Junior Class at the Winchester High School and of St. Mary's Catholic Club and is the daughter of Elizabeth C. Powers and the late Anthony F. Powers of 928 Main street.

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE: AN AFRICAN "BLIND SPOT"

All the world's "blind spots" are not within the Polar regions. A South African Government expedition, lately returned from the Kalahari Desert in Bechuanaland Protectorate, reports the discovery of several large towns, stretches of fertile land, and thriving nations which hitherto have been unknown.

Bechuanaland Protectorate sprawls over a great portion of central South Africa, a tableland of geographic extremes ranging from vast deserts to almost impenetrable swamps, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. With an area greater than that of the State of Texas it has fewer than 2000 European inhabitants. In light of recent discoveries, however, the native population must exceed 200,000.

Safety-Zone for Natives
The march of the white man's civilization in South Africa has seldom touched or affected this great region. To the east is prosperous and populous Transvaal, and Southern Rhodesia; to the north are the rich forests of Northern Rhodesia and of the Portuguese colony of Angola; to the west is the former German province of Southwest Africa, now under a Union of South Africa Mandate; and to the south are the Cape provinces, richest and most developed of all.

With railroads, cities and other landmarks of civilization on every side Bechuanaland Protectorate has apparently spelled "detour" to adventurer and homesteader alike. The latest maps do not list a permanent settlement in its great, largely unexplored interior. Tribes are known to inhabit this region that are extremely primitive. Many of them are believed not to be of African origin. The Protectorate is, therefore, a sort of geographic and ethnological safety zone, where the native blacks can watch the rush and whirl of progress on every hand, but can safely remain in blissful ignorance and leisure within.

Extremes of Climate

In climate, as usually is the case, rests the explanation for this seeming oversight on the part of European entrepreneurs. Bechuanaland Protectorate, which should not be confused with Bechuanaland, a part of the province of the Cape of Good Hope to the South, is divided into two zones. These can be roughly classified as the wet and the dry. The wet, called Ngama-land, is a region of sluggish rivers and swamps, in which tropical vegetation grows in profusion. It covers the entire northern part of the Protectorate. The central and southern sections comprise a great sand belt, largely a desert, for the mountains of the surrounding provinces cut off the rain.

In some respects, however, it is a mistake to call this dry section a desert, for it has little in common with such regions as the Libyan, or the Mohave, or the Arabian deserts. Although the scant rainfall is usually absorbed by the sand, or quickly evaporated, where it collects in pools or water courses, there is a general underground flow, not far below the surface, throughout the district.

The long dunes are covered with thick grass and bush, so destructive sandstorms are rare. The soil is not rich enough to support any considerable amount of agriculture, but cattle raising is carried on to a limited extent.

Governed From Without

For administrative purposes Bechuanaland Protectorate is divided into 11 districts, each under a Resident Magistrate. A resident Commissioner, or Overlord, for the Protectorate resides at Mafeking, in the territory of Bechuanaland, south of the Protectorate, and his assistant is stationed at Francistown, in the northeastern part of the Protectorate. Each native chief, however, rules his own people. The Protectorate is governed as a whole on the lines of a British crown colony.

Chief of the native towns is Serowe, with more than 20,000 inhabitants, the capital of the Bamangwato district. Just north of it is the Great Salt Lake of the region, Lake Makalakari. Here in vast wastes of salt marshes and sand live a people who have been called the most backward in Africa. The desert and marshes have been their protection from the white man and other negro tribes, fortresses whose walls are the want of fresh water.

The Protectorate has at least one claim to world consideration, however, for just within its eastern boundary runs a section of the Cape-to-Cairo main line, or at least what will be the Cape-to-Cairo main line when Cecil Rhodes' dream finally materializes. Parallel with it also are the trunk telegraph lines to the north. Within 200 miles of the eastern border is Pretoria, the new capital of the Union, and Johannesburg, the metropolis of the southern part of the continent. Near the northeast corner is Victoria Falls. Extensive deposits of minerals have been found in the Protectorate, including gold, silver and coal. They have not been developed due to the inhospitable living conditions and the lack of roads and railways.

Last Friday afternoon at 4.45 a Cadillac sedan owned by the Nathaniel Tufts Meter Company of Boston and driven by Thomas Dunberry, of 28 Bowers street, West Medford, was slightly damaged when a Dodge truck owned by Henry M. Robinson & Co., Inc., of Boston and operated by Harold Margolis of 92 Lynnhurst street, Dorchester, backed into it on Main street, just north of the B. & M. railroad crossing. Both machines were headed south and Margolis had failed to see that the signal in the square was set against him. As he backed his machine across the tracks he struck the Cadillac. No one was hurt.

Cora Cortell Phelps announces this week the closing assemblies of her dancing classes of this winter. The last lesson of her classes in ballet dancing and plastique is to be held on Saturday afternoon, March 20, from 3 to 5 o'clock, and the classes in ballroom and deportment are to have their last lesson on Saturday afternoon, March 27, at the same hour. Both affairs are to be held in Lyceum Hall. Harry Good has completed a large addition to his riding school on Winthrop street at the Winchester-Medford line, and has greatly enlarged his string of horses. At the present time he is caring for 45 boarders in addition to his own horses. The new addition has been made necessary by the constantly increased patronage of his stable, which is now the largest and best equipped in Metropolitan Boston.

An Ingersoll-Rand air compressor was on exhibition Tuesday afternoon for the benefit of the Highway, Water and Sewer Departments. This apparatus, consisting of a powerful air compressor mounted on a Ford truck, appeared to great advantage. One man with a large chisel could break up frozen ground in less time than a half-dozen men with picks. It is also credited with drilling a hole for blasting 10 feet deep through solid rock. A variety of tools come with its equipment, and a cable hoist capable of lowering or hoisting two and a half tons is a feature. It looked to be a very desirable addition to the Town's mechanical equipment, and recommendation will probably be made for its purchase.

Last Sunday evening while Walter Bergstrom of 45 Lincoln street was attending services at the Methodist Episcopal Church the building was entered and his overcoat exchanged for one which had long outlived its usefulness. Mr. Bergstrom reported the matter to the local police and Sgt. Thomas Cassidy was assigned to the case. There was little upon which the officer could work, the sole clue being two cards which were found in the pocket of the coat left at the church. The trail led first to Lynn and then to Malden where on Wednesday Sgt. Cassidy took into custody a young man who was formally charged with the theft. Appearing in the District Court at Woburn Thursday morning he was found not guilty by Judge Morton on the grounds of insufficient evidence.

WARNER SPENCER DOANE

Many of Winchester's residents will learn with regret of the death in Belmont last Sunday forenoon, March 21, of Warner Spencer Doane, formerly for some years a resident of this town, who passed away at his home, 360 Payson road, after a brief illness.

Mr. Doane was 61 years of age and a native of Boston, the son of George B. and Abigail (Bucknam) Doane. His early life was spent in Boston and he received his education in the schools of that city.

As a young man he made his home for a time in Winchester on Main street with his sister, Mrs. William C. Newell. Following his marriage in 1892 he removed to Rosindale but returned to make his home for about 10 years on Lakeview road before taking up his last residence in Belmont in 1924.

During his Winchester residence Mr. Doane took an active part in the affairs of the community and made for himself many friends here. He was a life member of Mystic Valley Lodge of Masons and was also affiliated with the local Chapter, O. E. S. In the latter body he always took a great interest and several years ago presented the Chapter with a complete outfitting of regalia. He was also a member of the Belmont Royal Arch Chapter and of the Emanuel White Shrine of Cambridge. Mr. Doane's business interests for the past 45 years had been associated with Barker, Harris and Kehrbaum, commission merchants with offices at 131 State street, Boston, and for the past 20 years he had been a member of that firm. Surviving are his wife, Martha R. Doane, three nephews and three nieces.

Largely attended funeral services were held at the late residence in Belmont on Wednesday afternoon and were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Elwin of the Belmont First Baptist Church. The masonic funeral ritual was exemplified by officers of the Mystic Valley Lodge of Winchester under the direction of Worshipful Master, T. Parker Clarke. Delegations representing the lodge as well as the Winchester Chapter, O. E. S., Belmont Royal Arch Chapter and the Emanuel White Shrine were present at the services. There were many beautiful flowers. The bearers were Mr. Raymond Merrill and Mr. William B. Wood of this town, Mr. Bradford McCausland of Belmont, Mr. Charles Pratt of Somerville, Mr. Conrad Broberg of Dorchester and Mr. Charles Newell of Winchester, the latter a nephew of the deceased. During the services several selections were sung by the Beethoven Quartette of Boston.

Interment was in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Arlington.

ELIZABETH WHEELER GRIFFITHS

Elizabeth Wheeler Griffiths, wife of Leonard V. Griffiths of 14 Park road, passed away Monday afternoon at the Winchester Hospital following a two-weeks' illness.

Mrs. Griffiths was 24 years of age and was born in Dedham, the daughter of Mrs. Lillian A., and the late Arthur Wheeler. Her early life was spent in Dedham until her marriage to Mr. Griffiths, after which she came to Winchester and had since made her home here. She was a member of Victoria Rebekah Lodge of this town.

Surviving, besides her husband and mother, are two children, Robert Irwin and Marjorie Elizabeth, and three brothers and two sisters.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at the late residence and were conducted by the Rev. George M. Butler, pastor of the Dedham Congregational Church of which Mrs. Griffiths had been a member. Preceding this service the funeral ritual of the Rebekahs was conducted by Noble Grand, Mrs. Edith Russell, of Victoria Rebekah Lodge, assisted by Mrs. A. Higgins, Chaplain, and Mrs. Mable Larson, Vice Grand. A delegation of lodge members was present at the services. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

IRMA GERTRUDE HARRIS

Irma Gertrude Harris, aged 22, died suddenly of an acute heart attack on Monday afternoon at the home on Park avenue of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Fay with whom she had been stopping for the past month while undergoing treatment by a local physician. Miss Harris was born at Medford Hillside and was the daughter of the late Frank E. and Gertrude M. Harris. Before her illness she had been a stenographer. She is survived only by one brother who makes his home in Maine.

Funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon at the Medford Hillside Methodist Episcopal Church and were conducted by the Rev. Thomas R. Burns, pastor. The remains were taken to Maine for interment.

CELEBRATES FIFTIETH BIRTHDAY

Mr. James Chevalo was surprised Sunday evening at his home, 1 Cedar street, by a large gathering of friends to celebrate his 50th birthday. A buffet luncheon was served to the guests, who were from Winchester, Boston and Somerville.

Bill Coty of Boston, the well-known radio entertainer, furnished the music and entertainment for the evening. Mr. Coty and his partner, Lew Walters, gave a Frisco and Charleston exhibition and rendered vocal selections.

A pleasant and enjoyable time was had by all who attended.

Mr. William Corliss of Fells road is reported as confined to his home by illness.

FENNO-TREDENNICK

One of the first weddings of Winchester's spring season took place in the Unitarian Church on Monday evening, March 22, when Miss Mary Brooks Tredennick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tredennick of 8 Sheffield West, became the bride of Richard Francis Fenno, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Fenno of 18 Cabot street. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by the Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the church, in the presence of a large assembly of relatives and friends of the young couple.

The church was transformed into a bower of beauty by a decorative scheme which completely hid the organ and pulpit with banked fir trees. Against this background was arranged a profusion of spring flowers, the bright colors of which stood out in most attractive contrast against the sombre green. Spring flowers were also used as decorations for the pews reserved for special guests.

The bride was gowned in a wedding dress of white satin trimmed with old family lace and wore a lace trimmed tulle veil. Her bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Linda Tredennick of Winchester, as maid of honor. Her gown was of changeable lavender to blue taffeta and tulle while that of the matron of honor, Mrs. George G. Tenny of Cambridge (formerly Miss Maude Crowley of Winchester) was identical excepting that the colors in this instance were reversed. Miss Isabelle Bevan of Park avenue, New York City, and Miss Helen Wilcox of Meriden, Conn., were bridesmaids and wore spring green taffeta and tulle trimmed with banana yellow. The maid and matron of honor and the bridesmaids, all carried bouquets of spring flowers. Roderick MacDonald of Brookline, formerly of this town, was groomsmen.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple being assisted in receiving by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Tredennick and Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Fenno. The house decorations were of Southern Smilax and spring flowers. Ushers, both at the reception and at the church included Ralph Anthony of Providence, R. I.; Nemo Olsen of Providence, R. I.; Porter Thompson of Quincy, Gilbert McNamara of Newton, Forest Davidson of Auburndale and Warren Goddu of Winchester. During the evening buffet refreshments were served by a caterer and dancing was enjoyed, music being furnished by Lowe's orchestra of Boston. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Fenno left on a wedding trip to the South and upon their return will make their home in Cambridge.

Both are well-known among Winchester's young people. The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School and attended Miss Ely's School at Greenwich, Conn., before graduating from the Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School in Boston. She is a member of the En Ka Sorority. Mr. Fenno graduated from Winchester High and from Amherst College, Class of 1920, where he was a member of the golf team and of the Chi Phi fraternity. He is associated in the coal business with John Tredennick, Inc. of Boston.

RECITAL BY PUPILS OF CORA COSTHILL PHELPS

The dancing classes of Mrs. Cora Costhill Phelps were concluded on last Saturday afternoon, March 20, when a recital of ballet and plastique dancing was held in Lyceum Hall from 3 until 5 o'clock. About 300 guests were present and greatly enjoyed the exhibition which included the national dances of the Japanese, Italians, Spanish and Scotch. There were also sailors' hornpipes and interpretive dances by a ballet of 10 girls in white with pink rosebuds.

The patronesses were Mrs. Bertam Bernard, Mrs. Harold V. Farnsworth, Mrs. Herbert Kelley and Mrs. Clarence Warren. Bob Bernard, Merton Crafts, Willard Grush and Bill Bernard were ushers. Mrs. A. B. Corthell was at the piano.

CALUMET CLUB MAKES MERRY

Large Attendance at Poverty Party

The Calumet Club was a scene of much merriment last Friday evening when a large number tripped the light fantastic to the music of Law's orchestra of Boston. The occasion was an old-fashioned poverty party. Many remembered what a delightful time they had a few weeks previous at the old-fashioned dance and they doubtless must have spread the news.

The gay revellers were costumed in all sorts of raiment, some of which were of rare vintage. Even the orchestra had the spirit of the occasion, they all being dressed in costumes of the farm variety.

Raggety Andy and Raggety Ann were there in the personages of President John Hart Taylor and Mrs. Taylor, who led the way and started the frolics.

Among the ladies in costume were Mrs. C. F. Winship, Mrs. J. Robie Cove, Mrs. H. A. Peterson, Mrs. A. W. Pitman, Mrs. William H. Gilpatrick, Mrs. Daniel Kelly, Mrs. Thomas A. Barnard, Mrs. Earle B. Goldsmith, Mrs. Harry Pilkington, Mrs. H. L. Caldwell, Mrs. S. W. H. Taylor, Mrs. R. W. Wilson, Mrs. E. P. Randlett, Mrs. Arthur Towne, and Miss Lesley Brown.

Mrs. Gilpatrick's costume was worthy of note, the whole garment being made of dish cloths, while her Spanish shawl, taken from the kitchen table, made a pleasing combination with her costume.

"Cap" Winship and "Dan" Kelly, if their costumes portrayed anything at all, might serve as stokers on the Lyvian or janitors for the high school.

Question: Where did Walter Brown get that gown?

Answer: On Salem street.

Mrs. Walter E. Chamberlain, Mrs. J. C. Kerrison and Mr. Warner Butler, on the side lines, seemed to enjoy the fun as much as some of the dancers.

The Calumet Club seems to be getting more popular these days. February and March have been busy months. This Friday evening "Cap" Winship, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee, promises a rare treat in a musical program. It will be Ladies' Night and informal.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL UNDER WAY

After nearly a month of preliminary practice the baseball squad from which this year's Winchester High School nine will be picked has begun to be reduced to something like workable dimensions by Coach Mansfield in anticipation of the real work which is to begin as soon as Manchester Field becomes usable. The battery men were able to get a brief workout on the field Thursday afternoon, but it will be some time before the diamond assumes anything like normal condition.

Fifty-five boys reported to the coach and Capt. "Nip" Chamberlain on March 1, and since that time regular indoor workouts have been in order. The team was rather hard hit by graduation last year when the two "Franks," Melly and Tansey, together with old reliable "Jomma" Dolan grabbed off their sheepskins, and then to make a bad matter just a bit tougher "Shonk" Denlan did not return to school.

Coach Mansfield is confident, however, that from the following squad he will be able to produce a nine which will make a good showing. The complete list includes Cant, Chamberlain, Reardon, Johnson, Taylor, Franklin, Swain, J. Murphy, Kearns, Harriman, McCauley, Hatch, Dennison, McCarthy, Callahan, Kendrick, A. Amico, Smith, Fitzgerald, Prue, Ambrose, R. Halwartz, J. Halwartz, Robinson, Knowlton, O'Donnell, R. Murphy, B. Murphy, Cobb and Haley.

The proposed schedule follows:

PERSIS AMELIA BRUCE

Persis Amelia Bruce, wife of Frederick A. Bruce and the mother of Mrs. George M. Byrne of this town, passed away on Monday afternoon at her home, 126 Curtis street, Somerville, after a long illness.

Mrs. Bruce was a native of Yarmouth, Me., the daughter of Samuel and Persis (Wyman) Herrick. She had made her home in Somerville for the past 25 years, but had many friends in Winchester, being a member of the local chapter, D. A. R. Surviving are her husband and daughter, Mrs. George M. Byrne of this town, two grandchildren, a sister, Mrs. Fred Nolan of Antrim, N. H., and a brother, John Herrick of Hillsboro, N. H.

Funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon at the Wilson Chapel in Somerville and were conducted by Dr. Clarence L. Skinner of the Crane Theological School at Tufts College. The remains were taken to Mt. Auburn for cremation.

Marriage intentions have been filed this week by George W. Cochran, Jr., of Winchester and Doris E. Garnett of Malden and also by Vasil Baranuk of Boston and Mary A. Fallon of Winchester.

CORNER STONE OF NEW HIGHLANDS CHURCH TO BE LAID PALM SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon will see the realization for residents of the Highlands district of a dream of many years standing. On that day, Palm Sunday, at 3 o'clock the cornerstone of the new Second Congregational Church will be laid on the church property at the corner of Kenwin road and Washington street.

For all Winchester the occasion will be worthy of note, but for the people of the Highlands, the people who for the past 20 years have worshipped in the little chapel on Cross street it will possess a much deeper significance.

Years ago the need for a new church in that part of the town became apparent, the necessity for a church which would be more nearly adequate to care for the ever increasing religious and social wants of the community. Three years ago the need became so pressing that it was decided to take immediate steps to provide the parish with a fitting home. Accordingly a building committee was organized under the direction of the pastor, Rev. John E. Whitley, and a vigorous campaign was instituted to acquire land and erect a structure to replace that built on Cross street in 1906.

It required both vision and courage to go ahead with the proposition. The Highlands as a whole is not a wealthy community, and the campaign was launched at a time when the town had many other financial obligations with which to occupy its attention. Yet the pastor and his assistants never faltered. They adopted as their slogan, "A Church by 1926" and so well have they builded and so completely have they overcome the many obstacles which reared themselves in their path that the cornerstone which is to be put in place Palm Sunday bears the figures "1926."

The committee has done well, but it must be admitted that without the whole-hearted co-operation of the entire community, its efforts must have been much longer prolonged. A glimpse of this community spirit which has actuated the people of the Highlands since the opening of the formal campaign three years ago was offered last Sunday when at the morning service in the chapel more than $800 were raised for the building fund.

And now the new church is a reality. The whole town may well rejoice in the happiness which its citizens of the Highlands district feel in the success which has crowned their perseverance.

The new structure when completed will present a most attractive appearance and form a welcome addition to the other fine church homes of the town. Its exterior is to be of built of local stone, in size 85 by 32 feet, with a 50 foot tower, housing a belfry with a 12x12 ft. interior. The auditorium is 68 feet by 28 feet and will seat about 225 besides the space reserved for a large chorus choir. The basement assembly room is to be 40 by 28 feet. Interior fittings including the choir rail and Communion Table are of oak.

The building may be entered either from Washington street by a flight of steps or by a level walk from Kenwin road. The entrance leads to the main auditorium by means of stairs at either side of the vestibule under the tower, or directly ahead into the basement assembly room for the temporary use of the Sunday School and other church activities until the parish house can be provided. To the rear of the assembly room are the kitchen, toilets and boiler room. The assembly room may also be reached by a side door from Kenwin road and there is a side entrance to the auditorium opening close by the organ alcove.

The work of rearing the structure is being done by Winchester contractors; the masonry by James J. Fitzgerald and the carpentry by Albert J. Young, who has the general contract. The architect is Frank A. Bourne of Boston. The cost is to be in the neighborhood of $40,000.

Members of the Building Committee include in addition to the Chairman, Deacon Frederick L. Buckmaster and the Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Isabel L. Copland, Mr. John Park, Mr. Arthur A. Belleville, Mr. William J. Nutting, Miss Mary E. McElhiney, Miss Laura B. Tolman, Mr. Harry S. Ward, Mr. Arthur E. Kendrick and the Pastor, Rev. John E. Whitley.

A brief historical sketch of the society shows that the Second Congregational Church was organized on March 13, 1906, with 56 people enrolled as members of whom 14 are at present in the parish. The Moderator of the Council was Rev. Wolcott Calkins and the Scribe was Rev. Charles S. Macfarland. Resident Pastors of the Church have included Rev. C. A. S. Dwight, 1906-1909; Rev. P. I. Osborne, 1909-1911; Rev. W. Fryling, 1911-1917; and Rev. J. E. Whitley, 1922-. Supplies and acting Pastors, among whom were Rev. W. Taylor, Rev. W. P. Landers and Rev. C. Dunham, served from 1918-1922 John Park, 1905-1912; Harrison L. Parker, 1913-1914; John Park, 1914-1917; Frederick W. Trombley, 1918-1919; and Arthur A. Belleville, 1921-. have served as Clerks of the Church. Treasurers of the Church have been Henry Smalley, 1906-1912; A. A. Belleville, 1913-1917; and W. J. Nutting, 1917-. The 20th Anniversary of the parish was celebrated from March 12-14 of the present year in the old home of the society, the little Chapel on Cross street. The 25th Anniversary is to be observed in the splendid new edifice, the erection of which starts with the corner stone ceremony of Palm Sunday.

ST. MARY'S C. C. HUMBLES ARLINGTON A. A.

St. Mary's C. C. struck back into its winning stride last night, humbling the strong Arlington A. A., composed of Arlington High School stars, before a capacity crowd.

Strengthened by the addition of Cassidy and "Wop" Rolli of the High School five, St. Mary's five performed like a well oiled machine, displaying rare basketball judgment, which recalled to the fans the days of the crack St. Mary's championship five of 1922.

Before the game was two minutes underway, Captain Tansey caged two spectacular goals, which shot St. Mary's in the lead which they held until the end. At the end of the first quarter the score stood 11-4 in St. Mary's favor, with Tansey and Rolli teaming up for some pretty shots. In the second quarter Arlington struck a spurt, but was not equal to the local all around work and the score stood 17-10.

At the beginning of hostilities in the second half the score was close, keeping the crowd in an uproar throughout with the third quarter ending 25-20 in the local's favor. With a last desperate attempt Arlington tried her hardest to even matters, but the hard, fast guarding of "Charlie" Cassidy and "Flats" Flaherty were unable to tie it up. Midway through the last quarter, "Flats" Flaherty received an injury to his eye which caused him to leave the fray. With St. Mary's displaying some exceptional guarding the game ended with the stands in an uproar in St. Mary's favor 25-24.

Captain Tansey was again the high point scorer of the evening with a total of 16 points, displaying remarkable floor work, passing, dribbling and shooting which was a treat to watch alone. Rolli, Flaherty, Melly and Cassidy all played a stellar game with "Wop" Rolli being applauded numerous times by his deceptive floor work. Keefe and Lane played well for Arlington, the former scoring 5 baskets from the floor.

Between the periods St. Mary's Fire and Drum Corp rendered several selections under the leadership of "Fireman" Cullen of Technology which were received with enthusiasm by the fans.

WINCHESTER GIRLS LOSE LAST GAME TO ARLINGTON

Arlington High School girls' basketball team, champions for the past two years in the Interscholastic League, were hard pressed to defeat the Winchester girls on Wednesday afternoon in the local gymnasium, finally pulling the game out of the fire, 25-20.

Coach Wheeler's charges showed one of their best games of the season against the red bloomed lassies from Spy Pond and were by no means disgraced in their defeat by what is admitted to be one of the best girls' outfits in this section of the country.

The first half was very close with Arlington having a single point advantage at intermission with the score at 10-9. At the resumption of play Winchester took the game to its opponents in real earnest and mid-way through the third quarter had a lead of 4 points over the champions, the count being 18-14.

Arlington braced in its turn and began the score to an even 19 at the beginning of the final period.

Here the locals became over anxious and during the 4th quarter missed many shots which, had they been good, might have given the battle an entirely different aspect. Arlington played the steadier game as the battle progressed and deserved to win, yet it left the court with profound respect for the all around ability of Coach Wheeler's young ladies who have shown more improvement during the past three weeks than any other club in the league.

The Misses Burns and Walker starred for the visitors, "Kay" Valley, "Vin" Rollo and "Kay" Carlisle for Winchester.

THE SCORE:
ARLINGTON	WINCHESTER
L. Crosby, lf	rg, D. Bond
A. Burns, rf	lg, K. Van Nottis
A. Johnson, lf	sc, W. Simmons
M. McIntosh, sc	jc, K. Carlisle

Score—Arlington high school girls 25, Winchester high school girls 20. Goals from the floor—A. Burns 5, L. Crosby 5, V. Rollo 5, K. Valley 2. Points on free tries—A. Burns 3, V. Rollo 2, K. Valley 4. Referee, Miss Wellman and Miss Langelier. Time, four eight minute periods.

ST. MARY'S PLAYS A COUPLE

St. Mary's C. C. basketball team will hop up to Woburn Saturday evening for an engagement with the quintet of Motor Transport Company in the Woburn Armory. Tansey, Melly, Flaherty, Quigley, McGrath, Rolli and Cassidy will make the trip.

Next Wednesday evening in the high school gymnasium St. Mary's will entertain the strong Cambridge Collegiate, with the opening whistle tooting at 8 o'clock. This should prove a real attraction for the local fans and the home club with a strengthened lineup expects to make a good showing.

SOPHIE UNDERWOOD THOMPSON

To those who knew the Winchester of half a century ago, the passing of Mrs. Thompson brings many memories of her gracious and cheering activities. Winchester was then an outlying village, and not the populous and prosperous suburb of today. There were then the beginnings of institutions now long established. A woman's club was to be started, and in the organizing of the Fortnightly Mrs. Thompson took a helpful part. The Episcopal minister at Arlington came over, driving his horse and buggy, to hold Prayer Book services, and to lay the foundations of the parish of the Epiphany. It was in Mrs. Thompson's house that he made his headquarters. She was untiring and cheerful in the care of all things pertaining to the services, and in planning the various activities of the newly established church. Her husband, Capt. Thompson, with his graces of a Southern gentleman, and recollections of service in the Confederate Army, became the church's first warden. These interests, if paramount, were only a part of her activity and influence. She was a kind and never-failing neighbor, and her house, through the years, has been a center of warm sympathies, and helpful friendliness. Her cheerfulness and optimism, and the courage with which she has met the changes and chances of this mortal life have been a source of comfort to many, who will miss her presence, and who put on record their gratefulness for what she did and what she was. In the simplicity and naturalness of her faith in God and in her fellowmen she has brought inspiration, through her long life, to finer faithfulness and courage in those who have been closest and dearest to her, and in the wider circle of those who are happy to have been her friends.—J. W. S.

SPRING FEVER

Spring fever is something like New Year's resolutions, says the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. It comes and it goes. It is a tired-out feeling which many people have after a winter of either overwork or not enough out-door exercise. It can be remedied by "getting out," enjoying the stimulation of fresh air and sunshine which should by rights be enjoyed all year round. It has always been the custom to feed sulphur and molasses when spring blues come on. However, there is no more need for this dose in the spring months than in other seasons. It is harmless enough but its effectiveness lies entirely in the laxative properties of the molasses. Nature's remedies, fresh air, sunshine and exercise, are better than all others combined.

Mrs. Stillman P. Williams entertained at bridge and luncheon on last Friday at her home on Highland avenue.

Principal Wade L. Grindle of the High School has been in attendance at the State High School principals' conference at Amherst this week.

MODERATOR HAYWARD ANNOUNCES COMMITTEES

Moderator George B. Hayward has announced the following committees as provided for at the recently held Town Meeting.

The committee which is to replace that which reported at this year's session upon the advisability of getting expert advice on the matter of reevaluating the town's property is to consist of Burton W. Carey, Jonas A. Laraway and Harry T. Winn.

The nine citizens who are to serve on the committee for the consideration of limited representation at Town Meeting with attention to time, place, etc., include Joseph A. Dolben, John F. Cassidy, Elizabeth G. Dennett, Lawrence M. Woodside, George T. Davidson, James J. Fitzgerald, Robert F. Guild, Marshall J. England and Elwell R. Butterworth. The above are to serve with the Moderator, the former Moderator, the Chairman of the Selectmen, the Chairman of the Planning Board, the Chairman of the Finance Committee and the Town Council under the provisions of the motion passed.

The committee to conduct a survey of conditions relating to mosquitoes with the power to make recommendations for their suppression and extermination includes Preston E. Corey, Richard Parkhurst and Marion P. Powers.

Lewis Parkhurst, Edgar J. Rich, William L. Parsons, Helen B. H. Emerson and Harry C. Sanborn are appointed to the committee which is to estimate the probable cost of acquiring the parcels of land on Washington street belonging to the Misses Joy and the Church of Christ. Scientist as a site for the public library and to obtain estimates of the cost of a new library, the same committee to have power to report and make recommendations at a latter Town Meeting.

WHAT MEN WANT

(Written for The Winchester Star)

Remember, dear friends, it is not getting what men want. So much as it is the pleasure of knowing the smell of wanting what men want. And to land it while it is still glowing.

HARRIET L. LADD

Harriet L. Ladd, aged 86, a retired school teacher, passed away Saturday morning at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ellen Murphy on Mason street.

Miss Ladd was a native of Franklin, N. H., the daughter of Dudley and Amanda (Palmer) Ladd. She had made her home with her sister in Winchester for several years and was the aunt of Herman D. Murphy of Lexington, formerly of this town and noted as an artist and sportsman.

Funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at the chapel in Mt. Auburn Cemetery and were conducted by the Rev. Allen Evans, Jr., rector of the Church of the Epiphany. The remains were cremated.

WAS COMMODORE OF MEDFORD BOAT CLUB

Mr. Chester D. Dunlap, a former commodore of the Medford Boat Club and a previous resident of Everett, died in New York last Friday after a short illness of pneumonia. He resided in New Haven, Conn., and was on a business trip to New York when taken sick. He was widely known among the members of both the Medford and Winchester Boat Clubs. The funeral services were held at New Haven on Saturday, with services at the grave in Wildwood Cemetery, this town, on Sunday.

Messrs. George and John Bryne, sons of former Selectman George M. Bryne of Church street, have been laid up this week with the grip.

FUNERAL OF LEONARD H. SPAULDING HELD MONDAY

The funeral of Leonard H. Spaulding of Winchester, formerly of Haverhill, who died suddenly on Thursday at the Marlborough-Blenheim, Atlantic City, was held Monday afternoon at 2 from the home of George C. Elliott, 4 Maple avenue, Haverhill.

Mr. Spaulding was born in Haverhill 69 years ago. He engaged in the shoe manufacturing business there 40 years ago and was one of the oldest and most prominent manufacturers in the New England shoe trade. His business was conducted under the name of L. H. Spaulding Co., first in Haverhill and later in Boston and Lowell.

He received particular recognition in Haverhill as a shoe manufacturer by being the first to operate a shoe factory by electric motor and the first to use the non-royalty sewing machine. Mr. Spaulding retired from active business the past June.

Mr. Spaulding was also a yachtsman of wide prominence, owning during his life several smart yachts. He found particular delight in this pastime and made it his especial hobby. He was a member of the Boston Athletic Club, the Corinthian Club, and the Yoric Club.

Mr. Spaulding is survived by a widow and daughter, Mrs. Francis Hastings of Hingham.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Nelson Gildersleeve, a close friend of the family.

Burial was in Linwood Cemetery.

COW AND CHICKENS LOST IN EARLY MORNING FIRE

A cow and 25 chickens lost their lives in a fire which destroyed the barn in which they were quartered on the place of Mr. Jeremiah McCarron, 51 Wendell street at 4:40 o'clock Saturday morning.

The fire which was of unknown origin had gained considerable headway before its discovery and by the time the apparatus could be summoned the structure was past saving. Besides the cow and chickens Mr. McCarron lost a large quantity of hay.

Tribute to Teacher

Frank, age six, was a mischievous lad in school and along with several others, just as bad, managed to give the first-grade teacher no little trouble.

His schoolhouse was situated on a busy street, so that the teacher always went with the children to the street. Frank was telling his father about some of the pranks they played and then began to explain how the teacher coached them never to cross the street without looking both ways for machines, for they might be killed.

Frank exclaimed in surprise: "Yes, dad, as mean as some of those kids are she doesn't want them to be killed. What do you think of that?"

D. A. R. NOTES

The committee of Safety Chapter, D. A. R., of Winchester was represented at the State Conference and Banquet held at the Chamber of Commerce Building in Boston on Thursday, March 18 by several members including Mrs. Charles E. Corey of Mystic Valley Parkway.

The Chapter is honored in having as one of its Associate Members, Mrs. Archibald C. Jordan of Highland avenue, ex-regent of Bunker Hill Chapter, State Chairman of the National Bond Committee for the new D. A. R. Auditorium at Washington, D. C., and State Corresponding Secretary-Elect for the ensuing year, having received a very complimentary election on Thursday last. It will be of interest to D. A. R. residents of Winchester to learn Mrs. Jordan has received from the members of the D. A. R. through the State since last September nearly $100,000 for the Auditorium building and hopes to be able to report that amount at the National Conference in April.

The committee of Safety Chapter purchased a chair for $150, also completed its quota towards the Dormitory at International College, Springfield. Mrs. Russell G. Magrath, State Chairman of the Dormitory Fund reported at the Conference the full amount of $60,000 has been raised thus completing a work worth while, a monument to the work of the D. A. R. of Massachusetts.

LADIES FRIENDLY SOCIETY

On Tuesday evening, March 23 in Metcalf Hall the Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church observed Gentlemen's Night. A most enjoyable program consisted of folk songs in costume by Miss Claramonde Thompson with Mrs. Swain at the piano and a talk on Alexander Hamilton by Mr. Melville Freeman.

Miss Thompson has a rich sympathetic contralto voice of wide range and delighted the audience with her charming rendition of French and Southern songs.

Mr. Freeman, head of the History Department in the High School of Practical Arts, Boston, has had a wide experience in portraying the lives of early American patriots and founders and his lecture of the evening was most enthusiastically received. After the program refreshments were served, Mrs. Francis M. Carter Chairman, and a social hour enjoyed.

The Highest Mountains

"You see them mountains?" exclaimed the driver of a jaunting car in Ireland to an American passenger. The tourist admitted that he did see them.

"Well, them's the highest mountains in Ireland."

"You don't say so?"
"Oo do indade! An' you see them mountains?" the driver went on, flicking the whip toward another range. "Them's the highest in the wurld!"
The American expressed his incredulity. "Surely not!" he protested. "Sure, it's true!" the driver retorted, bridling, "exceptin', av coorse, for them in furin parts!"

BIBLICAL DRAMA PRESENTED BY THE SECOND CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The religious drama, "A Dream of Queen Esther," was beautifully presented by the Second Congregational Church on Friday evening, March 19, and was repeated on Sunday evening. The cast consisted of the following:

Mordecai, a captive Jew at Shushan. Rev. J. E. Whitley
Meesha Zabeel, Esther's servant. Mrs. Minnie Fogg
Hegai, the King's Chamberlain. Warren Fogg Hanania, a little Jewish maid. Marjorie Kendrick Jewish Children—Charles Kendrick, Ruth Morrow, Arthur Josephson, Dean Duncan, Harry Saunders, Eloy Josephson, Warren Morrow, Helen Saunders, Birsirt Olson, Mary Olson, Robert Ward
Esther, a Jewish heroine. Helen Webber

Koosh, an Ethiopian slave girl. Margaret Parker
Lady Ozoona, a beautiful Shushan maid. Marion Tomblay Jakosha, a languid lady. Helen Lassen
Princess Zuecca, proud lady of Media. Olive Robinson

Orchestra from the Christian Endeavor of the North-Woburn Congregational Church.
This dramatization of a bible story, the old, original way of presenting the stories and teachings of the Bible to the public, has undoubtedly impressed the book of "Esther" on the minds both of those who took part and of those who watched, more vividly and lastingly than much faithful reading could have done.

Mr. Whitley, in the character of Mordecai, leader of the captive Jews, entered so fully into his part in his protestations of faith and loyalty to beloved Jerusalem from which he had been taken away, that the audience itself seemed translated to the time and place of the story. No less touching were the scenes between his beautiful protegee, Esther, and the group of devoted Jewish children, all of whom took their parts and sang so well, showing careful training.

The scene presenting Esther's dream was one of much beauty and grace as the Witch of Endor appears, presenting the heroines of the Old Testament, each with a word of advice to Esther. All wear flowing gowns of pink and white, and glide gracefully about Esther in her dream.

Later the beautiful, wealthy, or talented maidens, who would have the honor of being chosen Queen, come before the King for his favor. Mrs. Fields, as Kazma Shimeel, offering music, sings beautifully while her Persian Rose Maidens form a background for her with a graceful drill.

In turn come Lady Ozoona, Jakosha, and Princess Zuecca, each taking her part in a praiseworthy manner. Equally well done are the parts of the servants: Esther's faithful and devoted Meesha Zabeel, taken by Mrs. Fogg; the part of the Ethiopian slave girl, whose witty and mocking remarks cause many smiles; the part of King's Chamberlain, Hegai, who part of the time is obliged to take the place of the King, who wishes to watch the maidens, himself unknown.

Herbert Johnson, from the North Woburn Congregational Church, as King Ahasuerus, finally finds the maiden whom he seeks in the pure and lovely Esther, and she is made Queen.

The impressiveness of the scene between Mordecai and Queen Esther as, years later, he begs her to go to the King, proclaiming her Jewish birth, and entreating that the edict against the Jews be recalled, can only be realized by those who saw it. And when as the King and Queen, both richly and majestically costumed appear in the scene where she makes her plea and he grants it, the parts are so well taken that the audience cannot but enter into the spirit of the scene and of the times.

The whole production, so well and so earnestly presented, preached a real lesson to all who saw it.

MRS. E. S. ROGERS RECOVERS VERDICT AS RESULT OF AN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT ON CAMBRIDGE ST.

The case of Mrs. E. S. Rogers, of Glen road, Winchester, against Frederick S. Lang of Roxbury, was tried at East Cambridge before Judge Greenhalge and a jury, resulting in a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $5000. The accident happened in August 1922 on Cambridge street, as Mrs. Rogers was alighting from an electric car on her way home from Arlington. The Lang car came down Cambridge street on the way to Arlington, and turned to the right of another car that had stopped to let passengers from the electric car get off, and the Lang car struck her and threw her violently to the ground. Later she was removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where it was found that she had received serious injuries to the transverse processes of her spine.

Dr. Daniel C. Dennett of this town was the chief medical witness for the plaintiff, and was complimented by Judge Greenhalge for his free hand drawings which he made for the jury on the black board in order to explain the anatomy of the spine. William Flaherty and Daniel C. Linscott were the attorneys for the plaintiff, and Dana B. Jefferson for the defendant.

Sex and Athletics

According to a study made by Prof. A. V. Hill of the University college, London, woman athletes are able to attain a maximum speed of only 70 per cent of that of men, in running and swimming. A woman is able to expend only 62 per cent of the energy expendable by a man of the same weight.

WINCHESTER GIRLS TAKE STONEHAM

Stoneham High School girls' basketball team proved no match for Winchester on Monday afternoon, losing 49 to 27, in the local gymnasium. The game was more or less of a practice session for the locals, Stoneham not being among the members of the interscholastic league. Nevertheless the meeting was interesting as considerable rivalry has been built up between the two schools during the past few years.

The visitors started away well and stayed right with the locals during the opening quarter of the matinee. The score at half time stood 21 to 16 in Winchester's favor with appearances seeming to indicate a tight struggle for final honors.

Upon the resumption of play after intermission, however, Coach Wheeler's charges forced to the front in real earnest and quickly ran up a lead which their opponents could hardly hope to overcome. Stoneham never stopped trying but their all around game was far below the best which Winchester could show.

Miss Fudge at right forward was the scoring ace for Stoneham, accounting for 26 of her outfit's 27 points. Miss Patch, jumping center, also played well for the visitors. The Misses Rollo, Carlisle and Merrill starred for Winchester.

The summary:

So Well They Might

The first tourist launch was put upon Lake Josephine, way up in the Rockies of Glacier National park this season. Its initial trip in the mountain wilds was greeted by half a dozen golden eagles that hovered among the mountain peaks looking down in apparent wonderment at the arrival of this unusual "water thing."

Factories Behind Times

Only 9 per cent of the factories in the United States are well lighted and some 20 per cent have made no change in lighting equipment in the last seven years. During this time industrial electric lighting equipment has undergone a complete revolution.

Bones in Human Hand

There are no more bones in a child's hand than that of an adult. In the young, however, the ends of the bones have not been firmly attached to the shaft, which in an X-ray picture would give the effect of more bones than really exist. Bones originate and develop from several centers known as centers of ossification.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Every man should devote a part of his day to recreations, play with the children, play the piano, but play. If you do not, worry will take its place.

Never try to gag a loud-mouthed person—they will only begin chewing the rag.

The man who never does anything usually over does it.

Putting off easy things makes success hard; putting off hard things makes it impossible.

Take life as you find it but don't leave it that way.

Education is a conquest, not a bequest. If you want it, it must be achieved.

DOGTOWN

The STAR takes no stock whatever in the report that Winchester has as many dogs as any Massachusetts town of equal size.

It has about twice as many! We have dogs galore; here, there and everywhere; morning, noon and all night. It is about time we hunt up some new by-laws and either corral a few hundred, or else fence in the Town and move outside to give them the freedom they apparently must have.

The STAR has a dog of its own. True! Occasionally he leaves home and goes about town visiting his friends. Also true! And it is likewise correct that if certain dog owners were compelled to keep their own dogs inside, there would be less trouble keeping him at home. Not since Hector was a pup have we seen dogs so free and happy and unrestrained, and while women's rights are the vogue of today, why extend them to the dogs? It doesn't help us keep Pal at home.

Probably all these dogs are licensed and listed and petted and admired by their owners; all of which is all right and as it should be, but if anyone can go into any town within miles around and see more dogs running hard, wild and handsome, they win the brown derby, and all the glass marbles.

Automobile drivers expect to stop their cars when they drive on Highland avenue. From three to a dozen dogs spend all their spare time chasing cars between Cliff street and Park square. Nursemaids expect to load the three kids into the baby carriage when they cross the common. This plot should be set aside as a recreation space for German police hounds which frequent it. As soon as we can, we should get an ordinance through compelling the railroad to stop all trains at the centre until our dogs clear the tracks. If we intend to give up using our town, something should certainly be done to better protect our dogs!

Dog owners are, of course, afforded a certain amount of protection. If you hit one with your automobile they can sue you; and then again, no one likes to run over any animal, much less someone's pet. If you happen to get bitten by one, the burden of proof must be sustained—a most difficult job under present conditions, and equally as hard to identify which dog it was that ran between your legs and tripped you up, scaring you most to death, but only bruising you.

It is admitted that certain rights exist. But it is also a fact that not only the STAR, but a small minority as well, feel that the dog nuisance should be taken in hand and settled. Dogs will roam sometimes, and one cannot always keep them at home, but to have every section of our town overrun with half-wild dogs which are a source of nuisance and annoyance to everyone, is a feature of our restless suburban existence that needs attention, and needs it now, before we have a few hundred of these animals band together and run amuck, a child or two bitten or an automobile wrecked.

If it is necessary to call a special town meeting to handle the matter, let us have it at once, before the "dogless" citizens sell their homes for dog kennels and automobile owners spend any more money equipping their cars with dog catchers or cow catchers or whatever it is that is now required to handle these animals.

HEALTHY HAPPENINGS

My dad gave me a penny
To buy a lollipop
But on my way the football coach Called out for me to "stop."

"Young man," said he, "If you would be An athlete straight and strong Eat fruit instead of candy
And to your health prolong."

M. C. W. G. NOTES

A most successful whist party was held in K. of C. Hall on last evening, under the direction of Regent Blake. Many worthwhile prizes were awarded and all present were most pleasantly rewarded for their attendance. Proceeds of this party will be used in connection with the commendable charitable work which is carried on by the Guild during the year.

Installation of all the newly elected officers will take place at Hatertown, Sunday, April 25 and it is desired that as many members as conveniently can will attend. Plans for conveying members to and from Watertown will be made at the next regular meeting. The several members who have been on our sick list are reported as being in good health once again.

O God, beneath thy guiding handOur exiled fathers crossed the sea;
And, when they trod the wintry strand,
With prayer and psalm they worshipped Thee.

Thou heard'st, well pleased, the song, the prayer;

Thy blessings came; and still its power
Shall onward through all ages bear
The memory of that holy hour.Laws, freedom, truth, and faith in God Came with these exiles o'er the waves;
And where their pilgrim feet have trod,
The God they trusted guards their graves.And here thy name, O God of love,
Their children's children shall adore,
Till these eternal hills remove
And spring adorns the earth no more.Prayer

READING WINS PLAYOFF

Winchester High School's chances of being crowned king of the Middlesex Basketball League went glimmering last Tuesday evening when its quintet was defeated by Reading High School in the opening game of the playoff series, 15 to 13, in the Stoneham High gymnasium. By virtue of its win over Winchester Reading is now in a position to play Belmont tonight on a neutral floor for the championship.

Tuesday's game was a close affair all the way as the score would indicate. Both teams with so much at stake chose to play a defensive game rather than to take any chances and as a consequence the going was very slow, the chief interest being in the ultimate outcome.

There was a large delegation from Winchester on hand to cheer Coach Mansfield's charges who might easily have won, had they been able to take advantage of their chances at the foul line. This has been one of the team's fatal weaknesses all season and is one of the chief reasons a triple tie resulted in the race for league honors.
Each club shot five goals from the floor in Tuesday's skirmish, but Reading was able to make five of its free tries good while Winchester was fortunate to sink three of its hand-outs from the foul line.

Reading started away to an early lead when it caged a goal from the foul line soon after the opening whistle. It immediately followed this advantage with a basket from the floor for a three-point handicap before the local boys got going at all. Winchester evened things up before mid-quarter, however, and the score at the end of the first half stood deadlocked at eight apiece.

Winchester had the better of the going in the third quarter and entered the final period with the advantage in its favor, 13 to 10. Both clubs were playing very conservative basketball with the locals having the edge in the matter of working the ball into a scoring position. Inferior shooting kept the Winchester tally down, its players missing several shot tries.

With the game nearly over Coach Mansfield's boys still had a 13 to 11 edge and looked pretty much like winners when in their over anxiety two breaches of etiquette were committed permitting Reading to shoot a couple of foul goals to knot the count.

Only a minute remained and the stands were becoming quite worked up over the chances of an overtime session when Mr. Zwicker, Reading's substitute right forward, chucked a heavy monkey-wrench into the machinery of Winchester's hopes by tossing a million-to-one-shot basket from the floor to decide the issue for his club.
The shot looked like an intended pass, heir hurled from deep in the Reading back court. It came from Gay's outstretched hand, however, and striking the edge of the net balanced for a bit before obliquely or otherwise dropping through the strings for the slow music and asbestos.

NEW ANIMALS FOUND IN ARCTIC

Climbing Arctic cliffs barefoot, fishing with bare hands in glacial waters, skinning specimens on a tossing ship with icy waves threatening both the specimens and supplies—these are some of the adventures of a naturalist in the Arctic as related in a radio message to the National Geographic Society about the work of Dr. Walter N. Koelz, chief naturalist of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition.

It appears from Dr. Koelz's summer work that there are a number of kinds of animals in the Far North which have not yet been named, the message says.

Dr. Koelz recently had the benefit of long conferences with Dr. Lehn Schioler, world famous Danish ornithologist, and we were congratulated on the number and variety of our specimens.

Wins Dances' Admiration

Dr. Schioler and his artist companion, Mr. Larsen, have studied the fauna of Greenland for more than 20 years and were warm in their praise of one whose specialty is ichthyology but whose range of knowledge as a naturalist is such that his conclusions are listened to with respect and some of his specimens are considered so valuable they have been requested for Danish museums.

Some of the most interesting results of the expedition have been connected with the gyrfalcons and red polls. The former become progressively darker as they go south. North of Cape York both young and old birds are predominately white but in Godthaab, Greenland, many of the birds taken show no white at all. If protective coloration in rock and snow regions is a reason the mystery is no more simple since in neither region has the gyrfalcon any enemy which it must fear. In the north it is the only bird of prey equipped with hooked beak and sharp claws.

Falcons Menace Pigeons

Farther south there also are the fierce duckhawk, favorite of the falcons, the giant sea eagle and the snowy owl. All except the last are fairly common along the south Greenland coast where they prey for the most part on the birds, the only fur-bearing animals which they might kill being foxes and hares. The falcons often menace the poultry and pigeons which the Danes have introduced into Greenland.

Among the many birds now changing their homes in a more or less extended migration, the Arctic tern is the champion distance flyer. This bird is now on its annual migration to the Antarctic. It is barely larger than a robin but with a wing spread which makes its progress as even as that of a two-oared racing scull. This light grey courser, with sharp tipped wings and accentuated swallow-tails, wings its way from one end of the earth to the other a distance of 11,000 miles. The species which find life possible in the Tropics are many but the number of individuals in each species is relatively low. In the Far North the species are fewer but myriads of individuals exist especially in the water whose oxygen content is high.

One day Dr. Koelz was trouting in a small stream which empties into a small arm of Godthaab Fiord. In fresh water the trout become brightly colored, affording a picture which would drive any fisherman to envy. Color photographs were secured by Jacob Gayer of some of these trout, which weigh five pounds. While Eskimo boys were catching one, Dr. Koelz caught six in his hands. He is keenly enthusiastic over the results of his brief but strenuous work in the Arctic and is obtaining further important data of the varied fish life in Labrador.

Dr. Koelz was loaned to the National Geographic Society for the MacMillan Expedition work by the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries.

Nothing Ever Lost

Elements which enter into the making of a soap-bubble film are as lasting as those which form granite rock; no material which is ever lost or destroyed, says science. Man's immortality is fairly well assured both by science and the Bible. It was the Frenchman, Lavoisier, who first proved with his fine balance, that in all chemical operations it is only the kind of matter that is changed, the quantity remaining the same. This was the discovery of the conservation of matter to which knowledge of the conservation of energy has since been added.—Capper's Weekly.

AN ALL SOMERVILLE VAUDEVILLE CARNIVAL TO BE STAGED AT LOCATELLI'S THEATRES

Can you dance? Can you sing? Can you play a musical instrument? In fact can you do anything which will be considered good vaudeville entertainment? If you can, and you wish for an opportunity to show your talent on the professional stage, then be prepared to join, with others of your neighbors, the "All Somerville Vaudeville Carnival," which Manager "Al" Locatelli is going to put on during the week of April 26th, at his Ball Square and Central theatres. The carnival is not to be limited to amateurs by any means, but is open to professionals as well. The only requisite being that you be a resident of Somerville. This opportunity for the youth of Somerville to absorb much valuable stage atmosphere and professional training is an ideal one. Mr. Locatelli will engage a competent director, one who is fit by long years of actual stage experience, to produce a show worthy of our boys and girls. The call just now is for boys and girls above the age of 16 to file application at once at either the Central or Ball Square theatres. A blank for the purpose will be furnished and in it the applicant will be expected to state as briefly as possible, what, if any experience he or she may have had. From among these applicants will be selected the nucleus of one of the greatest vaudeville entertainments ever presented in Somerville and the glory of it all will lie in the fact that it will be wholly local in production and cast. The management wishes to especially urge the young people who possess some talent not to hesitate or be backward in applying for a test, as very often, an individual possesses attributes that are hidden by a lack of polish, but which a trained director can readily distinguish and soon be made to look quite professional. "We know," says Mr. Locatelli, "that we have just as good talent right here in Somerville as can be found in any other community. All we want is the chance to prove it. Just watch this show, that's all."

C. D. OF A. NOTES

The Catholic Daughters of America will meet Thursday evening, April 1, in Lyceum Hall. All activities of the court will cease until after Holy Week, when the various teams of the court will venture into the field of competition. These teams should be encouraged by an abundance of good spirit which will place our captains on the very pinnacle of confidence.

The second whist party under the new schedule took place last Thursday evening under the direction of Mrs. Nora O'Melia and was a fine success. The proceeds of this party were credited to Mrs. Mary Smith, who is captain of Team 1. The prize winners were as follows: Miss Murrison, Thomas Powers, Hannan, John McCormack, Quill, Mrs. George Annie Higgins, Mrs. Hannah Rafter, Mrs. Skerry, Mrs. Jessie Quirk, Mrs. David Rezan, John Cassidy, Mrs. Nellie Moffett, Mrs. Mary Hamilton, Mrs. Mary Fenton, Mrs. Doris Leydon and Bruce Whitney. The prizes for the couple scoring the first seven points were awarded to Mrs. Nellie Moffett and Miss Murray.

The final performance of the Lenten drama, "A Daughter of Rome," which is to be presented at St. Mary's Theatre, Cooper street, Boston on March 26, has been designated as C. D. of A. Night. Reservations for the performance may be made at St. Mary's rectory, 45 Cooper street, Boston.

Mrs. Mary Smith and Mrs. Minnie O'Connor represented Court Winchester at the C. D. of A. "Irish Follies" which was staged by Court Woburn, Tuesday evening, March 16.

GUATEMALA: LAND OF THE QUETZAL

A new coin has made its appearance in the money changing marts of the world. It is called the Quetzal, and is the silver standard of Guatemala. After 28 years of a paper money regime the Central American Republic is now issuing silver money, to be followed shortly by gold coins, and smaller fractional ones of copper.

A step forward in finance is in keeping with other developments of this most populous, and perhaps most richly endowed, of all the Central American countries, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Guatemala possesses the largest railroad mileage of any country between Mexico and South America, and although figures vary from time to time, the value of its exports, well up in the millions, will be found each year ranking first or second among Central American countries.

Leadership Traditional
Guatemala's place near the front of the Central American procession is traditional. At the coming of the first Europeans the region was inhabited by the Maya-Quiche Indians, fierce fighters but among the most highly civilized peoples of their time. Their history reads like a romance and the remarkable ruins they have left indicate a widespread realm of power and influence. The Spaniards made Guatemala the administrative center for all of Central America and part of Mexico.

After throwing off the Spanish yoke the country was for a time a part of the Empire of Mexico, but in 1823 an independent nation was formed under the title of the Central American Federation, embracing also the present Honduras, Salvador, Nicaragua and Costa Rica. One by one the States seceded and formed independent republics.

Another unsuccessful attempt to unite several Central American countries was made in 1921. A treaty ratified by Guatemala, Honduras and Salvador resulted in a federation known as the Republic of Central America, with Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras, the administrative seat. The new Republic, however, was short-lived. Guatemala today continues in a sole role with the other nations of the world, although many co-operative agreements, especially in relation to international railroads, have been made between the members of this effervescent Latin-American family.

Has Strategic Position
Guatemala has an area about equal to that of the State of Louisiana and is the second largest of the Central American Republics. As it is about midway between the United States and South America, and fronting on both the Caribbean and the Pacific, it occupies a strategic position, both politically and economically. Mountains near the west coast, however, divide its population unequally. The highlands between 1000 and 5000 feet above the sea, are by far the most thickly settled part of the country. The long, gradual Atlantic slope is of little importance aside from the timber cutting of the northern part; the coffee plantations of the Coban plateau, and the banana raising of the Lake Izabal region.

Coffee might justly be said to be the commercial patron saint of Guatemala, for other potential riches have been overlooked or ignored in the development of great plantations to help keep America and Europe supplied with the cup that cheers. Volcanoes that so often level its buildings and houses make rich return in deposits of volcanic ash that renew the soil and make fertilization unnecessary. A large part of the chicle that goes into the manufacture of chewing gum in the United States comes from Guatemala. Banana farms in the tropical lowlands have lately begun to rival the coffee plantations in production.

Guatemala City, the nation's capital, presents another example of the progressive spirit of the country. Practically destroyed by a violent earthquake in 1917, there are hardly any traces of the catastrophe in the orderly, well-built city of churches, theatres, clubs, shops and homes of today.

Natives Largely Indians
About 60 per cent of the population is of pure Indian blood and almost half the remainder are half-castes. In the mountains of southwestern Guatemala live thousands of pure-blooded Indians, maintaining the traditions of their forefathers. They have won the admiration of travelers for their physique, cleanliness and scrupulous honesty. One visitor tells of trying to buy a ring from an Indian girl who refused to sell because it was not pure gold, and she did not wish to sell a stranger an imitation!

The nature lover finds the tropical lowlands of Guatemala a fascinating land, with their dense forests covering more than a million acres. Giant trees are linked together by trailing vines above a gorgeous carpet of orchids, waxen begonias, the peculiar blossoms of the plantain, and scarlet poinsettias.

The new coin bears the name of the bird that is the national emblem of liberty of Guatemala. The quetzal is more truly a bird of liberty than the American eagle, for the quetzal will not even live if kept in captivity. It is still, as it was to their Maya ancestors, a more or less sacred symbol to the Guatemalians. A story is told concerning the part a quetzal played in the unequal duel between the Maya King Tecum Uman, and Don Pedro de Alvarado, the Spanish conqueror, which was fought to prevent further bloodshed. A quetzal, in his efforts to aid the king, pecked at the eyes of Don Pedro through the holes in his helmet, the only vulnerable spot, as he was clad in steel from head to foot.

CORSICA: ISLAND OF PARADOXES

Corsica, Mediterranean Island, in the neighborhood of which France lost five brave sea-faring airmen, in a disaster comparable to the loss of the PN-9 No. 1, is described as follows in a communication to the National Geographic Society.

Submerged by wave after wave of history and conquest, home of a race full of passion but free from low crime, the scented isle south of the Cote d'Azur offers a distinctive reward to those who leave the rush and display of the Continent to visit ventedland.

Corsica, like every other country, is a land of contrasts, but more than most, it is the land of paradox. Behind the striking beauty of the island, concealed beneath the commonplace exteriors of the people, there is a mystery, a contrary quality which first escapes observation and later intrudes everywhere. Probably nowhere is a generalization more likely to be true and false at the same time.

Gunmen Not Romantic
One goes to Corsica, as did Boswell's friend, expecting to find every bandit a menace. He remains to find the man with the gun the most unromantic of mortals. Melodrama heroes have accomplished more with the glitter of a silver spoon held reverently than the most Tartaninque of Corsicans attempt when loaded to the belt. Yet personal encounter between natives is still a commonplace.

Corsica, where women go safely alone by night and gendarmes travel in pairs by day, where there are hundreds of bridges and no rivers, where everyone expects the visitor to pay verbal tribute to "Kalliste" (Most Beautiful) and few can name the mountains in whose shadow they were born!

Banditry is still a byword and thievery is abhorred. The innkeepers boast of what grand things they would do if there were more tourists, and neglect the few they have. The sun gives the land its charm; and the snow, its beauty and health. The roads are blocked by horses, mules, and donkeys, few of them laden, and the automobile, even for the single traveler, offers the cheapest means of transportation. The perfume of the maquis and the smells of the streets are alike indescribable.

Island Produces Few Mariners

Animals, made roommates, are treated cruelly, and children, seldom at home, are generally allowed to do as they please.

Life is somber and death is still the supreme event to those whose monotonous days are as tenaciously clung to as in happier and less lovely lands.

The mountain sides are terraced with infinite labor and the most fertile plains are left untillied. The sea is all around and mariners are few. Bad sailors that they are, the Corsicans claim kinship with Columbus, and, indomitable fighters, they ignore Napoleon. Sacred personages, pictured on many walls, are profaned on most male lips.

The donkeys and pigs feed on chestnuts of such quality as few in richer lands could afford, and every third child seems underfed.

Simple, Unspoiled Paradise
But as one looks back on Corsica from the confetti-strewn Corso in Nice, he longs for the simple, unspoiled, paradoxical paradise to the south, so comfortless, yet so compelling in its charm.

Neglected heretofore, Corsica is coming into vogue. One of the great French railway systems is arranging for motor services in connection with the steamers from Nice and Marseille, and last winter a half dozen simple but clean hotels, under Swiss direction, were being planned, so that even those who insist on standardized travel arrangements might visit most parts of the island.

But to appreciate the Corsican one must know him, and a throbbing motor car which relentlessly puts hills behind and rolls past splendid points of view at 30 miles an hour does not give a chance to know those who do not wear their hearts upon their brown corduroy sleeves, for all their traditional hospitality. One can't show very sincere hospitality to a cloud of dust and carbon monoxide gas.

RUSSIAN ASIA'S "SCRAMBLED GEOGRAPHY"

Bound Turkmenistan. What are the chief industries of Uzbekistan?

Distinguish between Kirghizia and Kara-Kirghizia.

Such questions probably would stump 99 out of 100 geography classes, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society; yet they are fair questions in the new geography that has come into existence since 1918.

Old State Names and Lines Discarded
Gaining some idea of the political make-up of European Russia is difficult enough, declares the bulletin, but it is relatively simple compared to efforts to untangle the snarls into which Soviet political activities have thrown the old Russian Central Asiatic Provinces. The old geography knew well Turkistan, Bokhara, Khiva, and the Trans-Caspian District. None of them exists today. To be sure, most of the maps proclaim their existence; but this is for the good reason that no cartographer can change his plates quite as rapidly as the Soviet has changed its mind. During the past six of eight years boundaries in Central Asia have seemed to be made of rubber and state names to be written in the abundant sands of the region, so rapidly have both changed. Today Central Asia should be able easily to defend its title to have the most "scrambled geography" of any region in the world.

Under the old Russian regime both Bokhara and Khiva were protectorates, ruled over respectively by a native Amir and a native Khan. The changes began with mild revolutions which deposed these rulers and formed each of the old regions into "autonomous Republics." The next step was the change to "Soviet Republics"; then Bokhara and Khiva were wiped out of existence as separate states and absorbed into the extensive "Socialist Soviet Republic of Turkistan" which was a part of the Central Soviet Union. These changes were carried out by little groups, made up for the most part of Russians, and the large native population knew little of what was going on.

Commission Laid Out Racial Boundaries
While the Republic of Turkistan functioned, the Soviet authorities at Moscow sent scientific missions to Central Asia to map out the racial distribution of the population. Following this work the latest states were formed and are supposed to be erected primarily along racial lines. The dominant, though not the largest, is Uzbekistan, or the Uzbek Socialist Republic. This unit is supposed to cover the territory of the Uzbek population, and takes in most of old Bokhara as well as parts of Pamir, Syr Daria, Khiva and the southern Trans-Caspian District. The southern boundary of this new state touches Afghanistan along its entire length, while the western end lies north of Persia. From the extreme eastern part of Uzbekistan is carved the "autonomous district" of the Tadzhik tribes. A part of this district was formerly Pamir. Uzbekistan contains the important cities of Merv, Bokhara, Khiva, Samarkand, Khojend, and Tashkent.

Touching Uzbekistan on the east and occupying much of the Pamir tableland is the "autonomous territory" of Kara-Kirghizia. This is the region of the Kirghiz mountain Cossacks. Turkmenistan, the land of the Turkomans, lies to the west of Uzbekistan, and between that state and the Caspian Sea. It is made up of the southwestern portion of the Trans-Caspian District and the southwestern corner of Khiva.

Uzbekistan is Dominant New State
All the remainder of the old Central Asiatic Provinces, lying north of the new states described above, constitute the Kirghiz Socialist Soviet Republic of Kirghizia.

The possession by Uzbekistan of practically all of the cotton lands and of nearly all of the big cities of the old Central Asiatic Provinces places it in a strong economic position. Grain, in a strong sense, are produced in Turkmenistan and Kirghizia, while cotton, grain and fruits are the chief products of Uzbekistan. The cotton gins, flour

Chats With YOUR Gas Man

JUST MARVELOUSLY COMFORTABLE

A Frenchman, upon returning to France after a visit in America, was asked what was his deepest impression. "A marvelously wasteful people," he replied. "Why a French family could live on what an American family wastes."

Of course, the statement is ridiculous. He regards greater comforts and conveniences as wasteful extravagances. And the reason we can enjoy these modern comforts is because they are so much more economical than the wasteful, old-fashioned ways.

Consider burning coal or wood versus gas. The gas is on when you want it, off when you're through. All the gas is burned, none of it is lost in soot, cinders and ashes. Consider too, lighting with candle and wick. To gain anywhere near as much light as you now enjoy, your candle bill would be three times or more greater than your present gas bill.

If you have not done so, you would be interested in seeing the many latest gas comforts and economies here on display. You are cordially invited to come in any time.

ST. MARY'S

Palm Sunday every year calls to the 8 o'clock mass in St. Mary's Church a solid phalanx of sturdy Catholic men in solemn adoration of their eucharistic Lord. This year will be no exception. Next Sunday at the 8 o'clock mass special music by the K. of C. orchestra, Thomas Gigliotti, violinist, and the Holy Name Society choir will please with their renditions of the "Palm" and other appropriate selections. Following the mass a communion breakfast will be held in the K. of C. home where all the men are invited to listen to many leading speakers of this part of the country.

On Easter Sunday night another treat is in store for all St. Mary's men. The Holy Name Society will present the famous Boston College debaters of their Fulton Society; collegians who have already won epoch making decisions in debate this year over such teams as Dartmouth, Holy Cross, Clark and Fordham Universities. The debate on Easter Sunday night at 8 o'clock will be on the "World Court." It will be held in the K. of C. Hall. Reservations should be sought for immediately.

Fr. Fitzgibbons is urging his "mandolin circle" to outdo their musical efforts of the past three years when they present their Easter program at the 8 o'clock mass and high mass Easter morn. His girls under the able leadership of Thomas Gigliotti have won the hearts of all Winchester with their splendid renditions of the past and Fr. Fitzgibbons feels reasonably certain that the Easter program, which he will publish next week, will equal the Christmas treat.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The most significant fact the delegates of the recent wet "Face the Facts" conference in Washington, had to face, according to LeRoy L. Vernon, staff correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, was that there is no hope of persuading this Congress to do anything toward modifying the dry act, and practically no prospect that the next Congress will do so.

"Prohibition agents are seizing more liquor than ever, but all of it is synthetic. The chemistry department has not tested a sample of genuine liquor in two months," says the chief chemist of the Internal Revenue Bureau. Drinkers now have only one chance in 1000 of obtaining "genuine" liquor from bootleggers, is the belief of prohibition authorities. "Liquor that has not been aged in wood and is not properly made will get the drinker in time if he continues to imbibe," the chief chemist warned. "Moonshine being sold now contains fuel oil, wood alcohol, lye, zinc and other knock-out constituents."

Since Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews took over the work of enforcing the dry law, he said, "real rum is obtainable only on prescription."

On March 21 the local W. C. T. U. organized the children's branch of National Prohibition Guards with the following officers: President, Paul Welburn; Vice-President, Winona Stevenson; Secretary, Elva Good-nough; Treasurer, Sheldon Hamilton. State Director of Children's Work, Mrs. Ella Ricker is the teacher of this class and parents of children seven to 14 years of age are urged to have their children join and receive this instruction.

BEAUTIES WEAR RINGS

The first appearance on the stage of a Boston theater, was made by the Mirr-O-ring at the Keith-Albee St. James this week.

The eight famous beauty contest winners who appeared in the Sea Nymphs Revue, Miss Westchester, Miss Pennsylvania, Miss Kentucky, Miss Virginia, Miss Ohio, Miss Utah, Miss Illinois and Miss Missouri, wore Mirr-O-rings throughout the act.

These rings, which contain real mirrors, and allow the wearer to see the reflection of her entire head, are made by the Ren Manufacturing Co. of Winchester.

Grapes Long Cultivated

From the earliest time grapes were grown in the East and in southern Europe. The vine was extensively cultivated by the ancient Israelites, the Greeks and the Romans. Grapes were first grown in Flanders in the Thirteenth century and were taken to England in large quantities during the reigns of the later Plantagenet kings.

What Caused Delay

The town of Colchester, Conn., in 1705 voted to postpone its celebration of Thanksgiving day from the first Thursday to the second Thursday in November. "The tradition is well supported," says a Nutmeg state historian, "that the cause was a delay in receiving a supply of molasses."

Women, read the Household pages in the Boston Daily and Sunday Globe. The Boston Globe's Household Department is the talk of all New England.

WERE STRIPPING AUTO ON CAMBRIDGE STREET

The activities of a gang of auto thieves were rudely interrupted on last Friday night just before 11:30 o'clock by Officer Daniel P. Kelley of the Winchester Police who came at that time upon four men busily engaged in stripping a Nash sedan on Cambridge street, north of Foxcroft road.

Officer Kelley was patrolling his beat on the West Side of the town when he was informed that some men were stripping a big car at the spot mentioned above. The patrolman hastened to the scene and as he approached saw two Nash sedans parked close together.

Upon his arrival three men leaped from one of the machines and made off in different directions. Officer Kelley had barely time to grasp one of the fugitives, his grip being insufficiently secure to prevent the latter from breaking loose, though he left a part of his clothing in the policeman's grasp.

Pulling his gun the officer fired several shots after the fugitives, but was prevented from giving further chase by the appearance of a fourth man in the other sedan. When Officer Kelley attempted to place the latter under arrest he resisted strenuously and it was only after a struggle that the patrolman was able to subdue him and take him into custody.

Meanwhile a telephone call was sent to police headquarters for assistance and Officer Regan hastened to the spot in the Police Ford. Officer Kelley's prisoner was escorted to the station house and locked up, charged with larceny and drunkenness. He gave his name as Eugene P. Gormley and his address as 200 Powder House Boulevard, Somerville.

Upon learning the particulars of his capture a squad of police was dispatched in an attempt to round up the other members of the gang, but although the surrounding district was thoroughly scoured no trace of the men was found.

It is believed that one of the fugitives, at least, left town in a Ford sedan which he stole within a quarter of a mile of the place where Officer Kelley interrupted the motor stripping activities of himself and his companions.

Not long after the first notice which police headquarters received of the trouble another phone call came in to the effect that a Ford sedan, the property of Butler P. Crittendon of Watertown, had been stolen from the residence of Percival B. Metcalf at 12 Glen road where the former was a visitor. The machine was later recovered by the Somerville police at 2:40 a. m., the fact that it was abandoned in that city lending weight to the theory that it was used by the men who had previously figured in the encounter with the local authorities on Cambridge street.

The two Nash sedans which had been discovered by Officer Kelley were towed to local headquarters. There it was discovered that one of the cars had been entered by breaking the glass in a door and that the battery and radiator from this machine had been removed and placed in the other which had been occupied by Gormley and his fellow thieves.

The stripped machine was found to be the property of Harry B. McGrath of 3 Castle Rock street, Dorchester and further investigation disclosed that it had been stolen in Somerville. The Nash occupied by the four men was registered to James Moran of that city.

The two machines and the prisoner, Gormley, were turned over to the Somerville authorities who, it was subsequently learned, succeeded in rounding up the missing members of the quartette. The local authorities and particularly Officer Kelley were warmly commended for their assistance in bringing the men to justice.

HOLDUP REPORT LANDS MEN IN LOCAL JAIL

Three men spent the night in the local station house as a result of a report received by Officer Henry P. Dempsey of the Winchester Police at 8:30 Saturday evening that several men and a taxi were staging a hold-up on Winthrop street near the Medford line.

Officer Dempsey was making haste thither when the alleged holdup car passed him toward Winchester. The patrolman notified local headquarters by phone and Officer John Regan was sent out to intercept the machine which he proceeded to do as it came into the square.

After stopping the car the patrolman looked around a bit and upon discovering a gallon of alleged moonshine decided to escort the party of three men and the taxi driver to the station. There they said that they were on their way to Silver Lake, Wilmington, and stated that they had stopped at the Medford line because of the snowstorm.

One of the party was allowed to go, but the others were detained. They gave their names as William Murphy 30, Leo F. Loneyan 28, and Frank Dacey 21, all of Charlestown. Murphy, the driver of the taxi which belonged to a Charlestown firm, was charged with illegal transportation of liquor, Loneyan and Dacey, with drunkenness.

All three appeared in the District Court at Woburn Monday morning where they pleaded "not guilty" to the charges preferred against them. Their case was continued one week.

Odd Court Cases in 1656

A page from a Massachusetts court docket for the year 1656 reveals that Henry Walton was fined for saying that he would as leave hear a dog bark as to hear Reverend Cobbell preach; that Robert Edwards was fined for excess in apparel in wearing sleeve lace and gold buttons; that John Studly was fined for stealing his master's ox and selling it to him and that Sarah Collins was fined for railing at her husband.—Detroit News.

FATHER AND SON NIGHT BIG SUCCESS

The first Father and Son Night held by the First Congregational Church on last Friday evening in the church vestry proved from every angle a most successful event and one likely to be often repeated.

There was a good attendance and everyone thoroughly enjoyed himself from the youngest son to the most mature dad. Immediately upon arrival a delicious supper prepared under the direction of Mrs. William P. M. DeCamp was served by nine young ladies of the church and following a blessing by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor, the assembly "fell to" with a will which gave ample evidence of the fact that the average masculine appetite is one thing upon which dependence may safely be placed.

Following the consumption of the final course, Toastmaster James J. Quinn, superintendent of the public schools, arose and rapped for order. Incidentally it might be stated that Mr. Quinn fulfilled the duties of his somewhat exacting office admirably, his introductory remarks putting the audience in a most receptive mood for the address of the speaker who was to follow.

He first called upon Dr. Chidley who briefly but in his inimitable way welcomed the gathering and the guests of the evening. Then James S. Allen spoke upon what the father expects of the son, to be followed by W. Holbrook Lowell, Jr., whose subject was what the son may rightfully expect from his dad.

The principal address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Douglas Horton, pastor of the Leydon Congregational Church of Brookline, and though he spoke at some length, he had little difficulty in holding the entire attention of all present from his opening to his closing remarks. While his talk was apparently primarily for the boys there was much of peculiar interest to his older hearers, and it is safe to say that there was no one present who would not welcome an opportunity to hear him again. During the evening community singing was enjoyed, directed by Dr. J. Churchill Hinde.

Assisting Mrs. DeCamp in preparing the supper were Mrs. Maurice F. Brown, Mrs. W. Holbrook Lowell, Mrs. J. Churchill Hinde, Mrs. Arthur Smith, Mrs. C. Edward Newell and Mrs. Oscar B. Crows. Miss Priscilla Laraway, Miss Estelle Simonds, Miss Dorothy Brown, Miss Katherine Nelson, Miss Virginia Tompkins, Miss Sally Brooks, Miss Joy Adriance, Miss Cornelia Smith and Miss Ruth Woodbury were waitresses.

To Rev. Lisle Burroughs, assistant pastor of the church, as sponsor for the affair goes much of the credit for its great success and all voted his idea a happy thought.

THE ISLE OF WIGHT: THREATENED WITH DIVISION

Encroaching on the southwest shore of the Isle of Wight at Freshwater Bay, the waters of the English Channel again are menacing the unity of that delectable English playground near Southampton, according to recent dispatches from England.

The section that would be cut off, known locally as the "High Downs," contains some of the finest scenery and richest historical associations in the British Isles, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "It is like an irregular triangle, and forms the extreme western portion of the Isle of Wight. A narrow isthmus of marshy land, less than a quarter of a mile wide and extending from Freshwater Bay, on the Channel to Yarmouth, on the Solent, connects it with the main part of the island."

An Actual "Salt River" This isthmus is but a few feet above the ordinary spring tides. The sluggish River Yar rises in the vicinity of the village of Freshwater and flows north through the marshy isthmus to the Solent. Its source is in a number of springs which are so little raised above the sea, and are so near the beach at Freshwater Bay, that the waves from the Channel splash into these springs during periods of extremely high tides. The Yar then presents the peculiar phenomenon of a river of flowing salt water.

The prospect of the sea overflowing the isthmus and dividing the island at this point is not a new one. Ancient maps show the bed of the Yar a long narrow inlet, like that of the River Medina between Cowes and Newport, in the north-central part of the island. During the reign of Charles I, however, it was proposed to insulate the "Downs" artificially by cutting down the low barrier at Freshwater Bay, to make the "Downs" a citadel of defense. Private land owners have advocated a breakwater along Freshwater Bay for some time.

The section threatened with isolation is particularly endeared to the islanders as the home, for 40 years, of Alfred Tennyson. On the top of one of the hills, or downs, is the home he called Farringford, clothed with ivy, almost buried in trees and flowers, and swept by the breeze from the sea. Here the poet produced many of his great works and the effect of the natural beauty of his surroundings can be traced in much of his poetry. It must have been the surf below Farringford that inspired him to write:

"The voice of the long sea-wave as it swelled,
Now and then in the dim-gray dawn."

Many Golf Courses

The main body of the Isle of Wight is significant to the English mainly as a health and pleasure resort. At Sokes, on the north shore opposite Southampton, is held the yachting (and social) classic of the Empire each summer. Ventnor, Shanklin and Sandown are famous watering places along the east shore. Inland are so many golf courses that a British wag has suggested that the name of the island should be changed to "Fore-land."

But the Island, as the natives refer to it, which is about twice as large as the District of Columbia, is not wholly a region of bath houses and flying golf balls. Long stretches of the coast reveal dazzling chalk cliffs and booming surf, while inland the beautiful downs unroll their carpets of soft green bracken and purple heather, with distant glimpses of the blue sea. Little inns along smooth, winding roads, and cottages smothered in flowers complete an idyllic picture.

Tennyson was not the only writer who drew inspiration from the Island's store of beauty. Natives of Shanklin will tell you that Keats, one of the discoverers of the Island, lived and wrote in that terraced village by the sea. At Bonchurch, not far away, John Stirling is buried, while at New St. Boniface, close to a convent bell and a rookery among the elms, is the grave of Swinburne. Others who have visited and written about the Island include Henry Fielding, Michael Connolly, Charles Kingsley, Bayard Taylor and Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Resembles Mt. Desert

The Island, and its location, often reminds Americans of Mt. Desert Island off the coast of Maine, only chalk cliffs replace those of granite, and the mountains on the American island are higher.

Geologists and naturalists find the island a compact natural laboratory with rock layers so exposed that one authority says it might have been cut out by nature for a geological model illustrative of the principles of stratification. Through the center of the island is a backbone of chalk downs. To the north are wooded hills. To the south are beds of sand and marl ending in the chalk cliffs, "Gothic" landscape, with caves, "chines" or ravines, pinnacles, and towers (like the Needles) rising from the sea. The hills and chines are overrun with ivy and honeysuckle, and interspersed with thickets of hazel, briars and blackthorn.

Along the southern shores are many interesting caves like those of Capri, in the Bay of Naples, and other formations wrought by the beating of the waves. Some of them were once the dens of smugglers and when the sea is rolling and the sky is gray, it is said the spirits of the old adventurers again unload their kegs of brandy and store them in the black caverns below the white cliffs, screened by a portullis of foam falling from the mouth of the caves after each receding wave.

The climate of the Isle of Wight is the mildest in the British Isles. Snow seldom falls and does not last. High winds and chilling fog alone prevent its rivaling the Riviera. Its spring is far ahead of that of the rest of England, while its autumn, due to the tempering effect of the water which encircles it, is long and delightful.

MOSUL: FROM WHICH A WAR CLOUD LIFTED

Mosul, from which a war cloud lifted when the Iraq boundary dispute was settled, is described in the following communication from Junius B. Wood to the National Geographic Society.

Mosul is one of the surface-markers on that underground stratum of oil which stretches from the Caspian Sea to the Persian Gulf. For many years it has been exploited in a fashion by the natives.

The statesmen, busy with their academic mapmaking, penciled the northern boundaries of Mesopotamia to include the Mosul oil fields.

Naturally, the Turks were not consulted about the new boundary of Mesopotamia, and said so at Lausanne. That was years later, but little had been done to make the map permanent. The Turks contend that the Mosul fields do not belong in either Syria or Mesopotamia.

Least of all were the Kurds consulted. Ethnographic maps show that the region of the oil fields, except for a scattering of Chaldeans around Mosul city, is solidly settled by Kurds. It is their country, and though the Kurds do not appear at the conferences in European health resorts, where the maps are made, they are always on the spot and ready to fight for their country when an invasion starts.

In the past the Turks held only the loosest control over these fierce fighters. When the new rulers came to take possession of what was theirs on the map, the Kurds fought back.

Desultory fighting has been going on since 1920. Nominally, the fields are in Mesopotamia. The Mesopotamians are not much interested in oil and less interested in fighting with the Kurds. All of the fighting on their side, ostensibly for the integrity of this new Mesopotamia, has been by the British air force.

The desert tribes between Deir ez Zor and Mosul are neither hostile nor friendly. They do not murder or rob travelers, but merely levy a head tax of $5. French authorities say they have no right to do it. However, three separate sheiks collect this local octroi, or likin, for passing across their stretch of desert. The traveler finds it more expeditious to pay and keep moving than to wait and argue his rights.

Dogs in Church Parade

Owners of pedigreed dogs in London are using the famous Sunday morning church parade in Hyde park for the purpose of showing them off. For every bona fide church goer who strolls through the park on Sunday morning there are scores of dog owners anxious to have their pets seen and admired. Many dog fanciers motor in from remote towns merely to stroll through the park in order that the thousands of curious may see the product of their kennels and perhaps make inquiry regarding the ownership and sale price of the dogs.

Emperor's Nickname

Caracalla was the nickname given to Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, Roman emperor from A. D. 212 to 217, on account of the long hooded coat or tunic used by the Gauls in France, which he introduced into Rome.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

On Monday afternoon, March 22, at a meeting open to the public, the Fortnightly presented the Boston Chamber Music Club. This is a group of Symphony players, fine musicians all of them, making a well balanced sextet with piano accompaniment. Unfortunately on this particular afternoon either the undue heat of the Town Hall (always so nice and cool in winter, but apt to be pretty warm at this time of year) or some other reason unknown, caused a lack of co-operation and harmony among the players which seriously impaired the effect of their performance. However, in spite of this regrettable circumstance, the audience enjoyed the concert and applauded cordially.

The program opened with the Greta Ballet Suite which was beautifully rendered, from the crisp, clean cut "Tambourin" through the sweet and thoughtful "Menuet" to the rollicking "Gigue." The finish and ease of this performance carried over into Liszt's beautiful "Dream of Love" with its lovely cadenza for two violins. The third number, "Excerpts from Coq d'or" by Rimsky-Korsakoff, was a most fantastic combination of weird harmonies, odd pizzicato passages and lovely fairy-like interludes. In some majestic passages one felt the need of a heavier orchestra to do the piece full justice; but on the whole it was well played. With the next number, however, "Selections from Lucia di Lammermoor" by Donizetti, the dis-harmony among the players became very apparent. Fortunately the music itself is so well known and so well loved that the audience willingly forgave some faults of execution. This was also true of the Strauss waltz which followed. And the beautiful "Waters of Minnetonka" was received with such enthusiastic delight that the orchestra was obliged to repeat it. Then came the "Cinderella Bridal Procession" by Dicker, and a selection from "Rose Marie"—both of them tuneful and sweet, really lovely arrangements for the seven instruments.

The final number was warmly applauded and the players gave for an encore the beautiful "Entr' Acte" from "Mignon." On the whole it was a really enjoyable concert. But one could not help regretting that the harmony, ease and precision of the first two numbers did not prevail through the remainder of the program.

On account of the prevalence of Grippe, the rummage sale announced by the Room Committee for March 31, has been indefinitely postponed.

ITS 26TH ANNUAL STATEMENT

The Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company Shows Consistent Gains in all Departments

The year 1925 was the outstanding year in the history of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company, according to its 26th annual report just made public. Consistent gains in all departments were recorded during the past year.

The company's insurance in force now aggregates nearly $50,000,000. Its surplus for the extra protection of its policyholders in addition to the amount required by law, is over a half a million. During 1925 new insurance written totaled over four and one-half million.

The investment income of the company has practically doubled in the past five years. This is largely due to the careful supervision of Herbert O. Edgerton, its president, Edward C. Mansfield, its secretary, and a board of directors which includes the names of many well-known business men of this Commonwealth.

The "Boston Mutual Life" as it is familiarly known, is an organization conducted for the benefit of its policyholders. It is operated on strictly mutual lines, the policyholders sharing in the profits derived by the company from the investment of their premiums. It offers the insuring public both "Ordinary" and "Industrial" or weekly premium, life insurance.

Its growth during the past quarter of a century, as shown by the following figures, testifies as to the company's popularity.

	Premium Income
1900	$ 62,330
1925	2,086,118
	Surplus
1900	$ 38,056
1925	523,426
	Reserve
1900	$ 6,067,646
1925	25,052

1900	$ 2,351,252
1925	46,724,051

FINED ON DRUNKEN DRIVER CHARGE

Alexander Wilson of Woburn was found guilty of operating a car while under the influence of liquor and fined $75 in the District Court at Woburn last Saturday morning, the complainants being Sergt. Thomas Cassidy and Officer John Hogan of the Winchester Police.

Wilson was arrested the previous Monday at 5:45 in the afternoon as the result of a phone call to the effect that a truck driver was approaching the Center and was apparently so drunk as to greatly endanger traffic.

Sergt. Cassidy and Officer John Hogan intercepted the man in the square just South of Thompson street. He was driving his own G. M. C. truck loaded with dressing and there was no questioning the fact that he had been imbibing freely. He was escorted to the Station house by Officer Hogan and pleaded guilty to the drunken operating charge when arraigned.

Growsome Relic

The finger of Galileo is shown under a glass case in the Florence museum. It stands, a mysterious-looking bit of parchment, pointing towards heaven. The hand to which it belonged is supposed to have been put to the torture by the inquisition for ascribing motion to the earth, and the finger is now almost worshipped for having proved the motion.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

What a difference there is between a walk on a late afternoon of cloud and a walk on a clear day. The effort of trying to see things pass. What is seen without expectation may be half unnoticed. It has long seemed to the Spectator that one of the finest speeches is the caution of the elder Herschel, "You must not expect to see at sight." It may be extended to many things. We do not get the fullness of anything great in verse or prose from hearing or reading once. We have no idea of a landscape until we have seen it in all the four seasons of the year. The Spectator heard lately of a young person not deeply versed in grammar but confident in her ability to take in everything at a glance. She saw the Atlantic ocean, and her first impression was that its grandeur had been exaggerated. Her one comment was a question, "In this all the bigger it is?"

"Because of the fact that so many youths between the ages of 16 and 18 are brought into our courts charged with criminal acts and are found frequently on street corners and in undesirable places," the Children's Laws Commission recommends a statute that will require children under 18 to attend school or engage in some regular form of work. It is easy for all thinking men to understand the feeling of the Commission in this matter. If a boy of 17, for instance, is too old to go to school he is too young to be hanging around day after day with nothing worth while to occupy his mind. It is as true as it was when Dr. Watts first said it, that Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do.

Modern methods of transportation have made it summer all the year. Not literally, but much so in effect. Our markets now offer vegetables that Winchesterites cannot grow for themselves for several months yet. Thus, while we have not summer weather exactly, we are enabled to enjoy the fruits of summer climes elsewhere through transportation which enables the gardener in the far South to get his stuff to Northern markets almost before the dew has dried. When Winchester gardeners are studying the seed catalogues and planting the garden he expects to have several months hence his Southern brother is harvesting his early crops. In early days Winchester was limited chiefly to home products. The people didn't have strawberries until their own ripened in the garden and the peas were those they grew themselves or were grown by their neighbors. We are not able to avoid winter, but we are in a large degree able to introduce summer products where winter reigns.

A Winchester business man observed to the Spectator that the term "a scientific man" is less common than it was. He is old enough to remember days in which scientific workers were looked on as a small class, very industrious, highly persistent, but eccentric to a degree. Now as he said everybody recognizes that scientific advance may effect his work, his amusements or his investments. When it is supposed to make the motion picture a leading factor in the schoolroom, and when the aged listen to hymns repeated by radio, science has wide range. It might be wild guessing to decide whether in the next hour those whom we see in motors are riding for business or for pleasure. There is now no line of human effort in which scientific developments are not awaited. A visitor lately told the Spectator that when he was a young man he knew very few farmers who were interested in chemistry. "Today," he said, "I do not know a young farmer who is not." There was, within his recollections a feeling that scientific research would injure agriculture, but that is gone.

HOME HYGIENE COURSE

To be Given by Red Cross

There is to be a Home Hygiene course given at the Nurses' Home of the Winchester Hospital under the auspices of the American Red Cross. Miss Urquhart, assistant superintendent and Nursing instructor of the Winchester Hospital is to give the instruction. The class meets at 3 o'clock on Sundays, the next meeting being held on March 30. All the expenses of the course are being met by the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross. Any person who is interested in joining this class may secure enrollment by telephoning Mrs. Lisle Burroughs, Win. 0683-M.

Doxologies

The lesser doxology, or "Glory be to the Father and to the Son," etc., seems to have come into use in the Fourth century. The use of the greater doxology, or "Gloria in excelsis" (sometimes called the angelic hymn, from its being an expansion of the song of the angels in Luke 2:14) can be traced back to the Fourth century. It appears in the Roman liturgy at the beginning of the Sixth century. The last stanza of the hymn, written by Bishop Thomas Ken (1637-1711), beginning, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," is commonly called "the doxology" in Protestant churches.

Nests of Air Monarchs

The National Zoological park says that the bald or golden eagle's nest weighs from 10 to 12 pounds, and that of the burpy eagle approximately 14 pounds. As a rule such nests are about 3 feet across and 1 foot high, consisting of loosely woven sticks.

Many in Ill Health

About 400,000 patients are cared for annually in the hospitals of New York city. In addition to more than 1,000,000 treated at dispensaries and outpatient departments.

THE NORTH POLE—AND FIVE OTHERS

The earth has at least six well-known poles, in three groups of twins, only one of which the ZR-3 or others if they blaze an air trail across the Arctic, will probably cross—the North Pole. The others of the polar family are the "poles of cold," the South Pole and the North and South Magnetic Poles, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The most talked of member of the family is the North Pole. Enthroned at the top of the earth where latitude becomes 90 degrees and the meridians of longitude converge, it has received only one visit in all time. Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, with his retinue of Eskimo attendants, spent a few hours in its frigid presence and took notes on its refrigerating system.

Nature's Remote Refrigerator. Scientists tell us that this refrigerating plant, installed and operated solely by Nature, never fails to register below the freezing point of fresh water even during July, and that its mean temperature in winter is about that of some of the Montana cold snaps.

Even Old Sol, when he returns to the North has been unsuccessful in breaking up the plant, though at the summer solstice he pours out larger amounts of his rays there than at any other part of the earth's surface except at the corresponding point in the South. If he didn't have to keep moving he soon would make the Arctic ice-cap the hottest region on the earth's surface, but he only succeeds in melting some of the surface ice. In honor, or defiance, of his visit, daylight lasts for six months; but humidity, cloudiness and precipitation mar the beauty of his rays on the crystals of the snow palace.

When he leaves and night sets in, fantastic lighting effects, which shame those of New York's Great White Way, are brought into play. The northern part of the sky is illuminated by an arch of whitish, greenish, or rosy light from which streamers of white or colored light go trailing across the heavens. This effect is called the aurora borealis.

Though the North Pole can never leave its kingdom and has been rigidly bound down by Nature, it does manage to shift about in a circle about 50 feet in diameter. This restlessness causes a corresponding variability in terrestrial latitudes.

One Caller in a Million Years. When Admiral Peary stood on the top point of the earth, he was actually being turned around only once in 24 hours with the rotation of the earth. As he simply lingered for a few hours he made only a small part of a revolution—a pace which is not conducive to dizziness. A man in the city of Quito, Ecuador, on the Equator, during that same time, was being whirled along through an immense circle at the rate of about 1000 miles an hour.

The other monarch of the world's ice lands is the South Pole, twin of the North Pole. Though there is all the distance in the world between them, in the main, the surroundings are duplicated. The arrangement of land and water in their respective spheres of influence is somewhat different; the Southern, a land zone surrounded by a wide belt of open sea, and the Northern, a water body surrounded by continental land masses. The Southern monarch likes his summers colder; in fact so cold are the summers and so regular the winds that there is practically no plant life of even the most insignificant kind on the Antarctic Continent. He is also less exclusive than his brother of the North, having received two earthly travelers within his portals—Captain Roald Amundsen and Captain Robert F. Scott, but from the latter he exacted a death penalty.

The North and South Magnetic Poles, located more than a thousand miles from the true North and South Poles toward Hudson Bay and New Zealand, are the elusive members of the polar family. The North Magnetic Pole makes the compass needle stand up straight on its point, and the South Magnetic Pole makes it stand on its foot, and they both play tricks with all sorts of metal instruments by magnetizing or demagnetizing their parts.

Why Compass Swerves From North. When John Jones travels through the northern Wisconsin or Minnesota woods solely with the aid of his compass, he cannot go directly north unless he travels just a little west of the direction in which his compass points, because of its affinity for the North Magnetic Pole.

The explanation of the magnetic poles is that the earth itself is a magnet, made so probably by the electric currents passing around it in an east-west direction. Both these poles also are wanderers within a prescribed area.

The Poles of Cold are the Ishmaels and Hazards of the polar family—outcasts, both erratic and disagreeable. They reside in the places where the cold is most intense, usually in the interior of a continent. Though the North Pole has the coldest mean annual temperature, there is a desert of ice in the interior of Greenland which is the coldest part of the northern hemisphere in July. Verkhoyansk, in northeastern Siberia, on the fringe of the Arctic Circle is colder in January than the North Pole itself. It even boasts a record of 94 degrees Fahrenheit below zero, but its mean temperature for January is about minus 60 degrees Fahrenheit. During February Fort Conger, Grinnell Land, on Ellesmere Island in the Arctic, claims the honor, with a mean temperature for February of about minus 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

Busy Factories

Every week the factories of the great English industrial city of Birmingham turn out 14,000,000 pens, ten tons of pins, 6,000 metal bedsteads, 7,000 tons of rifles and numerous other articles.

LOCARNO, WHICH MAY NAME A TREATY

Acting on the age-old European tradition that a peaceful town is the place to produce a peace treaty, delegates of the major powers preparing the Security Pact have adjourned to Locarno, Switzerland.

Lucerne where they planned to meet has already lent its name to a treaty, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C., and that detail may have had as much weight in moving to Locarno as the desire for Alpine seclusion.

Europe has long pigeonholed its treaties with the names of small towns like Lausanne, Sevres, Ghent, San Stephano and Brest-Litovsk, much to the relief of the American student. Exhausted by the task of meeting and remembering Henrys I to VIII and Louis I to XVIII, it is a rare relief to come upon a dry treaty with the musical name of Alceiras. Treaties by other names than Paris, 1763, London, 1871, are certainly sweeter, as witness: St. Germain, Aix-la-Chapelle, Mudania and courtly Versailles.

Swiss Territorially, Italian in Language

The diplomats will not be disappointed in the premise of the harmonious name of Locarno. This Swiss city blends the beauty of the snow-capped Alps and the blue of Italian lakes.

Swiss by boundary line, Locarno is Italian in language and landscape. Switzerland has long been favorite treaty-making ground largely because of its steadfast neutrality. Its capacity to provide a city neutral by language must also figure. France and Germany are the main parties to the present questions, so by going over the mountains the conferees easily escape both French and German Switzerland and find themselves in Italian Switzerland.

Lake Maggiore, sister to Lake Como, is next to the largest of Italian lakes. It stretches 37 miles from the plains of the Po Valley into the heart of the Alps. Most of Maggiore lies in Italy but the upper part, called Lake Locarno, is in Switzerland. Locarno itself is the head of the lake. Though tiny, it is the mother city of many small villages and villas. Numerous beautiful Alpine valleys pay tribute of trade to it also.

Yellow Fruit Against White Walls. Travelers usually see Locarno in spring or autumn. In spring the whole countryside is pervaded with a delicious perfumed dampness; primroses line the embankments and wayside hedges with their saffron embroidery; and the oranges and lemons, trained against white walls, hang ripe for picking. Peasants call to one another from their sloping fields or trellised vineyards. A woman clicks along the cobbled ways in wooden sandals and a boy sings a scrap of song to the time of his stick whacking on the unfeeling sides of a donkey. As though to intensify this springtime gladness, the church bells ring on the slightest provocation.

But the pact negotiators will find Locarno with autumn on the air. The atmosphere is now clear as Locarno's own church bells across the water. Summer greens are scorched into rich reds and yellows. Peace and toleration should be easy. There is only one railroad and there has been no new telegraph line for twenty years.

New Telegraph Lines for Treaty. But the negotiators reckoned without the enterprise of the Swiss telegraph service which threw a force of linemen into the breach. Locarno's one telegraph line has grown to ten. The last vestige of isolation vanishes with the announcement that the Mare di concern will install a radio station.

Still there is no history to be pursued and absorbed in Locarno. Nature reigns and only one contribution by mankind is worth seeing. This is the chapel of the Madonna del Sasso. As if in recognition of its position as Locarno's lone building of public interest, the chapel has been given a pinnacle of rock on which to perch. The chapel's lines suggest a delightful, haphazard mixture, from the high foundations rising like parapets to the loggia and little tower. Its walls are a rich

Love After Marriage

Adolescent love is an event. Married love is a situation. The first is a critical phase of development, the second is sustained romance. The desire to retain a special mystery or attraction is inhumanity. Love for a wife implies an inability to conceive of life without her. The music of the spheres begins, years after the marriage ceremony, when this happy condition is achieved. For both man and woman the domestic atmosphere should hold rest, understanding and sympathy. So is one ready for the great adventure.—Eaton Mayo, in Harper's Magazine.

Term for Shirker

The slang term coberger is commonly used in the navy in speaking of one who shirks his work or one who is always looking for easy jobs and does no more than it is absolutely necessary.

ALUMINUM: WHICH HELPS IN COOKING AND FLYING

Helium has had wide publicity from the Shenandoah's flight; aluminum which makes possible the performance of both the Shenandoah and the ZR-3 seems scarcely to have its just due.

Aluminum is the foundation of duralumin, the metal bones of modern lighter-than-air sky cruisers, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters at Washington, D. C. The metal usually hides the light of its powers, such as the blowing up of Vimy Ridge, under bushels of other names and it is a "rookie" among the old-time major league metals.

Iron, copper, tin, zinc and lead did service to man earlier than the birth of Christ. Aluminum will be only 100 years old in 1927. Seventy years ago aluminum sold for $7 an ounce and was advertised as silver from clay. Even the 7300 tons produced in 1900 must be multiplied 25 times to approach last year's total, while the "silver" of the sixties sells now for two cents an ounce.

Most Prolific of Metals
To play a joke on a jeweler ask him for "some nice stone in aluminum, about two or three carats." Probably he will look puzzled but if he knows the chemistry of his trade he will lay before you gems fit for a king's crown. The ruby, sapphire, garnet and turquoise have a normal base of aluminum. Greater quantities of it are found than any other true metal; only half as much of its nearest rival, iron, occurs in igneous rocks, which include all rocks hardened out of the original boiling mass of which the earth once was composed.

An element of such frequency is not confined to one country or continent. It is a partner in nearly all shales and clays, the latter a necessity of man from civilization's dawn. The evening potatoes which are boiled in an aluminum pan are placed before the family on china plates partly aluminum. Salts of aluminum play a part in the abrasive father uses to sharpen the carving knife, the dyes in his suit, the tanning of his shoes and even his evening newspaper. Kaolin, the foundation of chinaware, has a large content of aluminum and the man who develops a method of getting it out cheaper than pulling it away from the mineral now used, bauxite, will receive honors and riches.

The Geography of Bauxite
Bauxite takes its name from the French hamlet of Baux, 10 miles east of Arles, on the lower Rhone. Best bauxite still comes from southern France, particularly among the hills back from the Riviera coast. But mineable quantities of bauxite, which is an earthy, soft, weathered mineral, are found in Antrim County, Ireland, in many parts of Germany, in British and French Guiana, and in India and Italy. More discoveries are being reported from time to time. In the United States important workings are near Little Rock, Arkansas. Steam shovels also scoop it up in northern Georgia and Alabama.

American aluminum companies have bought control of large bauxite deposits in British and French Guiana. Process Discovered by Minister's Son
To Charles M. Hall, whose rise to fame and fortune reads like an Alger romance, the housewife owes credit for her shining pots and pans. Hall, a Congregational minister's son, one day discovered an old chemistry textbook without cover or title page in his father's reading room; it decided his life ambition. At the age of 22 while attending Oberlin College in Ohio he invented the electrolysis process by which practically all aluminum is made today. Electrolysis is called "electric loosening." Aluminum in combination with oxygen to which it is attracted like steel to a magnet, Hall subjected under certain conditions to a powerful electric current and split the particles to form pure aluminum.

Duralumin's production is a trade secret. Aluminum is its chief content and there is also copper. It is so light that a girder 16 feet long can be balanced on one's little finger, but so strong that if its ends are supported by blocks it will support eight men.

The qualities of aluminum win its more friends constantly. Weight for weight it offers twice as smooth a road for transporting electricity as copper. For its virtue of radiating heat more rapidly than iron or most other metals, and for its lightness, automobile makers welcome it. Because it absorbs heat quickly, is light and does not rust, it is used for utensils. On western alkali plains, however, it turns black and comes off in flakes.

Under certain circumstances aluminum has a violent affection for oxygen. This quality workmen employ in making molten metal on the spot. When you see a hooded man working in a brilliant light on the street-car track he is employing the thermite process. A mixture of aluminum powder and iron oxide (rust) is ignited with magnesium. In a violent effort the aluminum robs the iron of oxide; the iron liquifies in the terrific temperature attained, 6000 degrees Fahrenheit, within 30 seconds, and welds the rails. This temperature approaches the heat of the steel-carving oxy-acetylene blowtorch, the highest temperature common to industry.

Early Glass Windows

The ruins of Pompeii, destroyed by an eruption of Mount Vesuvius in 79 A. D., show that windows of glass were in use. There were glass windows in England in the Third century, but for several centuries the glass was imported.

The Great Smith Family

The great family of Smiths bear a name which is not only the commonest but the oldest in the world. Professor Mahaffy, when deciphering the Petrie papyrus, came upon one bearing the name of Smith, unmistakably written. "We have never," he says, "found anything like it before, and it is surely worth telling the many distinguished bearers of the name that there was a man known as Smith in the twentieth year of the third Ptolemy, 227 years B. C., and that he was occupied in brewing and selling—beer."

Doctoring a Mountain

Some alarm has been caused in Rome by the statement of scientists that the Matterhorn, one of Italy's famous mountains, is in a shaky condition, and may topple over into the Italian valley. Years ago similar fears for the Rocher de la Clusette in Jura caused engineers to rush to the mountain and shore it up with concrete.

Although it is said that several Winchester Country Club members have already tried out the course, we note from the "Sandhill Citizen" of Southern Pines, N. C., that some local golfers prefer shifting their activities. The Citizen says: "The two F's, Harry D. Ferrell and C. P. Fenno dropped in from Boston for their annual two weeks of winter golf, although they had played a game on their home course in January. Their enthusiasm was shown when they began to scuff the grass tops the first day with 36 holes. Then they got it out of their system and 27 holes a day for the rest of the week seemed to satisfy. Mr. Ferrell is probably the only player that uses a mashie off the tee, but the most surprising part of it is that he hits them out 200 yards and more with that club."
